The reason in each case of arrest without a warrant is that the person arrested is accused of having committed or reasonably suspected to have committed or of being about to commit or of being likely to commit some offence or misconduct.

As in the cases of arrest without warrant under the Code of Criminal Procedure, an arrest without warrant under the Sea Customs Act and Forest Act also proceeds upon an accusation that the person arrested is reasonably suspected of having committed an offence and there is no provision for communicating to the person arrested the grounds for his arrest. State of Punjab v. Ajaib Singh, AIR 1953 SC 10, 14, 15: 1953 SCR 254, 264: (1953) 1 MLJ 108: 1953 ALJ 49: ILR 1953 Punj 121.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-11-1952]

[7746] — S. 75(1) — Detention order — Compliance of section

Section 75(1) has been clearly complied with inasmuch as the detention order is in writing and has been signed by the detaining authority. Mohd. Maqbool Damnoo v. State of J&K, (1972) 1 SCC 536: 1972 SCC (Cri) 304: AIR 1972 SC 963: 1972 Cri LJ 597.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua, H.R. Khanna and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-1972]

— Ss. 76 to 86 See Ss. 75 to 86

[7747] — Ss. 87 and 88 — Applicability to person alleged to have committed contempt — Applicability of S. 88(7)

The provisions of Ss. 87 and 88 would not be available to securing the presence of a person who is alleged to have committed contempt.

As no attachment could legally be made under S. 88, Criminal Procedure Code, in any proceeding for contempt, the provisions of S. 88(7) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, under which the property under attachment shall be at the disposal of the State Government, if the proclaimed person does not appear within the time prescribed in the proclamation cannot come into operation. V.G. Peterson v. O.V. Forbes, AIR 1963 SC 692, 697: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 40: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 633: (1963) 2 MLJ (SC) 69.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-9-1962]

[7748] — Ss. 87 and 88 — Abscondence after crime — Accused surrendering only after initiation of proceedings under Ss. 87 and 88 CrPC, 1898 — Abscondence not explained by accused — Evidence of abscondence accepted as adequate and satisfactory by trial court and High Court, held, lent further credence to the prosecution case. Gurnek Singh v. State of Punjab, 1988 Supp SCC 807: 1989 SCC (Cri) 10: AIR 1988 SC 2249.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.P. Thakkar and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1988]

[7749] — Ss. 87 and 88 — Preventive detention — Maintenance of Internal Security Act, 1971, S. 3 — Gap of about ten months between order of detention and arrest — Failure to resort to Ss. 87 and 88 CrPC — Effect

Section 3 of the Act does not contemplate the authorities empowered to make orders of detention to function as courts. Ss. 87 and 88 CrPC, are provisions which can be availed of by a court. In terms, therefore, these sections may not be attracted. Even assuming it is permissible to resort to such procedure the mere omission to do so cannot render the order of detention either illegal or mala fide and cannot lead to the inference that there was no real and genuine apprehension that the petitioner was likely to act in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. Indradeo Mahato v. State of W.B., (1973) 4 SCC 4: 1973 SCC (Cri) 645: AIR 1973 SC 1062: 1973 Cri LJ 862.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-2-1973]

— S. 88 See Ss. 87 and 88

— S. 94 See also Ss. 155, 61, 94, 167, 164 and 202

[7750] — S. 94 — Confidentiality of income tax proceedings — Whether extends to documents produced by third parties — Whether applies to requisition by criminal courts — IT Act, 1922, S. 54(1) — IT Act, 1961, S. 137(1) (Pre 1967) — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 381 and 385

(i) There is no distinction between documents filed by an assessee and by a third party. The prohibition under S. 54 applies to both.

(ii) The non obstante clause cannot restrict the embargo placed on the court under S. 54 of the Income Tax Act: the said clause only operates to make it clear that the said general ban prevails notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Evidence Act, 1872. That apart, S. 54 of the Income Tax Act contains in effect an unconditional prohibition against a public servant producing any such document, and that prohibition does not exclude any criminal process from its operation. CIT v. Laxmichand Narayandas, AIR 1962 SC 1121: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 254: (1962) 44 ITR 548, 550.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1961]

[7751] — Ss. 94 and 439 — Summoning of documents — High Court interfering with exercise of discretion by trial court — Propriety

The High Court was not justified in interfering with the discretion of the learned Magistrate. Whether a particular document should be summoned or not is essentially in the discretion of the trial court.

Except for very good reasons, the High Court should not interfere with the discretion conferred on the trial courts in the matter of summoning documents. Such interferences would unnecessarily impede the progress of cases and result in waste of public money and time. Asstt. Collector of Customs v. L.R. Melwani, AIR 1970 SC 962, 967: (1969) 2 SCR 438: (1970) 72 Bom LR 782: 1970 Cri LJ 885.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1968]

[7752] — S. 94 — Income Tax Act, 1922, S. 54 — Held, overrides S. 94

Under S. 54(1) of the Indian Income Tax Act, 1922, no Court shall be entitled to require the appellant to produce before it the said documents as they formed part of the record of an assessment proceeding taken before the relevant income tax authority notwithstanding S. 94 CrPC. CIT v. Laxmichand Narayandas, AIR 1962 SC 1121, 1122: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 254: (1962) 44 ITR 548.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1961]

[7753] — S. 94 — Party summoned to produce document disclaiming possession — Party not a witness in the proceedings — Held, such party cannot be forced to appear in court, made to state on oath and be subjected to cross-examination by the court or counsel — CrPC, 1973, S. 91. Parmeshwari Devi v. State, (1977) 1 SCC 169: 1977 SCC (Cri) 74: AIR 1977 SC 403: (1977) 2 SCR 160.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1976]

[7754] — S. 94 — Summons to produce something — Magistrate sending letter of request to the Jailor requiring accused to disclose where he left his jeep — Magistrate's conduct is unusual — The investigating officer should have tried to find this out on interrogating the accused. Raghav Prapanna Tripathi v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 74: (1963) 3 SCR 239: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 70.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2], A.K. Sarkar[1], M. Hidayatullah[2] and Raghubar Dayal[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1962]

[7755] — Ss. 94 and 96 — Search and seizure of documents from accused — Not violative of Art. 20(3)

Notwithstanding the assumptions that S. 94 CrPC, is applicable to the accused and that there is an element of compulsion implicit in the process contemplated by S. 94. Sections 94 and 96(1) CrPC, cannot be read as importing any statutory recognition of a theory that search and seizure of documents is compelled production thereof.

It is to be noticed that S. 96(1) has three alternatives and that the requirement of previous notice or summons and the non-compliance with it or the likelihood of such non-compliance is prescribed only for the first alternative and not for the second or the third. A "general search" and a "search for a document or a thing not known to be in possession of any particular person" are not conditioned by any such requirement. Indeed in cases covered by the second alternative such a requirement cannot even be contemplated as possible. It would therefore, follow on the theory propounded, that some at least of the searches within the scope of the second and third alternatives in S. 96(1) would fall outside the constitutional protection of Art. 20(3) — an anomalous distinction for which no justification can be found on principle.

There is no basis in the Indian law for the assumption that a search or seizure of a thing or document is in itself to be treated as compelled production of the same. The two are essentially different matters. A notice to produce is addressed to the party concerned and his production in compliance therewith constitutes a testimonial act by him within the meaning of Art. 20(3) as above explained. But a search warrant is addressed to an officer of the Government, generally a police officer. Neither the search nor the seizure are acts of the occupier of the searched premises. They are acts of another to which he is obliged to submit and are, therefore, not his testimonial acts in any sense.

A power of search and seizure is in any system of jurisprudence an overriding power of the State for the protection of social security and that power is necessarily regulated by law. When the Constitution-makers have thought fit not to subject such regulation to constitutional limitations by recognition of a fundamental right to privacy, analogous to the American Fourth Amendment, we have no justification to import it into a totally different fundamental right, by some process of strained construction. Nor is it legitimate to assume that the constitutional protection under Art. 20(3) would be defeated by the statutory provisions for searches.

Issue of a search warrant is normally the judicial function of the Magistrate. When such judicial function is interposed between the individual and the officer's authority for search, no circumvention thereby of the fundamental right is to be assumed. In the present set up, of the Magistracy in this country, it is not infrequently that the exercise of this judicial function is liable to serious error. But the existence of scope for such occasional error is no ground to assume circumvention or the constitutional guarantee.

Held :

In the case that searches which were made in pursuance of warrants issued under S. 96, CrPC could not be challenged as illegal as violating Art. 20(3) of the Constitution. M.P. Sharma v. Satish Chandra, AIR 1954 SC 300: 1954 SCR 1077: (1954) 1 MLJ 680: 1954 Cri LJ 865: 56 Punj LR 366.

Bench Strength 8. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, Ghulam Hasan, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1954]

[7756] — Ss. 94 and 173(4) — Relative scope — Private complaint

It is impermissible to read into S. 94, Criminal Procedure Code, the requirements of S. 173(4), Criminal Procedure Code. The High Court was not justified, in indirectly applying to cases instituted on private complaints the requirements of S. 173(4), Criminal Procedure Code. Asstt. Collector of Customs v. L.R. Melwani, AIR 1970 SC 962, 967: (1969) 2 SCR 438: (1970) 72 Bom LR 782: 1970 Cri LJ 885.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1968]

[7757] — S. 94(1) — Scope

Section 94(1) does not empower a Magistrate to direct the prosecution to give copies of any documents to an accused person. That much appears to be plain from the language of that section. Asstt. Collector of Customs v. L.R. Melwani, AIR 1970 SC 962, 967: (1969) 2 SCR 438: (1970) 72 Bom LR 782: 1970 Cri LJ 885.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1968]

[7758] — S. 94(1) — Summons for production of document — Does not apply to accused — No summons under the section can be issued to an accused

Per Sikri, J. (for majority)

The Indian Legislature was aware of the above fundamental canon of criminal jurisprudence because in various sections of the Criminal Procedure Code it gives effect to it. Therefore the Legislature if it minded to make S. 94 applicable to an accused person would have said so in specific words. It is true that the words of S. 94 are wide enough to include an accused person but it is well recognised that in some cases a limitation may be put on the construction of the wide terms of a statute.

If S. 94 is construed to include an accused person, the construction is likely to lead to grave hardship for the accused and make investigation unfair to him.

The language of S. 94 is general, and prima facie apt to include an accused person. But there are indications that the Legislature did not intend to include an accused person. The words 'attend and produce' are rather inapt to cover the case of an accused person. It would be an odd procedure for a Court to issue a summon to an accused person present in Court 'to attend and produce', a document. It would be still more odd for a police officer to issue a written order to an accused person in his custody to attend and produce a document.

The contention that the 'person' referred to in the latter part of S. 94(1) is broad enough to include an accused person does not take into account the fact that the person in the latter part must be identical with the person who can be directed to produce the thing or document, and if the production of the thing or document cannot be ordered against an accused person having regard to the general scheme of the Code and the basic concept of Criminal Law, the generality of the words "the person" is of no significance.

Section 94 on its true construction, does not apply to an accused person.

Per Shah, J. (dissenting)

Failure to comply with an order under S. 94 of the Code of Criminal Procedure may undoubtedly expose a person to penal action under S. 485 of the Code, and he may be prosecuted under S. 175 of the Indian Penal Code. Refusal to produce a document or thing on the ground that the protection guaranteed by Art. 20(3) would since the enactment of the Constitution be infringed thereby would be a reasonable excuse for non-production within the meaning of S. 485 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and an order which is in violation of Art. 20(3) requiring the person to produce a document would not be regarded as lawful within the meaning of S. 195 of the Indian Penal Code. But, apart from the protection conferred by Art. 20(3), there is no reservation which has to be implied in the application of S. 94(1).

Whether in a given case the guarantee of protection against testimonial compulsion under Art. 20(3) is infringed by an order of a Court acting in exercise of power conferred by S. 94(1) must depend upon the nature of the document ordered to be produced. If by summoning a person who is accused before the Court to produce documents or things he is compelled to be a witness against himself, the summons and all proceedings taken thereon by order of the Court will be void. It needs, however, to be affirmed that the protection against what is called testimonial compulsion under Art. 20(3) is against proceedings in Court: it does not apply to orders which may be made by a police officer in the course of investigation. The Court cannot, therefore, be called upon to consider whether the action of a police officer calling upon a person charged with the commission of an offence to produce a document or thing in his possession infringes the guarantee under Art. 20(3) of the Constitution. State of Gujarat v. Shyamlal Mohanlal Choksi, AIR 1965 SC 1251: (1965) 2 SCR 457: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 256.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J.[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], J.C. Shah[1], S.M. Sikri[2] and R.S. Bachawat[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1964]

— S. 96 See also Ss. 94 and 96

[7759] — S. 96 — Power to remove obstruction or resistance to search

Where a power is conferred or a duty imposed by statute or otherwise, and there is nothing said expressly inhibiting the exercise of the power or the performance of the duty by any limitations or restrictions, it is reasonable to hold that it carries with it the power of doing all such acts or employing such means as are reasonably necessary for such execution.

If in the exercise of the power or the performance of the official duty, improper or unlawful obstruction or resistance is encountered, there must be the right to use reasonable means to remove the obstruction or overcome the resistance. This accords with common sense and does not seem contrary to any principle of law. Matajog Dobey v. H.C. Bhari, AIR 1956 SC 44, 50: (1955) 2 SCR 925: (1955) 28 ITR 941: 1956 Cri LJ 140.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[7760] — S. 96 — Sea Customs Act, 1878, S. 172 — Relative scope

Section 172 of the Sea Customs Act by its second paragraph brings into operation the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code, and, therefore, the Magistrate's jurisdiction is both under S. 172 of the Sea Customs Act and the Criminal Procedure Code. There can be no doubt also that unlike S. 96, the Magistrate is to be guided by the belief of the Customs authorities, though he may prevent undue harassment in cases, where it can be seen that the belief is not entertained by the Customs Officer or his action is mala fide. The Magistrate is certainly entitled to satisfy himself about the belief of the Customs Officer, but is not required to make up his own mind independently of that belief.

A condition, therefore, in the warrant that the goods or documents should be produced before the Magistrate must be complied with, and once the goods or documents have been produced before the Magistrate, it is for him to decide, in the circumstances of each case, whether he would make them over to the Customs authorities or not. Mohd. Serajuddin v. R.C. Misra, AIR 1962 SC 759, 762-763: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 545: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 692.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[7761] — Ss. 96, 98 and Sch. V, Form 8 — Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947, S. 19(3) — Applicability in view of S. 19(3). Nilratan Sircar v. Lakshmi Narayan Ram Niwas, AIR 1965 SC 1: (1964) 7 SCR 724: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 100.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-4-1964]

[7762] — S. 96(1) — Constitutionality of — Issue of search warrant under — Not violative of Art. 19(1)(f)

A search by itself is not a restriction on the right to hold and enjoy property. No doubt a seizure and carrying away is a restriction of the possession and enjoyment of the property seized. This, however, is only temporary and for the limited purpose of investigation. A search and seizure is, therefore, only a temporary interference with the right to hold the premises searched and the articles seized. Statutory regulation in this behalf is a necessary and reasonable restriction and cannot 'per se' be considered to be unconstitutional. The damage, if any, caused by such temporary interference if found to be in excess of legal authority is a matter for redress in other proceedings. No question of violation of Art. 19(1)(f) is involved where search warrants purporting to be under the first alternative of S. 96(1) of the CrPC are issued. M.P. Sharma v. Satish Chandra, AIR 1954 SC 300: 1954 SCR 1077: (1954) 1 MLJ 680: 1954 Cri LJ 865: 56 Punj LR 366.

Bench Strength 8. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, Ghulam Hasan, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1954]

— S. 98 See Ss. 96, 98 and Sch. V, Form 8

— S. 99-A See also Ss. 99-D and 99-A

[7763] — S. 99-A — Order under for confiscation of book violative of S. 295-A, IPC — Grounds to be expressly stated, otherwise the order would violate Art. 19(1)(a) — Constitution of India Art. 19(1)(a). State of U.P. v. Lalai Singh Yadav, (1976) 4 SCC 213: 1976 SCC (Cri) 556: AIR 1977 SC 202: 1977 Cri LJ 186: (1976) 1 SCR 616.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, V.R. Krishna Iyer and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1976]

[7764] — Ss. 99-D and 99-A — Scope and meaning — Expression "matter of such a nature as is referred to in sub-section (1) of S. 99-A" — Meaning of — Means only those matters on which the order of forfeiture under S. 99-A was based — Does not mean any matter of that nature which High Court thought

Per Sarkar, J. (for majority)

The words "matter of such a nature as is referred to in sub-section (1) of S. 99-A" appearing in S. 99-D mean only those on which the order of forfeiture was based, that is, those which for the reasons stated by it, the Government thought were punishable under one or more Ss. 124-A, 153-A and 295-A, Penal Code, mentioned by it.

Under S. 99-D it is the duty of the High Court to set aside an order of forfeiture if it is not satisfied that the grounds on which the Government formed its opinion that the books contained matters the publication of which would be punishable under any one or more of Ss. 124-A, 153-A or 295-A of the Penal Code could justify that opinion. It is not its duty to do more and to find for itself whether the book contained any such matter whatsoever.

Where the Government in its order under S. 99-A, CrPC, did not state the grounds of its opinion the High Court must set aside the order under S. 99-D, for it cannot then be satisfied that the grounds given by the Government justified the order. No one can be satisfied about a thing which he does not know.

Per Das Gupta, J. (dissenting)

The duty cast by S. 99-D on the Judges of the High Court is not to see whether in a particular case the grounds stated by the Government for forming its opinion are correct, but to see whether the opinion formed was correct. To perform this duty the one and the only way is to examine the document which in the Government's opinion contains the matter complained of.

The contention that the High Court is not in a position to perform this duty under S. 99-D satisfactorily in the absence of a statement by the Government of the grounds of its opinion is not sound. Harnam Das v. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 1662: (1962) 2 SCR 487: (1962) 1 MLJ (SC) 112: ILR (1961) 2 All 437: (1962) 1 AWR (SC) 112.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar[1], K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta[2] and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-4-1961]

— S. 101 See also Ss. 101 to 103

[7765] — S. 101 — Compromise in proceedings under — Whether bar to suit in Civil Court — Civil Procedure Code, 1908, Or. 1 R. 8

The compromise was not arrived at in a suit fought in representative capacity but was filed in a proceeding under S. 107, Code of Criminal Procedure. The signatories declared inter alia that "neither we, the Musalmans nor we the Hindus can at any time in future create any disturbance towards each other's religion and will deal with each other as before. We will not create any disturbance in any function of either party and will not create breach of peace with each other amongst ourselves.... There is no apprehension of breach of peace as we the Hindus and Musalmans have amicably settled the matter nor will there occur any breach of peace in future. So we both parties having settled the matter amicably, hereby submit this petition and pray that the case be disposed of in terms of this compromise petition". It is signed by a number of persons but there is no indication that they represented the two communities. It may be that these persons, who signed the compromise, were important persons in the communities and it may be that both the communities should act according to the compromise effected by the so-called important persons. But in law it does not debar the parties from asserting their legal rights in a civil court. Shaikh Piru Bux v. Kalandi Pati, AIR 1970 SC 1885: (1969) 2 SCR 563.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-10-1968]

[7766] — Ss. 101 to 103 — Applicability — Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947

The provisions relating to searches under the Code which apply to searches under sub-section (3) of S. 19 are the provisions relating to the conduct of searches and that these provisions are Ss. 101, 102 and 103 of the Code. Nilratan Sircar v. Lakshmi Narayan Ram Niwas, AIR 1965 SC 1, 4: (1964) 7 SCR 724: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 100.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-4-1964]

— S. 102 See Ss. 101 to 103

— S. 103 See also Ss. 101 to 103

[7767] — S. 103 — Evidence of witnesses — Panchnama not being of the same locality is a mere irregularity not affecting legality of the proceedings. As to recovery of opium

The fact that outsiders attested the Panchnama contrary to S. 103, CrPC was only an irregularity not affecting the legality of the proceedings. There is no reason to disbelieve high-placed officers who were present at the raid and the recovery. Tej Bahadur Singh v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 779.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and G.K. Mitter and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-4-1970]

[7768] — S. 103 — Formalities in search — Personal search of searching officer and witnesses

One of the formalities that has to be observed is that the searching officer should give his personal search to the witnesses before entering the premises to be searched and should similarly search the witnesses also in the presence of one another. State of Bihar v. Kapil Singh, AIR 1969 SC 53, 58: (1968) 3 SCR 810: 1969 Cri LJ 279.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1968]

[7769] — S. 103 — Preparation of list by person conducting the search — List not completed due to obstruction — Whether amounts to non-compliance — Whether copy of list should be given then and there

Where the Police Inspector prepared a seizure memo in which the details of currency notes were written but he was prevented from completing it by the obstruction, it cannot be said to amount to non-compliance with the provisions of S. 103, Code of Criminal Procedure.

Section 103 does not say that the copy should be given then and there, though ordinarily that would be implied. It could be given soon after the search so long as there was no opportunity to raise any suspicion or doubt as to the authenticity of articles seized. Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1972 SC 886: (1972) 3 SCR 422: 1972 Cri LJ 638: 1973 ALJ 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1972]

[7770] — S. 103 — Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954, S. 10(7)

The provisions of S. 10(7) of the Act are akin to those under S. 103 of the Code when the premises of a citizen are searched by the police. Babu Lal Hargovindas v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 1 SCC 767: 1971 SCC (Cri) 337: AIR 1971 SC 1277: 1971 Cri LJ 1075.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1971]

[7771] — S. 103 — Recovery witness

A recovery witness who has been joining in the police raids for the last fifteen years cannot be treated as an independent witness. Hazara Singh v. State of Punjab, (1971) 1 SCC 529: 1971 SCC (Cri) 237.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1971]

[7772] — S. 103 — Search — Not in accordance with the section — Witnesses not of the locality — Effect — Search is not invalidated — It only affects the weight of evidence

In respect of the search of the room occupied by the appellant and the recovery of the bloodstained shirt and bloodstained pants aforesaid it was necessary to have at least two search witnesses as required by S. 103. Assuming that the two rickshaw-wallahs who actually witnessed the search as found by the Courts below were not respectable inhabitants of the locality, that circumstance would not invalidate the search.

It would only affect the weight of the evidence in support of the search and the recovery. Hence at the highest the irregularity in the search and the recovery in so far as the terms of S. 103 had not been fully complied with would not affect the legality of the proceedings. It only affected the weight of evidence which is a matter for Courts of facts and the Supreme Court would not ordinarily go behind the findings of fact concurrently arrived at by the Courts below. Sunder Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 411: 1956 Cri LJ 801, 802.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1955]

[7773] — S. 103 — Search of a motor car — If a place — S. 103 CrPC, is not applicable — Necessity of witnesses of locality — Otherwise recommended

In view of S. 117 of Bombay Prohibition Act and S. 103, CrPC, it is obligatory on a police officer about to make a search to call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality in which the place to be searched is situate to attend and witness the search. But where the search is to be made of a motor car stopped on a road Ss. 102 and 103, Code of Criminal Procedure, will not apply as motor car is not a place within the meaning of the sections; nor is there any thing in the Act by which the motor car would be so regarded for purposes of a search. The provisions relating to searches contained in S. 103 of the Code of Criminal Procedure have therefore no application and in making a search of a motor vehicle, it was not obligatory upon the police officer to comply with the requirements thereof. But since it is a healthy practice it should be followed. Bhagwanbhai Dulabhai Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (1963) 3 SCR 386: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 694: 1963 Mah LJ 134.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1962]

[7774] — S. 103 — Shoes seized from the accused while he is in police custody — Provisions of S. 103 do not apply

Section 103 would not apply to the seizure of the shoes which were being worn by the accused at the time he was with the investigating police officer. The section applies when a search is to be made of a place. It does not apply to the search of a person. In this case the Sub-Inspector saw the accused putting on the pair of shoes and he seized them. There is no question of search either of a place or of a person.

Hence it was not necessary strictly in accordance with the provisions of S. 103 of the Code that there should have been two independent search witnesses. But the Sub-Inspector out of abundant caution asked those two rickshaw-wallahs to be present as they were the persons not easily available. Sunder Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 411: 1956 Cri LJ 801, 802.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1955]

[7775] — Ss. 103 and 51 — Search of offender — Search memo signed only by policemen accompanying the Head Constable and not by any independent witnesses though present — Matter not free from doubt — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 100 and 51. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1976) 1 SCC 15: 1975 SCC (Cri) 737: AIR 1976 SC 985: 1976 Cri LJ 713.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-8-1975]

[7776] — Ss. 103 and 165 — Search in contravention of the sections — Resistance to — Owner of the premises can resist on illegal search — Court also to examine the search evidence carefully — Seizure of articles not vitiated even when search is illegal

Even assuming that the search was illegal, the seizure of the articles is not vitiated. It may be that where the provisions of Ss. 103 and 165, Code of Criminal Procedure, are contravened the search could be resisted by the person whose premises are sought to be searched. It may also be that because of the illegality of the search the Court may be inclined to examine carefully the evidence regarding the seizure. But beyond these two consequences no further consequence ensues. Radha Kishan v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 822: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 408: 1963 Cri LJ 809: (1963) 2 LLJ 667.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1962]

[7777] — Ss. 103 and 165(4) — Applicability to search under S. 17 of Bihar Sales Tax Act, 1947 — Held, not applicable. Sheonath Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1968 SC 1517: (1969) 1 SCR 150: (1968) 22 STC 488: 1969 Cri LJ 37.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1968]

— S. 105(2) See Ss. 165(1) and 105(2)

— Ch. VIII See also Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII

[7778] — Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 124) — Detenu's liability to be tried under CrPC — Government not debarred from taking action under an Act providing for preventive detention — Nature of detention under CrPC and MISA — Respective fields of jurisdiction — MISA, 1971, S. 3 — Criminal prosecution against detenu — Pendency of and liability to criminal prosecution against detenu. Borjahan Gorey v. State of W.B., (1972) 2 SCC 550: 1972 SCC (Cri) 888: AIR 1972 SC 2256: (1973) 1 SCR 751.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-8-1972]

[7779] — Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 126-A) — Detention based on subjective satisfaction on grounds of suspicion — Different from judicial trial for offences and judicial orders for prevention of offences — Unsuccessful judicial trial not bar to a detention order — Detention order cannot be challenged on ground that criminal trial or proceedings under Ch. VIII CrPC could be initiated against the detenu — MISA, 1971, S. 3 — Criminal prosecution against detenu — Pendency of and liability to criminal prosecution against detenu. Mohd. Subrati v. State of W.B., (1973) 3 SCC 250: 1973 SCC (Cri) 245: AIR 1973 SC 207: (1973) 2 SCR 990: 1974 Cri LJ 397.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-11-1972]

[7780] — Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 126-A) — Detention order not mala fide merely because objectionable activities covered thereby also attract provisions of Ch. VIII CrPC — Preventive Detention — Detention order — Mala fide order

If the grounds are relevant and germane to the object of the detaining Act then merely because the objectionable activities covered thereby also attract the provisions of Ch. VIII CrPC, the preventive detention cannot for that reason alone be considered to be mala fide provided the authority concerned is satisfied of the necessity of the detention as contemplated by the Act. Masood Alam v. Union of India, (1973) 1 SCC 551: 1973 SCC (Cri) 435: AIR 1973 SC 897: (1973) 3 SCR 268: 1973 Cri LR (SC) 173: 1973 Cri LJ 627.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1973]

[7781] — Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII — Whether constitutional — Nature and scope of preventive detention whether different under CrPC and Constitution of India, Art. 22

Whether S. 144 and Chapter VIII of the Code can be said to be in the interests of public order in so far as the right of freedom of speech and expression, rights of assembly and formation of associations and unions are concerned, and in the interests of general public in so far as they curtail freedom of movement throughout the territory of India.

The constitutionality of Chapter VIII of the Code is also upheld. Division A (S. 106) is aimed at persons whose past conduct has proved dangerous to the public and is intended to secure public tranquillity and peace. Division B (Ss. 107-110 and Ss. 112-119) is also intra vires. As to S. 117, sub-section (i) contemplates an immediate enquiry into the truth of the information. It is pending the completion of the enquiry that an interim bond can be asked for. As the liberty of the subject is involved and the person is being proceeded with on information and suspicion it is necessary to put a strict construction of power of the Magistrate. It is therefore necessary that some enquiry should be made before an interim bond is demanded. Division of Chapter VIII (119-126-A) is quite intra vires.

The power under Chapter VIII CrPC, is to be distinguished from the powered detention by executive action under Art. 22. Although the order to execute a bond issued before an offence is committed has the appearance of an administrative order, in reality it is judicial in character. Reasons are therefore to be stated by the Magistrate when he passes the order. Madhu Limaye v. Sub-Divisional Magistrate, (1970) 3 SCC 746: AIR 1971 SC 2486.

Bench Strength 7. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam, A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1970]

— S. 107 See Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 124)
See also Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII
See also Ss. 144 and 107
See also Ss. 151, 107 and 117(3)

[7782] — S. 107 — Proceedings under — Nature of

A proceeding under S. 107 CrPC, is not a trial. State of A.P. v. Kokkiliagada Meerayya, (1969) 1 SCC 161: AIR 1970 SC 771: 1970 Cri LJ 759.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-11-1968]

[7783] — S. 107 — Dispute between two communities — Agreement between leaders of the communities — Not binding on the whole community

No party in a proceeding under S. 107, Criminal Procedure Code, could represent the whole community to which he belongs.

The compromise was not binding on the Hindu community. The compromise was not arrived at in a suit fought in a representative capacity but was filed in a proceeding under S. 107, Criminal Procedure Code. The signatories declared inter alia that "neither we, the Musalmans nor we the Hindus can at any time in future create any disturbance towards each other's religion and will deal with each other as before. We will not create any disturbance in any function of either party and will not create breach of peace with each other amongst ourselves. There is no apprehension of breach of peace as we the Hindus and the Musalmans have amicably settled the matter nor will there occur any breach of peace in future. So we both parties having settled the matter amicably, hereby submit this petition and pray that the case be disposed of in terms of this compromise petition". It is signed by a number of persons but there is no indication that they represented the two communities. It may be that these persons, who signed the compromise, were important persons in the communities and it may be that both the communities should act according to the compromise effected by the so-called important persons. But in law it does not debar the parties from asserting their legal rights in a civil court. Shaikh Piru Bux v. Kalandi Pati, AIR 1970 SC 1885: (1969) 2 SCR 563.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-10-1968]

[7784] — S. 107 — Object of — Subsequent events — Period of one year to keep peace expiring before judgment

It is wrong to contend that once the period for which bond was ordered to be executed has expired, the order becomes nugatory and the proceedings under S. 107 of the Code of Criminal Procedure must be dropped. The proceedings under S. 107 of the Code can continue despite the fact that the period for which the bond was required to be executed has expired.

The court however is not precluded from taking into account the subsequent events. If the material on record discloses that though there was a danger of breach of peace at one time, because of the happening of a subsequent event the danger of breach of peace has disappeared, the court can drop the proceedings and discharge the person proceeded against. The court may draw the inference that there is no apprehension of the breach of peace if a very long period has elapsed during the course of which nothing untoward has happened. Ram Narain Singh v. State of Bihar, (1972) 2 SCC 532: 1972 SCC (Cri) 870: AIR 1972 SC 2225: 1972 Cri LJ 1444: (1972) 9 ACC 195.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-1972]

[7785] — Ss. 107, 112, 117 and 118 — Surety bonds — Did not amount to furnishing bail but were directed for keeping the peace. Govinder Singh Verma v. Bachubhai T. Pestonji, (1972) 4 SCC 643: AIR 1972 SC 528: 1972 Cri LJ 316.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-1971]

[7786] — Ss. 107 and 117(3) proviso — Scope and interpretation — Interim bonds can be directed in a case under S. 107, CrPC, as well — Proviso to S. 117(3) is no bar to it

Section 117(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure confers power on the Magistrate to direct the person in respect of whom order under S. 112 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has been made to execute a bond for keeping the peace. Where the respondent lodged a complaint under S. 107, Code of Criminal Procedure, the Magistrate examined the appellants and the Sub-Inspector and passed an order under S. 112 of the Code of Criminal Procedure requiring each of the appellants to show cause why he should not be asked to furnish a surety and a personal bond for maintaining the peace. The order of the Magistrate directing the appellant to execute bonds for keeping the peace were valid orders. Govinder Singh Verma v. Bachubhai T. Pestonji, (1972) 4 SCC 643: AIR 1972 SC 528: 1972 Cri LJ 316.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-1971]

— Ss. 108 to 116 See Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 124)
See also Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII
— S. 112 See 107, 112, 117 and 118

[7787] — S. 116(c) — Interpretation of — Provisions other than those of Ss. 4(w), 207-A, 251-A, or 260 of CrPC as amended by the Act would apply to pending proceedings

The words of cl. (c) and the words of the rest of S. 116 would mean this that the provisions of Ss. 4*(w)*, 207-A, 251-A or 260 of the Code as amended shall not apply or affect any enquiry or trial before a Magistrate where the recording of evidence has started prior to the date of the commencement of the amending Act and every such enquiry should be continued and disposed of as if these sections had not been enacted. Except as to this and except as to the provisions mentioned in sub-clauses (a), (b) and (d) the other provisions of the amended Code would be applicable to such proceedings which is also in accordance with the general principles applicable to amendments in procedural law. Anant Gopal Sheorey v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 915: 1959 SCR 919: 1958 Cri LJ 1429, 30.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-5-1958]

— S. 117 See Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 124)
See also Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII
See also Ss. 107, 112, 117 and 118
— S. 117(3) See Ss. 151, 107 and 117(3)
— S. 117(3) proviso See Ss. 107 and 117(3) proviso
— S. 118 See Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 124)
See also Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII
See also Ss. 107, 112, 117 and 118
— Ss. 119 to 124 See Ch. VIII (Ss. 106 to 124)
See also Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII
— S. 125 See Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII
— S. 126-A See Ss. 106 to 126-A, Ch. VIII

[7788] — Ch. IX (Ss. 127 to 132) — Police officer — Reserve Police Officer appointed under Bombay SRPF Act, 1951 is not a police officer within the meaning of S. 25, Evidence Act, 1872 — Hence a confession made to him is not inadmissible in evidence — He is officer-in-charge of a police station only for the purpose of maintaining public order and tranquillity and not for the purpose of investigation under Ch. XII of the CrPC, 1973 — Bombay State Reserve Police Force Act, 1951 (38 of 1951), Ss. 2(h), 10, 11 and 19 — Bombay Police Act, 1951 (22 of 1951) — CrPC, 1973, Chs. X and XII — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 25. State of Gujarat v. Anirudhsing, (1997) 6 SCC 514: 1997 SCC (Cri) 946: AIR 1997 SC 2780: 1997 Cri LJ 3397.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Ramaswamy and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-7-1997]

Balkishan A. Devidayal v. State of Maharashtra, (1980) 4 SCC 600: 1981 SCC (Cri) 62; Ramesh Chandra Mehta v. State of W.B., AIR 1970 SC 940: (1969) 2 SCR 461; K.I. Pavunny v. Asstt. Collector (HQ), Central Excise Collectorate, (1997) 3 SCC 721: 1997 SCC (Cri) 444; Raj Kumar Karwal v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCC 409: 1990 SCC (Cri) 330, followed

Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, (1994) 3 SCC 569: 1994 SCC (Cri) 899, distinguished

[7789] — Ss. 127, 128 and 132 — Sanction for prosecution of a police officer under S. 132 — Complaint not indicating that the police officer while committing the offence acted or purported to act under Ss. 127 and 128, CrPC — Prosecution is competent without sanction

When a complaint is made to a criminal court against any police officer and made allegations indicating that the police officer had acted or purported to act under Ss. 127 and 128 of the Code and in so doing committed some offence complained of the Court will not entertain the complaint unless it appears that the State Government had sanctioned the prosecution of that police officer. If the allegations in the complaint do not indicate such facts, the Court can have no ground for looking to the sanction of the Government and in the absence of such a sanction for refusing to entertain the complaint. It must proceed with the complaint in the same manner as it would have done in connection with complaints against any other person. The occasion for the Court to consider whether the complaint could be filed without the sanction of the Government would be when at any later stage of the proceedings it appears to the Court that the action of the police officer complained of appears to come within the provisions of Ss. 127 and 128 of the Act. This can be either when the accused appears before the Court and makes such a suggestion or when evidence or circumstances prima facie show it. The mere suggestion of the accused will not, however, be sufficient for the Court to hold that sanction was necessary. The Court can consider the necessity of sanction only when from the evidence recorded in the proceedings of the circumstances of the case it be possible to hold either definitely that the alleged criminal conduct was committed or was probably committed in connection with action under Ss. 127 and 128 of the Code. The Court has no means to hold in the circumstances alleged that the prosecution of the accused was in connection with such action as the complaint did not disclose the necessary circumstances indicating the fact and the bare word of the accused cannot be accepted to hold otherwise. Just as a complainant is likely to omit mentioning the facts which would necessitate the sanction of Government before he can prosecute the accused, the accused too is likely to make such allegations which may lead to the rejection of the complaint for want of sanction. The jurisdiction of the Court to proceed with the complaint emanates from the allegations made in the complaint and not from what is alleged by the accused or what is finally established in the case as a result of the evidence recorded. Nagraj v. State of Mysore, AIR 1964 SC 269: (1964) 3 SCR 671: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 161, 66.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1963]

See also Ch. IX (Ss. 127 to 132)

— S. 128 See Ss. 127, 128 and 132

— Ss. 129 to 131 See Ch. IX (Ss. 127 to 132)

[7790] — S. 131 — English cases — Have persuasive value only. Bondada Gajapathi Rao v. State of A.P., AIR 1964 SC 1645, 1647: (1964) 7 SCR 251: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 598.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar[1], M. Hidayatullah[2] and J.R. Mudholkar[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1964]

— S. 132 See Ss. 127, 128 and 132

See also Ch. IX (Ss. 127 to 132)

[7791] — S. 132 — Sanction for prosecution of a police officer — Procedure to be followed when necessity of sanction proved during proceedings — Court at liberty to reject the complaint

If S. 132 applies, the complaint could not have been instituted without the sanction of the Government and the proceedings on a complaint so instituted would be void, the Court having no jurisdiction to take those proceedings. When the proceedings be void, the Court is not competent to pass any order except an order that the proceedings be dropped and the complaint is rejected. Nagraj v. State of Mysore, AIR 1964 SC 269: (1964) 3 SCR 671: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 161, 166.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1963]

[7792] — S. 132 — Sanction for prosecution of a police officer — S. 79, Penal Code, 1860 — On proof of necessity of sanction the offence is not covered by S. 79, Penal Code — Offence nevertheless remains an offence

Section 79 IPC, deals with circumstances which, when proved, make acts complained of not an offence. The circumstances to be established to get the protection of S. 132, Code of Criminal Procedure and not circumstances which make the acts complained of no offence, but are circumstances which require the sanction of the Government in the taking of cognizance of a complaint with respect to the offences alleged to have been committed by the accused. If the circumstances to be established for seeking the protection of S. 132 of the Code were to make the alleged conduct no offence, there could be no question of a prosecution with the sanction of the State Government. Nagraj v. State of Mysore, AIR 1964 SC 269: (1964) 3 SCR 671: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 161, 166.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1963]

[7793] — S. 132 — Sanction for prosecution of police officer — Police Officer committed offences under Ss. 307 and 326 IPC — Some others also committed in a cross case in connection with the same transaction — Necessity of sanction for prosecution of the police officer not prima facie established by the committal officer in the cross case

The commitment of the other accused is on the basis of the case in which they are accused and cannot be legally taken into consideration to decide the question raised in the case against the police officer. The question whether sanction under S. 132, Code of Criminal Procedure, is necessary is to be decided on the evidence in the latter case and not on the basis of the evidence and inferences drawn in the other case. The contention that the mere fact that some of the persons alleged to have framed part of unlawful assembly were prosecuted by the State and have also been committed by the Magistrate to the Sessions Court for trial prima facie establishes that the police officer's contention about the necessity of sanction under S. 132 of the Code has no force. Nagraj v. State of Mysore, AIR 1964 SC 269: (1964) 3 SCR 671: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 161.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1963]

[7794] — S. 132 — Sanction of prosecution of a police officer — Facts necessary to prove the necessity of sanction detailed

To get benefit of S. 132, Code of Criminal Procedure, and to put off a clear decision on the question whether his conduct amounts to an offence or not, the appellant has to show (i) that there was an unlawful assembly or an assembly of five or more persons likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace; (ii) that such an assembly was commanded to disperse; (iii) that either the assembly did not disperse on such command or, if no command had been given, its conduct had shown a determination not to disperse; and (iv) that in the circumstances he had used force against the members of such assembly. He has to establish these facts just in the same manner as an accused has to establish any other exception he pleads in defence of his conduct in a criminal case. It is sufficiently well-settled that it is for the prosecution to prove the offence in the sense that the offence was committed in the circumstances in which no recourse to an exception could be taken and, therefore, if the accused establishes such circumstances which either conclusively establish to the satisfaction of the Court or make the Court believe them to be probable that the case comes within the exception that would be sufficient compliance on the part of the accused with respect to his proving the exception to prove which the onus was on him. In the present case, therefore, the accused has to show to the Court that the alleged offences were committed during the performance of his duties in the circumstances narrated above. On his so showing, it would be the duty of the Court to hold that the complaint could not have been entertained without the sanction of the Government under S. 132 of the Code. Nagraj v. State of Mysore, AIR 1964 SC 269: (1964) 3 SCR 671: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 161, 66.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1963]

[7795] — S. 133 — Magistrate can compel municipality to make drains and improve sewerage affecting the health and convenience of the residents — Financial stringency of the municipal body, held, is no defence — Order to abate the nuisance by affirmative action on a time-bound basis, held, justified — Tort action also possible — CrPC, 1973, S. 133

Section 133, CrPC, permits enforcement of civic rights under the municipal law where neglect has led to a public nuisance. The section permits affirmative action to abate the nuisance on a time-bound basis by issuing specific directives.

Judicial discretion, when facts for its exercise are present, has a mandatory import. Section 133, CrPC is categoric although reads discretionary. So when the Magistrate has before him information and evidence, which disclose the existence of a public nuisance and, on the materials placed, he considers that such unlawful obstruction or nuisance should be removed from any public place which may be lawfully used by the public, he shall act under S. 133, CrPC and order removal of such nuisance within a time to be fixed in the order. Failure to comply with the direction will be visited with a punishment contemplated by S. 188, IPC. The offence is aggravated if the disobedience tends to cause danger to human health or safety.

Providing drainage system in a working condition sufficient to meet the needs of the people, cannot be evaded by the municipality on ground of financial inability. Such a plea has no juridical basis.

The Magistrate must estimate the cost of the scheme, fix reasonable time-limits for its execution and even oversee the actual execution of the scheme.

In the present case, while upholding the Magistrate's order under S. 133, the Supreme Court tailored the Magistrate's directions to make it workable by giving certain pragmatic directions to the municipal council in this regard. Municipal Council, Ratlam v. Vardichan, (1980) 4 SCC 162: 1980 SCC (Cri) 933: AIR 1980 SC 1622: 1980 Cri LJ 1075: (1980) 6 ALR 601.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-1980]

[7796] — S. 133(1) — Public nuisances — Scope — Trade of auctioning vegetable carried in a private house near vegetable market — Inconvenience caused to the people as a result of parking of carts and noise — There is no "unlawful obstruction" or "conduct of trade injurious to the health or physical comfort of the community" — Cases not covered by 1st or 2nd clause of S. 133 — Action under S. 133 is illegal

Appellants carry on the trade of auctioning vegetable, which are brought in carts which are parked on the public road outside the building where the auctioning takes place in Subzimandi area. Some amount of inconvenience is caused to the people who pass by the public road because of the carts which necessarily come near the house. Dispute is whether action under S. 133, Code of Criminal Procedure, can be taken against the persons carrying on the business.

Two out of several clauses of S. 133(1) concerned with the circumstances covering the facts of the case the first and second clauses are. The first clause can have no application because unlawful obstruction, if any, is certainly not caused by the people who carry on the trade of auctioning. If the obstruction caused by keeping the carts on the roads can be considered to be "unlawful obstruction" within the meaning of clause one (no opinion expressed on this panel) action can be taken against the persons causing such obstruction. The obvious difficulty in the way of that is that the persons who bring the carts are not the same from day to day. The appellants cannot be considered to have caused obstruction merely because the appellants carry on auctioning in connection with which the carts are brought.

Second clause of S. 133(1) is also not applicable because auctioning trade is not injurious to the health or physical comfort of the community. The noise caused in the course of business is a necessary concomitant of buying and selling large quantities and it will be unreasonable to think that merely because some noise is caused which people preferring perfect peace may not like, this is injurious to the physical comfort or health of the community. The conduct of trades of this nature and indeed of other trades in localities of the city where such trades are usually carried on, is bound to produce some discomfort, though at the same time perhaps in the good of the community in other respects.

The slight discomfort that may be caused to some people passing by the road or living in the neighbourhood cannot ordinarily be considered to be such as to justify action under S. 133 of Code of Criminal Procedure. Ram Autar v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1794: (1963) 3 SCR 9: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 14.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1962]

[7797] — Ss. 133(1) and 138 — Removal of nuisance — Construction of chimney and oven by a bakery-owner — Magistrate's enquiry report showing that the chimney, besides being an encroachment upon public place, was emitting smoke on G.T. Road affecting health of the people and the oven could cause conflagration — Held, where health, safety and convenience of the public at large are involved, the safer course would be to accept the view of the Magistrate who himself had seen the hazard — Magistrate's order to demolish those constructions, held, proper — But he could not direct in his final order to cease carrying on the bakery trade at the particular site. Gobind Singh v. Shanti Sarup, (1979) 2 SCC 267: 1979 SCC (Cri) 444: AIR 1979 SC 143: 1979 Cri LJ 59.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1978]

— S. 138 See Ss. 133(1) and 138

— S. 144 See also Ss. 435 & 439 and 144

[7798] — S. 144 — Maintenance of law and order being the function of DM, Supreme Court at the instance of petitioner claiming rights under Arts. 25 and 26 cannot interfere with such function of DM — Rights under Arts. 25 and 26 not absolute — DM expected to take measures well in advance in consonance with S. 144 CrPC — Writ petition not maintainable — Constitution of India, Arts. 32, 25 and 26. Ishtiaq Hussain Farooqui v. State of U.P., 1986 Supp SCC 531: 1987 SCC (Cri) 157: AIR 1988 SC 93.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-1986]

Gulam Abbas v. State of U.P., (1982) 1 SCC 71: 1982 SCC (Cri) 82, relied on

[7799] — S. 144 — Constitutionality — Whether constitutional — Nature and scope of preventive detention whether different under CrPC and Constitution of India, Art. 22

Whether S. 144 and Chapter VIII of the Code can be said to be in the interest of public order in so far as the right of freedom of speech and expression, rights of assembly and formation of associations and unions are concerned, and in the interests of general public in so far as they curtail freedom of movement throughout the territory of India.

The gist of the action under S. 144 is the urgency of the situation, its efficacy in the likelihood of being able to prevent some harmful occurrences. There is no general proposition that an order under S. 144 cannot be passed without taking evidence. The areas of the two kinds of detention, one by Magistrates under the Code of Criminal Procedure and another under laws for preventive detention under Art. 22 of the Constitution are entirely different and therefore there is good classification.

The keynote of the power is to free society from menace of serious disturbances of grave character. Section 144 is directed against those who attempt to prevent the exercise of legal right by others, or imperil public safety and health. So the matter must fall within the restrictions which the Constitution itself visualises as permissible in the interest of public order or in the interests of the general public. This Court is satisfied that there are sufficient safeguards available to person affected by the order under S. 144 and the restrictions are reasonable. The section is not unconstitutional if properly applied and the fact that it may be abused is no ground for striking down. The remedy then is to question the exercise of the power as being outside the grant of the law. Madhu Limaye v. Sub-Divisional Magistrate, (1970) 3 SCC 746: AIR 1971 SC 2486.

Bench Strength 7. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam, A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1970]

[7800] — S. 144 — Constitutionality — Whether Arts. 19(1)(a), (b), (c) and (d) contravened

That the provisions of the Code, properly understood, are not in excess of the limits laid down in the Constitution for restricting the freedoms guaranteed by Arts. 19(1)(a), (b), (c) and (d).

The accepted fiction in the First Amendment is to make the Constitution be read with the new clause and no other, and a law restricting the freedoms in the interests of public order (among others) or in the interests of the general public must be held to save, not as a result of amendment, but because of these available restrictions operating from the inception of the Constitution. Madhu Limaye v. Sub-Divisional Magistrate, (1970) 3 SCC 746: AIR 1971 SC 2486.

Bench Strength 7. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam, A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1970]

[7801] — S. 144 — Scope and validity — Order making an exception in respect of funeral and religious processions — The Magistrate could nevertheless grant permission for going out in procession or for assembling for other purposes — Omission to make the exemption clause more comprehensive does not vitiate the order on the ground of placing unreasonable restrictions on fundamental rights of citizens

So far as the customary, religious or funeral processions are concerned, the exemption has been granted in the order itself that if anyone wanted to take out a procession for some other purpose which was lawful it was open to them under S. 144, sub-section (4) to apply for an alteration of the order and obtain a special exemption. Mere omission of the District Magistrate to make the exemption clause of the order more comprehensive would not vitiate the order on the ground that it places unreasonable restrictions on certain fundamental rights of citizens. Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[7802] — S. 144 — Scope and validity — Order prohibiting "provocative slogans", but not defining the term — The part of the order is not vague and not unconstitutional on this ground

The expression "provocative slogans" used in the order has necessarily to be understood in the context in which it has been used in the order and, therefore, it cannot be regarded as vague. The order is, therefore, not unconstitutional for not giving any definition of the word "provocative slogans". Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[7803] — S. 144 — Scope and validity — Order promulgated because of the serious turn which an industrial dispute had taken — Nothing to suggest that member of public likely to indulge in activities prejudicial to public order — Order nevertheless directed against the entire public — The order is not unconstitutional

It is true that there is no suggestion that the general public was involved in the industrial dispute. It is also true that by operation of the order the movements of the members of the public would be restricted in particular areas. But it would be extremely difficult for those who are in charge of law and order to differentiate between members of the public and members of the two textile unions and, therefore, the only practical way in which the particular activities referred to in the order could be restrained or restricted would be by making those restrictions applicable to the public generally.

If, therefore, any members of the public unconnected with the two textile unions wanted to exercise these rights it was open to them to move the District Magistrate and apply for a modification of the order by granting them an exemption from the restrictions placed by the order. The order under S. 144, Code of Criminal Procedure, is, therefore, not unconstitutional on the ground that it is directed against the entire public though, in the order, the Magistrate has stated clearly that it was promulgated because of the serious turn which an industrial dispute had taken and there was nothing to suggest that members of public were likely to indulge in activities prejudicial to public order. Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[7804] — S. 144 — Show cause under S. 144(5) — Right conferred by cl.(5) is not illusory on the ground that Magistrate will be a judge of his own decision — Remedy of judicial review of the order under the section is also as a whole not illusory

The right conferred on the aggrieved person to challenge an order under S. 144(1) by S. 144(5) is not illusory on the ground that the Magistrate would be a judge with regard to his own decision. Again although no appeal has been provided in the Code against the Magistrate's order under S. 144, the High Court has power under S. 435, read with S. 439 of the Code to entertain an application for the revision of such an order. The validity of the order under S. 144, Code of Criminal Procedure, can also be challenged when prosecution under S. 188, Indian Penal Code, for infringing an order under S. 144, Code of Criminal Procedure, is launched. The contention that the remedy of judicial review is illusory cannot therefore be accepted. Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[7805] — S. 144 — Validity — Conferral of wide powers on Magistrate — Does not amount to infringement of Arts. 19(1)(a) and (b) — Does not place unreasonable restrictions on fundamental rights — Section is not ultra vires on this ground

The provisions of S. 144 are attracted only in an emergency. The maintenance of law and order being the duty and function of the executive department of the State it is inevitable that the question of formation of an opinion as to whether there is an emergency or not must necessarily rest, in the first instance, with those persons through whom the executive exercises its functions and discharges its duties. It would be impracticable and even impossible to expect the State Government itself to exercise those duties and functions in each and every case. The provisions of the section, therefore, which commit the power in this regard to a magistrate belonging to any of the classes referred to therein cannot be regarded as unreasonable. The satisfaction of the magistrate as to the necessity of promulgating an order under S. 144 is not made entirely subjective by the section. The magistrate is, though in appropriate cases empowered, to make an order under S. 144 ex parte, the law requires that he should, where possible, serve a notice on the person or persons against whom the order is directed before passing that order. Sub-section (4) then provides that any magistrate either on his own motion or on the application of any person aggrieved, rescind or alter any order made under the section. Thus even when an ex parte order is made the person or persons affected thereby have a right to challenge the order of the magistrate. Sub-section (5) provides that where such a challenge is made, the magistrate shall give an early opportunity to the person concerned of appearing before him and showing cause against the order. The decision of the magistrate in such a proceeding would undoubtedly be a judicial one inasmuch as it will have been arrived at after hearing the party affected by the order. Since, the proceeding before the magistrate would be a judicial one, he will have to set aside the order unless he comes to the conclusion that the grounds on which it rests are in law sufficient to warrant it. Further, since the propriety of the order is open to challenge it cannot be said that by reason of the wide amplitude of the power which S. 144 confers on certain magistrates it places unreasonable restrictions on certain fundamental rights. The conferral of such wide powers on the magistrate does not therefore amount to an infringement of the rights guaranteed under Arts. 19(1)(a) and (b) of the Constitution. Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[7806] — S. 144 — Validity of order — Land grab movement — Whether lawful — Action against petitioner premature — Overt act is not necessary to justify arrest — Reasonable apprehension of the breach of peace is enough

The order is perfectly valid. The petitioner and his political party believed that as Government had failed to implement its own land laws as to end economic inequality, it became the duty of the citizens to force their implementation by the land grab movement.

Interim relief was granted by this Court by limiting his movements to the Union Territory of Delhi as the action against him appeared premature inasmuch as he had cancelled his meeting in Lucknow and was to only speak at a Press Conference with no possibility of any breach of the peace. But the evidence of posters and the documents indicating a widespread movement of defiance as to the land laws, and the petitioner's own admission as to his overt act relating to the Birla Farm, are enough to justify the promulgation of the order under S. 144, CrPC

No overt act is necessary to justify the arrest for breach of the order under S. 144. All that is required is a reasonable apprehension of breach of peace and the necessity to prevent it.

The petitioner could be remanded but as the Magistrate himself did not extend it and the petitioner has been released, the petition is infructuous and be dismissed. S.A. Dange v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 218: 1971 SCC (Cri) 36.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1970]

[7807] — S. 144 — Validity on the ground of possible abuse of powers by the Magistrate — There are factors in the section for conditioning the exercise of wide powers — The section cannot be declared ultra vires merely because a Magistrate may possibly abuse his powers

Though the power conferred by S. 144 on a Magistrate appears to be wide, it can be exercised only in an emergency and for the purpose of preventing obstruction, annoyance or injury to any person lawfully employed, or danger to human life, health or safety, or a disturbance of the public tranquillity or a riot, or "an affray". These factors condition the exercise of the power and it would consequently be wrong to regard that power as being unlimited or untrammelled. Further, it should be borne in mind that no one has a right to cause "obstruction, annoyance or injury etc.", to anyone. Since the judgment has to be of a magistrate as to whether in the particular circumstances of a case an order, in exercise of these powers, should be made or not, Supreme Court is entitled to assume that the powers will be exercised legitimately and honestly. The section cannot be struck down on the ground that the Magistrate may possibly abuse his powers. Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[7808] — Ss. 144 and 56(a) — Constitutional validity of S. 144 — Validity of the order under S. 144 — Whether sustainable — Land Grab Movement by overt acts — S. 188, IPC — Whether infringed — Whether order vitiated by vagueness or generality or excess of jurisdiction — Reasonableness of the order

The impugned order is not wide or vague. The petitioners were out to defy the order under S. 144, prohibiting any agitation as to Land Grab Movement. There was sufficient publication of the order. A general order alone was feasible when the movement is organised by Samyukta Socialist Party and the Communist Party of India. Individuals as members of the party have enough notice of the prohibitory order.

The contention that the application of the order being general there was an excess in the exercise of jurisdiction is rejected.

The District Magistrate had ample materials on which he issued the impugned prohibitory order. The gist of the information given in the Preamble to the order are based on facts. The various clauses in the order carry out the purpose of the Preamble with the minimum of interruption of the life of the community. There are reasonable exclusions and the operation of the order is limited to those whose actions are apprehended to cause the mischief, S. 144 is intended to prevent. Therefore the preventive action against the petitioner was justified. R.K. Garg v. Supdt., Distt. Jail, (1970) 3 SCC 227: 1971 SCC (Cri) 45.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1970]

[7809] — Ss. 144 and 107 — Action under — Arrest without warrant under S. 151 — Petitioner refusing to give bail remanded to custody by Magistrate — Notice under S. 112 read and without any enquiry interim bond called for — Whether valid — Constitutionality of S. 144 and Ch. VIII upheld by Supreme Court — On facts without enquiry or examining any witness whether Magistrate can act under S. 117(3), CrPC — Detention held illegal and petitioners declared free as they were already free as remand was not extended by the Magistrate

Section 117(3) presumes that unless the person is bound over, he would be able to perpetrate that act, which causes an apprehension of breach of peace. It is not necessary to take a bond from a person who is already in detention and is not released. Madhu Limaye v. Ved Murti, (1970) 3 SCC 739: AIR 1971 SC 2481: 1971 Cri LJ 1715.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1970]

[7810] — S. 144(1) — Powers of the Magistrate to pass an order are not arbitrary

It is true that there is no express mention anywhere in S. 144, Code of Criminal Procedure, that the order of the Magistrate should be preceded by an enquiry. But the section should be construed as a whole. The latter part of sub-section (1) of S. 144 specifically mentions that the order of the magistrate should set out the material facts of the case. It would not be possible for the magistrate to set out the facts unless he makes an enquiry or unless he is satisfied about the facts from personal knowledge or on a report made to him which he prima facie accepts as correct. Clearly, therefore, the section does not confer an arbitrary power on the magistrate in the matter of making an order. Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[7811] — S. 144(6), Pt. II — Constitutional validity — Restriction on fundamental right — Test of reasonableness — Constitution of India, Arts. 19(1)(b), (c) and (d)

Per Shelat, Vaidialingam, Hegde and Ray, JJ.

From a plain reading of S. 144(6), Criminal Procedure Code, it is clear that the power conferred on the State Government is an independent power and it is an executive power. It is not expected to be exercised judicially. It is open to be exercised arbitrarily. The directions given in the exercise of that power need not be of a temporary nature. The ambit of that power is very large and it is uncontrolled.

It is not possible to formulate an effective test which would enable the Court to pronounce any particular restriction to be reasonable or unreasonable per se. All the attendant circumstances must be taken into consideration and one cannot dissociate the actual contents of the restrictions from the manner of their imposition or the mode of putting them into practice. In other words in order to be a reasonable restriction, the same must not be arbitrary or excessive and the procedure and the manner of imposition of the restriction must also be fair and just. Any restriction which is opposed to the fundamental principles of liberty and justice cannot be considered reasonable.

One of the important tests to find out whether a restriction is reasonable is to see whether the aggrieved party has a right of representation against the restriction imposed or proposed to be imposed. No person can be deprived of his liberty without being afforded an opportunity to be heard in defence and that opportunity must be adequate, fair and reasonable. Further the courts have to see whether the restriction is in excess of the requirement or whether it is imposed in an arbitrary manner.

Now adverting to the restriction impugned in this case, the power to impose the same is conferred on the executive Government and not to any judicial authority. There is no provision to make representation by the aggrieved party against the direction given by the Government; no appeal or revision is provided against that direction and the order made need not be of temporary nature. Hence we agree with the High Court that the impugned provision is violative of Arts. 19(1)(b), (c) and (d) and is not saved by Arts. 19(3), (4) or (5).

Per Shah, J.

In adjudging the reasonableness of the restrictions imposed by the exercise of power on the fundamental rights of the citizen, absence of a provision for judicial review and of machinery for obtaining an order recalling or amending the order made in exercise of that power have to be given due weight: Virendra v. State of Punjab, 1958 SCR 308. But as already pointed out the State Government has to make an order not on any subjective satisfaction. The order is liable to recession or alteration under sub-section (4). Validity of an order made by a Magistrate is open to challenge on appropriate grounds even after it is extended by the direction of the State Government in a proceeding before the High Court, for the jurisdiction of the High Court to examine the validity of the order of the Magistrate is not affected by the extension of the duration of the order by the direction of the executive. Again under sub-section (4) of S. 144 a proceeding for withdrawal of modification of the order may be initiated even after the State has by direction extended its duration.

The duty of maintaining law and order ordinarily lies on the executive, but since the making of an order under S. 144 involves serious infringement of the rights of the citizens exercise of the power is conditioned by a judicial evaluation of the circumstances which necessitate it. Whether the order remains operative for its normal duration, or is extended by direction of the executive, the magisterial verdict lends sustenance to it. Apprehension that the executive may abuse the power to extend the duration will not, in my judgment, justify the Court in holding that the extension shifts the source of authority of the order, or vitiates the magisterial evaluation. I cannot accept the abstract standard that every statute in the execution of which fundamental rights of citizens may be infringed will be adjudged unreasonable, if within its framework the statute does not provide machinery for judicial scrutiny or for rescission of the action taken. Nor can I accept the plea that absence of machinery in the Code for approaching the High Court for redress against the direction of the State, and absence of express provision for moving the State for rescission or alteration of the duration constitutes a test of unreasonableness. Reasonableness of a statutory provision cannot be determined by the application of a set formula. It must be determined on a review of the procedural and substantive provisions of the statute keeping in mind the nature of the right intended to be infringed, underlying purpose of the restriction contemplated to be imposed, gravity of the evil intended to be remedied thereby, object intended to be achieved by the imposition of restriction, and other relevant circumstances. State of Bihar v. Kamla Kant Misra, (1969) 3 SCC 337: AIR 1971 SC 1667.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.C. Shah[2], J.M. Shelat, C.A. Vaidialingam, K.S. Hegde[1] and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-10-1969]

— S. 145 See also Ss. 148 and 145

[7812] — S. 145 — Possession of receiver in proceedings under S. 145 CrPC — Limitation — Held, the same should be excluded under Limitation Act, 1963, Art. 64. Ittyavira Mathai v. Varkey Varkey, AIR 1964 SC 907: (1964) 1 SCR 495: 1963 Ker LJ 952: (1963) 2 Ker LR 277: 1963 Ker LT 1133.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-1-1963]

[7813] — S. 145 — Property attached by Magistrate under — Suit for declaration of title to such property without asking for possession, held, competent — Specific Relief Act, 1963, S. 34 — Specific Relief Act, 1877, S. 42

In a suit for declaration of title to property filed when it stands attached under S. 145 of the Code, it is not necessary to ask for the further relief of delivery of possession. The fact, if it be so, that in the case of such an attachment, the magistrate holds possession on behalf of the party whom he ultimately finds to have been in possession is, irrelevant. Where the defendant is not in possession and not in a position to deliver possession to the plaintiff, it is not necessary for the plaintiff in a suit for a declaration of title to property to claim possession.

Now it is obvious that in the present case, the respondents were not in possession after the attachment and were not in a position to deliver possession to the appellants. The magistrate was in possession, for whomsoever, it does not matter, and he was not of course a party to the suit. The further relief contemplated by the proviso to S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act is relief against the defendant only. It was not necessary to ask for possession when property was in custodia legis. There is no doubt that property under attachment under S. 145 of the Code is in custodia legis. Deo Kuer v. Sheo Prasad Singh, AIR 1966 SC 359: (1965) 3 SCR 655: 1966 Mah LJ 120: (1966) 1 MLJ (SC) 12.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1965]

Dukhan Ram v. Ram Nanda Singh, AIR 1961 Pat 425, overruled

Sunder Singh Mallah Singh Sanatan Dharam High School Trust v. Managing Committee. Sunder Singh Mallah Singh Rajput High School, 65 Ind App 106: AIR 1938 PC 73; K. Sundaresa Iyer v. Sarvajana Sowkiabi Virdhi Nidhi Ltd., ILR 1939 Mad 986: AIR 1939 Mad 853, approved

[7814] — S. 145 — Affidavits sworn or affirmed before magistrates not in seisin of the case inadmissible in evidence under that section

An affidavit under S. 145 is not of a formal character because it is meant to prove or disprove the competing claims of the parties as respects the facts of actual possession of the subject of dispute. There is thus no provision in the Code specifying the courts or persons before whom the affidavits referred to in S. 145 have to be sworn and affirmed. This has therefore to be done according to the general provisions relating to affidavits.

It is an essential characteristic of an affidavit that it should be made on oath or affirmation before a person having authority to administer the oath or affirmation.

Now it is clear from the provisions of S. 4*(a)* of the Oaths Act, 1873 that all courts and persons having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence are authorised to administer oaths and affirmations, but they can do so only where they are otherwise acting "in the discharge of the duties or in exercise of the powers imposed or conferred upon them respectively by law". So the court or person mentioned in clause (a) of S. 4 of the Oaths Act can administer oath or affirmation to the deponent in an affidavit only if the court or person is acting in the "discharge of the duties or in exercise of the powers imposed or conferred upon them respectively by law".

In the present cases, the magistrates concerned with the proceeding under S. 145 of the Code were discharging the duties imposed and exercising the powers conferred by the Code, and they alone could administer the oaths and affirmations to the persons who made the affidavits, and not the magistrates who were not discharging any such duty or exercising any such power. As the affidavits in the present cases were admittedly not sworn or affirmed before magistrates who were dealing with the disputes under S. 145 of the Code, they were not proper affidavits and did not constitute evidence for purpose of S. 145. Chhotan Prasad Singh v. Hari Dusadh, (1977) 1 SCC 102: 1977 SCC (Cri) 35: AIR 1977 SC 407: 1977 Cri LJ 249: (1977) 2 SCR 174.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1976]

[7815] — S. 145 — Attachment of property — Effect of temporary injunction — Property attached by SDM — Temporary injunction obtained by party for stay of proceedings — SDM disregarding injunction and appointing receiver — High Court upholding the order — Supreme Court remitting case to SDM

This case must go back to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate for decision of the proceedings before him. Those proceedings commenced as far back as 1967 and the question whether there is or there is not any apprehensions of breach of peace will certainly have to be decided in the light of the happenings in the Civil Court. In the meantime there is no reason to set aside the order of the High Court. It will be open to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate to consider whether the receiver should be continued or not, but in any event, he shall not disturb the possession of the appellant so long as the temporary injunction is outstanding and pending the decision of the proceedings under S. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure with a view to handing over the possession to the other side. Sajjan Singh v. Sajjan Singh, 1969 SCD 1066: 1970 UJ (SC) 75: 1970 SC Cr R 393.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Grover, J. [Date of decision: 10-10-1969]

[7816] — S. 145 — Benefit of order made under — Held, extends only to those in the proceedings

The benefit of the order made under S. 145, Code of Criminal Procedure, could only be taken by the persons in whose favour that order was made and that it could not operate for the benefit of all the 846 fishermen represented by the eighteen defendants or in favour of all fishermen who would come to reside in these nine villages in times to come.

There is no evidence whatsoever to show that besides the twelve persons mentioned as second party in proceedings u/s. 145, Code of Criminal Procedure who else was represented by them and, therefore, the benefit of that order can only be given to those defendants who are represented by those twelve persons. Raja Braja Sundar Deb v. Moni Behara, AIR 1951 SC 247, 252: 1951 SCR 431: ILR 30 Pat 871: 17 Cut LT 252.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-1951]

[7817] — S. 145 — Fishery — Dispute regarding — Held, covered. Raja Braja Sundar Deb v. Moni Behara, AIR 1951 SC 247: 1951 SCR 431: ILR 30 Pat 871: 17 Cut LT 252.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-1951]

[7818] — S. 145 — Magistrate referring question to civil court — Does not confer his criminal jurisdiction on civil court

No doubt, the Magistrate, while discharging his function under the Code of Criminal Procedure under S. 145(1), would be exercising his criminal jurisdiction because that is the only kind of jurisdiction which the Code confers upon the Magistrates but when the Magistrate refers the question to a civil court he does not confer a part of his criminal jurisdiction upon the civil Court. There is no provision under which he can clothe a court or a tribunal which is not specified in the Criminal Procedure Code with criminal jurisdiction. Ram Chandra Aggarwal v. State of U.P., AIR 1966 SC 1888, 1890: 1966 Supp SCR 393: 1966 All Cri R 397: 1966 Cri LJ 1514: 1966 ALJ 1122.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1966]

[7819] — S. 145 — Object and meaning — Continuance of breach of peace at the time of passing of preliminary order not necessary

The object of S. 145, no doubt is to prevent breach of peace and for that end to provide a speedy remedy by bringing the parties before the court and ascertaining who of them was in actual possession and to maintain status quo until their rights are determined by a competent court. The section requires that the Magistrate must be satisfied before initiating proceedings that a dispute regarding an immovable property exists and that such dispute is likely to cause breach of peace. But once he is satisfied of these two conditions, the section requires him to pass a preliminary order under sub-section (1) and thereafter to make an enquiry under sub-section (4) and pass a final order under sub-section (6). It is not necessary that at the time of passing the final order the apprehension of breach of peace should continue or exist. R.H. Bhutani v. Mani J. Desai, AIR 1968 SC 1444: (1969) 1 SCR 80: 1969 Cri LJ 13, 17, 18.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1968]

[7820] — S. 145 — Proceedings under taken up where title disputed — Order under declaring actual possession later set aside — Held, such circumstance could not deprive a party of the benefit of his possession and of the dispossession of the other party under a statutory provision. Gurucharan Singh v. Kamla Singh, (1976) 2 SCC 152: AIR 1977 SC 5: (1976) 1 SCR 739.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer, A.C. Gupta and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-9-1975]

[7821] — S. 145 — Property attached and placed in the custody of SDO — Plaintiff unable to make good his claim to the title — Concurrent finding — Supreme Court not interfering and directing state trust board to take over. Dhyan Singh v. Chandradip Singh, CA No. 139 of 1966

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-1-1969]

[7822] — S. 145 — Removal of property while in custody of person appointed by court — Held, dishonest removal — Property in possession of superdar appointed by court — Accused harvesting crop without his permission

The crops in a legal sense must be deemed to be in the possession of the Court through Superdar, though ultimately the Court has held that the land was in the possession of the appellants, but so long as the land was in the possession of the Court through a person appointed to manage it and to plant the crop thereon, without the consent of the person in possession the crops could not be removed and if they were removed, prima facie it would be regarded as dishonest removal. Hukum Singh v. State of U.P., CrA No. 28 of 1968.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Shah, Ramaswami and Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1968]

[7823] — S. 145 — Scope — Person out of possession obtaining an order under S. 145 in his favour — Taking possession by virtue of the order — The possession cannot be under the provisions of Criminal Procedure Code

Section 145 of the said Code does not confer on a Magistrate any power to make an order directing the delivery of possession to a person who is not in possession on the date of the preliminary order made by him under S. 145(1) of the Code. Under S. 145(1) of the Code, his jurisdiction is confined only to decide whether any and which of the parties was on the date of the preliminary order in possession of the land in dispute. The order only declares the actual possession of a party on a specified date and does not purport to give possession or authorise any party to take possession. Even in the case of any party who has been forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed within two months next before the date of the preliminary order, the Magistrate is only authorised to treat that party who is dispossessed as if he had been in possession on such date. If that be the legal position, the appellants could not have taken possession of the disputed lands by virtue of an order made under the provisions of S. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. They were either in possession or not in possession of the said lands on the specified date, and, if they were not in possession on that date, their subsequent taking possession thereof could not have been under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Bhinka v. Charan Singh, AIR 1959 SC 960: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 798: 1959 Cri LJ 1223, 1229.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1959]

[7824] — S. 145 — Scope of order under — Order is irrespective of the rights of parties — Subsequent order of civil court displaces the order under the section

Under S. 145(6) of the Code, a Magistrate is authorised to issue an order declaring a party to be entitled to possession of a land until evicted therefrom in due course of law. The Magistrate does not purport to decide a party's title or right to possession of the land but expressly reserves that question to be decided in due course of law. The foundation of his jurisdiction is on apprehension of the breach of the peace, and, with that object, he makes a temporary order irrespective of the rights of the parties, which will have to be agitated and disposed of in the manner provided by law. The life of the said order is coterminous with the passing of a decree by a Civil Court and the moment a Civil Court makes an order of eviction, it displaces the order of the Criminal Court. Bhinka v. Charan Singh, AIR 1959 SC 960: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 798: 1959 Cri LJ 1223, 1229.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1959]

[7825] — S. 145 — Order in defendant's favour — Burden of proof is thrown on the plaintiff. Bhinka v. Charan Singh, AIR 1959 SC 960: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 798: 1959 Cri LJ 1223, 1229.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1959]

[7826] — S. 145(1) — Proceedings under, on private party's complaint — Calling of a police report is not necessary — Magistrate can initiate proceedings in the absence of a police report

The proposition that the Magistrate before proceeding under S. 145(1) must, as a rule, call for a police report where he is moved by a private party or that the absence of a police report is a sure indication of the absence of possibility of breach of peace, is not warranted by the clear language of the section which permits the Magistrate to initiate proceedings either on the police report or "on other information". The words "other information" are wide enough to include an application by a private party. The jurisdiction under S. 145 being, no doubt, of an emergency nature, the Magistrate must act with caution but that does not mean that where on an application by one of the parties to the dispute he is satisfied that the requirements of the section are existent, he cannot initiate proceedings without a police report. R.H. Bhutani v. Mani J. Desai, AIR 1968 SC 1444: (1969) 1 SCR 80: 1969 Cri LJ 13, 17, 18.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1968]

[7827] — Ss. 145(1) and 439 — "Other information"

The words "other information" in S. 145(1) include an application by the party dispossessed. R.H. Bhutani v. Mani J. Desai, AIR 1968 SC 1444: (1969) 1 SCR 80: 1969 Cri LJ 13, 17, 18.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1968]

[7828] — Ss. 145(1) and 439 — Scope of S. 145(1) — Material for the satisfaction of Magistrate to initiate proceedings under S. 145 — Sufficiency of — High Court not to go into the question in the exercise of its revisional powers

The satisfaction under sub-section (1) is of the Magistrate. The question whether on the materials before him, he should initiate proceedings or not is, therefore, is his discretion which, no doubt, has to be exercised in accordance with the well recognised rules of law in that behalf. No hard and fast rule can, therefore, be laid down as to the sufficiency of material for his satisfaction. The language of the sub-section is clear and unambiguous that he can arrive at his satisfaction both from the police report or "from other information" which must include an application by the party dispossessed. The High Court, in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, would not go into the question of sufficiency of material which has satisfied the Magistrate. R.H. Bhutani v. Mani J. Desai, AIR 1968 SC 1444: (1969) 1 SCR 80: 1969 Cri LJ 13, 17, 18.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1968]

[7829] — Ss. 145(4), 2nd proviso and (6) — Scope and interpretation — "Dispossessed" — Appellant forcibly dispossessed — He can move the Magistrate under S. 145 within two months — Magistrate finding that the respondent, in de facto possession, obtained possession by forcibly and wrongfully dispossessing the appellant within 2 months next preceding the date of Magistrate's order — He can restore possession to the appellant

The Magistrate has first to decide who is in actual possession at the date of his preliminary order. If, however, the party in de facto possession is found to have obtained possession by forcibly and wrongfully dispossessing the other party within two months next preceding the date of his order, the Magistrate can treat the dispossessed party as if he was in possession on such date, restore possession to him and prohibit the dispossessor from interfering with that possession until eviction of that person in due course of law. The proviso is founded on the principle that forcible and wrongful dispossession is not to be recognised under the criminal law. So that it is not possible to say that such an act of dispossession was completed before the date of the order. The word "dispossessed" in the second proviso means to be out of possession, removed from the premises, ousted, ejected or excluded. Even where a person has a right to possession but taking the law into his hands makes a forcible entry otherwise than in due course of law, it would be a case of both forcible and wrongful dispossession. Sub-sec. (6) of S. 145 in such a case permits the Magistrate to direct restoration of possession with the legal effect that is valid until eviction in due course of law. The second proviso to sub-section (4) and sub-section (6) contemplate not a fugitive act of trespass or interference with the possession of the applicant, the dispossession there referred to is one that amounts to a completed act of forcible and wrongful driving out a party from his possession.

It is thus fairly clear that the fact that dispossession of the appellant was a completed act and the appellant had filed a criminal complaint and the police had taken action thereunder do not mean that the Magistrate could not proceed under S. 145 and give directions permissible under sub-section (6). R.H. Bhutani v. Mani J. Desai, AIR 1968 SC 1444: (1969) 1 SCR 80: 1969 Cri LJ 13, 17, 18.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1968]

— S. 145(6) See Ss. 145(4), 2nd proviso and (6)

[7830] — S. 146(1) — Scope — Whether S. 24(1)(b) CPC, available with respect to a proceeding arising out of a reference under S. 146(1) CrPC — CPC, 1908, S. 24

Section 24 plainly speaks of "other proceeding pending in any court subordinate to it" and not only to the civil proceeding pending before a subordinate Court. Earlier decisions would warrant the application of the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure generally to a proceeding before a civil court arising out of a reference to it by a Magistrate under S. 146(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The expression "proceeding" used in this section is not a term of art which has acquired a definite meaning. What its meaning is when it occurs in a particular statute or a provision of a statute will have to be ascertained by looking at the relevant statute. Looking to the context in which the word has been used in S. 24(1)(d) of the Code of Civil Procedure it would appear to us to be something going on in a Court in relation to the adjudication of a dispute other than a suit or an appeal. Bearing in mind that the term "proceeding" indicates something in which business is conducted according to a prescribed mode it would be only right to give it, as used in the aforesaid provision, a comprehensive meaning so as to include within it all matters coming up for judicial adjudication and not to confine it to a civil proceeding alone. If indeed the term "proceeding" in S. 24 is not confined to a civil proceeding there is no need whatsoever of taking the aid of S. 141 CPC. Ram Chandra Aggarwal v. State of U.P., AIR 1966 SC 1888: 1966 Supp SCR 393: 1966 All Cri R 397: 1966 Cri LJ 1514: 1966 ALJ 1122.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1966]

[7831] — S. 146(1) — Reference by Magistrate to civil court — Held, provisions of CPC applicable. Ram Chandra Aggarwal v. State of U.P., AIR 1966 SC 1888, 1890: 1966 Supp SCR 393: 1966 All Cri R 397: 1966 Cri LJ 1514: 1966 ALJ 1122.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1966]

[7832] — S. 146(1) — Reference under is not to persona designata — Is to a constituted court

The power is not to refer the matter to the presiding Judge of a particular civil court but to a court. When a special or local law provides for an adjudication to be made by a constituted court — that is, by a court not created by a special or local law but to an existing court — it in fact enlarges the ordinary jurisdiction of such a court. Thus where a special or local statute refers to a constituted court as a court and does not refer to the presiding officer of that court the reference cannot be said to be to a persona designata. Ram Chandra Aggarwal v. State of U.P., AIR 1966 SC 1888: 1966 Supp SCR 393: 1966 All Cri R 397: 1966 Cri LJ 1514: 1966 ALJ 1122.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1966]

[7833] — S. 146(1-B) — Finding of civil court on reference by Magistrate under S. 146(1-B) CrPC 1898, can be interfered with by High Court under Art. 227 — Constitution of India, Art. 227. Chandrasekhar Singh v. Siya Ram Singh, (1979) 3 SCC 118: 1979 SCC (Cri) 666: AIR 1979 SC 1: 1979 Cri LJ 13: (1979) 16 ACC 13.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Jaswant Singh, P.S. Kailasam and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-1978]

[7834] — Ss. 146(1-B) and (1-D), 435 and 439 — Finding of Civil Court on reference by the Magistrate, held, is final and cannot be challenged by way of appeal, review or revision — Nor can the order of Magistrate in conformity with the decision of the Civil Court, held, be challenged under Ss. 435 and 439 — However, the High Court can interfere under Art. 227

Section 146, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, does not affect the power of the High Court under Art. 227. But that power is to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors.

On facts, the High Court was not right in taking the view that the Civil Court had in deciding the question of possession ignored the affidavits filed by both parties. Chandrasekhar Singh v. Siya Ram Singh, (1979) 3 SCC 118: 1979 SCC (Cri) 666: AIR 1979 SC 1: 1979 Cri LJ 13: (1979) 16 ACC 13. Bench Strength 3. Coram: Jaswant Singh, P.S. Kailasam and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-1978]

— S. 146(1-D) See Ss. 146(1-B) and (1-D), 435 and 439

[7835] — Ss. 148 and 145 — Scope of — Expressions "taking" and "retaining" — Meaning of — Possession by virtue of order of Magistrate under S. 145, CrPC is not "possession in accordance with law for the time being in force" — U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 (17 of 1939), S. 180

Material part of S. 180 reads:

"(1) A person taking or retaining possession of a plot of land without the consent of the person entitled to admit him to occupy such plot and otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the law for the time being in force, shall be liable to ejectment under this section on the suit of the person so entitled, and also to pay damages which may extend to four times the annual rental value calculated in accordance with the sanctioned rates applicable to hereditary tenants.

* * *

Explanation II. — A tenant entitled to sublet a plot of land in accordance with the provisions of the law for the time being in force may maintain a suit under this section against the person taking or retaining possession of such plot otherwise than in the circumstances for which provision is made in S. 183.

(2) If no suit is brought under this section, or if a decree obtained under this section is not executed, the person in possession shall become a hereditary tenant of such plot, or if such person is a co-sharer, he shall become a khudkasht-holder, on the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed for such suit or for the execution of such decree, as the case may be."

Under S. 180 of the Act, a person entitled to admit another to a plot of land can file a suit in a revenue court to eject him. The latter can defend the suit only on two grounds, namely, (1) that he has taken possession or retained possession of the said plot with the consent of the former; and (2) that he took possession or retained possession in accordance with the provisions of law for the time being in force. If no suit was brought against the occupier or if the decree obtained against him was not executed, he would become a hereditary tenant after the period of limitation prescribed in the Fourth Schedule to the Act.

The dichotomy between taking and retaining indicates that they are mutually exclusive and apply to two different situations. The word "taking" applies to a person taking possession of a land otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the law, while the word "retaining" to a person taking possession in accordance with the provisions of the law but subsequently retaining the same illegally. So construed, the appellants' possession of the lands being illegal from the inception, they could not be described as persons retaining possession of the said lands in accordance with the provisions of any law for the time being in force, so as to be outside the scope of S. 180 of the Act.

Can it be said that the possession by virtue of an order of a Magistrate under the provisions of S. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is one in accordance with the provisions of the law for the time being in force? It appears to us that the words "possession in accordance with the law for the time being in force" in the context can only mean possession with title. The suit contemplated by the section is one by a landlord against a person who has no right to possession.

Unless the person sought to be evicted has title or right to possession, it cannot be said that his possession is in accordance with the provisions of the law for the time being in force.

Under S. 145(6) of the Code, a Magistrate is authorised to issue an order declaring a party to be entitled to possession of a land until evicted therefrom in due course of law. The Magistrate does not purport to decide a party's title or right to possession of the land, but expressly reserves that question to be decided in due course of law. The foundation of his jurisdiction is on apprehension of that breach of the peace, and, with that object, he makes a temporary order irrespective of the rights of the parties, will have to be agitated and disposed of in the manner provided by law. The life of the said order is coterminous with the passions of a decree by a civil court and the moment a civil court makes an order of eviction, it displaces the order of the criminal court. A provisional order of a Magistrate in regard to possession irrespective of the rights of the parties cannot enable a person to resist the suit under S. 180 of the Act. Bhinka v. Charan Singh, AIR 1959 SC 960: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 798: 1959 Cri LJ 1223.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1959]

— S. 149 See Ss. 535, 537 and 149

[7836] — Ss. 151, 107 and 117(3) — Land Grab Movement — Whether arrest and remand is legal as there was no production before Magistrate — Effect of doctor's certificate on non-production — Legality of detention at the time of the return whether germane but not at the time of the institution of the proceedings — Whether Art. 22(1) or (2) of the Constitution violated

There is nothing in law which requires personal presence of an accused before the Magistrate because that is only a rule of caution for Magistrate before granting remand at the instance of the police.

The various warrants issued by the Magistrate also refer to the fact that the petitioner was being remanded to jail custody for offences under Ss. 143 and 447 IPC, which were the subject of the two cases. The contention that he was not informed of the grounds for his arrest cannot be accepted. There has been no violation of Art. 22(1) of the Constitution.

In habeas corpus proceedings the Court is to have regard to the legality or otherwise of the detention of a person at the time of the return and not with reference to the institution of proceedings.

The legality of the petitioner's detention cannot be considered to be illegal because he was kept in detention under proper orders of remand as an undertrial prisoner. Pranab Chatterjee v. State of Bihar, (1970) 3 SCC 926: 1971 SCC (Cri) 170.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-1970]

[7837] — Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176) — Enquiry under — Held, not investigation within S. 162 CrPC — Railway Property (Unlawful Possession) Act, 1966, S. 8(1)

An officer conducting an enquiry under S. 8(1) of the Act does not possess all the attributes of an officer-in-charge of a police station investigating a case under Chapter XIV of the Code. He possesses but a part of those attributes limited to the purpose of holding the enquiry.

The enquiry conducted by an officer of the Railway Protection Force under S. 8(1) of the Act cannot be deemed to be an investigation for the purposes of S. 162, Code of Criminal Procedure. The scheme of the Act is in important respects different from the schemes of the Code and there is intrinsic evidence in the Act to show that the provisions of the Code cannot proprio vigore apply to enquiries under S. 8(1) of the Act. State of U.P. v. Durga Prasad, (1975) 3 SCC 210: 1974 SCC (Cri) 828: AIR 1974 SC 2136: (1975) 1 SCR 881: 1974 Cri LJ 1465.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1974]

[7838] — Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176) — Investigation under — Provision of S. 162 mandatory — Applies during inquest under S. 174 — CrPC, 1973, Ch. XII (Ss. 154 to 176) — Ss. 162 and 174

While it is true that the receipt and registration of an FIR is not the sine qua non to the setting in motion of the machinery of criminal investigation, the investigating officer must follow the procedure laid down in Part V, Chapter XIV.

Even a statement of a witness recorded by the investigator during the inquest under S. 174 would be within the inhibition of S. 162. Behind this provision is a wholesome rule of public policy that witnesses at the trial should be free to tell the truth, unhampered by anything they might have been made to say to the police. Razik Ram v. Jaswant Singh Chouhan, (1975) 4 SCC 769: AIR 1975 SC 667.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A. Alagiriswami and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1975]

[7839] — S. 154 — Nature and scope

The receipt and recording of information report by the police is not a condition precedent to the setting in motion of a criminal investigation. Nor does the statute provide that such information report can be made by an eyewitness. First information report under S. 154 is not even considered a substantive piece of evidence. It can only be used to corroborate or contradict the informant's evidence in court. But this information when recorded is the basis of the case set up by the informant. It is very useful if recorded before there is time and opportunity to embellish or before the informant's memory fades. Undue or unreasonable delay in lodging the FIR, therefore, inevitably gives rise to suspicion which puts the Court on guard to look for a possible motive and the explanation for the delay and consider its effect on the trustworthiness or otherwise of the prosecution version. No duration of time in the abstract can be fixed as reasonable for giving information of a crime to the police, the question of reasonable time being a matter for determination by the Court in each case. Mere delay in lodging the First information report with the police is, therefore, not necessarily, as a matter of law, fatal to the prosecution. The effect of delay in doing so in the light of the plausibility of the explanation forthcoming for such delay accordingly must fall for consideration on all the facts and circumstances of a given case. Apren Joseph v. State of Kerala, (1973) 3 SCC 114: 1973 SCC (Cri) 195: AIR 1973 SC 1: 1973 Cri LJ 185: (1973) 2 SCR 16.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat[1], Actg. C.J. and I.D. Dua[1] and H.R. Khanna[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1972]

[7840] — S. 154 — FIR — Nature and scope — Not conclusive on the question whether one or several trials to be held. Chandra Bhal v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 983: 1972 SCC (Cri) 290.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1970]

[7841] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in despatch of FIR to authorities under Police Rule — Effect

Unless there is evidence on record to fix the responsibility for the delay on the police alone, a late receipt by the authorities of the FIR is not of any consequence. It is also possible that the FIR was sent to the residence of the Magistrate in time but the latter took note of it only after the holidays. Om Parkash v. State of Delhi, (1971) 3 SCC 413: 1971 SCC (Cri) 661: AIR 1974 SC 1983: 1974 Cri LJ 1383.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1971]

[7842] — S. 154 — Delay in lodging FIR — Occurrence taking place at 7 p.m. — Statement of injured persons recorded in hospital at 2.15 p.m. on the following day — Statement thereafter sent to police station situated at a distance of about ten miles from place of occurrence wherein a formal FIR was then prepared — No explanation given as to why others, who witnessed the occurrence, did not go to police station to make a report while the injured persons were hospitalised and were not in a position to move — Held, lodging of FIR inordinately delayed. State of Punjab v. Sucha Singh, (1974) 3 SCC 484: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1079: AIR 1974 SC 343: 1974 Cri LJ 364.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-9-1973]

[7843] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in filing — When is adequately explained — Assault leading to murder made at a place 12 miles from the police station — Victims not dying at once and the informant tending them — Informant covering the distance to police station partly on foot and partly on lorry — FIR having been filed 6 hours after the incident — Held, report was promptly filed. Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 364: 1954 SCR 145: 1953 Cri LJ 1465, 1468.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-5-1953]

[7844] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in lodging — Occurrence taking place at 1 a.m. — FIR lodged at 10 a.m. — Distance of police station six miles — Effect

When there was no enmity between the informent and the accused, there is no question of the former delaying deliberately the filing of the FIR to involve the accused falsely. Saktu v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 202: 1973 SCC (Cri) 307: AIR 1973 SC 760: 1973 Cri LJ 599.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, Y.V. Chandrachud and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-1972]

[7845] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in lodging FIR — Extent of reliance on eyewitness

Mahadeo, the brother of the deceased dictated a report of the incident which was written down by prosecution witness Raja Ram. It was then given to one Kallu to be taken to the police station. Kallu, for some reason or the other, did not proceed straight to the police station, and went off for his own work and, realising that he had committed this mistake, he may have turned hostile to the prosecution. The absence of the explanation for the delay committed by Kallu, under these circumstances, cannot be considered to be a ground for disbelieving the eyewitnesses. Angnoo v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 208: 1971 SCC (Cri) 26: AIR 1971 SC 296: 1971 Cri LJ 285.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1970]

[7846] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in lodging report — Understandable reasons — No effect. Jadunath Singh v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 577: 1971 SCC (Cri) 726: AIR 1972 SC 116: 1972 Cri LJ 29.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-1971]

[7847] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in lodging report — Deliberation and consultation for implicating innocents with guilty ones — Whether court should distinguish between persons involved

Where delayed lodging of first information report indicates that the deliberation and consultation for implication of some innocent persons with guilty ones is possible, making distinction between persons involved in the report will not be unreasonable. Garib Singh v. State of Punjab, (1972) 3 SCC 418: 1972 SCC (Cri) 568: AIR 1973 SC 460: 1972 Cri LJ 1286.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1972]

[7848] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in lodging report — Explanation for — Serious injury causing delay — Whether courts should give importance to delay

The delay in lodging the first information report, although suspicious, could be satisfactorily explained by the facts of the serious injury that made it difficult for recording the statement for several days afterwards. In such circumstances courts should not give undue importance to the delay. Garib Singh v. State of Punjab, (1972) 3 SCC 418: 1972 SCC (Cri) 568: AIR 1973 SC 460: 1972 Cri LJ 1286.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1972]

[7849] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in lodging report in the absence of surety as to cause of death — Delay understandable. State of U.P. v. Samman Dass, (1972) 3 SCC 201: 1972 SCC (Cri) 275: AIR 1972 SC 677: 1972 Cri LJ 487: 1973 ALJ 489.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1972]

[7850] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay in recording — Whether means delay in lodging the report — Inference as to false story being cooked up

It is not time of recording the FIR which will determine whether the report has been lodged with delay but the time at which the police came to know of the facts which will determine whether the informant had time to concoct the story and falsely implicate the enemies of the informant. Atmaduddin v. State of U.P., (1973) 4 SCC 35: 1973 SCC (Cri) 676: AIR 1974 SC 1901: 1974 Cri LJ 1300.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1972]

[7851] — S. 154 — FIR — Delay of 19 hours in filing — Names of the assailants and eyewitness not mentioned. Does not indicate clever and well planned deceit, but rustic simplicity — Omission is not of much consequence. Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216: (1955) 1 SCR 1083: 1955 Cri LJ 572, 578.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1954]

[7852] — S. 154 — FIR — Discrepancy — Omission of certain facts in FIR — Delay in FIR

Where FIR is lodged by a person who is not an eyewitness, omissions in the FIR are not material. Delay in the report on behalf of the more seriously injured persons is natural and the fact that the party of the accused reported the matter to the police earlier will not affect the prosecution case. Bankey Lal v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 184: 1971 SCC (Cri) 253: AIR 1971 SC 2233: 1971 Cri LJ 1540.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1971]

[7853] — S. 154 — FIR — Importance of — Delay in lodging first information report — Whether safe to rely on

First information report in a criminal case is an extremely vital and valuable piece of evidence for the purpose of corroborating the oral evidence adduced at the trial. The importance of the report can hardly be overestimated from the standpoint of the accused.

The object of insisting upon prompt lodging of the report to the police in respect of commission of an offence is to obtain early information regarding the circumstances in which the crime was committed, the names of the actual culprits and the part played by them as well as the names of the eyewitnesses present at the scene of occurrence.

Delay in lodging the first information report quite often results in embellishment which is a creature of afterthought. On account of delay the report not only gets benefits of the advantage of spontaneity, danger creeps in of the introduction of coloured version, exaggerated account or connected story as a result of deliberation and consultation.

It is therefore essential that the delay in the lodging of the first information report should be satisfactorily explained.

In the present case there was delay of more than 20 hours in lodging the FIR though the police station was only at a distance of two miles. Hence the circumstances would raise considerable doubt regarding the veracity of the case and it is not safe to base conviction upon it. Thulia Kali v. State of T.N., (1972) 3 SCC 393: 1972 SCC (Cri) 543: AIR 1973 SC 501: (1972) 3 SCR 622: 1972 Cri LJ 1296: (1974) 1 MLJ 32.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-2-1972]

[7854] — S. 154 — FIR — Value and purpose of — Need not be made by eyewitness — Delay in lodging report — Excuse of fear by eyewitness to a gruesome murder — If any standard of behaviour possible — Explanation of delay — Test, if any. Apren Joseph v. State of Kerala, (1973) 3 SCC 114: 1973 SCC (Cri) 195: AIR 1973 SC 1: 1973 Cri LJ 185: (1973) 2 SCR 16.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, Actg. C.J.[1] and I.D. Dua[1] and H.R. Khanna[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1972]

[7855] — S. 154 — Delay in filing FIR — Inference — Study of factual situation — Prompt filing whether guarantees veracity of the report — CrPC, 1973 — S. 154

It is true that witnesses cannot be called upon to explain every hour's delay and a commonsense view has to be taken in ascertaining whether the First Information Report was lodged after an undue delay so as to afford enough scope for manipulating evidence. Whether the delay is so long as to throw a cloud of suspicion on the prosecution case must depend upon a variety of factors which would vary from case to case. Even a long delay in filing report of an occurrence can be condoned if the witnesses on whose evidence the prosecution relies have no motive for implicating the accused. On the other hand, prompt filing of the report is not an unmistakable guarantee of the truthfulness version of the prosecution. Ram Jag v. State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 201: AIR 1974 SC 606.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1973]

[7856] — S. 154 — Early report more reliable

When the first information report was given very soon after the occurrence, the possibility of putting up a false version is remote. Kahan Singh v. State of Haryana, (1971) 3 SCC 226: 1971 SCC (Cri) 426: AIR 1971 SC 983: 1971 Cri LJ 806.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1971]

[7857] — S. 154 — FIR — Absence of name of witness — FIR mentioning the names of only some — Effect

Where about 20 persons were travelling by the bus and though almost all of them were looted but the first information report contained the names of some of them only, the fact that the person who successfully identified the miscreants was not included in the first information report cannot justify the inference that he was not travelling by the bus. Bharat Singh v. State of U.P., (1973) 3 SCC 896: 1973 SCC (Cri) 574: AIR 1972 SC 2478: 1972 Cri LJ 1705.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, S.N. Dwivedi and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1972]

[7858] — S. 154 — FIR — By a person not an eyewitness — Direct evidence of eyewitnesses — Eyewitness account to be preferred

Where first information report regarding an occurrence was based upon the particulars furnished by another person direct evidence furnished by the eyewitnesses particularly when their names find mention in the first information report will be given credence. Veeramuthu v. State of Madras, (1971) 3 SCC 427: 1971 SCC (Cri) 675.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1971]

[7859] — S. 154 — FIR — By an accused — Use of — Confessional first statement inadmissible

Section 154 of the Code of Criminal Procedure provides for the recording of the first information. The information report as such is not substantive evidence. It may be used to corroborate the informant under S. 157 of the Evidence Act or to contradict him under S. 145 of the Act, if the information is called as a witness. If the first information is given by the accused himself, the fact of his giving the information is admissible against him as evidence of his conduct under S. 8 of the Evidence Act. If the information is a non-confessional statement, it is admissible against the accused as an admission under S. 21 of the Evidence Act and is relevant.

But a confessional first information report to a Police Officer cannot be used against the accused in view of S. 25 of the Evidence Act. Aghnoo Nagesia v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 119: (1966) 1 SCR 134: 1966 Cri LJ 100, 103-106.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1965]

[7860] — S. 154 — FIR — Cannot be used to discredit, witnesses. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231, 37, 39.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7861] — S. 154 — FIR — Contents of FIR at variance with eyewitness' account — Value of FIR

The first information report is never treated as a substantive piece of evidence. It can only be used for corroborating or contradicting its maker when he appears in court as a witness. Its value must always depend on the facts and circumstances of a given case. The FIR can only discredit the testimony of the maker thereof. It can by no means be utilised for contradicting or discrediting the other witnesses who obviously could not have any desire to spare the real culprit and to falsely implicate an innocent person. Prosecution case cannot be thrown out on the mere ground that in the first information report an altogether different version was given by the informant. Dharma Rama Bhagare v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 1 SCC 537: 1973 SCC (Cri) 421: AIR 1973 SC 476: 1973 Cri LJ 680.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1973]

[7862] — S. 154 — FIR — Cryptic and anonymous telephone message not specifying cognisable offence — Whether constitutes First Information Report

The cryptic and anonymous oral message which did not in terms clearly specify the cognisable offence cannot be treated as First Information Report. The mere fact that this information was the first in point of time does not by itself clothe it with the character of First Information Report. The question whether or not the particular document constitutes the First Information Report has, broadly speaking, to be determined on the relevant facts and circumstances of each case. Tapinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (1970) 2 SCC 113: 1970 SCC (Cri) 328: AIR 1970 SC 1566: 1970 Cri LJ 1415.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1970]

[7863] — S. 154 — FIR — Difference in the description of height of the accused and actual height — Whether a serious infirmity justifying interference

Held, where full description of the accused had been given by the complainant and the complainant has ample opportunity to see him, and it was not the case of the accused either before the trial Court or the High Court that the accused does not answer the description to be found in the First Information Report, the mere difference in the description and actual height of the accused does not matter. At any rate it was open to the accused to invite the attention of the trial Court and when he did not do so, the error or infirmity pointed out is not such as to justify interference by the Supreme Court. Bhopat Singh Kishan Singh v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 3 SCC 367: 1972 SCC (Cri) 537: AIR 1973 SC 446: 1973 Cri LJ 343.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1972]

[7864] — S. 154 — FIR — Discrepancy — Conclusion as to subsequent events — Conviction set aside. Sadaram v. State of M.P., (1971) 3 SCC 443: 1971 SCC (Cri) 691: AIR 1974 SC 2294: 1975 Cri LJ 23.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.K. Mitter and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-3-1971]

[7865] — S. 154 — FIR — Discrepancy — Omission in FIR and S. 161 CrPC

When a particular fact deposed to by witnesses does not find mention both in the FIR and in statements recorded under S. 161, CrPC, it is an improvement and it cannot be considered. Yudhishtir v. State of M.P., (1971) 3 SCC 436: 1971 SCC (Cri) 684.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1971]

[7866] — S. 154 — FIR — Discrepancy — Omission in report that attacks were in three different places — Omission not significant. Bankey Lal v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 184: 1971 SCC (Cri) 253: AIR 1971 SC 2233: 1971 Cri LJ 1540.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1971]

[7867] — S. 154 — FIR — Essentials of — Given by the person on the basis of information by an eye-witness — Omission as to fact about accused carrying bhalas etc. — Omission has no significance

So far as the omission in the First Information Report is concerned, it must be remembered that the information was not given by any one of those who had witnessed the occurrence. It was given by a relative of the deceased on the basis of the information given by PW 6. Hence that omission has no significance. Awadhi Yadav v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 116: AIR 1971 SC 69: 1971 Cri LJ 23.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-1970]

[7868] — S. 154 — FIR — Filed promptly — Importance

A great deal of importance should not be attached to the promptness with which the first information was lodged. The brother of the deceased was an Advocate and the informant was his clerk. They could certainly have quickly thought out what version to give. It is true that the importance of a first information report made promptly cannot be minimised. The object of S. 154, Criminal Procedure Code, is to obtain early information of the alleged criminal activity, to record the circumstances before there is time for them to be embellished or forgotten. Tarachand v. State of Haryana, (1971) 2 SCC 579: 1971 SCC (Cri) 593: AIR 1971 SC 1891: 1971 Cri LJ 1411.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-7-1971]

[7869] — S. 154 — FIR — Information to the police based on talk in the village and informant himself not an eyewitness to the occurrence — Power of authorities to wait for more authentic or reliable information for taking appropriate action. Duraipandi Thevar v. State of T.N., (1973) 3 SCC 680: 1973 SCC (Cri) 486: AIR 1973 SC 659: 1973 Cri LJ 602.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1972]

[7870] — S. 154 — FIR — Nature of — Admissibility

The report is not a confession of the appellant. It is not a statement made to a police officer during the course of investigation. Section 25 of the Evidence Act and S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure do not bar its admissibility. Faddi v. State of M.P., AIR 1964 SC 1850, 1853: (1964) 6 SCR 312: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 744.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-1-1964]

[7871] — S. 154 — FIR — Nature of — Use of FIR in contradicting and discrediting witness under Evidence Act, 1872 (1 of 1872), S. 145 — Whether informant need be an eyewitness

In the first place it may be noticed that FIR is not a substantial piece of evidence. It is an information of a cognizable offence given under S. 154 of the Criminal Procedure Code and if there is any statement made therein it can only be used for the purposes of contradicting and discrediting a witness under S. 145 of the Evidence Act. In the second place the statement given by the informant need not necessarily be an eyewitness account of what he has actually seen. There were others who had gone along with him who could have furnished him with information as to what transpired insofar as it was in their knowledge. Nanhku Singh v. State of Bihar, (1972) 3 SCC 590: AIR 1973 SC 491: 1972 Cri LJ 1204.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and K.K. Mathew, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-4-1972]

[7872] — S. 154 — FIR — Non-mention of names — Effect

Absence of names of accused persons in the first information report is not necessarily fatal. The person lodging the first information report may not be in such a frame of mind as to discuss the names of the culprits before he leaves for the police station. Non-mention of names of culprits may on the other hand inspire confidence that the informant was not out to implicate his enemies. Liyakat Mian v. State of Bihar, (1973) 4 SCC 39: 1973 SCC (Cri) 680: AIR 1973 SC 807: 1973 Cri LJ 584.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1972]

[7873] — S. 154 — FIR — Non-mention of weapon

Where the informant is neither an eyewitness himself nor is his report based on the information given by an eyewitness, non-mention of the weapon in the first information report is of no consequence. Shivaji Genu Mohite v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 3 SCC 219: 1973 SCC (Cri) 214: AIR 1973 SC 55: 1973 Cri LJ 159.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, S.N. Dwivedi and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-9-1972]

[7874] — S. 154 — FIR — Object and value of FIR explained — FIR not a substantive evidence — Can be used for corroborating or contradicting witnesses — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 145 & 157. Sk. Hasib v. State of Bihar, (1972) 4 SCC 773: AIR 1972 SC 283: 1972 Cri LJ 233.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1971]

[7875] — S. 154 — FIR — Prompt — Inference

Held, where soon after the occurrence first information report is lodged at the police station, it is difficult to believe that a false story can be cooked up. Nanhey v. State of U.P., (1973) 3 SCC 317: 1973 SCC (Cri) 266: AIR 1973 SC 224: 1973 Cri LJ 273.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, A. Alagiriswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-1972]

[7876] — S. 154 — FIR — Prompt — Report lodged within half an hour of the incident by the victim after traversing 12 miles — Held, report reliable. Sat Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1974) 3 SCC 643: 1974 SCC (Cri) 173: AIR 1974 SC 294: 1974 Cri LJ 345.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1973]

[7877] — S. 154 — FIR — Recording of

It was argued that the first information report was not properly recorded in the prescribed form but was written down on a piece of paper and it was copied into the register for first information reports.

But several first information reports are recorded on plain pieces of paper and then transcribed into the first information report register. In fact if a written report is brought, it is verbatim copied into the first information report register.

So FIR, not improper. Narayan Nathu Naik v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 2 SCC 101: 1970 SCC (Cri) 316: AIR 1971 SC 1656.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Grover, J. [Date of decision: 25-3-1970]

[7878] — S. 154 — FIR — Telegram given immediately after the murder not mentioning the names of the assailants — Omission a great circumstance in favour of the accused. Wilayat Khan v. State of U.P., AIR 1953 SC 122: 1953 Cri LJ 662, 663-64.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-5-1951]

[7879] — S. 154 — FIR — Use of — FIR is not a substantive piece of evidence and can only be used to corroborate the statement of the maker or to contradict it — Cannot be used as evidence against the maker if the maker becomes an accused nor to corroborate or contradict other witnesses. Nisar Ali v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 366: 1957 SCR 657: 1957 Cri LJ 550, 52.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1957]

[7880] — S. 154 — FIR — Witness deposing that he disclosed an important event to the informant before he lodged FIR — That information not finding place in FIR — Reliance not to be placed on the statement

The witness P deposed that he saw the accused offering sweets to the deceased girl, and that he informed the father of the girl about this before he lodged the FIR. This information was not mentioned in the FIR.

Had something relating to the deceased transpired in the presence of P on the morning of the day of occurrence and had he mentioned about it to the informant before he lodged the FIR, the same fact must have found a prominent mention in the FIR. The fact that there was no reference to P in the FIR shows that not much weight can be attached to the evidence of . Rahim Beg v. State of U.P., (1972) 3 SCC 759: 1972 SCC (Cri) 827: AIR 1973 SC 343: 1972 Cri LJ 1260.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1972]

[7881] — S. 154 — FIR as substantive evidence

The First Information Report has not been used as substantive evidence in the case at all by the High Court but has been used only to corroborate the statements of the eyewitnesses. It is not possible to accept the suggestion that because this report was not as full as it could have been, it should be ignored altogether. Prandas v. State, AIR 1954 SC 36: 1954 Cri LJ 331.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: Harilal J. Kania, C.J. and Fazl Ali, Patanjali Sastri, M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-3-1950]

[7882] — S. 154 — FIR by accused used by prosecution to furnish motive

Where the prosecution alleged one motive for the occurrence, Court cannot find a different motive for the occurrence from the FIR lodged by the accused when the latter has denied the lodging of that report. Moreover the case of the prosecution regarding the circumstances under which the first accused sustained an injury was totally different from what is stated in the alleged report lodged by the accused. This amounts to reconstruction by the Court of a story against the accused. Sahaj Ram v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 490: 1973 SCC (Cri) 410: AIR 1973 SC 618: 1973 Cri LJ 618.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-11-1972]

[7883] — S. 154 — Non-mention of the name of accused — Effect

Non-mention of the name of the accused person in the first information report is not necessarily fatal to the prosecution if there is other evidence to prove by other convincing corroborative evidence the presence of the accused at the time of the incident. Bharvad Bhikha Valu v. State of Gujarat, (1972) 4 SCC (N) 48: 1971 SCC (Cri) 500: AIR 1971 SC 1064: 1971 Cri LJ 927.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1971]

[7884] — S. 154 — Telephonic message that a person was lying injured without indicating that some offence was committed cannot be treated as FIR. Sakharam v. State of Maharashtra, (1969) 3 SCC 730.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1969]

[7885] — Ss. 154, 156, 439 and 561-A — Investigation into cognizable offence — No case pending in any court — Statutory power of police to investigate in a non-cognizable offence cannot be interfered with by the High Court under S. 439 or 561-A

Section 154, CrPC deals with information in cognizable offences and S. 156 with investigation into such offences and under these sections the police has the statutory right to investigate into the circumstances of any alleged cognizable offence without authority from a magistrate and this statutory power of the police to investigate cannot be interfered with by the exercise of powers under S. 439 or under the inherent power of the Court under S. 561 of the Criminal Procedure Code. State of W.B. v. S.N. Basak, AIR 1963 SC 447: (1963) 2 SCR 52: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 341.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-4-1962]

[7886] — Ss. 154 and 156(3) — Power of police officer acting under — Whether police officer investigates on behalf of Magistrate — Whether sanction from judicial authority required — Magistrate applying his mind only for ordering investigation under S. 156(3) or issuing warrant for purposes of investigation — Whether Magistrate can be said to have taken cognizance of offence

The police officer acting under S. 156(3) is not a delegate of the Chief Presidency Magistrate and the investigation by him is not an investigation by or on behalf of the Magistrate. The police authorities have under Ss. 154 and 156 of the Code a statutory right to investigate into a cognizable offence without requiring any sanction from a judicial authority and even the High Court has no inherent power under S. 561-A of the Code to interfere with the exercise of that statutory power. Nirmaljit Singh Hoon v. State of W.B., (1973) 3 SCC 753: 1973 SCC (Cri) 521: AIR 1972 SC 2639.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat[1], I.D. Dua[1] and H.R. Khanna[1&2], JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1972]

[7887] — Ss. 154 and 297 — FIR — Scope — Is not substantive evidence — Can be used only to corroborate or contradict the evidence of the informant — Judge cannot place such a report before the Jury as substantive evidence

The first information report is the information recorded under S. 154 of the CrPC. It is an information given to a police officer relating to the commission of an offence. It is also an information given by an informant on which the investigation is commenced. It must be distinguished from information received after the commencement of the investigation which is covered by Ss. 161 and 162 of the CrPC. It is well settled that the First Information Report is not substantive evidence, but can only be used to corroborate or contradict the evidence of the information given in court or to impeach his credit. It follows that a Judge cannot place such a report before the jury as substantive evidence, but can only refer to that portion of it which had been used for one or other of the aforesaid purposes. State of Bombay v. Rusy Mistry, AIR 1960 SC 391: 1960 Cri LJ 532.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1959]

— S. 155 See also Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

[7888] — S. 155 — Procedure to be followed in investigation under

Under S. 155 the officer in charge of a police station has the power of making a search in any place for the seizure of anything believed to be necessary for the purpose of the investigation. The search has to be conducted by such officer in person. A subordinate officer may be deputed by him for the purpose only for reasons to be recorded in writing if he is unable to conduct the search in person and there is no other competent officer available. The investigating officer has also the power to arrest the person or persons suspected of the commission of the offence under S. 54 of the Code. A police officer making an investigation is enjoined to enter his proceedings in a diary from day-to-day. Where such investigation cannot be completed within the period of 24 hours and the accused is in custody he is enjoined also to send a copy of the entries in the diary to the Magistrate concerned.

It is important to notice that where the investigation is conducted not by the officer in charge of the police station but by a subordinate officer such subordinate officer is to report the result of the investigation to the officer in charge of the police station. If upon the completion of the investigation it appears to the officer in charge of the police station that there is no sufficient evidence or reasonable ground, he may decide to release the suspected accused, if in custody, on his executing a bond. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 201: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[7889] — Ss. 155, 61, 94, 167, 164 and 202 — Nature of Magistrate's function

Under all these sections the Magistrate exercises discretionary functions in respect of which the initiative is that of the executive but the responsibility is his. His discretion in such matter has necessarily to be exercised with reference to such material as is by then available and is not a prima facie judicial determination of any specific issue. The Magistrate's functions in these matters are not only supplementary, at a higher level, to those of the executive but are intended to prevent abuse. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389, 393: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[7890] — Ss. 155 and 156 — Investigation of cognizable and non-cognizable offences

For the purposes of investigation offences are divided into two categories 'cognizable' and 'non-cognizable'. When information of the commission of a cognizable offence is received or such commission is suspected, the appropriate police officer has the authority to enter on the investigation of the same (unless it appears to him that there is no sufficient ground). But where the information relates to a non-cognizable offence, he shall not investigate it without the order of a competent Magistrate.

Thus, it may be seen that according to the scheme of the Code, investigation is a normal preliminary to an accused being put up for trial for a cognizable offence. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 200: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[7891] — Ss. 155 and 156 — Irregularity of the investigation not to vitiate trial unless there be miscarriage of justice

If cognizance is in fact taken, on a police report vitiated by the breach of a mandatory provision relating to investigation, there can be no doubt that the result of the trial which follows it cannot be set aside unless the illegality in the investigation can be shown to have brought about a miscarriage of justice. An illegality committed in the course of investigation does not affect the competence and the jurisdiction of the court for trial. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 204: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[7892] — Ss. 155 and 156 — Steps in investigation

Under the Code investigation consists generally of the following steps: (1) Proceeding to the spot, (2) Ascertainment of the facts and circumstances of the case, (3) Discovery and arrest of the suspected offender, (4) Collection of evidence relating to the commission of the offence which may consist of (a) the examination of various persons (including the accused) and the reduction of their statements into writing, if the officer thinks fit; (b) the search of places or seizure of things considered necessary for the investigation and to be produced at the trial, and (5) Formation of the opinion as to whether on the material collected there is a case to place the accused before a Magistrate for trial and if so taking the necessary steps for the same by the filing of a charge-sheet under S. 173. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 201: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[7893] — S. 155(3) — Permission to investigate non-cognizable offence — Magistrate permitting issue of search warrant under S. 19(3), Foreign Exchange Regulation Act and permitting to investigate

The Inspector under S. 19(3) of the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act applied to the Magistrate for issuing a search warrant and permission to investigate the offence which was a non-conducting offence. The Magistrate issued the search warrant for the purposes of conducting investigation of the case and permitted investigation.

Inspector's application definitely stated that he was asking for permission to investigate a non-cognizable offence under S. 155, CrPC. The order of the Magistrate directing the issue of search warrant and the word "permitted" contained therein mean that he granted the sanction for investigation as asked for. Under S. 155(3) of the Code of police officer being permitted to investigate a non-cognizable offence may exercise the same powers in respect of the investigation as an officer in charge of a police station may exercise in a cognizable offence except that he has no power to arrest without warrant. It is therefore clear that on the date of giving permission and issuing search warrant (16-9-1952) the Magistrate had not taken cognizance of the case. Narayandas Bhagwandas Madhavdas v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1118: (1960) 1 SCR 93: 1959 Cri LJ 1368, 73.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1959]

See also Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

— S. 156 See Ss. 154, 156, 439 and 561-A

See also Ss. 155 and 156

See also Ss. 173, 156 and 190

See also Ss. 537, 156 and 157

[7894] — S. 156 — Investigation conducted by Head Constable — Validity of

The contention that S. 156, CrPC was not complied with has no merit. When the FIR was received, no sub-inspector was present in the police station. Head Constable was the officer incharge of the station at that time. Hence the law permitted him to investigate the case. Pati Ram v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 703.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1969]

[7895] — S. 156 — Magistrate ordering investigation not same as taking cognizance of the offence

When on a petition of complaint being filed before him a Magistrate applies his mind for proceeding under the various provisions of Chapter XVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he must be held to have taken cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint. When however he applies his mind not for such purpose but for purposes of ordering investigation under S. 156(3) or issues a search warrant for the purpose of investigation he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of any offence. Jamuna Singh v. Bhadai Shah, AIR 1964 SC 1541, 1544: (1964) 5 SCR 37: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 468.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-10-1963]

[7896] — Ss. 156, 157 and 4(1) — Investigation — Scope — Receipt of information not condition precedent for investigation — Vague information or rumour will not constitute 'information' within the meaning of S. 154 or basis for investigation

Though ordinarily investigation is undertaken on information received by police officer, the receipt of information is not a condition precedent for investigation. Section 157 prescribes the procedure in the matter of such an investigation which can be initiated either on information or otherwise. It is clear from the said provisions that an officer in charge of a police station can start investigation either on information or otherwise a vague information or an irresponsible rumour would not in itself constitute information within the meaning of S. 154 of the Code or the basis for an investigation under S. 157 thereof. State of U.P. v. Bhagwant Kishore Joshi, AIR 1964 SC 221: (1964) 3 SCR 71: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 140: (1964) 1 LLJ 60.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao[1], Raghubar Dayal[1] and J.R. Mudholkar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1963]

[7897] — Ss. 156, 439 and 561-A — Investigation — No interference by Magistrate or High Court permissible

The police has the statutory right to investigate into the circumstances of any alleged cognizable offence without authority from a Magistrate and this statutory power of the police to investigate cannot be interfered with by the exercise of power under S. 439 or under the inherent power of the Court under S. 561-A of the Criminal Procedure Code. State of W.B. v. S.N. Basak, AIR 1963 SC 447, 448: (1963) 2 SCR 52: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 341.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-4-1962]

[7898] — Ss. 156 and 157 — Duty of investigating officer to present true version of the incident

The duty of the investigating officers is not merely to bolster up a prosecution case with such evidence as may enable the Court to record a conviction but to bring out the real unvarnished truth. Jamuna Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (1974) 3 SCC 774: 1974 SCC (Cri) 250: AIR 1974 SC 1822: (1974) 2 SCR 609: 1974 Cri LJ 890.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1973]

[7899] — Ss. 156 and 159 — Power of Magistrate under S. 159 — Power of the Magistrate to stop police investigation started under S. 156 — Constitution of India — Article 226

In sub-section (3) of S. 156, the only power given to the Magistrate, who can take cognizance of an offence under S. 190, is to order an investigation; there is no mention of any power to stop an investigation by the police. The scheme of these sections, thus, clearly is that the power of the police to investigate any cognizable offence is uncontrolled by the Magistrate, and it is only in cases where the police decide not to investigate the case that the Magistrate can intervene and either direct an investigation, or, in the alternative himself proceed or depute a Magistrate subordinate to him to proceed to enquire into the case. The power of the police to investigate has been made independent of any control by the Magistrate.

Section 159 was really intended to give a limited power to the Magistrate to ensure that the police investigate all cognizable offences and do not refuse to do so by abusing the right granted for certain limited cases of not proceeding with the investigation of the offence.

Though the Code of Criminal Procedure gives to the police unfettered power to investigate all cases where they suspect that a cognizable offence has been committed, in appropriate cases an aggrieved person can always seek a remedy by invoking the power of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution under which, if the High Court could be convinced that the power of investigation has been exercised by a police officer mala fide, the High Court can always issue a writ of mandamus restraining the police officer from misusing his legal powers. The fact that the Code does not contain any other provision giving power to a Magistrate to stop investigation by the police cannot be a ground for holding that such a power must be read in S. 159 of the Code.

On the face of it, the first alternative of directing an investigation cannot arise in a case where the report itself shows that investigation by the police is going on in accordance with S. 156. Without the use of the expression "if he thinks fit", the second alternative could have been held to be independent of the first; but the use of this expression makes it plain that the power conferred by the second clause of this section is only an alternative to the power given by the first clause and can, therefore, be exercised only in those cases in which the first clause is applicable. S.N. Sharma v. Bipen Kumar Tiwari, (1970) 1 SCC 653: 1970 SCC (Cri) 258: AIR 1970 SC 786: (1970) 2 MLJ 81 (SC): 1970 ALJ 1348: 1970 Cri LJ 764.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1970]

[7900] — Ss. 156 and 165 — Illegal investigation by police — Whether illegal investigation justifies obstruction of public servant from discharging his duties after search and seizure is over

The Supreme Court has not finally decided whether a search already made in contravention of the provisions of S. 165, CrPC, makes it illegal or void or merely provides a justification for an obstruction to the search when it is intended or in the process of its being conducted. Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1972 SC 886: (1972) 3 SCR 422: 1972 Cri LJ 638: 1973 ALJ 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1972]

[7901] — S. 156(2) — Scope

What sub-section (2) of S. 156, CrPC cures is investigation by an officer not empowered under that section i.e. with reference to sub-sections (1) and (3) thereof. Sub-section (1) of S. 156 is a provision empowering an officer in charge of a police station to investigate a cognizable case without the order of a Magistrate and delimiting his power to the investigation of such cases within a certain local jurisdiction.

It is the violation of this provision that is cured under sub-section (2). Obviously sub-section (2) of S. 156 cannot cure the violation of any other specific statutory provision prohibiting investigation by an officer of a lower rank than a Deputy Superintendent of Police unless specifically authorised. But apart from the implication of the language of S. 156(2), it is not permissible to read the emphatic negative language of sub-section (4) of S. 5 of the Prevention of Corruption Act or of the proviso to S. 3 of the Act, as being merely in the nature of an amendment of or a proviso to sub-section (1) of S. 156, CrPC. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 203: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

— S. 156(3) See Ss. 154 and 156(3)

See also Ss. 173, 156(3) and 190(1)(c)

See also Ss. 190, 202 and 156(3)

See also Ss. 200, 202 and 156(3)

See also Ss. 417(3), 200, 202, 156(3) and 173

[7902] — S. 156(3) — Further investigation

If the Magistrate feels, after considering the final report, that the investigation is unsatisfactory, or incomplete, or that there is scope for further investigation, it will be open to the Magistrate to decline to accept the final report and direct the police to make further investigation under S. 156(3). Abhinandan Jha v. Dinesh Mishra, AIR 1968 SC 117, 122: (1967) 3 SCR 668: 1968 Cri LJ 97.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1967]

[7903] — Ss. 156(3) and 190(1)(c) — Powers of Magistrate under

The Magistrate exercises judicial functions in dealing with the report submitted by the police.

It is of the utmost importance that the judiciary should not interfere with the police in matters which are within their province and into which the law imposes on them the duty of enquiry. R.N. Chatterji v. Havildar Kuer Singh, (1970) 1 SCC 496: 1970 SCC (Cri) 218: 1970 ALJ 1301.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1970]

[7904] — Ss. 156(3) and 190(1)(c) — Scope of — Submission of final report by the police — Power of Magistrate to direct the police to submit a charge-sheet after final report

The provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code do not empower the Magistrate to ask the police to submit a charge-sheet. If, however, the Magistrate is of opinion that the report submitted by the police requires further investigation the Magistrate may order investigation under S. 156(3) of the Criminal Procedure Code. Directing a further investigation is entirely different from asking the police to submit a charge-sheet. Furthermore, S. 190(1)(c) of the Criminal Procedure Code empowers the Magistrate to take cognizance of an offence notwithstanding a contrary opinion of the police.

These provisions in the Criminal Procedure Code, indicate two broad features: first, the formation of an opinion in an investigation is left to the police; and secondly, the Magistrate exercises judicial functions in dealing with the report submitted by the police.

It was for the police to form their opinion and the final step in the investigation was to be taken only by the police and no other authority. As to the powers of the Magistrate he cannot call upon the police to submit a charge-sheet when they have sent a report, that there is no case for sending up the accused for trial because that would be dictating to the police to form opinion in accordance with that of the Magistrate. Such a course is not desirable. That is why the Magistrate can call for a further investigation. R.N. Chatterji v. Havildar Kuer Singh, (1970) 1 SCC 496: 1970 SCC (Cri) 218: 1970 ALJ 1301.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1970]

— S. 157 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)
See also Ss. 156 and 157
See also Ss. 156, 157 and 4(1)
See also Ss. 162 and 157
See also Ss. 537, 156 and 157

[7905] — S. 157 — Scope

Section 157, CrPC requires such report to be sent forthwith by the police officer concerned to a magistrate empowered to take cognizance of such offence. This is really designed to keep the magistrate informed of the investigation of such cognizable offence so as to be able to control the investigation and if necessary to give appropriate direction under S. 159.

So where FIR was actually recorded without delay and the investigation started on the basis of that FIR and there is no other infirmity brought to notice, then, however improper or objectionable the delayed receipt of the report by the magistrate concerned, it cannot by itself justify the conclusion that the investigation was tainted and the prosecution insupportable. It is not the appellant's case that they have been prejudiced by this delay. Pala Singh v. State of Punjab, (1972) 2 SCC 640: 1973 SCC (Cri) 55: AIR 1972 SC 2679: 1973 Cri LJ 59.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1972]

[7906] — S. 157 — Investigation — Police Officer investigating on the basis of clear and precise information — Act amounts to investigation of offence

Per Subba Rao, J. (for majority)

Where the information received was clear and precise and the Sub-Inspector, on the basis of the said information, went to the spot to investigate into the truth of the allegations and indeed took some of the crucial steps to detect the crime, the Sub-Inspector of the police made investigation of the offence before obtaining the requisite permission of the Magistrate.

Per Mudholkar, J.

The main object of investigation being to bring home the offence to the offender the essential part of the duties of an Investigating Officer in this connection is, apart from arresting the offender, to collect all material necessary for establishing the acquisition against the offender. Merely making some preliminary enquiries upon receipt of information from an anonymous source or a source of doubtful reliability for checking up the correctness of the information does not amount to collection of evidence and so cannot be regarded as investigation. State of U.P. v. Bhagwant Kishore Joshi, AIR 1964 SC 221: (1964) 3 SCR 71: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 140: (1964) 1 LLJ 60.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao[1], Raghubar Dayal[1] and J.R. Mudholkar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1963]

[7907] — S. 157 — Investigation on "information" or "otherwise"

Though ordinarily investigation is undertaken on information received by a police officer, the receipt of information is not a condition precedent for investigation. Section 157 prescribes the procedure in the matter of such an investigation which can be initiated either on information or otherwise. It is clear from the said provisions that an officer in charge of a police station can start investigation either on information or otherwise. State of U.P. v. Bhagwant Kishore Joshi, AIR 1964 SC 221, 223: (1964) 3 SCR 71: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 140: (1964) 1 LLJ 60.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao[1], Raghubar Dayal[1] and J.R. Mudholkar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1963]

[7908] — S. 157 — Same witnesses at enquiries — Solitary witness

There was no injunction against the same set of witness being present at the successive enquiries if nothing could be urged against them.

The evidence relating to recoveries is not similar to that contemplated under S. 103 of the Criminal Procedure Code where searches are required to be made in the presence of two or more inhabitants of the locality in which the place to be searched is situate. In an investigation under S. 157 the recoveries could be proved even by the solitary evidence of the Investigating Officer if his evidence could otherwise be believed. H.P. Admn. v. Om Prakash, (1972) 1 SCC 249: 1972 SCC (Cri) 88: AIR 1972 SC 975: (1972) 2 MLJ 16 (SC): 1972 Cri LJ 606.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1971]

[7909] — Ss. 157 and 161 — Investigation — Serious discrepancies in the conduct of investigation, preparation of panchnama and in the notings in the General Diary — Considerable delay in removing the dead body and in examining the witness — No reasonable explanation offered — Contravention of para 44 of U.P. Police Act in not making a note in the General Diary of witnesses examined on the day of occurrence — Such lapses in the investigation, held, fatal to the prosecution case. Subhash v. State of U.P., (1976) 3 SCC 629: 1976 SCC (Cri) 483: AIR 1976 SC 1924: 1976 Cri LJ 1521: 1977 MLJ (Cri) 129.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, R.S. Sarkaria and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1976]

[7910] — Ss. 157 and 162 — Statement of I.O. in inquest report is not hit by S. 162 and is primary and direct evidence admissible in the case. Rameshwar Dayal v. State of U.P., (1978) 2 SCC 518: 1978 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1978 SC 1558: 1978 ALJ 1011: (1978) 15 ACC 276.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1978]

— S. 158 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

— S. 159 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

See also Ss. 156 and 159

[7911] — S. 159 — Investigation — Should be fair and cautious — Investigating Officer should rule out possibility of fabrication and his conduct should dispel suspicion — Blood-smeared weapon of murder must be sent to the Chemical Examiner — Reasons for opinion of experts should be elicited. Mahmood v. State of U.P., (1976) 1 SCC 542: 1976 SCC (Cri) 72: AIR 1976 SC 69: 1976 Cri LJ 10.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-10-1975]

— S. 160 See also Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

[7912] — Ss. 160, 161(1), (2) and (3), 163(1) and S. 174(4) — Procedure under — Use of copies or statements furnished under, S. 174(4) — Investigation by Vigilance and Anti-Corruption Department — Validity of — Application of the provisions of CrPC — Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, S. 5

The enquiry officer must not act under any preconceived idea of guilt of the person whose conduct was being enquired into or pursue the enquiry in such a manner as to lead to an inference that he was bent upon securing the conviction of the said person by adopting measure which are of doubtful validity or sanction.

The Code of Criminal Procedure is an enactment designed inter alia to ensure a fair investigation of the allegations against a person charged with criminal misconduct.

The office of the Directorate of Vigilance and Anti-Corruption Department, Madras, became a police station for the purpose of Criminal Procedure Code under sub-clause (s) of sub-section (1) of S. 4 of the Code by the notification.

There was no warrant for the Vigilance and Anti-Corruption Department to disregard the provisions of Ss. 162 and 163, CrPC. P. Sirajuddin v. State of Madras, (1970) 1 SCC 595: 1970 SCC (Cri) 240: AIR 1971 SC 520: 1971 Cri LJ 523.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-1970]

[7913] — Ss. 160 and 161 — Use of force and inducement not permitted

By no stretch of imagination can it be said that the provisions of section authorise the officer examining a person to beat him or to confine him for the purpose of inducing him to make a particular statement. The provisions of S. 163 emphasise the fact that S. 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not authorise the police officers to beat or to confine a person with a view to induce him to make a statement. State of A.P. v. N. Venugopal, AIR 1964 SC 33, 38: (1964) 3 SCR 742: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 16: (1965) 2 MLJ (SC) 87.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-5-1963]

[7914] — S. 160 proviso — Police officer summoning a woman and a boy aged thirteen years — Held, appellant-police officer infringed provisions of the section. Raja Ram v. State of Haryana, (1971) 3 SCC 945: 1972 SCC (Cri) 193.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1970]

— S. 161 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)
See also Ss. 157 and 161
See also Ss. 160 and 161

[7915] — S. 161 — Statement made during investigation of cross-case inadmissible in present case — CrPC, 1973, S. 161. Gajendra Singh v. State of U.P., (1975) 4 SCC 241: 1975 SCC (Cri) 499: AIR 1975 SC 1703: 1975 Cri LJ 1494.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1975]

[7916] — S. 161 — Practice of allowing public prosecutor to explain omissions or contradictions in disposition of witness with reference to his statement under S. 161, Criminal Procedure Code — Held, such concession for proof of contradictions or omissions lacks support of law. Muthu Naicker v. State of T.N., (1978) 4 SCC 385: 1979 SCC (Cri) 14: AIR 1978 SC 1647: 1978 Cri LJ 1713: (1979) 1 MLJ 10 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Shinghal and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-1978]

[7917] — S. 161 — Contradiction with previous statement of a witness — Omission amounting to contradiction — Witnesses in statements under S. 161, CrPC, attributing clear intention to the accused to commit murder — In Sessions Court the witness stating that the accused was insane — Previous statements are contradictions under S. 162 CrPC and can be used to contradict no witness — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 145

The witnesses in their statement before the police attributed a clear intention to the accused to commit murder, but before the court they stated that the accused was insane and, therefore, he committed the murder. In the circumstances it was necessarily implied in the previous statements of the witnesses before the police that the accused was not insane at the time he committed the murder. In this view the previous statements of the witnesses before the police can be used to contradict their version in the court.

Where the witnesses in their statements under S. 161, CrPC stated that the accused came out of the room with a blood-stained knife in his hand and admitted that he had murdered his wife; but in the witness-box they said that when the accused came out of the room he was behaving like a mad man, the statement in the two statements were contradictions within the meaning of S. 162 CrPC. Dahyabhai Chhaganbhai Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1964 SC 1563: (1964) 7 SCR 361: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 472.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1964]

[7918] — S. 161 — Investigation — Delay in examining witnesses by the investigating officer

Much reliance cannot be placed on the evidence of a witness when for no justifiable reason he was not examined by the investigating officer for a number of days particularly when the witness is found to be telling falsehood on material aspects of the case and tries to conform to the evidence of other witnesses. Balakrushna Swain v. State of Orissa, (1971) 3 SCC 192: 1971 SCC (Cri) 313: AIR 1971 SC 804: 1971 Cri LJ 670.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, J. [Date of decision: 9-2-1971]

[7919] — S. 161 — Particular fact not mentioned

When a particular fact deposed to by witnesses does not find mention both in the FIR and in statements recorded under S. 161, CrPC, it is an improvement and it cannot be considered. Yudhishtir v. State of M.P., (1971) 3 SCC 436: 1971 SCC (Cri) 684.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1971]

[7920] — S. 161 — Police Officer — Duty — Caution to Police Officers while dealing with even untruthful complainants, and their witnesses

Police Officers, who are expected to act as guardians of law and order so as to protect the persons and properties and honour of ordinary citizens, cannot be permitted to take the law in their own hands and go about threatening even untruthful complainants and their witnesses with the object of stifling prosecutions. It is the function of Courts of law to pronounce on the veracity of witnesses before them. Even if the police comes to the conclusion that a complainant and his witnesses are utterly untruthful they have no business to threaten them so that witnesses may not give evidence in Court. It is for Courts to punish perjury which is shown to have been committed. The action of the police officers, with the object they had in view, was quite indefensible. Waryam Singh v. Sadhu Ram, (1972) 1 SCC 796: 1972 SCC (Cri) 477: AIR 1972 SC 905: 1972 Cri LJ 635.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: A.N. Grover, A.N. Ray, D.G. Palekar and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1972]

[7921] — Ss. 161, 207-A and 537 — Statements of witnesses recorded by a police officer during the course of investigation made available to the accused at a late stage of the trial — Held, no prejudice was caused to the accused. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, 1012.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

[7922] — Ss. 161 and 162 — Act done or intended to be done under Police Act or any other law — Beating or confining a person for inducing him to make a particular statement — Not covered — T.N. District Police Act, 1859 (24 of 1859), S. 53

By no stretch of imagination can it be said that the provisions of S. 161 authorise the officer examining a person to beat him or to confine him for the purpose of inducing him to make a particular statement. The provisions of S. 163 emphasise the facts that S. 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not authorise the police officers to beat or to confine a person with a view to induce him to make a statement. State of A.P. v. N. Venugopal, AIR 1964 SC 33: (1964) 3 SCR 742: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 16: (1965) 2 MLJ (SC) 87.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-5-1963]

[7923] — Ss. 161 and 162 — Document not FIR being a subsequent report to police — It is hit by Ss. 161 & 162, CrPC and can be used only to contradict the maker — Judge committed misdirection in reading the parties of the document to the jury

If a report subsequently made to the police is not the first information report, it was by Ss. 161 and 162 of the CrPC and cannot be relied upon except to the extent permitted by the proviso to S. 162 of the CrPC i.e. to contradict the maker of the complaint with respect to any particular statement therein. In that view also the judge clearly misdirected himself in reading the so called relevant portions of the document to the jury. State of Bombay v. Rusy Mistry, AIR 1960 SC 391: 1960 Cri LJ 532.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1959]

[7924] — Ss. 161 and 162 — Statement recorded by the investigating officer — High Court holding that the record of the statement made by the Investigating Officer was not honest — Nevertheless it acquitted all the accused not named in these statements even though the witnesses held as reliable named there in the court — High Court was not justified in rejecting reliable testimony on the basis of the record condemned by it as unreliable

The High Court held that the 4 eyewitnesses were on the whole reliable and that the record of their statements made by the investigating officer was not honest and faithful. It fell into the error of acquitting all those accused persons, appellants before it, whose names did not find a place in the record made by that police officer. In other words it rejected reliable testimony with reference to that very record which it had condemned as unreliable. In so far as the High Court misled itself into relying upon the record made by the sub-Inspector of Police to discard the evidence given in the Court it fell into a serious error. Mathurala Adi Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1956 SC 177: 1956 Cri LJ 341.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1955]

[7925] — Ss. 161 and 162 — Statements recorded during an illegal investigation of case — Applicability of Ss. 161 & 162 — Investigation conducted by Dy. S.P. in a case which could be investigated by Superintendent of Police alone in view of the provisions of Bombay State Commr. of Police Act, 1959 — Superintendent of Police later investigating the case under the orders of the Court and recording fresh evidence — Statements recorded by Dy. S.P. covered by Ss. 161 and 162 CrPC although the investigation was illegal. Bhanuprasad Hariprasad Dave v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1968 SC 1323: (1969) 1 SCR 22: (1970) 1 LLJ 643: 1968 Cri LJ 1505.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1968]

[7926] — Ss. 161 and 162 — Telephone conversation between two private persons — Statement not to the police officer. R.M. Malkani v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 1 SCC 471: 1973 SCC (Cri) 399: AIR 1973 SC 157: (1973) 2 SCR 417: 1973 Cri LJ 228.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-9-1972]

[7927] — Ss. 161 and 163 — Use of force prohibited

The provisions of Ss. 161 and 163 of the Criminal Procedure Code emphasise the fact that a police officer is prohibited from beating or confining persons with a view to induce them to make statements. State of Maharashtra v. Narhar Rao, AIR 1966 SC 1783, 1787: (1966) 3 SCR 880: 1966 Cri LJ 1495.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, V. Ramaswami and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-3-1966]

[7928] — Ss. 161 and 173 — Statement under S. 161 and other documents under S. 173 not furnished to the accused — Held, most valuable statutory right denied — Accused by exercise of such right could have tested the veracity of evidence led by prosecution — Denial of the right gains significance in view of lapse of time. State of U.P. v. Kapil Deo Shukla, (1972) 3 SCC 504: 1972 SCC (Cri) 597: AIR 1973 SC 494: 1972 Cri LJ 1214.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1972]

— Ss. 161(1) to (3) See Ss. 160, 161(1), (2) and (3), 163(1) and 174(4)

[7929] — S. 161(3) — Investigating Officer recording a joint statement of several witnesses — Their statements made in court are nevertheless admissible although there was contravention of S. 161(3)

The investigating officer stated that he recorded joint statement of three witnesses in respect of common things and made a separate record about the identification and weapons.

Held, the recording of a joint statement of three witnesses is clearly in contravention of S. 161(3) and must be disapproved. Section 161(3) does not say that the statement of witnesses made in court would be inadmissible in case S. 163(3) is contravened while the Investigating Officer recorded their statements. Seeing that the police are not bound to make a record of the statements of the witnesses in which case there is admittedly no bar to the reception of their testimony, it would be anomalous to hold that there evidence is inadmissible because the statements were reduced to writing but not in the manner provided in the section.

The Evidence Act contains the elaborate provisions as to who are competent witnesses and on what matters their evidence is inadmissible on these provisions the three witnesses are neither incompetent nor is the evidence as to the incidents to which they deposed inadmissible. Tilkeshwar Singh v. State of Bihar, AIR 1956 SC 238: (1955) 2 SCR 1043: 1956 Cri LJ 441, 443.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-1955]

[7930] — S. 161(3) — Statements of witnesses recorded by the police Investigating Officer recording identical statement of several witnesses — Procedure is not irregular and no inference that the witnesses were adherents of the police can be drawn

There is no special rule or direction provided in the Code of Criminal Procedure affording guidance for police officers in recording statements of witnesses and usually what is done is that when a succeeding witness gives practically an identical story as to what a previous witness has stated, it is a matter of common knowledge that the words used by the police officer would be similar or identical. No inference can therefore be drawn that the witnesses were adherents of the police. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, 1012.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

— S. 162 See Ss. 4(1) and 162

See also Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

See also Ss. 157 and 162

See also Ss. 161 and 162

[7931] — S. 162 — Scope

Under the present S. 162, Criminal Procedure Code, the prosecution is entitled, with the permission of the Court, to contradict a witness in the manner provided by S. 145, Indian Evidence Act, provided his statement made to the police officer in the course of investigations has been reduced into writing. It seems to us that in this particular case what the prosecution did was to confront the witness with his previous statement by reading the whole of it. It may be that the proper way would have been to read only those parts of the statement which the prosecution wanted to use for the purpose of contradicting him. But this procedural defect would not make the statement of the witness inadmissible in evidence. No prejudice seems to have been caused to the accused by the adoption of such procedure because the witness mostly denied having made those parts of the statement which were later specifically put to him in the form of questions. Ram Chandra v. State of Maharashtra, Cri. A. No. 127 of 1966

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Sikri, Shelat and Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-11-1967]

[7932] — S. 162 — Scope — Admissibility of the statements made to a draftsman making a site plan — Draftsman making a site plan — Witnesses pointing out to him the places where the assailants and the deceased stood — Evidence is admissible

Per majority

It is not unusual to have a plan drawn up by a draftsman and this is not done to evade the provisions of S. 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

If the draftsman is asked to prepare a sketch map of the place of the occurrence, and if after ascertaining from the witnesses where exactly the assailant and the victim stood at the time of the commission of the offence and the draftsman measures the distance between the two places thus shown to him and puts it down on the plan, and further, if the witnesses corroborate his statement that they showed him the places, it is somewhat difficult to see how this is not legal evidence and why it is inadmissible.

Nor is the evidence hearsay because: (1) the eyewitnesses have been called and they say that they showed the different spots to the draftsman, and (2) in so far as the distance is concerned the draftsman himself measured them as he swears in the witness-box that the distances shown in the sketch are correct.

Per Jagannadhadas and Sinha, JJ (dissenting)

It appears that the pointing out of the distances to the draftsman was in the very presence of the police officer and that it was incidental to the pointing out of the distance to the investigating officer on the spot, in the course of the investigation. The evidence of the draftsman taken with what he has noted on the map can only be treated as evidence of prior statements, as to distance, of the eyewitnesses, in the course of investigation by the police and is, therefore, inadmissible in the case either as substantive or as corroboration evidence, amplifying the evidence given by the eyewitnesses. Santa Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 526: 1956 Cri LJ 930, 32-34.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas[2], B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 2-2-1956]

[7933] — S. 162 — Scope — Investigating Officer receiving an anonymous letter in the handwriting of the accused — Letter not barred under S. 162 — Statement sought to be excluded from evidence must be ascribable to the enquiry conducted by the investigating officer

Section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code only bars proof of statement made to an investigating officer during the course of investigation. Section 162 does not say that every statement made during the period of investigation is barred from being proved in evidence. For a statement to come within the purview of S. 162, it must not merely be made during the period of investigation but also in the course of investigation. The two things, that is, "the period of investigation" and "course of investigation" are not synonymous. Section 162 is aimed at statements recorded by a police officer while investigating into an offence. This is clear from the opening words of S. 162. They speak only of statements made to a police officer during the course of investigation. This implies that the statement sought to be excluded from evidence must be ascribable to the enquiry conducted by the investigating officer and not one which is de hors the enquiry. Therefore, an anonymous letter from an accused recovered by the investigating officer will not fall within the ambit of such statement. Baleshwar Rai v. State of Bihar, (1963) 2 SCR 433: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 564.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta, J.R. Mudholkar and T.L. Venkatarama Ayyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1962]

[7934] — S. 162 — Scope — Statement recorded by the Investigating Officer — Is not substantive evidence — Police record perfunctory and dishonest — The statement of the witnesses given in court should be considered keeping in view that their statement recorded under S. 161 CrPC is tainted record and has no great value

Ordinarily accused persons are entitled to challenge the testimony of witnesses examined in court with reference to the statements said to have been made by them before the investigating police officer. Statements made by prosecution witnesses before the investigating police officer being the earliest statements made by them with reference to the facts of the occurrence are valuable material for testing the veracity of the witnesses examined in court, with particular reference to those statements which happen to be at variance with their earlier statements; but the statements made during police investigation are not substantive evidence.

Hence the record made by a police investigating officer has to be considered by the Court only with a view to weighing the evidence actually adduced in court. If the police record becomes suspect or unreliable, as in the present case, on the ground that it was deliberately perfunctory or dishonest, it loses much of its value and the Court in judging the case of a particular accused has to weigh the evidence given against him in court keeping in view the fact that the earlier statements of witnesses as recorded by the police is tainted record and has not as great a value as it otherwise would have in weighing all the material on the record as against each individual accused. Mathurala Adi Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1956 SC 177: 1956 Cri LJ 341.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1955]

[7935] — S. 162 — Scope — Statement in writing to be used for contradicting the witness — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 145

Per majority

Section 145 of the Evidence Act is in two parts: the first part enables the accused to cross-examine a witness as to previous statement made by him in writing or reduced to writing without such writing being shown to him; the second part deals with a situation where the cross-examination assumed the shape of contradiction: in other words, both parts deal with cross-examination; the first part with cross-examination other than by way of contradiction, and the second with cross-examination by way of contradiction only.

The procedure prescribed is that, if it is intended to contradict a witness by the writing, his attention must, before the writing can be proved, be called to those parts of it which are to be used for the purpose of contradicting him. The proviso to S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure only enables the accused to make use of such statement contradict a witness in the manner provided by S. 145 of the Evidence Act. It would be doing violence to the language of the proviso if the said statement be allowed to be used for the purpose of cross-examining a witness within the meaning of the first part of S. 145 of the Evidence Act. It would be possible to invoke the second part of S. 145 of the Evidence Act without putting relevant questions under the first part thereof. The difficulty is more imaginary than real. The second part of S. 145 of the Evidence Act clearly indicates the simple procedure to be followed.

The contradiction, under the section, should be between what a witness asserted in the witness-box and what he stated before the police officer, and not between what he said he had stated before the police officer and what he actually made before him.

In such a case the question could not be put at all: only questions to contradict can be put. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012, 1021: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7936] — S. 162 — Scope — Trap laid in a case under S. 165-A IPC — Conversation between the accused and the officer to whom bribe offered tape recorded — Public officers present in another room — This fact not in accused's knowledge — Evidence of conversation not barred by S. 162

The appellant and S the officer, to whom the appellant offered the bribe spoke to each other, but neither made a statement to the Police Officer. Appellant did not even know that the police officers were present in the adjoining room. The police officers set the stage for the drama in which the actors were S. and the appellant. The officers hid themselves in the inner room and took no part in the drama. Neither of them can be regarded as having made a statement to a police officer as contemplated by S. 162. Yusufalli Esmail Nagree v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 147: (1967) 3 SCR 720: 1968 Cri LJ 103, 05, 06.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, R.S. Bachawat and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1967]

[7937] — S. 162 — Retracted confession made by accused to the witness of doubtful character — Corroboration needed — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 24 and 21

A retracted confession which is not too good to be treated as sufficient in itself to fasten the guilt, requires satisfactory reinforcement. Ediga Anamma v. State of A.P., (1974) 4 SCC 443: 1974 SCC (Cri) 479: AIR 1974 SC 799: 1974 Cri LJ 683: (1974) 3 SCR 329.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1974]

[7938] — S. 162 — FIR lodged by the person who was later tried as an accused — Is not confession — Is admissible in evidence and admissibility not barred by S. 25, Evidence Act or S. 162 CrPC — Admission of an accused can be proved against him — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 25

The FIR lodged by the person who was later tried as an accused of the offence of murder is not his confession. It is not a statement made to a police officer during the course of investigation. Section 25 of the Evidence Act and S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure do not bar its admissibility. The report is an admission by the accused of certain facts which have a bearing on the question to be determined by the Court viz. how and by whom the murder of G was committed, or whether the appellant's statement in Court denying the correctness of certain statements of the prosecution witnesses is correct or not. Faddi v. State of M.P., AIR 1964 SC 1850: (1964) 6 SCR 312: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 744.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-1-1964]

[7939] — S. 162 — "Police officer" — Who is — Test — RPF Officer — Officer of RPF making inquiry under S. 8(1) of Railway Property (Unlawful Possession) Act, 1966 (29 of 1966), held, not a "police officer" within the meaning of S. 25 of Evidence Act or S. 162 CrPC — Position of customs or excise officer also not different in this regard — Hence confessional or incriminating statement recorded by such officer under S. 9 of 1966 Act in the course of the inquiry cannot be excluded from evidence — Inquiry under S. 8(1) of 1966 Act distinct in material aspects from investigation under Chapter XIV of the Code — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 25

The primary test to determine whether an officer under a special Act is a "police officer" for the purpose of S. 25, Evidence Act is whether that officer has been invested with all the powers exercisable by an officer in charge of a police station under Chap. XIV of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, qua investigation of offences under that Act, including the power to initiate prosecution by submitting a report (charge-sheet) under S. 173 of the Code. It is not enough to show that he exercises some or even many of the powers of a police officer conducting an investigation under the Code.

The ratio of the Supreme Court's earlier decisions laying down the above test cannot be said to be inapplicable to the present case merely because they related to a customs officer or an excise officer, and not to an officer of the RPF. The factual premises on which the ratio of Badku Joti Savant rests were substantially analogous to those of the instant case. That is to say, the powers of arrest, inquiry and investigation conferred on the Central Excise Officers under the Central Excises and Salt Act 1 of 1944 (which was under consideration in that case) are very similar to those with which an officer of the RPF is invested under the 1966 Act. The relevant provisions in Ss. 13, 18, 19 and 21 of the Central Act 1 of 1944, substantially correspond to the provisions in Ss. 6, 7, 8, etc. of the 1966 Act.

Applying the above test to the present case, it is clear that an officer of the RPF conducting an enquiry under S. 8(1) of the 1966 Act has not been invested with all the powers of an officer in charge of a police station making an investigation under Chapter XIV of the Code. Balkishan A. Devidayal v. State of Maharashtra, (1980) 4 SCC 600: 1981 SCC (Cri) 62: AIR 1981 SC 379: 1980 Cri LJ 1424: (1980) 17 ACC 300.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-1980]

Badku Joti Savant v. State of Mysore, (1966) 3 SCR 698: AIR 1966 SC 1746: 1966 Cri LJ 1353, applied

[7940] — S. 162 — Scope of each section and interrelationship — "Person accused of an offence" — Meaning of — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 27, 24, 25 & 26

Per majority

The ban which is partial under S. 24 and complete under S. 25 applies equally whether or not the person against whom evidence is sought to be led in a criminal trial was at the time of making the confession in custody. For the ban to be effective the person need not have been accused of an offence when he made the confession.

Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act is one of a group of sections relating to the relevancy of certain forms of admissions made by persons accused of offences.

The expression, "accused person" in S. 24 and the expression "a person accused of the offence" have the same connotation, and describe the person against whom evidence is sought to be led in a criminal proceeding.

The Privy Council in Narayan Swami v. Emperor, 66 IA 66: 40 Cri LJ 364: AIR 1939 PC 47 has stated: "Section 25 covers a confession made to a police officer before any investigation has begun or otherwise not in the course of an investigation." The adjectival clause "accused of any offence" is therefore descriptive of the person against whom a confessional statement made by him is declared not provable, and does not predicate a condition of that person at the time of making the statement for the applicability of the ban. Section 26 of the Indian Evidence Act by its first paragraph provides: "No confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer, unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against a person accused of any offence." By this section, a confession made by a person who is in custody is declared not provable unless it is made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate. Whereas S. 25 prohibits proof of a confession made by a person to a police officer whether or not at the time of making the confession, he was in custody, S. 26 prohibits proof of a confession by a person in custody made to any person unless the confession is made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate. Section 27 which is in the form of a proviso states: "Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

Therefore the expression, "accused of any offence" in S. 27, as in S. 25, is also descriptive of the person concerned i.e. against a person who is accused of an offence, S. 27 renders provable certain statements made by him while he was in the custody of a police officer.

Section 27 is founded on the principle that even though the evidence relating to confessional or other statements made by a person, whilst he is in the custody of a police officer, is tainted and therefore inadmissible if the truth of the information given by him is assured by the discovery of a fact, it may be presumed to be untainted and is therefore declared provable in so far as it distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered. Even though S. 27 is in the form of a proviso to S. 26, the two sections do not necessarily deal with evidence of the same character. The ban imposed by S. 26 is against the proof of confessional statements. Section 27 is concerned with the proof of information whether it amounts to a confession or not, which leads to discovery of facts. By S. 27, even if a fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received, only that much of the information is admissible as distinctly relates to the fact discovered. By S. 26, a confession made in the presence of a Magistrate is made provable in its entirety.

Section 162 of the CrPC also enacts a rule of evidence. This section among other things, prohibits, but not so as to affect the admissibility of information to the extent permissible under S. 27 of the Evidence Act, use of statements by any person to a police officer in the course of an investigation under Ch. XIV of the Code, in any enquiry or trial in which such person is charged for any offence, under investigation at the time when the statement was made.

On an analysis of Ss. 24 to 27 of the Indian Evidence Act and S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the following material propositions emerge:

(a) Whether a person is in custody or outside, a confession made by him to a police officer or the making of which is procured by inducement, threat or promise having reference to the charge against him and proceeding from a person in authority, is not provable against him in any proceeding in which he is charged with the commission of an offence.

(b) A confession made by a person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer to a person other than a police officer is not provable in a proceeding in which he is charged with the commission of an offence unless it is made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate.

(c) That part of the information given by a person whilst in police custody whether the information is confessional or otherwise, which distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered but no more, is provable in a proceeding in which he is charged with the commission of an offence.

(d) A statement whether it amounts to a confession or not made by a person when he is not in custody, to another person such latter person not being a police officer may be proved if it is otherwise relevant.

(e) A statement made by a person to a police officer in the course of an investigation of an offence under Ch. XIV of the CrPC cannot except to the extent permitted by S. 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, be used for any purpose at any enquiry or trial in respect of any offence under investigation at the time when the statement was made in which he is concerned as a person accused of an offence. State of U.P. v. Deoman Upadhyaya, AIR 1960 SC 1125: (1961) 1 SCR 14: 1960 Cri LJ 1504.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K. Subba Rao[2], M. Hidayatullah[3] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1960]

[7941] — S. 162 — Contradiction with previous statement of a witness — Omission amounting to contradiction — Witnesses in statements under S. 161, CrPC, attributing clear intention to the accused to commit murder — In Sessions Court the witness stating that the accused was insane — Previous statements are contradictions under S. 162 CrPC and can be used to contradict no witness — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 145

The witnesses in their statement before the police attributed a clear intention to the accused to commit murder, but before the court they stated that the accused was insane and, therefore, he committed the murder. In the circumstances it was necessarily implied in the previous statements of the witnesses before the police that the accused was not insane at the time he committed the murder. In this view the previous statements of the witnesses before the police can be used to contradict their version in the court.

Where the witnesses in their statements under S. 161, CrPC stated that the accused came out of the room with a blood-stained knife in his hand and admitted that he had murdered his wife; but in the witness-box they said that when the accused came out of the room he was behaving like a mad man, the statement in the two statements were contradictions within the meaning of S. 162 CrPC. Dahyabhai Chhaganbhai Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1964 SC 1563: (1964) 7 SCR 361: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 472.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1964]

[7942] — S. 162 — Use of statement made to the police under S. 161 — Scope with reference to S. 145 Evidence Act — The accused is entitled to cross-examine a witness with reference to his statement recorded under S. 161 subject to the limitations of S. 162 — Reference to S. 145 Evi- dence Act brings in the whole of the manner and machinery of this section and not merely 2nd part

Per Hidayatullah and Imam, JJ.

The fact that the accused can use the previous statement for the purpose of contradicting, shows that the previous statement cannot be used for corroborating the witness. The basis for contradicting may arise, because of there being a contrary statement, irreconcilable statement or even material omission. The accused can establish a contradiction by cross-examining the witness but only so as to bring out a contradiction and no more. It is not correct that the accused is not entitled to cross examine but only to contradict. The reference to S. 145 the Indian Evidence Act brings in the whole of the manner and machinery of S. 145 and not merely the second part. The accused cannot of course go beyond S. 162 or ignore what the section prohibits but cross-examination to establish a contradiction between one statement and another is certainly permissible.

It must not be overlooked that the cross-examination must be directed to bringing out a contradiction between the statements and must not subserve any other purpose. If the cross-examination does anything else, it will be barred under S. 162, which permits the use of the earlier statement for contradicting a witness and nothing else. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7943] — S. 162 — Use of previous statement for contradicting — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 145

Per majority

(1) A statement in writing made by a witness before a police officer in the course of investigation can be used only to contradict his statement in the witness-box and for no other purpose; (2) statements not reduced to writing by the police officer cannot be used for contradiction; (3) though a particular statement is not expressly recorded, a statement that can be deemed to be part of that expressly recorded can be used for contradiction, not because it is an omission strictly so called but because it is deemed to form part of the recorded statement; (4) such a fiction is permissible by construction only in the following three cases:

(i) When a racital is necessarily implied from the recital or recitals found in the statement;

(ii) a negative aspect of a positive recital in a statement;

(iii) when the statement before the police and that before the court cannot stand together.

Per Hidayatullah & Kapur, JJ. (concurring)

The right of both the accused and the prosecution is limited to contradictions. It involves cross-examination by the accused as to that contradiction within S. 145 of the Indian Evidence Act and re-examination in relation to the matters "referred to in the cross-examination of the witness". The prosecution cannot range at will to explain away every discrepancy but only such as the accused under his right has brought to light. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012, 1026: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7944] — S. 162 — Statements recorded during investigation under S. 8(1) of the 1966 Act do not attract S. 162 CrPC, 1898 — Railway Property (Unlawful Possession) Act, 1966, S. 8(1)

In cases of prosecution under the extensive powers of the Railway Property (Unlawful Possession) Act, 1966, for unlawful possession of railway property, officers of the Railway Protection Force have power to investigate into the alleged offence and statements recorded by them during the course of investigation do not attract the provisions of S. 162 CrPC. Srilal Shaw v. State of W.B., (1975) 1 SCC 336: 1975 SCC (Cri) 172: AIR 1975 SC 393: (1975) 2 SCR 913: 1975 Cri LJ 423.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg, Y.V. Chandrachud and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1974]

[7945] — S. 162 — Excise Officer if a police officer under S. 25, Evidence Act, 1872 — Confession to Excise Officer inadmissible under S. 162 CrPC also — Bihar and Orissa Excise Act, 1915 (2 of 1915). Raja Ram Jaiswal v. State of Bihar, AIR 1964 SC 828, 832, 83: (1964) 2 SCR 752: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 705.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao[1], Raghubar Dayal[2] and J.R. Mudholkar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 4-4-1963]

[7946] — S. 162 — "Period of investigation" and "course of investigation"

For a statement to come within the purview of S. 162, it must not merely be made during the period of investigation but also in the course of investigation. The two things, that is, "the period of investigation" and "course of investigation" are not synonymous. S. 162 is aimed at statements recorded by a police officer while investigating into an offence. This is clear from the opening words of S. 162. They speak only of statements made to a police officer during the course of investigation. This implies that the statements sought to be excluded from evidence must be ascribable to the enquiry conducted by the investigating officer and not one which is de hors the enquiry. Therefore, an anonymous letter from an accused recovered by the investigating officer will not fall within the ambit of such statement. Baleshwar Rai v. State of Bihar, (1963) 2 SCR 433: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 564.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta, J.R. Mudholkar and T.L. Venkatarama Ayyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1962]

[7947] — S. 162 — "Statement in writing"

Per Subba Rao, J. (for majority)

Looking at the express words used in S. 162 CrPC two sets of words stand out prominently which afford the key to the intention of the legislature. They are: "statement in writing", and "to contradict". "Statement" in its dictionary meaning is the act of stating or reciting. 'Prima facie' a statement cannot take in an omission. A statement cannot include that which is not stated. But very often to make a statement sensible or self-consistent, it becomes necessary to imply words which are not actually in the statement. Though something is not expressly stated, it is necessarily implied from what is directly or expressly stated. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7948] — S. 162 — Accused's statement made to police — Admissibility of

Statement made by the accused to the Police in course of investigation is rendered inadmissible by S. 162 CrPC. Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1954 SC 322: 1954 SCR 1098: 1954 Cri LJ 910.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1954]

[7949] — S. 162 — Belated Investigation — Effect of S. 325, IPC

Although the case ought to have been registered as a serious one and investigation started immediately, yet the delay in investigation could be ignored in view of the provision of Regulation 104 of the U.P. Police Regulations which seems to have given a handle to the Head Constable in not starting the investigation immediately. The said regulation thwarted investigation without a specific order of the Superintendent of Police or the report of a Medical Officer. Nevertheless, delay of a week is remarkable. Hazara Singh v. State of U.P., (1969) 2 SCC 22: AIR 1969 SC 951: 1969 Cri LJ 1428: 1969 MLJ (Cri) 721.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1969]

[7950] — S. 162 — Cross-examination of defence witness with respect to his statement recorded by police during investigation is not permissible — Supreme Court calling this aspect of law as unfortunate — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 145. Laxman Kalu Nikalje v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 1390: (1968) 3 SCR 685: 1968 Cri LJ 1647.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1968]

[7951] — S. 162 — Delayed examination by Investigating Officer — Presumption — Rebuttal of — Burden of proof

The fact of delayed examination of a witness should be put to the Investigating Officer so as to enable him to explain the undue delay, if any, in examining a particular witness. The question of delay in examining a witness during investigation is material only if it is indicative and suggestive of some unfair practice by the investigating agency for purpose of introducing a got-up witness to falsely support the prosecution case. It is, therefore, essential that the Investigating Officer should be asked specifically about the delay and the reasons therefor. Ranbir v. State of Punjab, (1973) 2 SCC 444: 1973 SCC (Cri) 858: AIR 1973 SC 1409: 1973 Cri LJ 1120.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1973]

[7952] — S. 162 — Documents prepared by I.O. and statements made to him soon after the occurrence are valuable for testing the veracity of witnesses. Rameshwar Dayal v. State of U.P., (1978) 2 SCC 518: 1978 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1978 SC 1558: 1978 ALJ 1011: (1978) 15 ACC 276.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1978]

[7953] — S. 162 — Effect of amendment by Act 2 of 1945

After the amendment it was open to the prosecution with the permission of the Court to use such a statement in order to contradict a witness in the manner provided by S. 145 of the Evidence Act though before the amendment, the prosecution could not make use of any such statement to contradict a witness but could only use any part of the statement other than that used by the defence to contradict a witness, for explaining any matter referred to in cross-examination at the time of re-examination. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

[7954] — S. 162 — Furnishing copy of statement to accused — Only of witness called for prosecution

Section 162 permits the furnishing of a copy of the accused only of a witness who is called for the prosecution at the trial. Shiv Narain Jafa v. Judges of High Court Allahabad, AIR 1953 SC 368, 369: 1953 Cri LJ 1459.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea, Ghulam Hasan, N.H. Bhagwati and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-5-1953]

[7955] — S. 162 — Object & scope — Mandatory provision

The provisions relating to the record of the statements of the witnesses and the supply of copies to the accused so that they may be utilised at the trial for effectively defending himself cannot normally be permitted to be whittled down, and where the circumstances are such that the Court may reasonably infer that prejudice has resulted to the accused from the failure to supply the statements recorded under S. 161, the Court would be justified in directing that the conviction be set aside and in a proper case to direct that the defect be rectified in such manner as the circumstances may warrant. It is only where the Court is satisfied, having regard to the manner in which the case has been conducted and the attitude adopted by the accused in relation to the defect, that no prejudice has resulted to the accused that the Court would, notwithstanding the breach of the statutory provisions, be justified in maintaining the conviction. Noor Khan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1964 SC 286, 294: (1964) 4 SCR 521: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 167.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1963]

[7956] — S. 162 — Place of occurrence marked on the site plan in consequence of statements made to the police officer during investigation — Held, inadmissible

Where the police officer has already registered the case under S. 154, Criminal Procedure Code, any statement made by witnesses during the course of investigation would be hit by S. 162(1), CrPC and inadmissible in evidence except for the purpose of contradiction of the witness when examined in Court either by the accused or by prosecution with the leave of Court. A plan prepared in the way done showing the place of occurrence cannot be admissible in law and no reliance can be placed on the place of occurrence as indicated therein. Sat Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1974) 3 SCC 643: 1974 SCC (Cri) 173: AIR 1974 SC 294: 1974 Cri LJ 345.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1973]

[7957] — S. 162 — Police Inspector during investigation getting statement signed by the maker contrary to S. 162 CrPC — Held, not substantive evidence — Can be used to corroborate or contradict the maker at the trial — Cannot be used for corroborating testimony of other witnesses. Razik Ram v. Jaswant Singh Chouhan, (1975) 4 SCC 769: AIR 1975 SC 667.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A. Alagiriswami and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1975]

[7958] — S. 162 — Police investigation — Considerable and unexplained delay in — Presumption from

Where the matter was not investigated and relevant evidence was not recorded for a period of over six months without any plausible or satisfactory explanation, held, that it was not unreasonable to presume that during that period evidence became either unavoidable or the villagers became unable to satisfactorily identify any of the persons who were present on the occasion. Habeeb Mohd. v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 51: 1954 SCR 475: 1954 Cri LJ 338.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1953]

[7959] — S. 162 — Power of Court to put statement of witness made to police during investigation for contradicting him. Raghunandan v. State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 186: 1974 SCC (Cri) 355: AIR 1974 SC 463: (1974) 3 SCR 92: 1974 Cri LJ 453.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-1-1974]

[7960] — S. 162 — Prohibits the use of statement recorded under S. 161 of the Code for corroborating a witness

The language of S. 162, Criminal Procedure Code is plain and explicit and it admits of no doubt as to its meaning. It lays down the limited use to which a statement recorded under S. 161 of the said Code, can be put. The Courts are prohibited from using such statements as corroboration of the statement made in Court. Rameshwar Singh v. State of J&K, (1971) 2 SCC 715: 1971 SCC (Cri) 638: AIR 1972 SC 102: 1972 Cri LJ 15.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-9-1971]

[7961] — S. 162 — Refusal to grant copies of statements to accused — Trial vitiated

There can be no doubt that the right which the accused has got of obtaining copies of the statements made by witnesses during investigation is a valuable right and that the wholesale refusal to grant the same will be a serious irregularity which would vitiate the entire trial.

Held, in circumstances, that there was no foundation laid in the evidence for the larger question that has been raised in this case viz. as to whether or not the statutory right under S. 162 CrPC can be held to apply to a case where there was in fact and in substance an investigation also in respect of a non-cognizable offence though the investigation purported to be confined to the cognizable offence. Purshottam Jethanand v. State of Kutch, AIR 1954 SC 700: 1954 Cri LJ 1751.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1954]

[7962] — S. 162 — Signing of panchnama by accused also — Document a complete confession — Held to be highly irregular and in contravention of the code. Narayan Rao v. State of A.P., AIR 1957 SC 737: 1958 SCR 283: 1957 Cri LJ 1320.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-7-1957]

[7963] — S. 162 — Sketch map — Prepared by the Sub-Inspector on the basis of the statements of the eyewitnesses — Held, hit by S. 162 and is not admissible in evidence

The spot where the deceased is alleged to be present marked on the sketch map by the Sub-Inspector on the basis of the statements of the eyewitnesses recorded is really bringing on record the conclusion of the Sub-Inspector on the basis of the statements made by the witnesses to him. This would not be admissible in view of the provisions of S. 162 of Criminal Penal Code, for it is in effect nothing more than the statement of the Sub-Inspector that the eyewitnesses told him that the deceased was at such and such place at the time when he was hit. The sketch map would be admissible so far as it indicates all that the Sub-Inspector saw himself at the spot; but any mark put by him on the sketch map based on the statements made by the witnesses to the Sub-Inspector would be inadmissible in view of the clear provisions of S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as it will be no more than a statement made to the police during investigation.

Therefore, the marks on the map based on the statements made to the Sub-Inspector are inadmissible under S. 162 CrPC and cannot be used to found any argument as to the probability of the deceased being hit on that part of the body where he was actually injured, if he was standing at the spot marked on the sketch map. Tori Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 399: (1962) 3 SCR 580: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 469, 471.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-9-1961]

[7964] — S. 162 — Statement by a witness made not during the course of investigation — Admissibility is not governed by the section

The preliminary condition for the application of S. 162 of the Code is that the statement should have been made to a Police Officer in the course of an investigation under Ch. XIV of the Code. If it was not made in the course of such investigation, the admissibility of such statement would not be governed by S. 162 of the Code. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521, 28.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[7965] — S. 162 — Statement made in the course of investigation — Whether admissible as evidence — Only exception provided by the proviso to S. 162 — Use of such statements under S. 145, Evidence Act — Explained — Rule not applicable to S. 32(1) nor affects S. 27 of the Evidence Act

Statements made by some of the accused at the police station, during investigation, are not legally admissible in evidence and cannot be used to substantive evidence.

According to S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, no statement made by any person to a Police Officer in the course of an investigation shall be signed by the person making it, or used for any purpose at any enquiry or trial in respect of any offence under investigation at the time when such statement was made.

The only exception to the above rule is mentioned in the proviso to that section. According to the proviso, when any witness is called and with the permission of the Court by the accused and with the permission of the Court by the prosecution, to contradict such witness in the manner provided by S. 145 of the Evidence Act, and when any part of such statement is so used any part thereof, may also be used in the re-examination of such witness for the purpose only of explaining any matter referred to in his cross-examination.

The above rule is, however, not applicable to statements falling within the provisions of cl. 1 of S. 32 of the Evidence Act or to affect the provisions of S. 27 of that Act.

The bar of inadmissibility operates not only on statements of witnesses but also on those of the accused. Mahabir Mandal v. State of Bihar, (1972) 1 SCC 748: 1972 SCC (Cri) 454: AIR 1972 SC 1331: (1972) 3 SCR 639: 1972 Cri LJ 860.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, H.R. Khanna and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-1972]

[7966] — S. 162 — Statement of a witness recorded by the police during investigation — Its copy to be furnished to the accused — Court's duty

The corresponding section of the Hyderabad Penal Code is 166 which is not the same as S. 162. While under S. 162 it is the duty of the Court to direct a copy of the statement of a witness recorded by the police in the course of investigation to be furnished to the accused with a view to enable him to cross-examine such a witness with reference to his previous statement, no such duty is imposed by S. 166 and the matter is left entirely to the discretion of the Court.

Where on an application made for copies of the statements of prosecution witnesses recorded by the police the order of the Court in effect deprived the appellant of being furnished with those copies as such, but no complaint was made before the trial Judge or before the High Court, however before the Supreme Court be complained that by Court's omission to furnish him with those copies he was hampered in cross-examining the witnesses with reference to their previous statements and, therefore, had no fair trial, held that had the appellant any legitimate ground for grievance on this score, he would undoubtedly have raised it before the High Court, which he had not done, therefore there was no substance in the point. Aftab Ahmad Khan v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 436: (1955) 1 SCR 588: 1954 Cri LJ 1155.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1954]

[7967] — S. 162 — Statement of the accused recorded by police during investigation of the cross case — Statement not to be used either to corroborate or contradict his evidence as he was not examined in the case — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 145, 154 & 157

No portion of the statement of the accused B recorded by the police during investigation in cross case could have been used for the purpose of contradicting the complaint of the co-accused either under S. 157 or S. 145 of the Evidence Act. As B was not examined as a witness in the case his previous statement could not have been used either to contradict his statement or corroborate it even if it is to be held that it is a statement coming under S. 154 CrPC. Mohar Rai v. State of Bihar, AIR 1968 SC 1281: (1968) 3 SCR 525: 1968 ALJ 1094: 1969 MPWR 2: 1968 Cri LJ 1479.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1968]

[7968] — S. 162 — Statement to police officer — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 25 and 27

The words of S. 162 are wide enough to include a confession made to a police officer in the course of an investigation. A statement or confession made in the course of an investigation may be recorded by a Magistrate under S. 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure subject to the safeguards imposed by the section. Thus, except as provided by S. 27 of the Evidence Act, a confession by an accused to a police officer is absolutely protected under S. 25 of the Evidence Act, and if it is made in the course of an investigation, it is also protected by S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and a confession to any other person made by him while in the custody of a police officer is protected by S. 26, unless it is made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate. Aghnoo Nagesia v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 119, 123: (1966) 1 SCR 134: 1966 Cri LJ 100.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1965]

[7969] — S. 162 — Statements made by prosecution witness at the time of investigation — Use for contradicting them — Not substantive evidence

The accused persons are entitled to challenge the testimony of witnesses examined in court with reference to the statements said to have been made by them before the investigating police officer. Statements made by prosecution witnesses before the investigating police officer being the earliest statements made by them with reference to the facts of the occurrence are valuable material for testing the veracity of the witnesses examined in court, with particular reference to those statements which happen to be at variance with their earlier statements; but the statements made during police investigation are not substantive evidence.

Therefore the record made by a police investigating officer has to be considered by the Court only with a view to weighing the evidence actually adduced in court. If the police record becomes suspect or unreliable on the ground that it was deliberately perfunctory or dishonest, it loses much of its value and the Court in judging the case of a particular accused has to weigh the evidence given against him in court keeping in view the fact that the earlier statements of witnesses as recorded by the police is tainted record and has not as great a value as it otherwise would have in weighing all the material on the record as against each individual accused. Baladin v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 181, 187, 18: 1956 Cri LJ 345.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-10-1955]

[7970] — S. 162 — Statements made in depositions in Court inconsistent with certain statements made before police — Effect

The statements made in the depositions are really inconsistent with the earlier statement made before the police and they are, therefore, contradictory within the meaning of S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Dahyabhai Chhaganbhai Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1964 SC 1563: (1964) 7 SCR 361: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 472.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1964]

[7971] — S. 162 — Statements made to a police officer under S. 162 — Can be used only for contradicting a prosecution witness and for no other purpose

Per Subba Rao, Sinha, Kapur and Sarkar, JJ.

The section was conceived in an attempt to find a happy 'via media', namely, while it enacts an absolute bar against the statement made before a police officer being used for any purpose whatsoever, it enables the accused to rely upon it for a limited purpose of contradicting a witness in the manner provided by S. 145 of the Evidence Act by drawing his attention to parts of the statement intended for contradiction. It cannot be used for corroboration of a prosecution or a defence witness or even a court witness. Nor can it be used for contradicting a defence or a court witness. Shortly stated, there is a general bar against its use subject to a limited exception in the interest of the accused, and the exception cannot obviously be used to cross the bar. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7972] — S. 162 — Taking of specimen signature of accused during investigation does not amount to giving a statement under S. 162 nor Art. 20(3) of the Constitution. State of U.P. v. Boota Singh, (1979) 1 SCC 31: 1979 SCC (Cri) 115: AIR 1978 SC 1770: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 290: (1979) 1 SCR 298: 1978 ALJ 1156.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-8-1978]

[7973] — S. 162 — Test identification parade — Statement of the witnesses during parade to the Panch witnesses — Held, hit by S. 162 in case the parade is conducted by the police and the Panch witnesses are simply called and the parade did not take place under their exclusive direction

In case the test identification parade was held by the police and later it had completely obliterated themselves and the Panch witnesses were left solely in the charge of the parade, the statements would not be hit by S. 162. The police officers would certainly arrange the parade, would call the persons who were to be mixed up with the accused in the course of the parade and would also call the Panch witnesses who were to conduct the parade. But once the Panch witnesses were called for the purpose the whole of the process of identification would be under the exclusive direction and supervision of the Panch witnesses. If the Panch witnesses thereafter explained the purpose of the parade to the identifying witnesses and the process of identification was carried out under their exclusive direction and supervision, the statements involved in the process of identification would be statements made by the identifiers to the Panch witnesses and would be outside the purview of S. 162. In the present case the police officers were present all throughout the process of identification and the Panch witnesses appear only to have been brought in there for the purpose of proving that the requirements of law in the matter of holding the identification parades were fully satisfied. The whole of the identification parades were thus directed and supervised by the police officers and the Panch witnesses took a minor part in the same and were there only for the purpose guaranteeing that the requirements of the law in regard to the holding of the identification parades were satisfied. In these circumstances the statements, if any, involved in the process of identification were statements made by the identifiers to the police officers and not to the Panch witnesses as otherwise it will be easy for the police officers to circumvent the provisions of S. 162 by formally asking the Panch witnesses to be present and contending that the statements, if any, made by the identifiers were to the Panch witnesses and not to themselves.

Per Jagannadhadas, J.

On the evidence given in this case, there is no scope for any differentiation and that the entire evidence relating to the prior identification parade concerning the accused is in substance, evidence only of the prior statements of the identifying witnesses to the police officer and is hence inadmissible. However, it is not correct that in law a differentiation can be made in such cases between the three classes of evidence viz: (1) of the police officer, (2) of the Panch witnesses, and (3) of the identifying himself, in so far as they speak to a prior identification at a parade held by the police officer. Such a differentiation is unsound and inadmissible. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

[7974] — S. 162 — Test identification parade — Statements of witnesses during — Held, hit by S. 162

Test identification parades are held by the police in the course of their investigation for the purpose of enabling witnesses to identify the properties which are the subject-matter of the offence or to identify the persons who are concerned in the offence. They are not held merely for the purpose of identifying property or persons irrespective of their connection with the offence. Whether the police officers interrogate the identifying witnesses or the Panch witnesses who are procured by the police do so, the identifying witnesses are explained the purpose of holding these parades and are asked to identify the properties which are the subject-matter of the offence or the persons who are concerned in the offence.

It is clear that the process of identification by the identifying witnesses involves the statement by the identifying witnesses that the particular properties identified were the subject-matter of the offence or the persons identified were concerned in the offence. This statement may be expressed or implied. The identifier may point out by his finger or touch the property or the persons identified, may either nod his head or give his assent in answer to a question addressed to him in that behalf or may make signs or gestures which are tantamount to saying that the particular property identified was the subject-matter of the offence or the persons identified was concerned in the offence. All these statements express or implied including the signs and gesture, would amount to a communication of the fact of identification by the identifier to another persons.

The physical fact of identification has thus no separate existence apart from the statement involved in the very process of identification and in so far as a police officer seeks to prove the fact of such identification such evidence of his would attract the operation of S. 162 and would be inadmissible in evidence, the only exception being the evidence sought to be given by the identifier himself in regard to his mental act of identification which he would be entitled to give by way of corroboration of his identification of the accused at the trial. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

[7975] — S. 162 — Use of statement made to the police under S. 161 — "Contradiction" includes omission in a previous statement which by implication amounts to contradiction

Per Hidayatullah and Imam, JJ.

The meaning of the word "contradiction" must at least include the case of an omission in a previous statement which by implication amounts to contradiction and therefore such an omission is a matter which is covered by the first proviso to S. 162 and questions in cross-examination can put with respect to it in order to contradict the witness. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7976] — S. 162 — Use of statement made to the police under S. 161 — "Cross-examination" and "Re-examination" — Extent to which can be done by the accused and prosecution — Right of both is limited to cross-examinations

Per Hidayatullah and Imam, JJ.

The right of both the accused and the prosecution is limited to contradictions. It involves cross-examination by the accused as to that contradiction within S. 145 of the Indian Evidence Act and re-examination in relation to the matters 'referred to in the cross-examination of the witness'. The prosecution cannot range at will to explain away every discrepancy but only such as the accused under his right has brought to light. In our opinion, reading the section in this way gives effect to every part. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7977] — S. 162 — Use of statement made to the police under S. 161 in evidence — Scope, meaning and application — Omission in the statement can be used for contradiction if it can be deemed to form part of the recorded statement

Per Subba Rao, J. (for majority)

The following propositions emerge: (1) A statement in writing made by a witness before a police officer in the course of investigation can be used only to contradict his statement in the witness-box and for no other purpose; (2) statement not reduced to writing by the police officer cannot be used for contradiction; (3) though a particular statement is not expressly recorded, a statement that can be deemed to be part of that expressly recorded can be used for contradiction, not because it is an omission strictly so-called but because it is deemed to form part of the recorded statement; (4) such a fiction is permissible by construction only in the following three cases: (i) when a recital is necessarily implied from the recital or recitals found in the statement: illustration: in the recorded statement before the police the witness states that he saw A stabbing B at a particular point of time, but in the witness-box he says that he saw A and C stabbing B at the same point of time; in the statement before the police the word "only" can be implied i.e., the witness saw A only stabbing B; (ii) a negative aspect of a positive recital in a statement illustration: in the recorded statement before the police the witness says that a dark man stabbed B, but in the witness-box he says that a fair man stabbed B; the earlier statement must be deemed to contain the recital not only that the culprit was a dark complexioned man but also that he was not of fair complexion; and (iii) when the statement before the police and that before the Court cannot stand together: illustration: the witness says in the recorded statement before the police that A after stabbing B ran away by a northern lane, but in the Court he says that immediately after stabbing he ran away towards the southern lane; as he could not have run away immediately after the stabbing i.e. at the same point of time, towards the northern lane as well as towards the southern lane, if one statement is true, the other must necessarily be false. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7978] — S. 162 — Use of the statement made to the police under S. 161 — The witness can only be contradicted with the statement — Manner in which this is to be done — Provisions of S. 162 are to be strictly followed — S. 145 Evidence Act is to be used subject to the express provisions of S. 162

Per Subba Rao, J. (for majority)

The procedure prescribed under S. 145 of the Evidence Act is that, if it is intended to contradict a witness by the writing his attention must, before the writing can be proved be called to those portions of it which are used for the purpose of contradicting him. The proviso to S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure only enables the accused to make use of such statement to contradict a witness in the manner provided by S. 145 of the Evidence Act. It would be doing violence to the language of the proviso if the said statement be allowed to be used for the purpose of cross-examining a witness within the meaning of the first part of S. 145 of the Evidence Act. The view that it would not be possible to invoke the second part of S. 145 of the Evidence Act without putting relevant questions under the first part there is not correct. The difficulty is more imaginary than real. The second part of S. 145 of the Evidence Act clearly indicates the simple procedure to be followed. If A says in the witness-box that B stabbed C; before the police he had stated that D, stabbed C, then his attention can be drawn to that part of the statement made before the police which contradicts his statement in the witness-box. If he admits his previous statement no further proof is necessary; if he does not admit the practice generally followed is to admit it subject to proof by the police officer. The procedure suggested by the defence that if a witness is asked: "Did you say before the police officer that he saw a gas light?" and he answers "yes", then the statement which does not contain such recital is put to him as contradiction. This procedure involves two fallacies; one is, it enables the accused to elicit by a process of cross-examination what the witness stated before the police officer. If a police officer did not make record of a witness's statement, his entire statement could not be used for any purpose, whereas if a police officer recorded a few sentences, by this process of cross-examination, the witnesses oral statement could be brought on record. The second fallacy is that there is no self-contradiction of the primary statement made in the witness-box, for the witness has yet not made on the stand any assertion at all which can serve as the basis. The contradiction, under the section, should be between what a witness asserted in the witness-box and what he stated before the police officer, and not between what he said he had stated before the police officer and what he actually made before him. In such a case the question could not be put and the question here posed does not contradict; it leads to an answer which is contradicted by the police statement. Thus the contention based upon S. 145 of the Evidence Act is, therefore, not of any relevance in considering the express provisions of S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7979] — S. 162 — Use of the statement made to the police under S. 161 — "Statement in writing" — Includes what is not stated in the statement but is necessarily implied from what is directly or expressly stated

Per Subba Rao, J. (for majority)

Looking at the express words used in S. 162 CrPC two sets of words stand out prominently which afford the key to the intention of the Legislature. They are: "statement in writing", and "to contradict". "Statement" in its dictionary meaning is the act of stating or reciting. 'Prima facie' a statement cannot take in an omission. A statement cannot include that which is not stated. But very often to make a statement sensible or self-consistent, it becomes necessary to imply words which are not actually in the statement. Though something is not expressly stated, it is necessarily implied from what a directly or expressly stated. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7980] — S. 162 — Witness stating that he signed his statement — Duty of Court

Statements made by witness during investigations should not be got signed by them if they are reduced into writing. Where a witness stated that he had signed his statement or put his thumb-mark on his statement, it is the duty of the Trial Judge to clear this point by questioning the investigating officer and by looking into the relevant records whether the witness had actually signed his statement or not. Makan Jivan v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 3 SCC 297: 1971 SCC (Cri) 587: AIR 1971 SC 1797: 1971 Cri LJ 1310.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1971]

[7981] — S. 162 — Written statement by witness during investigation

Where the witness was made to write his statement during investigation, it is inadmissible in evidence. Kanu Ambu Vish v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 1 SCC 503: 1971 SCC (Cri) 211: AIR 1971 SC 2256: 1971 Cri LJ 1547.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-1971]

[7982] — Ss. 162, 173(4) and 207-A(3) — Supply of statements to accused — Failure may not vitiate trial

The object of Ss. 162, 173(4) and 107-A(3) is to enable the accused to obtain a clear picture of the case against him before the commencement of the inquiry. The sections impose an obligation upon the investigation officer to supply before the commencement of the inquiry copies of the statements of witnesses who are intended to be examined at the trial so that the accused may utilize those statements for cross-examining the witnesses to establish such defence as he desires to put up, and also to shake their testimony. Section 161(3) does not require a police officer to record in writing the statements of witnesses examined by him in the course of the investigation, but if he does record in writing any such statements, he is obliged to make copies of those statements available to the accused before the commencement of proceedings in the Court. Noor Khan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1964 SC 286, 291: (1964) 4 SCR 521: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 167.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1963]

[7983] — Ss. 162, 270-A and 510 — Admissibility of chemical examiner's report submitted to the police officer — Report is admissible — Is not hit by S. 162

Section 510 makes provision with regard to proof of documents by production thereof, and the application of S. 162(1) is expressly made subject to what is provided in the Code of Criminal Procedure. Exclusion from evidence of any part of a statement made to a police officer or a record from being used for any purpose at any enquiry or trial in respect of an offence under investigation at the time when such statement was made is "save as hereinafter provided". The word "hereinafter" is not restricted in its operation to S. 162 alone but applies to the body of the Code; to hold otherwise would be to introduce a patent inconsistency between S. 162 of the Code, for by the former section in a committal proceeding statements recorded under S. 162 are to be regarded as evidence. Therefore, the contention that the report made to the police officer by the Chemical Examiner was inadmissible in evidence in view of S. 162 CrPC is without substance. Ukha Kolhe v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 1531: (1964) 1 SCR 926: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 418: 1964 Mah LJ 246: 65 Bom LR 793.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1], K.C. Das Gupta[2] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1963]

Followed in Rajesh Kumar v. State Govt. of NCT of Delhi, (2008) 4 SCC 493

[7984] — Ss. 162 and 1(2)(a) — Applicability in Bombay city — Bombay Police Act, 1951 replacing Bombay City Police Act, 1902 repealing S. 1(2)(a) of Criminal Procedure Code — In Bombay City S. 162 CrPC will not apply to the statements recorded during the investigation conducted up to the repeal and will apply to the investigations conducted after the repeal

Under S. 1(2)(a) of the Criminal Procedure Code the Code did not apply to the Police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay and therefore S. 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code was not applicable to the investigations made by the Bombay City Police. On the 11-6-1951 the State Legislature passed the Bombay Police Act 22 of 1951. Section 167(3) of that Act repealed S. 1(2)(a) of the Criminal Procedure Code so far as the police in the town of Bombay were concerned with the result that when this Act came into operation with effect from the 1st August, 1951 the Bombay City Police were also governed by the provisions of Criminal Procedure Code thus bringing into operation the provisions of S. 162 thereof in the investigations conducted by the Bombay City Police.

The provisions of S. 162 applied to investigations conducted by the Bombay City Police from and after the 1st August, 1951. They applied to investigations "under this chapter" i.e. investigations conducted under the Criminal Procedure Code and therefore 'prima facie' did not apply to the investigations conducted by the Bombay City police prior to the 1st August, 1951 in which case S. 63 of the Bombay City Police Act 4 of 1902 was applicable.

Section 167(2) could only apply to those rights, privileges, obligations or liabilities already acquired, accrued or incurred under the Bombay City Police Act 4 of 1902 before the date of its repeal. An investigation conducted by the police under the provisions of that Act would not create or impose any right, privilege, obligation or liability which could be saved by the provisions of S. 167(2) of the Bombay Police Act 22 of 1951. The investigation which had been conducted up to the 1st August, 1951 would be governed by the provisions of Bombay City Police Act 4 of 1902 and unless there was something in the Bombay Police Act 22 of 1951 which referred to those investigations, all the incidents of those investigations would be governed by the provisions of the repealed Act and the question as to the admissibility in evidence of the results of such investigations would also have to be considered with reference to the provisions of that Act.

Section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code in terms applied to the investigations conducted "under this Chapter" i.e. Chapter 14 which relates to information to the police and their powers to investigate, whereas S. 63 of the Bombay City Police Act 4 of 1902 specifically referred to the investigations conducted "under this Act" i.e. the Bombay City Police Act 4 of 1902. Section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code therefore applied by reasons of the context and the terms of that very section to investigations which had been conducted by the Bombay City Police after the 1st August, 1951 and would not have a retrospective operation, because the investigations conducted up to 1st August, 1951 by the Bombay City police would certainly not be investigations conducted "under this Chapter" i.e. Chapter 14 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

[7985] — Ss. 162 and 157 — Site plan, seizure lists, inquest report based on actual observation of I.O. are not hit by S. 162 — It is direct evidence admissible under S. 60, Evidence Act, 1872 — That part of such documents which is based on information given to the I.O. or on the statement recorded by him is hit by S. 162. Rameshwar Dayal v. State of U.P., (1978) 2 SCC 518: 1978 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1978 SC 1558: 1978 ALJ 1011: (1978) 15 ACC 276.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1978]

[7986] — Ss. 162 and 164 — Accused's statement made to persons assisting police during investigation — Admissibility of

Every statement made to a person assisting the police during an investigation cannot be treated as a statement made to the police or to the Magistrate and as such excluded by S. 162 of S. 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The question is one of fact and has got to be determined having regard to the circumstances of each case.

On a scrutiny of the evidence of the witnesses and the circumstances under which the statements came to be made by the accused to them, held that the accused was asked by the Additional Magistrate to make the statements to these witnesses not with a view to avoid the bar of S. 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code or by way of colourable pretence but by way of greater caution particularly having regard to the fact that the accused occupied the position of a Minister of Industries in the State of Vindhya Pradesh. Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1954 SC 322: 1954 SCR 1098: 1954 Cri LJ 910.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1954]

[7987] — S. 162(1) — Dying declaration — What is — Evidentiary value of — Bar of S. 162(1) — Applicability to dying declaration — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32(1)

The dying declaration is a statement by a person as to the cause of his death or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death and it becomes relevant under S. 32(1) of the Indian Evidence Act in a case in which the cause of that person's death comes into question. It is true that a dying declaration is not a deposition in court and it is neither made on vote nor in the presence of the accused. It is therefore, not tested by cross-examination on behalf of the accused. But a dying declaration is admitted in evidence by way of an exception to the general rule against the admissibility of hearsay evidence on the principle of necessity. The weak points of a dying declaration just mentioned merely serve to put the Court on its guard while testing its reliability by imposing on it an obligation to closely scrutinise all the relevant attendant circumstances. The bar created by S. 162(1), CrPC is inapplicable to dying declarations. Tapinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (1970) 2 SCC 113: 1970 SCC (Cri) 328: AIR 1970 SC 1566: 1970 Cri LJ 1415.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1970]

[7988] — S. 162(1) proviso — Object — To serve the interest of the accused

The object of S. 162 as redrafted by the Act, 18 of 1923 was to protect the accused against the user of the statements of witnesses made before the police during investigation at the trial presumably on the assumption that the said statements were not made under circumstances inspiring confidence. Both the section and the proviso intended to serve primarily the same purpose i.e. the interest of the accused. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231, 37, 39.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7989] — S. 162(1) proviso — "Cross-examination" — Meaning of — Meaning is confined to the cross-examination by contradiction allowed by the proviso

The word "cross-examination" in the last line of the first proviso to S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure cannot be understood to mean the entire gamut of cross-examination without reference to the limited scope of the proviso, but should be confined only to the cross-examination by contradiction allowed by the said proviso. Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 1012: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 875: 1959 Cri LJ 1231.

Bench Strength 6. Coram: B.P. Sinha[1], Syed Jafer Imam[2], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1959]

[7990] — S. 162(1) proviso — Accused's right to be furnished with statements — True scope of

The statutory right of the accused to be furnished with statements appears clearly to relate to a trial in respect of the very offence which was investigated and does not apply to a trial for a non-cognizable offence in respect of which there has been in fact no investigation. The proviso to S. 162(1) which gives the right to obtain copies relates to "such inquiry or trial" i.e. "enquiry or trial of any offence under investigation (under this chapter) at the time when the statement was made". Purshottam Jethanand v. State of Kutch, AIR 1954 SC 700: 1954 Cri LJ 1751.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1954]

[7991] — S. 162(1) proviso — Use of previous statement — Can be used to test veracity of the written statements and pointing out contradictions

Though the contents of those statements cannot be used for any purpose other than that laid down in S. 162 CrPC, the fact of that statement having been made can certainly be relied upon for the purpose of showing how untruthful the witness is or how undependable his memory is. Rameshwar Singh v. State of J&K, (1971) 2 SCC 715: 1971 SCC (Cri) 638: AIR 1972 SC 102: 1972 Cri LJ 15.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-9-1971]

[7992] — S. 162(2) — So far as it relates to S. 27, Evidence Act, is intra vires and does not offend Art. 14 of the Constitution

Per Shah, S.K. Das and Kapur, JJ

Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act and S. 162(2) of CrPC, in so far as "that section relates to S. 27 of the Indian Evidence Act" are intra vires and do not offend Art. 14 of the Constitution.

By the combined operation of S. 27 of the Evidence Act and S. 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the admissibility in evidence against a person in a criminal proceeding of a statement made to a police officer leading to the discovery of a fact depends for its determination on the question whether he was in custody at the time of making the statement. It is provable if he was in custody at the time when he made it, otherwise it is not.

Between persons in custody and persons not in custody, distinction has evidently been made by the Evidence Act in some matters and they are differently treated. The distinction between persons in custody and persons not in custody in the context of admissibility of statements made by them concerning the offence charged cannot be called arbitrary, artificial or erasive; a real distinction has been made between these two clauses and distinct rules have been provided about admissibility of statements confessional or otherwise made by them.

Considered in the background that "persons in custody" and "persons not in custody" do not stand on the same footing, not require identical protection, the mere theoretical possibility of some degree of inequality of the protection of laws relating to the admissibility of evidence between persons in custody and persons not in custody is not by itself a ground of striking down a statutory provision of law of evidence on the ground that it offends Art. 14 of the Constitution.

The principle of admitting evidence of statements made by a person giving information leading to the discovery of facts which may be used in evidence against him is manifestly reasonable. The fact that the principle is restricted to persons in custody will not by itself be a ground for holding that there is an attempted hostile discrimination because the rule of admissibility of evidence is not extended to a possible, but an uncommon or abnormal class of cases.

Per Hidayatullah, J.

The law is concerned in seeing fairplay, and this is achieved by insisting that an unguarded statement should not be receivable. The need for caution is there, and this caution is very forcefully brought home to an accused, when he is accused of an offence and is in the custody of the police. There is thus a classification which is reasonable as well as intelligible, and it subserves a purpose recognised now for over two centuries. The rule is for advancement of justice with protection both to a suspect not yet arrested and to an accused in custody. There is ample protection to an accused, because only that portion of the statement is made admissible against him which has resulted in the discovery of a material fact otherwise unknown to the police. This cannot therefore be regarded as evidence of unequal treatment.

When a person not in custody approaches a police officer investigating an offence and offers to give information leading to the discovery of a fact, having bearing on the charge which may be made against him he may appropriately be deemed to have surrendered himself to the police. Section 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not contemplate any formality before a person can be said to be taken in custody: submission to the custody by word or action by a person is sufficient. A person directly giving to a police officer by word of mouth information which may be used as evidence against him, may be deemed to have submitted himself to the "custody" of the police officer within the meaning of S. 27 of the Indian Evidence Act. Exceptional cases may certainly be imagined in which a person may give information without presenting himself before a police officer who is investigating an offence. For instance, he may write a letter and give such information or may send a telephonic or other message to the police officer. But in considering whether a statute is unconstitutional on the ground that the law has given equal treatment to all persons similarly circumstanced, it must be remembered that the Legislature has to deal with practical problems; the question is not to be judged by merely enumerating other theoretically possible situations to which the statute might have been but is not applied. As has often been said in considering whether there has been a denial of the equal protection of the laws, a doctrinaire approach is to be avoided.

Per Subba Rao, J. (dissenting)

Section 27 of the Evidence Act is void as violative of Art. 14 of the Constitution. State of U.P. v. Deoman Upadhyaya, AIR 1960 SC 1125: (1961) 1 SCR 14: 1960 Cri LJ 1504.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K. Subba Rao[2], M. Hidayatullah[3] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1960]

— S. 163 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)
See also Ss. 161 and 163

[7993] — S. 163 — Burden of proof — Lies on the person making allegations of use of threats and duress. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 214: 1952 SCR 812: 1952 Cri LJ 1131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1952]

— S. 163(1) See Ss. 160, 161(1), (2) and (3), 163(1) and 174(4)

— S. 164 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)
See also Ss. 155, 61, 94, 167, 164 and 202
See also Ss. 162 and 164
See also Ss. 342 and 164
See also Ss. 533 and 164

[7994] — S. 164 — Confession before Executive Magistrate held voluntary

In the present case, the appellant was kept in jail custody for three days from October 25 to 28-10-1966 and on October 28, the Executive Magistrate made the preliminary questioning of the appellant, gave him a warning and sent him back to the District Jail at Sangli. On the next day the appellant was produced before the Magistrate and the confession was recorded. It is clear that the appellant had spent four days in judicial custody and he was not under the influence of the investigating agency for at least four days. Again he had 24 hours to think after he was told that he was not bound to make any confession and if he made one, it would be used against him. The appellant in answer to question No. 77 regarding the confession merely said that he did not make the confession. He did not say that the confession was made on account of any inducement or coercion on the part of the police. Both the trial Court and the High Court, have upon the examination of all the circumstances, reached the conclusion that the confession of the appellant was voluntary, and we see no reason to take a different view. Abdul Rajak Murtaja Dafedar v. State of Maharashtra, (1969) 2 SCC 234: AIR 1970 SC 283: 1970 Cri LJ 373: 1969 MLJ (Cri) 862.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-5-1969]

[7995] — S. 164 — Confession of accused should be voluntary and reliable — When court should rely upon confession — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 24

When in a capital case, the prosecution demands a conviction of the accused primarily on the basis of his confession under S. 164, Criminal Procedure Code, the court must apply a double test, namely, whether the confession is perfectly voluntary; and if so whether it is true and trustworthy. Satisfaction of the first test is a sine qua non for the admissibility in evidence. If the confession appears to the court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise, it must be excluded and rejected brevi manu. If this test is satisfied the court must then reach a finding that it is true and reliable. There is no rigid canon for judging the reliability of any evidence, but in the case of a confession, the court should carefully examine the confession and compare it with the rest of the evidence. If on such an examination, the confession appears to be a probable catalogue of events and naturally fits in with the rest of the evidence and the surrounding circumstances, it may be taken that the confession satisfies the second test.

The prosecution has pointed out that when the question of recording the appellant's confession arose, there was no competent magistrate at the place where the appellant was first taken and so he was taken to the second place where it was recorded. There is nothing to show that it was done with the oblique motive of extorting a confession or for depriving the appellant of independent legal advice.

From the mere fact that the judicial lock-up is located in the proximity of the police station it does not follow that both are under the control of the police. In fact the judicial lock-up was not under the control of the police and there was no evidence that the investigating officer was in the place or visited the police station.

Moreover the confession was not retracted at the earliest. It was only after recording of prosecution evidence in his own examination under S. 313, Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 that the accused retracted his confession, which was a year later after it was made. Shankaria v. State of Rajasthan, (1978) 3 SCC 435: 1978 SCC (Cri) 439: AIR 1978 SC 1248: 1978 Cri LJ 1251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, N.L. Untwalia and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1978]

[7996] — S. 164 — Statement of accused recorded by a village Mukhiya before arrest — Whether admissible in evidence — Whether the court could reject the exculpatory part and accept the inculpatory part in convicting the accused

The exculpatory part of the appellant's statement was not only inherently improbable but was contradicted by the other evidence and so it was wholly unacceptable. The other incriminating circumstances considered along with the appellant's statement pointed conclusively to his having committed the murder. The court could reject the exculpatory portion of the statement and accept inculpatory portion. Nishi Kant Jha v. State of Bihar, (1969) 1 SCC 347: AIR 1969 SC 422: 1969 Cri LJ 671: 1969 ALJ 638.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1968]

[7997] — S. 164 — Statement made under S. 108, Customs Act, 1962 not confessions under S. 164, CrPC — Applicability of S. 30 Evidence Act, 1872 if such statements voluntary — Customs Act, 1962, S. 108. Haroon Haji Abdulla v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 832: (1968) 2 SCR 641: 1968 Cri LJ 1017.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[7998] — S. 164 — Sea Customs Act, 1878 — S. 171-A — Notice under — Statements made in reply to — Held, not covered. Haroon Haji Abdulla v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 832: (1968) 2 SCR 641; 1968 Cri LJ 1017.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[7999] — S. 164 — Brief confession — Brevity cannot be interpreted adversely where the related incident was also brief. State of Maharashtra v. Manglya Dhavu Kongil, (1972) 3 SCC 46: 1972 SCC (Cri) 237: AIR 1972 SC 1797: 1972 Cri LJ 570.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-1972]

[8000] — S. 164 — Confession — Confessing accused kept in a solitary cell — Is no ground to assume that the confession was not voluntary

It is no ground for thinking that when a particular accused had been kept in a solitary cell the confession made by him was not voluntary. Nand Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, (1963) 2 SCR 890: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 702.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1962]

[8001] — S. 164 — Confession — Evidence prior to confession — Whether can be used to corroborate that confession

The contention that a confession can only be corroborated by evidence discovered by the police after a confession has been made and any material that is already in their possession, cannot be put in evidence in support of it, is not well founded. A confession can be made even during a trial and the evidence already recorded may well be used to corroborate it. It may be made in the Court of the committing magistrate and materials already in possession of the police may well be used for purposes of corroboration. Hem Raj Devilal v. State of Ajmer, AIR 1954 SC 462: 1954 SCR 1133: 1954 Cri LJ 1313.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-1954]

[8002] — S. 164 — Confession — Meaning

A confession must either admit in terms the offence, or at any rate substantially all the facts which constitute the offence. An admission of a gravely incriminating fact, even a conclusively incriminating fact is not of itself a confession. A statement that contains self-exculpatory matter cannot amount to a confession, if the exculpatory statement is of some fact, which if true, would negative the offence alleged to be confessed. Palvinder Kaur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 354: 1953 SCR 94: 1953 Cri LJ 154.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1952]

[8003] — S. 164 — Confession — Rule of corroboration

In law a court can convict on the basis of the confession even though retracted later on.

Nevertheless usually Courts require some corroboration to the confessional statement before convicting an accused person on such a statement. What amount of corroboration would be necessary in such a case would always be a question of fact to be determined in the light of the circumstances of each case. Sarwan Singh Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637, 643: 1957 SCR 953: 1957 Cri LJ 1014.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1957]

[8004] — S. 164 — Confession — Use of — Whether self-incriminating — Constitutionality — Constitution of India, Art. 20(3) — Retracted confession

Sub-sec. (3) of Art. 20 does not apply at all to a case where the confession is made without any inducement, threat or promise. It is true that a retracted confession has only little value as the basis for a conviction, and that the confession of one accused is not evidence against a co-accused tried jointly for the same offence, but can only be taken into consideration against him. This deals with its probative value and has nothing to do with any repugnancy to the Constitution. Kalawati v. State of Himachal Pradesh, AIR 1953 SC 131, 132: 1953 SCR 546: 1953 Cri LJ 668.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1953]

[8005] — S. 164 — Confession if voluntary a question of fact — Appeal to Supreme Court under Art. 136 — General rule of non-interference applies. Sarwan Singh Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637: 1957 SCR 953: 1957 Cri LJ 1014.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1957]

[8006] — S. 164 — Confession made before Magistrate, on facts, held voluntary — Evidence leading up to confession reconsidered — No evidence showing use of coercion. State of U.P. v. Boota Singh, (1979) 1 SCC 31: 1979 SCC (Cri) 115: AIR 1978 SC 1770: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 290: (1979) 1 SCR 298: 1978 ALJ 1156.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-8-1978]

[8007] — S. 164 — Confession recorded in jail — Held, cannot be said to be voluntary. Ram Chandra v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 381: 1957 Cri LJ 559.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1956]

[8008] — S. 164 — Confession to be accepted as a whole

The confession must either be accepted as a whole or rejected as a whole and that the Court is not competent to accept only the inculpatory part while rejecting the exculpatory part as inherently incredible. Palvinder Kaur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 354, 357: 1953 SCR 94: 1953 Cri LJ 154.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1952]

[8009] — S. 164 — Confession to be used as a whole

An admission made by a person whether amounting to a confession or not cannot be split up and part of it used against him. An admission must be used either as a whole or not at all. Hanumant Govind Nargundkar v. State of M.P., AIR 1952 SC 343, 350: 1952 SCR 1091: 1953 Cri LJ 129.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1952]

[8010] — S. 164 — Confession to be voluntary

When an accused person is produced by the investigating officer before the Magistrate for recording his confession, it is of the utmost importance that his mind should be completely free from any possible influence of the police and he must be sent to jail custody and given adequate time to consider whether he should make a confession at all. Chinna Gowda v. State of Mysore, (1963) 2 SCR 517, 532.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta, J.R. Mudholkar and T.L. Venkatarama Ayyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-4-1962]

[8011] — S. 164 — Confession to be voluntary — Remand to police for ten days — Adverse to the voluntary nature of the confession

A confession cannot be used against an accused person unless the Court is satisfied that it was voluntary and at that stage the question whether it is true or false does not arise.

It is abhorrent to our notions of justice and fair play, and is also dangerous, to allow a man to be convicted on the strength of a confession unless it is made voluntarily and unless he realises that anything he says may be used against him; and any attempt by a person in authority to bully a person into making a confession or any threat or coercion would at once invalidate it if the fear was still operating on his mind at the time he makes the confession if it "would appear to him reasonable for supporting that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him."

That is why the recording of a confession is hedged around with so many safeguards and is the reason why Magistrates ordinarily allow a period for reflection and why an accused person is remanded to jail custody and is put out of the reach of the investigating police before he is asked to make his confession.

But the force of these precautions is destroyed when, instead of isolating the accused from the investigating police, he is for all practical purposes sent back to them for a period of ten days. Aher Raja Khima v. State of Saurashtra, AIR 1956 SC 217, 221, 22: (1955) 2 SCR 1285: 1956 Cri LJ 426: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 135.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose[1], T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[2] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1955]

[8012] — S. 164 — Consideration first of circumstances which are corroborative of the confession and then considering the confession and finding it not voluntary — Held, to be a wrong approach — Confession itself should be considered first and then other circumstances considered to determine extent of corroboration of the various parts of the statement made in the confession. State of U.P. v. Boota Singh, (1979) 1 SCC 31: 1979 SCC (Cri) 115: AIR 1978 SC 1770: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 290: (1979) 1 SCR 298: 1978 ALJ 1156.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-8-1978]

[8013] — S. 164 — "During the course of investigation" — Meaning — Discovery and arrest of offender — Second class Magistrate not specially empowered by Government to record confession — Magistrate recording confession and calling police for arrest — Confessional statement inadmissible in evidence — Importance of discovery and arrest of accused in the absence of confession. Nika Ram v. State of H.P., (1972) 2 SCC 80: 1972 SCC (Cri) 635: AIR 1972 SC 2077: 1972 Cri LJ 1317: (1973) 1 SCR 428.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1972]

[8014] — S. 164 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 24 — Confessions — Retracted and voluntary — Scope of — Appellant making confession out of repentance — Caution by Magistrate — Retraction by accused — No evidence that appellant-accused beaten by police — Confession held voluntary — Retracted confession corroborated to connect accused with the crime

Confessions can be acted upon if the court is satisfied that they are voluntary and they are true. The voluntary nature of the confession depends upon whether there was any threat, inducement or promise and its truth is judged in the context of the entire prosecution case. The confession must fit into the proved facts and not run counter to them. When the voluntary character of the confession and its truth are accepted it is safe to rely on it. Indeed a confession, if it is voluntary and true and not made under any inducement or threat or promise, is the most potent piece of evidence against the maker.

Retracted confession, however, stands on a slightly different footing. As the Privy Council once stated, in India it is the rule to find a confession and to find it retracted later. A Court may take into account the retracted confession, but it must look for the reasons for the making of the confession as well as for its retraction, and must weigh the two to determine whether the retraction affects the voluntary nature of the confession or not. If the court is satisfied that it was retracted because of an afterthought or advice, the retraction may not weigh with the court if the general facts proved in the case and the tenor of the confession as made and the circumstances of its making and withdrawal warrant its user. All the same, the courts do not act upon the retracted confession without finding assurance from some other sources as to the guilt of the accused. Therefore, it can be stated that a true confession made voluntarily may be acted upon with slight evidence to corroborate it, but a retracted confession requires the general assurance that the retraction was an afterthought and that the earlier statement was true. Bharat v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 950: 1972 SCC (Cri) 198.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-1970]

Impliedly distinguished in Kanhaiyalal v. Union of India, (2008) 4 SCC 668

[8015] — S. 164 — Failure to comply with S. 164 and High Court circulars — Effect — Confession though admissible may yet not be relied upon by the Court if it is not convinced that it is true and voluntary

It is true that the failure to comply with S. 164(3), Criminal Procedure Code, or with the High Court Circulars will not render the confessions inadmissible in evidence. Relevancy and admissibility of evidence have to be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Evidence Act. Section 29 of Evidence Act lays down that if a confession is otherwise relevant it does not become irrelevant merely because, inter alia, the accused was not warned that he was not bound to make it and the evidence of it might be given against him. If, therefore, a confession does not violate any one of the conditions operative under Ss. 24 to 28 of the Evidence Act, it will be admissible in evidence. But as in respect of any other admissible evidence, oral or documentary, so in the case of confessional statements which are otherwise admissible, the Court has still to consider whether they can be accepted as true. If the facts and circumstances surrounding the making of a confession appear to cast a doubt on the veracity or voluntariness of the confession, the Court may refuse to act upon the confession even if it is admissible in evidence. That shows how important it is for the Magistrate who records the confession to satisfy himself by appropriate questioning of the confessing accused, that the confession is true and voluntary. A strict and faithful compliance with S. 164 of the Code and with the instructions issued by the High Court affords in a large measure the guarantee that the confession is voluntary. If a confession is retracted, it further impairs its evidentiary value. Dagdu v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 3 SCC 68: 1977 SCC (Cri) 421: AIR 1977 SC 1579: (1977) 3 SCR 636: 1977 Cri LJ 1206.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud[1], P.K. Goswami[2] and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1977]

[8016] — S. 164 — Free and voluntary confession — Requirements of

It is a well settled principle that in order that evidence of a confession by a prisoner may be admissible, it must be affirmatively proved that such confession was free and voluntary and that it was not preceded by any inducement to the prisoner to make a statement held out by a person in authority, or that it was not made until after such inducement had clearly been removed. However mere bald assertion by the prisoner that he was threatened, tutored or that inducement was offered to him, cannot be accepted as true without more. Hem Raj Devilal v. State of Ajmer, AIR 1954 SC 462: 1954 SCR 1133: 1954 Cri LJ 1313.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-1954]

[8017] — S. 164 — Mere fact that the police secures statement of a witness under, in view of expediency or anticipating possibility of his being won over would not make the statement unreliable — It is for the court to determine the extent of reliance to be placed on such statement in the circumstances of the case including the fact of witness having resiled from it and at which stage — Statement under S. 164 has corroborative value — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 157. Dhanabal v. State of T.N., (1980) 2 SCC 84: 1980 SCC (Cri) 340: AIR 1980 SC 628: 1980 Cri LJ 439: (1980) 17 ACC 115.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, P.S. Kailasam and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1979]

[8018] — S. 164 — Non-confessional statement made by accused — To be recorded in accordance with the Section

Once the investigation had started any non-confessional statement made by the accused also required to be recorded in the manner indicated in that section and if no such record had been made by the Magistrate, the Magistrate would not be competent to give oral evidence of such statement having been made by the accused. Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1954 SC 322: 1954 SCR 1098: 1954 Cri LJ 910.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1954]

[8019] — S. 164 — Probative value of evidence of witnesses who had been examined earlier under S. 164 — Closer scrutiny necessary

The fact that some of the prosecution witnesses had been examined earlier under S. 164, CrPC, is only a circumstance to be taken into account in appraising the value of their testimony and the court has to scrutinise such evidence a little more closely and see if the other circumstances lend support to it. Baburao Bajirao Patil v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 432: 1971 SCC (Cri) 680.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and I.D. Dua, J. [Date of decision: 19-2-1971]

[8020] — S. 164 — Procedure to be followed by Magistrate mandatory. Zwinglee Ariel v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 15: 1954 Cri LJ 230.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1952]

[8021] — S. 164 — Recording of confession — Adequate time to be given by the Magistrate — Time given to the accused to consider whether he should make a confession at all — Generally at least 24 hours time should be given — Where there is reason to suspect that the accused has been persuaded or coerced to make a confession even longer period may be given

When an accused person is produced before the Magistrate by the investigating officer, it is of utmost importance that the mind of the accused person should be completely freed from any possible influence of the police and the effective way of securing such freedom from fear to the accused person is to send him to jail custody and give him adequate time to consider whether he should make a confession at all. It would naturally be difficult to lay down any hard and fast rule as to the time which should be allowed to an accused person in any given case. It would be reasonable to insist upon giving an accused person at least 24 hours to decide whether or not he should make a confession. Where there may be reason to suspect that the accused has been persuaded or coerced to make a confession, even longer period may have to be given to him before his statement is recorded. Sarwan Singh Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637: 1957 SCR 953: 1957 Cri LJ 1014.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1957]

[8022] — S. 164 — Recording of confession — Duty of the Magistrate — Magistrate must take care to see that the requirement of sub-section (3) of the Section are fully satisfied — Questions under sub-section(3) should not be put mechanically; no element of casualness should be allowed to creep in and the Magistrate should be fully satisfied that the confessional statement which the accused wants to make is in fact and substance voluntary

The act recording confessions under S. 164, CrPC, is a very solemn act and, in discharging his duties under the said section, the Magistrate must take care to see that the requirements of sub-section (3) of S. 164 are fully satisfied. It would of course be necessary in every case to put the questions prescribed by the High Court circulars but the questions intended to be put under sub-section (3) of S. 164 should not be allowed to become a matter of a mere mechanical enquiry. No element of casualness should be allowed to creep in and the Magistrate should be fully satisfied that the confessional statement which the accused wants to make is in fact and in substance voluntary.

The whole object of putting questions to an accused person who offers to confess is to obtain an assurance of the fact that the confession is not caused by any inducement, threat or promise having reference to the charge against the accused person as mentioned in S. 24 of the Indian Evidence Act. Sarwan Singh Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637: 1957 SCR 953: 1957 Cri LJ 1014.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1957]

[8023] — S. 164 — Recording of confession by Taluka Magistrate rather than by the Judicial Magistrate, held, not fatal to the prosecution where the Taluka Magistrate was specially empowered and had sufficient experience. Abdul Rehman v. State of Karnataka, (1979) 3 SCC 426: 1979 SCC (Cri) 518: AIR 1979 SC 1924: 1979 Cri LJ 1296.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-3-1979]

[8024] — S. 164 — Recording of confession in jail — Effect of

Ordinarily confession should be recorded in the Court house and if it is recorded in jail instead it is an irregularity.

Held, however that in the circumstances of the case, such irregularity did not affect the voluntary character of the confession. Hem Raj Devilal v. State of Ajmer, AIR 1954 SC 462: 1954 SCR 1133: 1954 Cri LJ 1313.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-1954]

[8025] — S. 164 — Recording of reasons an essential step in search

Section 165 of the Code lays down various steps to be followed in making a search. The recording of reasons is an important step in the matter of search and to ignore it is to ignore the material part of the provisions governing searches. If that can be ignored, it cannot be said that the search is carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure; it would be a search made in contravention of the provisions of the Code. State of Rajasthan v. Rehman, AIR 1960 SC 210, 213: (1960) 1 SCR 991: 1960 Cri LJ 286.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1959]

[8026] — S. 164 — Recording of statements of witnesses by Investigating Officer under — Applicability of the rule of caution to the testimony of such witnesses at the trial — CrPC, 1973, S. 164

It would be wrong to find fault with the Investigating Officer merely because he got the statements of witnesses recorded under S. 164. Nor can the evidence of a witness be discarded for the mere reason that his statement was recorded under S. 164. But the evidence of witnesses whose statements are recorded under S. 164 must be approached with caution. Such witnesses feel tied to their previous statements given on oath and have but a theoretical freedom to depart from the earlier version. A prosecution for perjury could be the price of that freedom. It is, of course, open to the Court to accept the evidence of a witness whose statement was recorded under S. 164, but the salient rule of caution must always be borne in mind. that is all the more necessary when almost all the eyewitnesses are subjected to this tying-up process. Balak Ram v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 219: 1974 SCC (Cri) 837: AIR 1974 SC 2165: 1974 Cri LR (SC) 530: 1974 Cri LJ 1486.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-8-1974]

[8027] — S. 164 — Retracted confession — Cannot alone be the basis of conviction

Where the conclusion of guilt rests solely on a retracted confession, not only uncorroborated in material particulars, but untrue in many parts. Such a conviction is opposed to law and cannot be allowed to stand. Arjuna Lal Misra v. State, AIR 1953 SC 411, 413: 1953 Cri LJ 1633.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], B.K. Mukherjea[2] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-1950]

[8028] — S. 164 — Retracted confession — Corroboration

The confession is inculpatory but corroboration is necessary because of the retraction. Pangambam Kalanjoy Singh v. State of Manipur, AIR 1956 SC 9, 11: 1956 Cri LJ 126.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1952]

[8029] — S. 164 — Retracted confession — Corroboration — No hard and fast rule can be laid down — Rule of prudence. Muthuswami v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 4: 1954 Cri LJ 236.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1951]

[8030] — S. 164 — Retracted confession — Corroboration necessary

Unless a retracted confession is corroborated in material particulars, it is not prudent to base a conviction in a criminal case on its strength alone. Puran v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 459, 462: 55 Punj LR 158: 1953 Cri LJ 1925.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1952]

[8031] — S. 164 — Retracted confession — Rule of corroboration one of prudence and not of law

A retracted confession may form the legal basis of a conviction if the Court is satisfied that it was true and was voluntarily made. But it has been held that a court shall not base a conviction on such a confession without corroboration. It is not a rule of law, but is only a rule of prudence. It cannot even be laid down as an inflexible rule of practice or prudence that under no circumstances such a conviction can be made without corroboration, for a court may, in a particular case, be convinced of the absolute truth of a confession and prepared to act upon it without corroboration; but it may be laid down as a general rule of practice that it is unsafe to rely upon a confession, much less on a retracted confession, unless the Court is satisfied that the retracted confession is true and voluntarily made and has been corroborated in material particulars. Pyare Lal Bhargava v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1963 SC 1094, 1096-9: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 689: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 178.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1962]

See also AIR 1967 SC 349: 1967 Cri LJ 409

[8032] — S. 164 — Retracted confession — Should be substantially corroborated by independent circumstances — Not necessary that it be corroborated in each material particular — Sufficient that there is general corroboration of the important incidents mentioned in the confession — Corroboration by evidence at Test Identification Parade, opinion of handwriting expert, etc. State of U.P. v. Boota Singh, (1979) 1 SCC 31: 1979 SCC (Cri) 115: AIR 1978 SC 1770: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 290: (1979) 1 SCR 298: 1978 ALJ 1156.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-8-1978]

[8033] — S. 164 — Retracted confession — Testimony in court conflicting with statement under S. 164 — Witness not necessarily false. Rai Singh v. State of Haryana, (1972) 4 SCC 289: AIR 1971 SC 2505: 1971 Cri LJ 1738.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1971]

[8034] — S. 164 — Retracted confession against co-accused — Corroboration

Although a retracted confession is admissible against a co-accused by virtue of S. 30 of the Evidence Act, as a matter of prudence and practice a court would not ordinarily act upon it to convict a co-accused without corroboration. Ram Parkash v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 1, 3: 1959 SCR 1219: 1959 Cri LJ 90.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1958]

[8035] — S. 164 — Statement in the course of investigation recorded by Magistrate — Value of — Is not substantive evidence — Can be used only to corroborate or contradict a witness

Statements recorded under S. 164 of the Code are not substantive evidence in a case and cannot be made use of except to corroborate or contradict the witness. An admission by a witness that a statement of his was recorded under S. 164 of the Code and that what he had stated there was true would not make the entire statement admissible much less than any part of it could be used as substantive evidence in the case.

The Court commits an error in law in using the statement of a witness under S. 164 CrPC to come to the conclusion that he has been won over. State of Delhi v. Shri Ram Lohia, AIR 1960 SC 490: 1960 Cri LJ 679.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-12-1959]

[8036] — S. 164 — Statement of child witness after confining her in police station for 10 days — Held, unreliable and inadmissible. State of Bihar v. Kapil Singh, AIR 1969 SC 53: (1968) 3 SCR 810: 1969 Cri LJ 279.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1968]

[8037] — S. 164 — Statement recorded in derogation of the Section — Cannot be admitted in evidence under S. 9 of Evidence Act — Magistrate's own statement about facts establishing identity of anything is admissible under S. 9, Evidence Act, 1872

If a statement of witness recorded by a Magistrate in derogation of the provisions of S. 164 will go in as evidence under S. 9 of the Evidence Act, the object of S. 164 of the said Code will be defeated. It is, therefore, necessary to resort to the rule of harmonious construction so as to give full effect to both the provisions. If a Magistrate speaks to facts which establish the identity of anything, the said facts would be relevant within the meaning of S. 9 of the Evidence Act; but if the Magistrate seeks to prove statements of a person not recorded in compliance with the mandatory provisions of S. 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, such part of the evidence, though it may be relevant within the meaning of S. 9 of the Evidence Act, will have to be excluded.

On the basis of the statement made by the witness 'S' giving the particulars of the building, the Magistrate got a plan and Memorandum prepared. It is contended that the plan and Memorandum and the statement of the Magistrate about these papers were inadmissible in evidence.

Held, the memorandum prepared by the Magistrate describing the present condition of the house and the evidence given by him on the basis of that memorandum would be relevant evidence under S. 9 of the Evidence Act; but the statements made by 'S' to the Magistrate said to be not recorded in the manner prescribed by S. 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure would be inadmissible. The evidence of the Magistrate, excluding that part of evidence pertaining to the statements made to him by 'S', was relevant in the case. Deep Chand v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1961 SC 1527: (1962) 1 SCR 662: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 705: (1962) 2 MLJ 1 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1961]

[8038] — S. 164 — Statement recorded under S. 164 — Endorsement recorded below the statement not proper and in accordance with S. 164 — Cannot, however, lead to the inference that any threat was given to the witnesses and that the evidence of the witnesses given in trial Court necessarily becomes suspect or less believable. Ram Charan v. State of U.P., AIR 1968 SC 1270: (1968) 3 SCR 354: 1968 Cri LJ 1473.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1968]

[8039] — S. 164 — Statement recorded under S. 164 — Inference that there was a time when police thought that the witness could change his statement — When witness sticks to his statement recorded under the section throughout the mere fact that his statement was recorded under the section will not be sufficient to discard it — Evidence to be considered with caution and acted upon if corroborated by other circumstances

If a statement of a witness is previously recorded under S. 164, Criminal Procedure Code, it leads to an inference that there was a time when the police thought the witness may change but if the witness sticks to the statement made by him throughout, the mere fact that his statement was previously recorded under S. 164 will not be sufficient to discard it. The Court, however, ought to receive it with caution and if there are other circumstances on record which lend support to the truth of the evidence of such witness, it can be acted upon. Ram Charan v. State of U.P., AIR 1968 SC 1270: (1968) 3 SCR 354: 1968 Cri LJ 1473.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1968]

Parmanand v. Emperor, AIR 1940 Nag 340 quoted with approval

[8040] — S. 164 — Statement under — Corroboration

Statements made under S. 164 were not evidence but were corroborative of what had been stated earlier in the Committal Court. State of Rajasthan v. Kartar Singh, (1970) 2 SCC 61: 1970 SCC (Cri) 297: AIR 1970 SC 1305: 1970 Cri LJ 1144.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1970]

[8041] — S. 164 — Statements of witnesses or accused — Recording of — Magistrate recording the statement of identifying witnesses and accused in the memorandum of identification proceedings — Statements so recorded in contravention of S. 164, CrPC — Magistrate's evidence on the basis of verification proceedings is relevant and admissible — Evidence about the statements recorded is inadmissible

The evidence given by a Magistrate on the basis of the verification proceedings conducted by him is relevant evidence, though he could not speak to statements made by the accused or a witness recorded by him in contravention of S. 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

A Magistrate when called upon to conduct verification proceedings should confine his attention only to the steps to be taken to ensure that the witnesses were able to identify certain persons alleged to have been concerned in the commission of the crime or to identify certain things which were said to be the subject-matter thereof. The Code of Criminal Procedure does not sanction his transgression of this limit and recording of other statements which may have a bearing in establishing the guilt of the accused except in accordance with S. 164 of the Code.

Where a Magistrate, III Class, not entitled to record a statement under S. 164 CrPC conducted proceedings of identification parade and prepared a memorandum of proceedings indicating inter alia the statements made by the witnesses after identifying the suspects, and deposed about the identification and also the statement of two witnesses, the statements recorded in the memo- randum will be inadmissible in evidence, but his statements and portion of memorandum about a witness identifying the suspects will be admissible in evidence. Harnath Singh v. State of M.P., AIR 1970 SC 1619: (1969) 2 SCR 289: 1970 Cri LJ 1422.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1968]

[8042] — S. 164 — Use of statement made — Not substantive evidence

A statement under S. 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not substantive evidence. It can be used to corroborate the statement of a witness. It can be used to contradict a witness. Ram Kishan Singh v. Harmit Kaur, (1972) 3 SCC 280: 1972 SCC (Cri) 493: AIR 1972 SC 468: 1972 Cri LJ 267.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-12-1971]

[8043] — Ss. 164 and 364 — Magistrate recording confession — Not desirable for the Magistrate who takes part in investigation of a case to record the confession of the accused in the same case

It is desirable that magistrates who take part in attesting recovery memos should not record confessions by persons accused of the offence being investigated. It is conceivable that the investigating department seeks the assistance of the magistrates in the matter of investigation by requesting them to attest the recovery memos in order to give assurance and authenticity to the investigation. But if that is done care should be taken to see that for recording confessions the accused persons are sent to some other magistrate. Babu Singh v. State of Punjab, (1963) 3 SCR 749: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 566, 71.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1962]

[8044] — Ss. 164 and 533 — Confession — Not recorded in accordance with S. 164 or not recorded by a Magistrate empowered under S. 164(1) — Oral evidence of the making of the confession is inadmissible

A Magistrate cannot in the course of investigation record a confession except in the manner laid down in S. 164. The power to record the confession had obviously been given so that the confession might be proved by the record of it made in the manner laid down. If proof of the confession by other means was permissible, the whole provision of S. 164 including the safeguards contained in it for the protection of accused persons would be rendered nugatory. The Section, therefore, by conferring on magistrates the power to record statements or confessions, by necessary implication, prohibited a magistrate from giving oral evidence of the statements or confessions made to him. State of U.P. v. Singhara Singh, AIR 1964 SC 358: (1964) 4 SCR 485: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 263 (2).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-8-1963]

[8045] — Ss. 164(2), 364(3) and 533(1) — Confession — Proof and validity — Magistrate not himself recording the confession and not complying with the provisions of S. 364(3) — The scribes of one of the confessions produced by the defence and the other not produced at all — Held, omission to comply with the provisions will not vitiate the confession in view of S. 533 CrPC and will not make it inadmissible — When proved can be considered on merit if shown to be voluntary

The Magistrate admitted that the confessions of the two accused were recorded by his different Ahalmad Readers. The prosecution did not examine any of the two scribes. One of them was examined as defence witness. The Magistrate explained that he himself did not record the statements because he did not know Urdu. He however did not make a memorandum of the statements as required by S. 364(3) CrPC. It is contended by the accused that the confession is not proved and is invalid. It is contended by the prosecution that the confessions are saved by S. 533 CrPC.

Held, the contention that since the Magistrate's evidence shows that the confessions had been duly recorded and therefore in view of S. 533 CrPC the irregularity committed by the Magistrate in not complying with S. 364(3) will not vitiate the confessions nor will make them inadmissible unless it is proved that the error has injured the accused as to his defence has some force. It is, therefore, assumed in favour of the prosecution that the confessions have been proved and may, therefore, be considered on merits, if they are shown to be voluntary. Babu Singh v. State of Punjab, (1963) 3 SCR 749: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 566, 71.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1962]

[8046] — Ss. 164(2) and 364(3) — Confession — When voluntary — Magistrate recording confession actively associated with the investigation of the case — Accused kept in police custody for about 12 days after the substantial part of the investigation was over — Accused produced before the Magistrate on February 6 in the evening and sent to judicial custody — Confessional statement recorded on February 7 — Accused not kept in judicial custody before confession was recorded even for 24 hours — Magistrate not complying with S. 364(3) CrPC indicating his casual attitude — Held, the confession was not voluntary

Where the investigating officer kept the accused in police custody for long even after a substantial portion of the investigation was over, where the Magistrate recording the confessional statement actively assisted the investigation by attesting the recovery memos and where the Magistrate failed to comply with the provisions of S. 364(3) CrPC indicating his casual attitude in recording the evidence, the confessional statements were not voluntary. Babu Singh v. State of Punjab, (1963) 3 SCR 749: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 566, 71.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1962]

— S. 164(3) See Ss. 364(3) and 164(3)
— S. 165 See Ss. 103 and 165
See also Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)
See also Ss. 156 and 165
See also Ss. 166(3) and 165

[8047] — S. 165 — Nature and scope — Conditions for making search

Under S. 165 four conditions are imposed: (i) the police officer must have reasonable ground for believing that anything necessary for the purposes of an investigation of an offence cannot, in his opinion, be obtained otherwise than by making a search, without undue delay, (ii) he should record in writing the grounds of his belief and specify in such writing as far as possible the things for which the search is to be made; (iii) he must conduct the search, if practicable, in person; and (iv) if it is not practicable to make the search himself, he must record in writing the reasons for not himself making the search and shall authorize a subordinate officer to make the search after specifying in writing the place to be searched, and, so far as possible, the thing for which search is to be made. As search is a process exceedingly arbitrary in character, stringent statutory conditions are imposed on the exercise of the power. State of Rajasthan v. Rehman, AIR 1960 SC 210, 212: (1960) 1 SCR 991: 1960 Cri LJ 286.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1959]

[8048] — S. 165 — Nature — Power of search incidental to investigation. State of Rajasthan v. Rehman, AIR 1960 SC 210: (1960) 1 SCR 991: 1960 Cri LJ 286.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1959]

[8049] — S. 165 — Illegality of search would not justify wrongful confinement of public officer or prevent discharge of his duties — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 342 and 353

An obstruction during the course of an irregular search not conducted in conformity with the provisions of S. 165, Criminal Procedure Code, might be justified, but that is no warrant for further preventing a public servant from discharging his duties. That constitutes an offence.

To say merely because the search was illegal the obstruction would be justified and those who caused it would be entitled to take law into their hands would result in conferring licence and afford them an unwarranted excuse to commit each and every criminal act.

Obstruction to search is to the act of the person conducting the search. It is a defensive act, but where search has ended and the persons conducting the search have left the premises, to bring them back and make them do things against their will is not an obstruction to an act, but a compulsion to make them act. Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1972 SC 886: (1972) 3 SCR 422: 1972 Cri LJ 638: 1973 ALJ 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1972]

See also AIR 1960 SC 210: 1960 Cri LJ 286

[8050] — S. 165 — Scope of powers — How and when can be assailed — Writ petition against — IT Act, 1961, S. 132 (Post 1965) — Income Tax Rules, 1962, R. 112 — Constitution of India — Article 226

The Act and the Rules do not require that the warrant of authorisation should specify the particulars of documents and books of account: a general authorisation to search for and seize documents and books of account relevant to or useful for any proceeding complies with the requirements of the Act and the Rules. It is for the officer making the search to exercise his judgment and seize or not to seize any documents or books of account. An error committed by the officer in seizing documents which may ultimately be found to be useful for or relevant to the proceedings under the Act will not by itself vitiate the search, nor will it entitle the aggrieved person to an omnibus order releasing all documents seized. The aggrieved party may undoubtedly move a competent court for an order releasing the documents seized. In such a proceeding the officer who has made the search will be called upon to prove how the documents seized are likely to be useful for or relevant to a proceeding under the Act. If has is unable to do so, the court may order that those documents be released. But the circumstance that a large number of document have been seized is not a ground for holding that all documents seized are irrelevant or the action of the officer is mala fide.

The issue of a search warrant by the Commissioner is not a judicial or a quasi-judicial act and even if the Commissioner is enjoined to issue a warrant only when in fact there is information in his possession in consequence of which he may form the necessary belief, the matter is not thereby subject to scrutiny by the court. Section 132 of the Income Tax Act does not require specific mention by description of each particular document which has to be discovered on search: it is for the officer who is conducting the search to decide whether a particular document found on search is relevant for the purpose or not. The mere fact that it may ultimately be found that some document seized was not directly relevant to any proceeding under the Act or that another officer with more information at his disposal may have come to a different conclusion will not be ground for setting aside the order and the proceeding for search and seizure.

It is true that a large number of documents were seized from the premises of M/s Seth Bros. but that has by itself no direct bearing on the question whether the Income Tax Officer acted mala fide. If the Income Tax Officer in making a search had reason to believe that any books of account or other documents useful for, or relevant to, any proceedings under the Act may be found, he may make a search for and seize those books of account and other documents. Some books, maps of the cold storage, assessment returns, and doctor's prescriptions were seized by the Income Tax Officer. It appears, however, from the inventory that a large number of documents which related to the business of the assessee and their allied concerns were also seized. It would be impossible merely from the circumstances that some of the documents may be shown to have no clear or direct relevance to any proceeding under the Act that the entire search and seizure was made not in bona fide discharge of official duty but for a collateral purpose. The suggestion that the books of account and other documents which could be taken possession of should only be those which directly related to the business carried on the name of M/s Seth Bros has no substance. The books of account and other documents in respect of other businesses carried on by the partners of the firm of the assessees would certainly be relevant because they would tend to show inter-relation between the dealings and supply materials having a bearing on the case of evasion of income tax by the firm.

One cannot that because the Income Tax Officers made a search for and seized the books of accounts and documents in relation to business carried on in the names of other firms and companies, the search and seizure were illegal.

It is also said that marks of identification were not placed on several documents. Assuming that this allegation is true, in the absence of anything to show that the documents were either replaced or tampered with, that irregularity will not by itself supply a ground for holding that the search was mala fide. A delay of two months in issuing a notice calling for explanation is also not a ground for holding that the action was taken for a collateral purpose.

By the express terms of the Act and the Rules the Income Tax Officer may obtain the assistance of a police officer. By sub-section (13) of S. 132 the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, relating to searches, apply so far as may be, to searches under S. 132. Thereby it is only intended that the officer concerned shall issue the necessary warrant, keep present respectable persons of the locality to witness the search, and generally carry out the search in the manner provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure. But sub-section (13) of S. 132 does not imply that the limitations prescribed by S. 165 of the Code of Criminal Procedure are also incorporated therein.

It is not disputed that assistance of the police may be obtained in the course of a search.

In keeping police officers present at the time of the search in the house of influential businessmen to ensure the protection of the officers and the record, it cannot be said that "excessive force was used".

In appropriate cases a writ petition may lie challenging the validity of the action on the ground of absence of power or on a plea that proceedings were taken maliciously or for a collateral purpose. But, normally, the High Court in such a case does not proceed to determine merely on affidavits important issues of fact especially where serious allegations of improper conduct are made against public servants. ITO v. Seth Bros., (1969) 2 SCC 324: AIR 1970 SC 292: (1969) 74 ITR 836, 843-44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-7-1969]

Seth Bros. v. CIT, (1956) 62 ITR 44 (All), reversed

[8051] — S. 165 — Applicability — Only when search as part of investigation of an offence. Sheonath Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1968 SC 1517: (1969) 1 SCR 150: (1968) 22 STC 488: 1969 Cri LJ 37.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1968]

[8052] — S. 165 — Procedure under R. 201 of rules framed under the 1944 Excise Act for search warrants — Compliance with S. 165 CrPC, 1898 — Central Excises and Salt Act, 1944, S. 18 & R. 201

A comparative study of Chapter XIV CrPC, 1898 with the provisions of R. 201 of the Rules indicates that searches made by a police officer during the course of an investigation of a cognizable offence can properly be approximated with the searches to be made by the authorised officer under R. 201 of the Rules; for, in the former case, the police officer makes a search during the investigation of a cognizable offence and in the latter the authorised officer makes the search to ascertain whether a person contravened the provisions of the Act or the Rules which is an offence. There is also no reason why conditions should be imposed in the matter of a search by the police officer under S. 165 of the Code, but no such safeguard need to be provided in the case of a search by the excise officer under the Rules. The legislature, by stating in S. 18 of the Act that the searches under the Act and the Rules shall be carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Code relating to searches, clearly indicated that the appropriate provisions of the Code shall govern searches authorised under the Act and the Rules. Therefore the provisions of S. 165 of the Code must be followed in the matter of searches under R. 201 of the Rules.

Section 165 of the Code lays down various steps to be followed in making a search. The recording of reasons in an important step in the matter of search and to ignore it is to ignore the material part of the provisions governing searches. If that can be ignored, it cannot be said that the search is carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure: it would be a search made in contravention of the provisions of the Code. State of Rajasthan v. Rehman, AIR 1960 SC 210, 212, 21: (1960) 1 SCR 991: 1960 Cri LJ 286.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1959]

[8053] — S. 165 — Applicability to searches under S. 41(2), Madras General Sales Tax Act, 1959

Though Section 41(2) of the Madras Act itself provides no safeguards and might have been open to objection on that ground, there is a provision in the proviso to sub-section (2) which lays down that all searches under this sub-section shall, so far as may be, be made in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Therefore, the provision of the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as may be apply to all searches made under sub-section (2).

When the proviso applies the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure to all searches made under this sub-section, as far as may be possible, there is no reason why S. 165 should not apply mutatis mutandis to searches made under sub-section (2). Therefore safeguards provided in S. 165 also apply to searches made under sub-section (2). Commr. of Commercial Taxes, Board of Revenue v. Ramkishan Shrikishan Jhaver, AIR 1968 SC 59, 66: (1968) 1 SCR 148: (1967) 2 ITJ 919: (1967) 66 ITR 664: 20 STC 453.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, CJ. and R.S. Bachawat, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-8-1967]

[8054] — S. 165 — Non-conformity with requirements — Irregular search — Whether public servant can be obstructed during course of his irregular search — Whether can be obstructed after search and seizure is over — Obstruction to act and compulsion to make one act — Difference

Section 165 of the Code of Criminal Procedure deals with search and seizure. The non-conformity with any of the requirements of the provision must be confined to that part of the investigation which relates to the actual search and seizure, but once the search and seizure is complete that provision ceases to have any application to the subsequent steps in the investigation. The illegality of a search does not continue during the whole process of investigation till the filing of the charge-sheet under S. 173, Criminal Procedure Code.

An obstruction during the course of an irregular search not conducted in conformity with the provisions of S. 165, Criminal Procedure Code, might be justified, but that is no warrant for further preventing a public servant from discharging his duties. That constitutes an offence.

To say merely because the search was illegal the obstructionists would be entitled to take law into their hands would result in conferring licence and afford them an unwarranted excuse to commit each and every criminal act. Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1972 SC 886: (1972) 3 SCR 422: 1972 Cri LJ 638: 1973 ALJ 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1972]

[8055] — S. 165 — Obstruction to the search — Meaning

Obstruction to search is to the act of the person conducting the search. It is a defensive act, but where search has ended and the persons conducting the search have left the premises to bring them back and make them do things against their will is not an obstruction to an act, but a compulsion to make them act. Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1972 SC 886: (1972) 3 SCR 422: 1972 Cri LJ 638: 1973 ALJ 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1972]

[8056] — S. 165(1) and S. 105(2), Customs Act, 1962

Section 105 of the Act and S. 165(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure are intended to meet totally different situations. While under S. 105 of the Act the Assistant Collector of Customs either makes the search personally or authorises any officer of Customs to do so, if he has reason to believe the facts mentioned therein under S. 165(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure the recording of the reasons for believing the facts is only to enable him to make a search urgently in a case where search warrants in the ordinary course cannot be obtained. It is, therefore, not possible to invoke that condition and apply it to a situation arising under S. 105 of the Act. R.S. Gopikrishan Agarwal v. R.N. Sen, Asstt. Collector of Customs and Central Excise, AIR 1967 SC 1298: (1967) 2 SCR 340: 1967 Mah LJ 492: 69 Bom LR 459: 1967 Cri LJ 1194.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-1967]

— S. 165(4) See Ss. 103 and 165(4)

— S. 166 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

[8057] — Ss. 166(3) and 165 — Search by police party of a place falling under the jurisdiction of another police station — Non-compliance of the provisions of S. 165 — Effect of — Search whether mala fide — Search party mistaken for dacoits dressed in police uniforms — Resistance offered to the search party — Whether offence committed. Gopi v. State of U.P., (1970) 2 SCC 68: 1970 SCC (Cri) 304: 1970 ALJ 1164.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-2-1970]

— S. 167 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)
See also Ss. 155, 61, 94, 167, 164 and 202
See also Ss. 344 and 167

— S. 167(2) See also Ss. 344 and 167(2)

[8058] — S. 167(2) — Undertrial prisoners — Petitioners imprisoned for more than seven years without any investigation and laying any charge-sheet — Magistrates mechanically authorising repeated detentions — Held, Art. 21, as also S. 167(2) CrPC violated — Authorities directed to release the petitioners forthwith on their own bond without sureties, subject to the legal proceedings that State may take if warranted — Constitution of India — Arts. 21 & 32. Mantoo Majumdar v. State of Bihar, (1980) 2 SCC 406: 1980 SCC (Cri) 504: AIR 1980 SC 847: 1980 Cri LJ 546: 1980 BLJR 577.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer, A.C. Gupta and R.S. Pathak, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-2-1980]

[8059] — Ss. 167(2) and 344 — Magistrate wrongly recording presence of accused in the remand orders, when in fact the accused was not produced — Whether orders bad

The wrong entries made by the Magistrate, however, do not mean that the remand orders were not in fact passed by him though he did so in the absence of the appellant. Such remand orders can be lawfully passed if an accused person cannot for some reason or the other be brought before the Magistrate. It was, therefore, not possible to say that remand orders were not passed or that consequently his detention in the jail was without a valid basis. Gouri Shankar Jha v. State of Bihar, (1972) 1 SCC 564: 1972 SCC (Cri) 328: AIR 1972 SC 711: (1972) 3 SCR 129: 1972 Cri LJ 505.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1972]

[8060] — Ss. 167(2) and 344 — Remand orders passed in the absence of accused — Whether valid

It is clear from the Jail Superintendent's report that the appellant himself had refused to appear and be present before the Magistrate when he heard the remand applications. He, therefore, cannot legitimately make a grievance that those orders were passed in his absence. Those remand orders could be passed validly in his absence if his presence at the time could not be secured. Gouri Shankar Jha v. State of Bihar, (1972) 1 SCC 564: 1972 SCC (Cri) 328: AIR 1972 SC 711: (1972) 3 SCR 129: 1972 Cri LJ 505.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1972]

— S. 168 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

— S. 169 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

See also Ss. 190 and 169

[8061] — S. 169 — Appellant not entitled to papers of Investigation Officer as long as investigation continues. Hazari Lal Gupta v. Rameshwar Prasad, (1972) 1 SCC 452: 1972 SCC (Cri) 208: AIR 1972 SC 484: (1972) 2 SCR 666: 1972 Cri LJ 298.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1971]

[8062] — Ss. 169 and 170 — Applicability — Sea Customs Act, 1878 — Investigation under — Held, not applicable

The offences were non-cognizable and were not investigated by the police. The investigation was by customs officers under the Sea Customs Act and not by the police under chapter XIV of the Code. Therefore, no question of the application of Ss. 169 and 170 arose. Laxmipat Choraria v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 938: (1968) 2 SCR 624: 1968 Cri LJ 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[8063] — Ss. 169 and 170 — Formation of opinion by police only — Interference by Magistrate not justified

The investigation under the Code, takes in several aspects and stages ending ultimately with the formation of an opinion by the police as to whether, on the material covered and collected, a case is made out to place the accused before the Magistrate for trial, and the submission of either a charge-sheet or a final report is dependent on the nature of the opinion so formed. The formation of the said opinion, by the police, is the final step in the investigation, and that final step is to be taken only by the police and by no other authority.

There is no power, expressly or impliedly conferred, under the Code, on a Magistrate to call upon the police to submit a charge-sheet, when they have sent a report under S. 169 of the Code, that there is no case made out for sending up an accused for trial. Abhinandan Jha v. Dinesh Mishra, AIR 1968 SC 117, 123, 12: (1967) 3 SCR 668: 1968 Cri LJ 97.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1967]

— S. 170 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

See also Ss. 169 and 170

— S. 171 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

— S. 172 See also Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

[8064] — S. 172 — Police Diary — Entry regarding receipt of ornaments of deceased — Evidentiary value — Inferences that can be supported

An entry was made in the station diary of police station in accordance with Regulation 295 of U.P. Police Regulations regarding the receipt of the sealed parcels containing ornaments at the police station. This circumstance, does not in any way connect the accused with the commission of the crime, nor does it show that those ornaments were recovered from the houses of the accused in pursuance of their disclosure statements. Rahim Beg v. State of U.P., (1972) 3 SCC 759: 1972 SCC (Cri) 827: AIR 1973 SC 343: 1972 Cri LJ 1260.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1972]

[8065] — S. 172 — Police diary not to be examined in each case

To say that in every murder case, the Court must scrutinise the police diary and make a list of witnesses whom the prosecutor must examine is virtually to suggest that the Court should itself take the role of a prosecutor. Darya Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328, 333: (1964) 3 SCR 397: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 350.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1963]

[8066] — S. 172(2) — Police diaries — Use of — By Court — Extent of

A Judge falls in error in making use of the police diaries at all in his judgment and in seeking confirmation of his opinion on the question of appreciation of evidence from statements contained in those diaries. The only proper use he can make of these diaries is the one allowed by S. 172, CrPC i.e. during the trial he can get assistance from them by suggesting means of further elucidating points which need clearing up and which might be material for the purpose of doing justice between the State and the accused. Habeeb Mohd. v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 51: 1954 SCR 475: 1954 Cri LJ 338.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1953]

— S. 173 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)
See also Ss. 161 and 173
See also Ss. 190 and 173
See also Ss. 251-A and 173
See also Ss. 417(3), 200, 202, 156(3) and 173

[8067] — S. 173 — One case instituted on a police report under S. 173 and the other initiated on a criminal complaint, both arising out of the same transaction and exclusively triable by Sessions Court — Held, the two cases should be tried separately but by the same court to avoid risk of two courts coming to conflicting findings — Criminal Trial — Counter or Cross-Cases. Kewal Krishan v. Suraj Bhan, 1980 Supp SCC 499: 1981 SCC (Cri) 438: AIR 1980 SC 1780: 1980 Cri LJ 1271.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and R.S. Pathak, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-8-1980]

[8068] — Ss. 173 and 251-A — Report by police officer under S. 11, Essential Commodities Act, 1955 — Held, can included in a charge-sheet under S. 173 CrPC, 1898 — Trial under S. 251-A, CrPC not improper — Essential Commodities Act, 1955, Ss. 11 & 7

The enquiry was an integrated one, being based on the same set of facts. Even if the offence under the Essential Commodities Act may not be cognizable the police officer would be competent to include it in the charge-sheet under S. 173, CrPC, 1898 with respect to a cognizable offence.

Both the offences if cognizable could be investigated together under Chapter XIV of the Code and also if one of them was a non-cognizable offence. Pravin Chandra Mody v. State of A.P., AIR 1965 SC 1185, 1187: (1965) 1 SCR 269: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 250.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, M. Hidayatullah and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1964]

[8069] — S. 173 — Charge-sheet if sufficient

The charge-sheet is hardly a complete or accurate thesis of the prosecution case. R.K. Dalmia v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1962 SC 1821, 1876: (1963) 1 SCR 253: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 805: (1962) 32 Comp Cas 699.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1962]

[8070] — S. 173 — Complete report — Supplementary report does not indicate incompleteness of first report. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8071] — S. 173 — Non-mention in final report — Not a case of discharge

There cannot be any question of discharge when the appellant was not sent up upon the charge-sheet submitted by the police. Raghubans Dubey v. State of Bihar, AIR 1967 SC 1167, 1168: (1967) 2 SCR 423: 1967 Cri LJ 1081.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1967]

[8072] — S. 173 — Opinion of officer-in-charge

The final step in the investigation viz. the formation of the opinion as to whether or not there is a case to place the accused on trial is to be that of the officer-in-charge of the police station. There is no provision permitting delegation thereof but only a provision entitling superior officers to supervise or participate under S. 551. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 201: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[8073] — S. 173 — Police report — Inordinate delay in submitting — Investigation into criminal offences must always be free from objectionable features

It is of utmost importance that investigation into criminal offences must always be free from any objectionable features or infirmities which may legitimately lead to the grievance of the accused that the work of investigation is carried on unfairly or with any ulterior motive. R.P. Kapur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 866: (1960) 3 SCR 388: 1960 Cri LJ 1239.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1960]

[8074] — S. 173 — Police submitting final report and requesting that the case be consigned to record as untraced — Magistrate ordering that the case be consigned to record as untraced — Held, the procedure not correct

It may well happen in some cases that the culprit is untraced. But we do not understand how the case can be untraced. It is surprising that the police should make such a request to the Magistrate. It is even more surprising and indeed it is a matter which has caused us deep concern, that the Magistrate readily did what the police requested him to do. R.P. Kapur v. S. Pratap Singh Kairon, AIR 1964 SC 295: (1964) 4 SCR 224: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 224.

Bench Strength 7. Coram: S.K. Das, A.C.J.[1] and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], A.K. Sarkar[2], K.N. Wanchoo[3], M. Hidayatullah[1], K.C. Das Gupta[3] and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 2-8-1963]

[8075] — Ss. 173, 156 and 190 — Statutory rights of police to further investigate after submitting report under S. 173(1) and where Magistrate has already taken cognizance of the offence, upheld — Final discretion to take fresh cognizance being on the Magistrate, abuse of power by the police cannot be alleged — Police should ordinarily seek formal permission of court for fresh investigation — Prosecuting authority should move for trying the two cases together — But in absence of any malice, failure on its part would not render the investigation illegal. Ram Lal Narang v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1979) 2 SCC 322: 1979 SCC (Cri) 479: AIR 1979 SC 1791: 1979 Cri LJ 1346.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-1-1979]

Distinguished in State of A.P. v. A.S. Peter, (2008) 2 SCC 383

[8076] — Ss. 173, 156(3) and 190(1)(c) — Magistrate's power to order submission of a charge-sheet on the police filing a final report under S. 173 — Magistrate has no such power — He can order further investigation under S. 156(3) or can take cognizance under S. 190(1)(c)

There may be instances when the Magistrate may take the view, on a consideration of the final report, that the opinion formed by the police is not based on a full and complete investigation, in which case the Magistrate will have ample jurisdiction to give directions to the police, under S. 156(3), to make a further investigation. That is, if the Magistrate feels, after considering the final report, that the investigation is unsatisfactory, or incomplete, or that there is scope for further investigation, it will be open to the Magistrate to decline to accept the final report and direct the police to make further investigation, under S. 156(3). The police after such further investigation, may submit a charge-sheet, or, again submit a final report, depending upon the further investigation made by them. If ultimately, the Magistrate forms the opinion that the facts, set out in the final report, constitute an offence, he can take cognizance of the offence, under S. 190(1)(b), notwithstanding the contrary opinion of the police, expressed in the final report.

The investigation, under the Code, takes in several aspects and stages sending ultimately with the formation of an opinion by the police as to whether, on the material covered and collected, a case is made out to place the accused before the Magistrate for trial, and the submission of either a charge-sheet, or a final report is dependent on the nature of the opinion so formed. The formation of the said opinion, by the police, as pointed out earlier, is the final step to be taken only by the police and by no other authority.

Therefore, there is no power, expressly or impliedly conferred, under the Code, on a Magistrate to call upon the police to submit a charge-sheet, when they have sent a report under S. 169 of the Code, that there is no case made out for sending up an accused for trial. Abhinandan Jha v. Dinesh Mishra, AIR 1968 SC 117: (1967) 3 SCR 668: 1968 Cri LJ 97, 98, 101.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1967]

[8077] — Ss. 173, 190, 251-A and 252 — Scope and applicability — Power of police to investigate non-cognizable offence — Information disclosing cognizable and non-cognizable offence — Police can investigate non-cognizable offence if arising out of the same facts — The trial as a whole can proceed under S. 251-A

In S. 190, a distinction is made between the classes of persons who can start a criminal prosecution. Under the three clauses of S. 190(1) criminal prosecution can be initiated: (i) by a police officer by a report in writing, (ii) upon information received from any person other than a police officer or upon the Magistrate's own knowledge or suspicion, and (iii) upon receiving a complaint of facts. If the report in this case falls within (i) above, then the procedure under S. 251-A, Criminal Procedure Code, must be followed. If it falls in (ii) or (iii) then the procedure under S. 252, Criminal Procedure Code, must be followed.

Section 156(2) provides that where a police officer enquires into an offence under S. 156(1) his action cannot be called into question on the ground that he was not empowered to investigate the offence. The enquiry was an integrated one, being based on the same set of facts. Even if the offence under the Essential Commodities Act may not be cognizable — though it is not alleged by the appellant that it is non-cognizable — the police officer would be competent to include it in the charge-sheet under S. 178 with respect to a cognizable offence. The provisions of S. 155(1), Criminal Procedure Code, must be regarded as applicable to those cases where the information given to the police is solely about a non-cognizable offence. Where the information discloses a cognizable as well as a non-cognizable offence the police officer is not debarred from investigating any non-cognizable offence which may arise out of the same facts. He can include that non-cognizable offence in the charge-sheet which he presents for a cognizable offence. Pravin Chandra Mody v. State of A.P., AIR 1965 SC 1185: (1965) 1 SCR 269: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 250, 252.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, M. Hidayatullah and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1964]

[8078] — Ss. 173 and 195 — FIR prepared on the basis of complainant's information disclosing offences under Ss. 182, 211, 193, 467, 471 & 385 IPC — Same complainant filing a complaint about the same facts — Police filing a report under S. 173, CrPC stating that the allegations were false — Prosecutions under Ss. 182, 211 & 193 not competent for non-compliance of S. 195(1)(b) — Prosecution for non-cognizable offences under Ss. 408, 467, 474, 385 etc., competent — High Court not justified in quashing the entire proceedings. State of Punjab v. Brij Lal Palia, AIR 1969 SC 355: (1969) 1 SCR 853: 1969 Cri LJ 645, 47.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-8-1968]

— S. 173(1) See Ss. 190(1)(b) and 173(1)

[8079] — S. 173(1)(a) — Complete report — Police challan setting out the particulars — Held, a complete report. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8080] — S. 173(3) — Courses open before Magistrate under — Except where Magistrate orders further investigation having not agreed with the police, he generally acts in the capacity of a court

Per Koshal, J. (Jaswant Singh, J. concurring)

The caption of Chap. XII, CrPC is not decisive of the question as to whether a particular provision thereunder is limited to the supervisory jurisdiction of the Magistrate or deals with his judicial functions as a court. The courses open to a Magistrate under S. 173(3) are: (i) to agree with the report of the police and file the proceedings; or (ii) not to agree with the police report and (a) order further investigation, or (b) hold that the evidence is sufficient to justify the forwarding of the accused to the Magistrate and take cognizance of the offence complained of. The appropriate course has to be decided upon after a consideration of the report and the application of the mind of the Magistrate to the contents thereof. Excepting an order under course, (ii)(a) above, which pertains to the Magistrate's supervisory authority the order passed by him in each of the other courses follows a conclusion of the investigation. All orders passed by a Magistrate acting judicially [such as orders of bail and those passed under S. 173(3) discharging an accused or orders taking cognizance of the offence complained of] are parts of an integral whole which may end with a definitive judgment after an inquiry or a trial, or earlier according to the exigencies of the situation obtaining at a particular stage, and which involves, if need be, the adducing of evidence and the decision of the Magistrate on an appreciation thereof. They cannot be viewed in isolation and given a character different from the entire judicial process of which they are intended to form a part. Kamlapati Trivedi v. State of W.B., (1980) 2 SCC 91: 1980 SCC (Cri) 347: AIR 1979 SC 777: 1979 Cri LJ 679.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Jaswant Singh[1], P.S. Kailasam[2] and A.D. Koshal[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1978]

— S. 173(4) See Ss. 94 and 173(4)

See also Ss. 162, 173(4) and 207-A(3)

See also Ss. 207-A(3) and 173(4)

[8081] — S. 173(4) — Not retrospective. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

[8082] — S. 173(4) — Supply of a copy of report etc. — Scope and application — S. 273(4) is attracted only in a case investigated by police officer under Ch. 14 CrPC — Does not apply to a case instituted on private complaint

Section 173(4) CrPC is attracted only in a case investigated by a police officer under Chapter XIV of the Criminal Procedure Code, followed up by a final report under S. 173, Criminal Procedure Code. Under the procedure prescribed in S. 251-A, Criminal Procedure Code but for the facility provided to him under S. 173(4) of that Code an accused person would have been greatly handicapped in his defence. But in a case instituted on a complaint, and governed by Ss. 252 and 259 of the Criminal Procedure Code, no such difficulty arises.

Section 94(1) CrPC does not empower a Magistrate to direct the prosecution to give copies of any documents to an accused person. It is impermissible to read into S. 94, Criminal Procedure Code the requirements of S. 173(4), Criminal Procedure Code. The requirements of S. 173(4) CrPC cannot be applied to cases instituted on private complaints. Collector of Customs v. L.R. Melwani, AIR 1970 SC 962: (1969) 2 SCR 438: (1970) 72 Bom LR 782: 1970 Cri LJ 885.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1968]

[8083] — Ss. 173(4) and 207-A(3) — Supply of statements and documents to the accused — If the statements in connected cases should be supplied to the accused — No provision in the Code for the supply of the statements in the connected cases to the accused

There is no provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure that copies of statements recorded under S. 161 in a connected case should be made available to the defence though there is nothing prohibiting it and in the instant case it would have been better to have done so especially since the statements of these witnesses were not recorded by the Sub-Inspector of Mukhtsar apart from what they had stated before the Sub-Inspector of Jalalabad, copies of which could have been given to the defence.

Sub-section (4) of S. 173, read with sub-section (3) of S. 207-A, makes ample provision for the defence to be in possession of all the statements and documents before the inquiry begins, but nowhere is it stated either in S. 173(4) or S. 207-A (3) that the statements in connected cases should be supplied to the accused. In this connection we may also refer to S. 251-A inserted in Chap. XXI, relating to the trial of Warrant Cases by Magistrates. Sub-section (1) of S. 251-A corresponds to S. 207-A (3). Even here there is no reference to the statements in connected cases. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, 1012.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

[8084] — Ss. 173(4) and 207-A(3) — Supply of documents to the accused — Effect of non-compliance — If mandatory — Does not necessarily have the result of vitiating committal proceedings and subsequent trial

Provisions of Ss. 173(4) and 207-A(3) have been introduced by the amending Act of 1955, in order to simplify the procedure in respect of inquiries leading up to a sessions trial, and at the same time, to safeguard the interests of accused persons by enjoining upon police officers concerned and Magistrate before whom such proceedings are brought, to see that all the documents, necessary to give the accused persons all the information for the proper conduct of their defence, are furnished. Non-compliance with these provisions does not however has, necessarily, the result of vitiating those proceedings and subsequent trial. The word "shall" occurring both in sub-section (4) of S. 173 and sub-section (3) of S. 207-A, is not mandatory but only directory, because an omission by a police officer, to fully comply with the provisions of S. 173, should not be allowed to have such a far reaching effect as to render the proceedings including the trial before the Court of Sessions, wholly ineffective. Certainly, if it is shown, in a particular case, on behalf of the accused persons that the omission on the part of police officers concerned or of the Magistrate before whom the committal proceedings had pended, has caused prejudice to the accused, in the interest of justice, the Court may re-open the proceedings by insisting upon full compliance with the provisions of the Code. Narayan Rao v. State of A.P., AIR 1957 SC 737: 1958 SCR 283: 1957 Cri LJ 1320, 24, 25.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-7-1957]

[8085] — S. 173(4) (as amended by Act 26 of 1955) — Scope

When the police officer after completing his investigation sends his report to the Magistrate, copies of the statements and documents should be furnished to the accused. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, 1012.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

— S. 174 See also Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

[8086] — S. 174 — Inquest report signed by Head Constable who conducted the inquest and by five persons present there — No witness examined except the Head Constable — Effect of Section 174 does not prescribe that any of the Panchayatdars should be examined as the witnesses in the case. The inquest report was proved by the Head Constable who conducted the inquest. Pati Ram v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 703.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1969]

[8087] — S. 174 — Inquest report and post-mortem report not tallying — Admissibility. Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216: (1955) 1 SCR 1083: 1955 Cri LJ 572.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1954]

[8088] — S. 174 — Object — Inquest report — Details of overt acts of accused to be recorded in — Whether any reflection can be cast on the credibility of eyewitnesses from such omission — CrPC, 1973, S. 174

The object of the proceedings under S. 174 is merely to ascertain whether a person has died under suspicious circumstances or an unnatural death and if so what is the apparent cause of the death. The question regarding the details as to how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted is foreign to the ambit and scope of the proceedings under S. 174. In these circumstances, therefore, neither in practice nor in law is it necessary for the police to mention these details in the inquest report.

From the mere fact that these were not noted in the inquest report it cannot be concluded that the statements given by the witnesses and read over at the inquest did not contain those overt acts and the statements produced at the trial are those of the witnesses which were taken later.

Hence the omissions in the inquest report are not sufficient to put the prosecution out of court. Pedda Narayana v. State of A.P., (1975) 4 SCC 153: 1975 SCC (Cri) 427: AIR 1975 SC 1252: 1975 Cri LJ 1062: (1975) 12 ACC 201: 1975 Cr LR (SC) 335.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1975]

[8089] — S. 174 — Post-mortem — Form to be filled in as part of the medical report — No significance can be attached to things necessarily done as part of routine by the medical officer

Every post-mortem report form, as used in Maharashtra, contains a para about the preservation of the viscera, the idea simply being that in spite of the Medical Officer not suspecting any poison he was not at liberty to destroy the viscera until he finally hears from the Investigating Officer that the viscera might be destroyed. It is wrong to think that the Medical Officer had himself suspected some poisoning and had, therefore, preserved the viscera. State of Maharashtra v. Manglya Dhavu Kongil, (1972) 3 SCC 46: 1972 SCC (Cri) 237: AIR 1972 SC 1797: 1972 Cri LJ 570.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-1972]

— S. 174(4) See Ss. 160, 161(1), (2) and (3), 163(1) and 174(4)

— S. 175 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

— S. 176 See Ch. XIV (Ss. 154 to 176)

[8090] — S. 177 — Scope — "Ordinarily" — Meaning

The rule laid down by S. 177 is one of general application and governs all criminal trials held under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure. It is true that the Section has used the word "ordinarily" but it is not disputed that the said word means "except where provided otherwise in the Code". Narumal v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 1329, 1332: 1960 Cri LJ 1674.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K. Subba Rao[2], K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1959]

See also (1962) 2 SCR 101: AIR 1961 SC 1589, 1593: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 728 for a different opinion

[8091] — S. 177 — Bombay Prevention of Hindu Bigamous Marriages Act, 1946 — S. 8 Proviso and S. 8-A Proviso — Held, do not have overriding effect. (Per majority). Narumal v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 1329: 1960 Cri LJ 1674.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K. Subba Rao[2], K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1959]

[8092] — S. 177 — Foreigner committing crime in India, without being corporeally present — Jurisdiction — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 2 and 3

On a plain reading of S. 2 of Penal Code, the Code does apply to a foreigner who has committed an offence within India notwithstanding that he was corporeally present outside. Mobarik Ali Ahmed v. State of Bombay, AIR 1957 SC 857, 870: 1958 SCR 328: 1957 Cri LJ 1346.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1957]

[8093] — S. 177 — Foreigner extradited for another offence can be tried for other offences committed by him. Mobarik Ali Ahmed v. State of Bombay, AIR 1957 SC 857: 1958 SCR 328: 1957 Cri LJ 1346.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1957]

[8094] — S. 177 — Power of State Legislature to make overriding provision — Must be explicitly done

There is no doubt that the State Legislature is competent to provide for the trial of offences created by its statutes otherwise than is prescribed by S. 177 of the Code; but it must clearly appear from the relevant provision of the special statute that a departure from the general principle prescribed by S. 177 is intended. Narumal v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 1329, 1332: 1960 Cri LJ 1674.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K. Subba Rao[2], K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1959]

[8095] — Ss. 177, 180 and 239 — Place of trial — Court having jurisdiction to try offences committed in pursuance of the conspiracy — Can also try offence of conspiracy even if it was committed outside its jurisdiction

The Court having jurisdiction to try the offence of criminal conspiracy can also try offences committed in pursuance of that conspiracy even if those offences were committed outside the jurisdiction of that Court, as the provisions of S. 239, CrPC are not controlled by the provisions of S. 177, CrPC which do not create an absolute prohibition against the trial of offences by a court other than the one within whose jurisdiction the offence is committed. L.N. Mukherjee v. State of Madras, AIR 1961 SC 1601: (1962) 2 SCR 116: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 736.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

[8096] — Ss. 177, 235 and 239 — Place of trial — Trial of criminal conspiracy and of the overt acts committed in pursuance of it — The Court having jurisdiction to try the offence of conspiracy has also jurisdiction to try an offence constituted by the overt acts committed in pursuance of the conspiracy

The provisions of Ss. 177, 235 and 239 Criminal Procedure Code should be construed to give jurisdiction to the Court trying the offence of criminal conspiracy to try all the overt acts committed in pursuance of that conspiracy.

The desirability of the trial, together, of an offence of criminal conspiracy and of all the overt acts committed in pursuance of it, is obvious. To establish the offence of criminal conspiracy, evidence of the overt acts must be given by the prosecution. Such evidence will be necessarily tested by cross examination on behalf of the accused.

The Court will have to come to a decision about the credibility of such evidence and, on the basis of such evidence, would determine whether the offence of criminal conspiracy has been established or not. Having done all this, the Court could also very conveniently record a finding of 'guilty' or 'not guilty' with respect to the accused said to have actually committed the various overt acts. If some of the overt acts were committed outside the jurisdiction of the Court trying the offence of criminal conspiracy and if the law be that such overt acts could not be tried by that Court, it would mean that either the prosecution is forced to give up its right of prosecuting those accused for the commission of those overt acts or that both the prosecution and the accused are put to unnecessary trouble inasmuch as the prosecution will have to produce the same evidence a second time and the accused will have to test the credibility of that evidence a second time. The time of another Court will be again spent a second time in determining the same question. There would be the risk of the second Court coming to a different conclusion from that of the first Court. It may also be possible to urge in the second Court that it is not competent to come to a different conclusion.

Section 177 simply says that ordinarily every offence would be tried by a court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction it was committed. It does not say that it would be tried by such court except in the cases mentioned in Ss. 179 to 185 and 188 or in cases specially provided by any other provision of law. It leaves the place of trial open. Its provisions are not peremptory. There is no reason why the provisions of Ss. 233 to 239 may not also provide exceptions to S. 177, if they do permit the trial of a particular offence along with others in one court.

As Ss. 235 and 239 of the Code are enabling sections, the Legislature, rightly, did not use the expression which would have made it incumbent on the Court to try a person of the various offences at one trial or to try various persons for the different offences committed in the course of the same transaction together. The omission to make such peremptory provision does not necessarily indicate the intention of the Legislature that the Court having jurisdiction to try certain offences cannot try an offence committed in the course of the same transaction, but beyond its jurisdiction.

The only limitation on the jurisdiction of the Court to charge and try together various persons in pursuance of the provisions of cl. (a) of S. 239, CrPC is that the accusation against those persons should be of offences committed in the course of the same transaction. It cannot be disputed that the accusation against the accused with respect to the overt acts committed by them in pursuance of a conspiracy is with respect to offences committed in the course of the same transaction and that therefore persons accused of these offences can be tried together at one trial in pursuance of the provisions of cl. (a) of S. 239. Purushottamdas Dalmia v. State of W.B., AIR 1961 SC 1589: (1962) 2 SCR 101: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 728: (1961) 2 MLJ (SC) 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

See also AIR 1960 SC 1239: 1960 Cri LJ 1674

[8097] — S. 179 — Jurisdiction — Court competent to try an accused of conspiracy — Is competent to try him for all offences committed in pursuance of that conspiracy even beyond its territorial jurisdiction

A court trying an accused for an offence of conspiracy is competent to try him for all offences committed in pursuance of that conspiracy irrespective of the fact that any or all the other offences were not committed within its territorial jurisdiction. Banwarilal Jhunjhunwala v. Union of India, AIR 1963 SC 1620: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 338: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 529, 33.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1962]

[8098] — Ss. 179 and 180 — Place of trial — Trial of 'S' for offence of cheating and of 'H' for its abetment — Misrepresentation by S at Simla — Payment to S as a result of misrepresentation at Lahore — S and H can be tried for cheating and abetment of this offence respectively either at Simla or Lahore

Misrepresentation by S was at Simla and the consequence was at Lahore as the Government of Burma was induced by the misrepresentation to deliver money at Lahore. S could therefore have been tried either at Simla or at Lahore. Illustration (a) to S. 180 CrPC states that a charge of abetment can be inquired into or tried either within the local limits of whose jurisdiction abetment was committed or by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the offence abetted was committed. Consequently H could be tried for the abetment of the offence of cheating either at Lahore or at Shimla. There was therefore no illegality in trying both S and H together at Simla. K. Satwant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 266: (1960) 2 SCR 89: 1960 Cri LJ 410.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and Syed Jafer Imam[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1] and K.C. Das Gupta[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1959]

[8099] — Ss. 179 and 182 — Applicability — Jurisdiction of court — Truck of accused with a forged permit issued at Indore checked at Nasik — Trial for offences under Ss. 471 and 474, IPC at Indore — Held the Court had jurisdiction

The appellant was the owner of the truck which was in the possession of his driver. The truck was checked at Nasik on the suspicion that it was overloaded. The permit which was produced before the authorities was found to be a temporary permit issued at Indore. On inspection it was found that the permit which had been issued from July 1, 1960 to July 31, 1960 was altered to read August 1, 1960 to August 31, 1960. The appellant was tried at Indore. It was contended that Indore Courts had no jurisdiction to try the case.

Held :

The appellant in the present case had a forged permit which could be used by him at any of the points between Indore and any out-station. He obviously intended using it when occasion demanded and thus he was guilty of an offence under S. 474, Penal Code, from the moment he had in his possession the forged permit, knowing that it was forged and intended to use it. As this offence was a continuing one it could be tried at Indore and the offence under S. 471 which was the desired consequence could also be tried at Indore in view of S. 179. Gajjan Singh v. State of M.P., AIR 1965 SC 1921: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 822.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1965]

[8100] — Ss. 179 and 182 — Place of trial — Accused despatching commodity from Bombay to Nasik — Sample taken at Nasik — Trial under Food Adulteration Act at Nasik is within jurisdiction. Mangaldas Raghavji Ruparel v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1966 SC 128: (1965) 2 SCR 894: 1966 Cri LJ 106.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah, J.C. Shah, J.R. Mudholkar and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-1965]

[8101] — Ss. 179 and 188 — Applicability — Plea of inquiry and trial — Charge of cheating in 1942 when Kolhapur was in a native State — Misrepresentation by accused at Simla — False certification by the abetter at Jhansi — Payment as a result of misrepresentation made by cheque posted from Kolhapur, delivered at Lahore and cashed at Lahore — No part of offence cheating committed at Kolhapur i.e. outside British India — S. 183 not applicable. K. Satwant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 266: (1960) 2 SCR 89: 1960 Cri LJ 410.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and Syed Jafer Imam[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1] and K.C. Das Gupta[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1959]

— S. 180 See Ss. 177, 180 and 239

See also Ss. 179 and 180

[8102] — S. 180 — Offence committed in furtherance of criminal conspiracy

The Court having jurisdiction to try the offence of conspiracy has also jurisdiction to try an offence constituted by the overt acts which are committed, in pursuance of the conspiracy, beyond its jurisdiction. Purushottamdas Dalmia v. State of W.B., AIR 1961 SC 1589: (1962) 2 SCR 101: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 728: (1961) 2 MLJ (SC) 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

Affirmed in (1963) 1 SCR 253: AIR 1962 SC 1821: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 805

— S. 181 See Ss. 182 and 181

[8103] — Ss. 181(2) and 182 — Territorial jurisdiction of Chief Presidency Magistrate — 5th Presidency Magistrate reporting uncertainty on location of crime — No challenge before Chief Presidency Magistrate — Cannot be pleaded in appeal to High Court

In view of the report made by the 5th Presidency Magistrate that it was uncertain in which of the local areas the offence was committed, which was not challenged before the Chief Presidency Magistrate, plea of absence of territorial jurisdiction which appealed to the High Court has no substance. The Chief Presidency Magistrate was competent to enquire into and to try the proceedings before him. K.A.A. Brinnand v. Bijoyanand Patnaik, (1971) 3 SCC 943: 1972 SCC (Cri) 191.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-2-1970]

— S. 182 See Ss. 179 and 182

See also Ss. 181(2) and 182

[8104] — Ss. 182 and 181 — Offence for criminal breach of trust — Prosecution being in doubt as to when the idea of embezzlement took root — Prosecution was justified to file a charge-sheet taking the plea that the place of embezzlement was uncertain — Venue of enquiry or trial in a case when the place of embezzlement is uncertain is primarily to be determined by the averment contained in the complaint or charge-sheet — Ordinarily where the facts contained in the complaint or charge-sheet are disproved the court where the charge-sheet or complaint is filed has to proceed with it

The respondent was an agent of company A whose head office was situated at Nagpur where the books were maintained and the staff located. The Board of Directors functioned at Nagpur and the employment of the respondent was also at Nagpur though he stayed for a term at Bombay. On 12-1-1950 a car belonging to A was entrusted to the respondent at Nagpur for sale. Respondent sold the car at Bombay and received the money there between 13th and January 14, 1950. The sale proceeds were not credited in the company's books, nor the money paid over to the company there or thereafter. For the first time in October, 1950 the respondent in the general meeting of the shareholders stated that the sale proceeds were entered in the books of accounts which admittedly was a false statement.

Held :

The venue of enquiry or trial of a case like the present is primarily to be determined by the averments contained in the complaint or charge-sheet and unless the facts there are positively disproved, ordinarily the court, where the charge-sheet or complaint is filed, has to proceed with it, except where action has to be taken under S. 202 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

In the circumstances it is uncertain whether the offence of embezzlement was committed at Bombay or Nagpur, and that being the case, paragraph 1 of S. 182 of the Criminal Procedure Code applies, with the result that the offence can be enquired into by a court situated either in Nagpur or in Bombay. Section 182, Criminal Procedure Code, is a specific provision and not a general principle of law, and in fact, S. 182 is supplemental to the 3rd clause of S. 181(2).

Courts of Nagpur and Bombay both had jurisdiction to try the case in view of S. 182 CrPC which applied to the case. State of M.P. v. K.P. Ghiara, AIR 1957 SC 196: 1957 Cri LJ 322: 1957 MPLJ 230.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1956]

[8105] — S. 185 — Duty of High Court when considering question of jurisdiction

It is obligatory, when a question as to the jurisdiction of a Court is raised, to decide, if it is contended that the offence was committed in another jurisdiction, to determine in which jurisdiction the offence was committed. K.A.A. Brinnand v. Bijoyanand Patnaik, (1971) 3 SCC 943: 1972 SCC (Cri) 191.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-2-1970]

[8106] — S. 186 — Direct evidence produced — Documentary evidence — Destruction of — Prosecution's duty

It was not any part of the duty of the prosecution to produce documentary evidence, particularly in view of the fact that direct evidence of the offence was produced in the case.

Further, since the register containing the material entries was destroyed, it was impossible for the prosecution to discharge the alleged burden of proving the entries in the duty register on the material date. Aftab Ahmad Khan v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 436: (1955) 1 SCR 588: 1954 Cri LJ 1155.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1954]

— S. 188 See also Ss. 179 and 188

[8107] — S. 188 — Effect of cl. 3 of Instrument of Accession on the power of Raj Pramukh of United States of Vindhya Pradesh to legislate about the application of Ss. 3 and 4 Penal Code and S. 188, CrPC to areas within Vindhya Pradesh — Various States and particularly Rewa State had the power to pass extra-territorial laws —

Ss. 3 and 4, IPC and S. 188, CrPC at least in so far as it affected the subjects and courts of the States were entirely within the legislative competence of the States concerned for all purposes of adaptation or amendment — Instrument of Accession Dated 20-7-1948, Cls. 3, 6 and 9

The authority of Raj Pramukh referred to in cl. 9 of Instrument of Accession is not only the unfettered legislative authority to make and promulgate Ordinances for the peace and good governance of the United States or any part thereof "vested in him by Art. 9 of the integration Covenant dated 18-3-1948 but also that which is vested in him under Art. 6 of the said agreement. This article vests in him "all rights, authority, and jurisdiction belonging to the ruler of each Covenanting State and incidental to the government thereof". There can be no doubt therefore that if, as has been pointed out above, the various Covenanting States and in particular the State of Rewa, had the power to pass extra-territorial laws at least to the extent of making certain acts committed outside the State by its subjects as offences and to vest, in the State courts authority to deal with such offences, that power has not in any way been curtailed either by the integration Covenant or the Instrument of Accession. It follows therefore that Ss. 3 and 4, IPC and S. 188, CrPC — at least in so far as it affected the subjects and courts of the State were entirely within the legislative competence of the States concerned for all purposes of adaptation or amendments. Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1953 SC 394: 1953 SCR 1188: 1953 Cri LJ 1480.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, Ghulam Hasan and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-5-1953]

[8108] — S. 188 [as amended by Vindhya Pradesh Ordinance 15 of 1948 and Vindhya Pradesh Ordinance (27 of 1949)] — Extra territorial offences — Jurisdiction of Criminal Courts of Vindhya Pradesh to try extra territorial offences was lost by Ordinance 15 of 1948 — The jurisdiction was restored by Ordinance 27 of 1949 bringing in into line with S. 188 CrPC with the requisite adaptations — Power of Vindhya Pradesh Criminal Courts to try extra territorial offences interrupted from 31-12-1948 was restored on 3-5-1949 with retrospective operation

Items 62 and 63 of S. 2 of Ordinance No. 15 of 1948 would seem to indicate that the jurisdiction which the Criminal Courts of Vindhya Pradesh previously had to try extra-territorial offences was probably lost thereby. If so, that jurisdiction was restored under Ordinance 27 of 1949 by the amendment thereby of the said Items 62 and 63 thus bringing it into line with S. 188, CrPC, with the requisite adaptations. Hence the power of the Vindhya Pradesh Courts to hold trials for extra territorial offences which was probably interrupted from 31-12-1948 was restored on 3-5-1949 before the trial in this case commenced with retrospective operation i.e. as from the date of the prior ordinance i.e. 31-12-1948. Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1953 SC 394: 1953 SCR 1188: 1953 Cri LJ 1480.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, Ghulam Hasan and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-5-1953]

[8109] — S. 188 — Sanction for prosecution for an offence committed by an Indian citizen out of India — A person not being an Indian citizen at the time of commission of offence later acquiring Indian citizenship — Permission and trial are illegal. Central Bank of India v. Ram Narain, AIR 1955 SC 36: (1955) 1 SCR 697: 57 Punj LR 153: 1955 Cri LJ 152, 154.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1954]

[8110] — S. 188 — Scope — Accused must be citizen of India at the time of commission of the offence

The language of the sections plainly means that if at the time of the commission of the offence, the person committing it is a citizen of India, then even if the offence is committed outside India he is subject to the jurisdiction of the courts in India. The rule enunciated in the sections is based on the principle that qua-citizens the jurisdiction of courts is not lost by reason of the venue of the offence. If, however, at the time of the commission of the offence the accused person is not a citizen of India, then the provisions of these sections have no application whatsoever. Central Bank of India v. Ram Narain, AIR 1955 SC 36, 38: (1955) 1 SCR 697: 57 Punj LR 153: 1955 Cri LJ 152.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1954]

— S. 190 See Ss. 4(1)(h) and 190
See also Ss. 173, 156 and 190
See also Ss. 173, 190, 251-A and 252
See also Ss. 195 and 190
See also Ss. 195(1)(a) to (c), 190

[8111] — S. 190 — Pari materia provision — S. 190 CrPC, 1898, held was in pari materia with S. 190 CrPC, 1973 (Para 26). Chief Enforcement Officer v. Videocon International Ltd., (2008) 2 SCC 492: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 471: AIR 2008 SC 1213: 2008 Cri LJ 1636.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-2008]

[8112] — S. 190 — Cognizance already taken

Cognizance having already been taken by the Magistrate before he made the order there was no scope of cognizance being taken afresh of the same offence after the police officer's report was received. Jamuna Singh v. Bhadai Shah, AIR 1964 SC 1541, 1545: (1964) 5 SCR 37: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 468.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-10-1963]

[8113] — S. 190 — Cognizance of all offences to be taken

When a Magistrate takes cognizance of offences under S. 190(1)(b) CrPC he takes cognizance of all offences constituted by the facts reported by the police officer and not only of some of such offences. Pramatha Nath Mukherjee v. State of W.B., AIR 1960 SC 810, 812: (1960) 3 SCR 245: 1960 Cri LJ 1165.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1960]

[8114] — S. 190 — Cognizance of offence a step to exercise of jurisdiction — Cognizance when

The competence of a Court, however, depends not merely on the circumstance that under some law it is entitled to try a case falling in the particular category in which the offence alleged against the accused falls. In addition to this, taking cognizance of the offence is also material in this regard. Under the Code of Criminal Procedure a court can take cognizance of an offence only if the conditions requisite for initiation of proceedings before it as set out in Part B of Ch. XV are fulfilled. If they are not fulfilled the Court does not obtain jurisdiction to try the offence. Mohd. Safi v. State of W.B., AIR 1966 SC 69, 71: (1965) 3 SCR 467: 1966 Cri LJ 75.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, J.R. Mudholkar and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1965]

[8115] — S. 190 — Cognizance of offence when takes place — Magistrate taking cognizance upon police report takes cognizance of the offences disclosed in such report

Taking cognizance does not involve any formal action or indeed action of any kind but occurs as soon as a Magistrate applies his mind to the suspected commission of an offence. Cognizance, therefore, takes place at a point when a Magistrate first takes judicial notice of an offence. This is the position whether the Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence on a complaint, or on a police report, or upon information of a person other than a police officer. Therefore, when a Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence upon a police report, prima facie he does so of the offence or offences disclosed in such report. Darshan Singh Ram Kishan v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 2 SCC 654: 1971 SCC (Cri) 628: AIR 1971 SC 2372: 1971 Cri LJ 1697.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1971]

[8116] — S. 190 — Defect or illegality in investigation — Effect on taking cognizance

A defect or illegality in investigation, however serious, has no direct bearing on the competence or the procedure relating to cognizance or trial. No doubt a police report which results from an investigation is provided in S. 190, CrPC, as the material on which cognizance is taken. But it cannot be maintained that a valid and legal police report is the foundation of the jurisdiction of the Court to take cognizance. Section 190, CrPC, is one out of a group of sections under the heading "Conditions requisite for initiation of proceedings". The language of this section is in marked contrast with that of the other sections of the group under the same heading i.e. Ss. 193 and 195 to 199.

These latter sections regulate the competence of the Court and bar its jurisdiction in certain cases excepting in compliance therewith. But S. 190 does not. While no doubt, in one sense, Cls. (a), (b) and (c) of S. 190(1) are conditions requisite for taking of cognizance, it is not possible to say that cognizance on an invalid police report is prohibited and is therefore a nullity. Such an invalid report may still fall either under Cl. (a) or (b) of S. 190(1), (whether it is the one or the other we need not pause to consider) and in any case cognizance so taken is only in the nature of error in a proceeding antecedent to the trial. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 203: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[8117] — S. 190 — Exception to the right of private party to complain

The offences about which the court alone, to the exclusion of the aggrieved private parties, is clothed with the right to complain may, therefore, be appropriately considered to be only those offences committed by a party to a proceeding in that court, the commission of which has a reasonably close nexus with the proceedings in that court so that it can, without embarking upon a completely independent and fresh inquiry, satisfactorily consider by reference principally to its records the expediency of prosecuting the delinquent party. Patel Laljibhai Somabhai v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 2 SCC 376: 1971 SCC (Cri) 548: AIR 1971 SC 1935: 1971 Cri LJ 1437.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1971]

[See also S. 195(1)(c)]

[8118] — S. 190 — Initiation of proceedings — When commences — Whether suspected person can be arrested during investigation

It is clear from the wording of the section that the initiation of the proceedings against a person commences on the cognizance of the offence by the Magistrate under one of the three contingencies mentioned in the section. In cases of cognizable offence before proceedings are initiated and while the matter is under investigation by the police the suspected person is liable to be arrested by the police without an order by the Magistrate. R.R. Chari v. State of U.P., AIR 1951 SC 207: 1951 SCR 312: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 775.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Harilal J. Kania, C.J. and Patanjali Sastri and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1951]

[8119] — Ss. 190, 252 and 251-A — Scope — Applicability of procedure under S. 252 and S. 251-A, CrPC

In S. 190, a distinction is made between the classes of persons who can start a criminal prosecution. Under the three clauses of S. 190(1), criminal prosecution can be initiated: (i) by a police officer by a report in writing, (ii) upon information received from any person other than a police officer or upon the Magistrate's own knowledge or suspicion, and (iii) upon receiving a complaint of facts. If the report in this case falls within (i) above, then the procedure under S. 251-A, Criminal Procedure Code, must be followed. If it falls in (ii) or (iii) then the procedure under S. 252, Criminal Procedure Code, must be followed. Pravin Chandra Mody v. State of A.P., AIR 1965 SC 1185, 1186: (1965) 1 SCR 269: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 250.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, M. Hidayatullah and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1964]

[8120] — Ss. 190 and 173 — Scope — Exercise of discretion by Magistrate

The use of the words 'may take cognizance of any offence', in sub-section (1) of S. 190, imports the exercise of a 'judicial discretion', and the Magistrate, who receives the report, under S. 173, will have to consider the said report and judicially take a decision, whether or not to take cognizance of the offence.

It is not as if the Magistrate is bound to accept the opinion of the police that there is a case for placing the accused, on trial. It is open to the Magistrate to take the view that the facts, disclosed in the report, do not make out an offence for taking cognizance or he may take the view that there is no sufficient evidence to justify an accused being put on trial. On either of these grounds, the Magistrate will be perfectly justified in declining to take cognizance of an offence, irrespective of the opinion of the police. On the other hand, if the Magistrate agrees with the report, which is a charge-sheet submitted by the police, no difficulty whatsoever is caused, because he will have full jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence, under S. 190(1)(b) of the Code. This will be the position, when the report, under S. 173, is a charge-sheet.

This provision is obviously to meet a contingency of the Magistrate, when he considers the report of the investigating officer, and judicially takes a view different from the police. Abhinandan Jha v. Dinesh Mishra, AIR 1968 SC 117, 122, 12: (1967) 3 SCR 668: 1968 Cri LJ 97.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1967]

See Ss. 169 and 170

[8121] — S. 190 — Taking cognizance — Meaning & scope — "Institution of case"

The Code does not contain any definition of the words "institution of a case". A case can be said to be instituted in a Court only when the Court takes cognizance of the offence alleged therein. Section 190(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure contains the provision for cognizance of offences by Magistrates. It provides for three ways in which such cognizance can be taken. The first is on receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence; the second is on a report in writing of such facts — that is, facts constituting the offence — made by any police officer; the third is upon information received from any person other than a police officer or upon the Magistrate's own knowledge or suspicion that such offence has been committed.

When a Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence a case is instituted in the Magistrate's Court and such a case is one instituted on a complaint. Again, when a Magistrate takes cognizance of any offence upon a report in writing of such facts made by any police officer.

When on a petition of complaint being filed before him a Magistrate applies his mind for proceeding under the various provisions of Ch. XVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he must be held to have taken cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint. When however he applies his mind not for such purpose but for purposes of ordering investigation under S. 156(3) or issues a search warrant for the purpose of investigation he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of any offence. Jamuna Singh v. Bhadai Shah, AIR 1964 SC 1541, 1543: (1964) 5 SCR 37: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 468.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-10-1963]

[8122] — S. 190 — 'Instituted'

There are three different ways in which cognizance is taken by Magistrates of offences. This is stated in S. 190 of the Code. They are:

(a) upon receiving a complaint of the facts made by any Police Officer;

(b) upon a report in writing of such facts made by any Police Officer; and

(c) upon information received from any persons other than a Police Officer, or upon his own knowledge or suspicion, that such offence has been committed. Bhimappa Basappa Bhu Sannavar v. Laxman Shivarayappa Samagouda, (1970) 1 SCC 665: 1970 SCC (Cri) 263: AIR 1970 SC 1153: 1970 Cri LJ 1132.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1970]

[8123] — S. 190 — Taking cognizance of a case — Scope and meaning — Magistrate not applying his mind for proceeding under the sections of Ch. XVI of the Code — Applying his mind for taking some other action e.g. ordering investigation under S. 156(3) of the Code etc. etc. — Cognizance not taken

When a Magistrate applies his mind not for the purpose of proceeding under the various sections of Ch. XVI but for taking action of some other kind e.g. ordering investigation, under S. 156(3) or issuing a search warrant for the purpose of investigation, he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of any offence. Gopal Das Sindhi v. State of Assam, AIR 1961 SC 986: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 39.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1961]

[8124] — S. 190 — Taking cognizance of a case on complaint — Scope and meaning — Magistrate not bound to take cognizance if the facts disclose the commission of an offence

Provisions of S. 190 cannot mean that once a complaint is filed, a Magistrate is bound to take cognizance if the facts stated in the complaint disclose the commission of an offence. Word 'may' in S. 190 cannot be construed to mean 'must'. A complaint disclosing cognizable offences may well justify a Magistrate in sending the complaint, under S. 156(3) to the police for investigation. There is no reason why the time of the Magistrate should be wasted when primarily the duty to investigate in cases involving cognizable offences is with the police. On the other hand, there may be occasions when the Magistrate may exercise his discretion and take cognizance of a cognizable offence. If he does so then he would have to proceed in the manner provided by Ch. XVI of the Code. Gopal Das Sindhi v. State of Assam, AIR 1961 SC 986: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 39.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1961]

[8125] — Ss. 190, 193 and 206 — New Code provides for cognizance of an offence and committal of a case, as contradistinguished from cognizance of an offender or committal of an accused to Court of Session as was in the old Code — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 190 and 193 (Para 23). Popular Muthiah v. State, (2006) 7 SCC 296: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 245.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-7-2006]

[8126] — Ss. 190, 195(1)(a) to (c) — Stage when the legality of the cognizance taken is to be adjudged — Secondly the question whether Magistrate's power to take cognizance has or has not been taken away by Sections 195(1)(a) to (c) are to be examined

The point of time at which the legality of the cognizance taken is to be adjudged is the time when cognizance is actually taken by a Magistrate. The Magistrate has normally got jurisdiction to take cognizance under S. 190 of the Code in the circumstances enumerated therein. S. 195 is in fact a limitation on the unfettered powers of a Magistrate to take cognizance under S. 190 of the Code. Therefore, at the stage when the Magistrate is taking cognizance under S. 190, he must examine the facts of the complaint before him and determine whether his power to take cognizance under S. 190 has or has not been taken away by any of the Cls. (a) to (c) of S. 195(1). Therefore, if there is a non-compliance with the provisions of S. 195, the Magistrate will have no jurisdiction to take cognizance of any of the offences enumerated therein. Govind Mehta v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 329: 1971 SCC (Cri) 608: AIR 1971 SC 1708: 1971 Cri LJ 1266.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1971]

[8127] — Ss. 190, 202 and 156(3) — Powers of Magistrate to ask for investigation before and after taking cognizance of the case

The Magistrate can under S. 190 of CrPC before taking cognizance ask for investigation by the police under S. 156(3) of CrPC. The Magistrate can also issue warrant for production before taking cognizance. If after cognizance has been taken the Magistrate wants any investigation, it will be under S. 202 of CrPC. State of Assam v. Abdul Noor, (1970) 3 SCC 10: 1970 SCC (Cri) 360: AIR 1970 SC 1365: 1970 Cri LJ 1264: 72 Punj LR 585.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1970]

[8128] — Ss. 190 and 169 — Magistrate, held, does not take cognizance of offence before he discharges the accused agreeing with the police report under S. 169

Per Kailasam, J.

A report under S. 169 of the CrPC and the Magistrate agreeing with it, are proceedings under Chap. XIV which relates to information to the police and their power to investigate. The Chapter provides for supervision by the Magistrates of the investigation by the police. Magistrate has no option except to agree with the report of the police officer unless he proceeds to take cognizance of the offence under S. 190(1)(c). It cannot be held that before a Magistrate discharges an accused agreeing with the report of the police under S. 169, CrPC, he takes cognizance. Though the Magistrate in deciding whether to accept the report or not may be exercising his judicial mind, it cannot be said that he is acting as a court. Most of requirements of a court are lacking when the Magistrate agrees with the report of the police officer under S. 169. At this stage the rights of the parties are not finally decided as the complainant is entitled to file a complaint directly to the Magistrate. The persons accused are not before the Magistrate and neither the complainant nor the accused are entitled to be heard or to adduce evidence before the Magistrate at this stage. It cannot be said that the Magistrate has a duty to decide the matter on a consideration of the evidence adduced before him. Thus the conclusion is that when no further proceedings are taken by the Magistrate on receipt of a police report under S. 169 there is no proceeding in or in relation to any court and, therefore, no complaint by the court is necessary. Kamlapati Trivedi v. State of W.B., (1980) 2 SCC 91: 1980 SCC (Cri) 347: AIR 1979 SC 777: 1979 Cri LJ 679.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Jaswant Singh[1], P.S. Kailasam[2] and A.D. Koshal[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1978]

[8129] — Ss. 190 and 195 to 199 — Generally — Scope

Section 190 of the Code of Criminal Procedure confers a general power on a criminal Court to take cognizance of offences, but the exercise of such power in certain cases is prohibited by the provisions of Ss. 195 to 199 of the Code unless the conditions mentioned therein are complied with. S.A. Venkataraman v. State, AIR 1958 SC 107, 110: 1958 SCR 1040: (1958) 2 LLJ 1: 1958 Cri LJ 254.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1957]

[8130] — Ss. 190 and 195(1)(b) — Scope — Cognizance of an offence otherwise than under S. 195(1)(b) — "In or in relation to, any proceeding in any Court" occurring in S. 195(1)(b) — Meaning of — A proceeding in contemplation not a proceeding in Court — In December, 1958, M filing a complaint against R with the police — In April, 1959 when M's complaint was still under investigation R filing a complaint before the Magistrate for offences under S. 211 IPC and some other sections of IPC — Cognizance taken — Later R arrested and challaned on the complaint of M to police in July, 1959 i.e. long after cognizance an R's complaint was taken — Held, complaint under S. 211 IPC was not "in, or in relation to, any proceeding in any Court" and was therefore not barred by S. 195(1)(b) CrPC. M.L. Sethi v. R.P. Kapur, AIR 1967 SC 528: (1967) 1 SCR 520: 1967 Cri LJ 528, 31, 34.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1966]

[8131] — Ss. 190 and 200 — Cognizance of offence by Magistrate on the basis of complaint — Examination of complainant not essential

Taking cognizance of an offence within the meaning of S. 190 only means that the Magistrate must apply his mind to the contents of the complaint before him for the purpose of proceeding under S. 200 and other provisions of the Code following it. If he can be said to have taken cognizance on the said complaint, there was no necessity for him to examine the complainant as the complaint was in writing and was by a public officer who was directed by the State Government to prosecute the petitioner and others. Mowu v. Supdt., Special Jail, (1971) 3 SCC 936: 1972 SCC (Cri) 184: 1971 CAR 66 (SC).

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1970]

[8132] — Ss. 190 and 207-A — Discharge of an accused named in Col. No. 2 of charge-sheet under the heading 'not sent up' — Accused appellant's plea of alibi being accepted by police — He not being named in charge-sheet as accused but mentioned in Col. No. 2 of charge-sheet under heading not sent up — Magistrate taking cognizance against accused named in Col. Nos. 3 and 4 and discharging the accused named in Col. No. 2 — Held, accused not discharged — Magistrate during the trial was competent to summon the accused appellant as an accused

There is no force in the contention that the judicial refusal to summon amounts to discharge. There cannot be any question of discharge when the appellant was not sent up upon the charge-sheet submitted by the police. The Magistrate was therefore competent to summon the appellant during the trial. Raghubans Dubey v. State of Bihar, AIR 1967 SC 1167: (1967) 2 SCR 423: 1967 Cri LJ 1081, 83, 84.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1967]

[8133] — S. 190(1) — Cognizance of an offence — Complaint filed and the Magistrate sending the case for trial to another Magistrate — Magistrate taking cognizance on the date on which complaint was filed and case sent to the other Magistrate

On 16-9-1952 the Inspector applied to the Magistrate for a search warrant which was issued and permission to investigate the case was allowed. The same day a warrant of arrest was also issued with the permission of the Magistrate. The appellant was arrested, released on bail and directed to appear before the Magistrate on September 19, 1952. On September 19, 1952 the appellant was allowed to give bail and time for investigation was extended till November 19, 1952. Time was further extended to January 2, 1953 and later to February 2, 1953. The inspector filed the complaint on February 2, 1953. The Magistrate, the same day, sent the case to another Magistrate for disposal.

Held :

The Magistrate must be regarded to have taken cognizance of the offence on February 2, 1953 when he sent the case to another Magistrate for trial. On a reading of the various orders of the Magistrate it is clear that no cognizance of the offence was taken till February 2, 1953. The orders passed by the Magistrate prior to February 2, 1953 were orders passed while the investigation by the police into a non-cognizable offence was in progress. Narayandas Bhagwandas Madhavdas v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1118: (1960) 1 SCR 93: 1959 Cri LJ 1368, 73.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1959]

[8134] — S. 190(1) — Cognizance of offence — Meaning — Depends on the facts and circumstances of each case — Cognizance is taken when the Magistrate has applied his mind

As to when cognizance is taken of an offence will depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case and it is impossible to attempt to define what is meant by taking cognizance. Issuing of a search warrant for the purpose of an investigation or of a warrant of arrest for that purpose cannot by themselves be regarded as acts by which cognizance was taken of an offence. Obviously, it is only when a Magistrate applies his mind for the purpose of proceeding under S. 200 and subsequent sections of Ch. XVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure or under S. 204 of Ch. XVII of the Code that it can be positively stated that he had applied his mind and therefore had taken cognizance. Narayandas Bhagwandas Madhavdas v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1118: (1960) 1 SCR 93: 1959 Cri LJ 1368, 73.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1959]

1951 SCR 312: AIR 1951 SC 207: 52 Cri LJ 775, explained

[8135] — S. 190(1) — Scope and meaning — "Cognizance" — Meaning of — Means taking notice of by a Court judicially — Cognizance is taken as soon as Court applies its mind

The word "cognizance" has no esoteric or mystic significance in criminal law or procedure. It merely means — become aware of and when used with reference to a court or Judge, to take notice of judicially. "Taking cognizance does not involve any formal action; or indeed action of any kind, but occurs as soon as a Magistrate, as such, applies his mind to the suspected commission of an offence". Ajit Kumar Palit v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 765: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 953: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 797, 801.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-11-1962]

— Ss. 190(1)(a), (b) & (c) See Ss. 207-A and 190(1)(a), (b) & (c)

[8136] — Ss. 190(1)(a) and (b) & 529 — Cognizance of proceedings taken of by Magistrate without power — No prejudice shown — Validity of proceedings — Curability of defect

Where a Magistrate of the First Class 'bona fide' takes cognizance of the proceedings under S. 190(1)(a) and (b) though he had no power to do so and no prejudice to the accused is shown the defect is cured by S. 529 CrPC. It cannot be held that the defect will not be cured by a 'bona fide' decision given by Sri Kansara as to the existence of the power when objection thereto is taken, even assuming without deciding that "the taking of cognizance" was then continuing. Therefore the said proceedings are not void. Purshottam Jethanand v. State of Kutch, AIR 1954 SC 700: 1954 Cri LJ 1751.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1954]

— S. 190(1)(b) See Ss. 190(1)(a) and (b) & 529

[8137] — S. 190(1)(b) — Held, mandatory — When it may violate Art. 14 of the Constitution

Under S. 190(1)(b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Magistrate is bound to take cognizance of any cognizable offence brought to his notice. The words "may take cognizance in the context means "must take cognizance". He has no discretion in the matter, otherwise that section will be violative of Art. 14. A.C. Aggarwal, Sub-Divisional Magistrate v. Ram Kali, AIR 1968 SC 1: (1968) 1 SCR 205: 70 Punj LR 261: 1968 Cri LJ 82.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, C.J. and R.S. Bachawat, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-8-1967]

[8138] — S. 190(1)(b) — "Police officer" — Meaning — Held, to mean a police officer properly so called Central Excise Officer cannot complain under Cl. (b) but he can under Cl. (a). Badaku Joti Savant v. State of Mysore, AIR 1966 SC 1746: (1966) 3 SCR 698: 1966 Cri LJ 1353.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah, J.C. Shah and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1966]

[8139] — Ss. 190(1)(b) and 173(1) — An incomplete challan submitted by the police — Magistrate took cognizance on that challan — Whether it vitiates the proceedings

An incomplete challan submitted by the police under S. 173(1) is in fact a complete report within the meaning of S. 190(1)(b) CrPC. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

— S. 190(1)(c) See Ss. 156(3) and 190(1)(c)

See also Ss. 173, 156(3) and 190(1)(c)

— S. 190(1)(f) See Ss. 190(1)(a) and (b) & 529

See also Ss. 251-A(2) and 190(1)(b)

[8140] — S. 192 — Transfer of case — Transfer of case by a Magistrate before taking cognizance — Is not a transfer under S. 192 — Is only an administrative action

The transfer of a case contemplated under S. 192 is only of cases in which cognizance of an offence has been taken. If the Additional District Magistrate had not taken cognizance of any offence when the complaint was presented to him his sending the complaint to another Magistrate for disposal would not be a transfer of case under S. 192. The complaint appears to have been sent by way of an administrative action. Gopal Das Sindhi v. State of Assam, AIR 1961 SC 986: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 39.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1961]

— S. 193 See also Ss. 190, 193 and 206

[8141] — S. 193 — High Court transferring case to Session's Court — Whether Session's Court barred under S. 193 — Whether amounts to taking cognizance

When the Sessions Court receives a case on transfer by the High Court it is not to consider whether it should proceed or not with the case. It has to proceed with the case as it has been transferred to it by the High Court. There is, therefore, no occasion for the Court of Session to take cognizance of the offence in the sense that it has to determine whether the proceeding should be initiated in connection with the offence or not. The proceedings have been already initiated by the Magistrate and have been simply transferred to it. It has simply to proceed with the inquiry or trial as the case may be as the case has been made over to it by the High Court.

Therefore, the further proceedings by the Court of Session in a case transferred to it by the High Court are not barred by S. 193 of the Code. P.C. Gulati v. Lajya Ram, AIR 1966 SC 595, 598, 59: (1966) 1 SCR 560: 1966 Cri LJ 465.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar[1], Raghubar Dayal[1] and V. Ramaswami[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1965]

— S. 195 See Ss. 173 and 195

See also Ss. 190 and 195 to 199

See also Ss. 476-B, 195 and 476

[8142] — S. 195 — Court — Meaning of — A nominee of the Registrar appointed under S. 95 of the Maharashtra Cooperative Societies Act, 1960, is not a court within the meaning of S. 195. Rama Rao v. Narayan, (1969) 1 SCC 167: AIR 1969 SC 724: 1969 Cri LJ 1064.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-12-1968]

[8143] — S. 195 — Applicability — Preparation of false record by government servant — Offence is complete the moment such false record is complete — Use of such record in judicial proceeding not necessary — Offence falls under S. 218 IPC — Bar of S. 195, CrPC, 1898 cannot be invoked — Private complaint maintainable — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 218, 192 and 193

The offence in S. 218 is the preparation of a false record by a public servant with the intention of saving or injuring any person or property. The offence was complete the moment the false record was made with the said intention and it was not necessary for the completion of this offence that the record should be used in a judicial proceedings so as to cause an erroneous opinion to be formed touching on a point material to the result of such proceeding. Where the lekhpal prepared a false record to save any property of H from vendees and H abetted the act, the offences would fall within S. 218 and not under Ss. 192/193 of the Penal Code. It may fall in the latter sections if the entry can be said to be in or in relation to a Court. This cannot be said of the entries in the khasra. As S. 218 is not named in S. 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the private complaint could be entertained by court and this was no bar. Kamla Prasad Singh v. Hari Nath Singh, AIR 1968 SC 19: (1967) 3 SCR 828: 1968 Cri LJ 86, 88-89.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-4-1967]

[8144] — Ss. 195 and 200 — Cognizance of offence under S. 297 IPC can be taken though no proceedings are taken for offence under S. 182 IPC under S. 195, CrPC, 1898 — Appellant lodging false report of murder leading to stoppage of funeral — State not proceeding against appellant — Affected party could complain under S. 200, CrPC and court can record conviction under Ss. 297 and 500, IPC — S. 195, CrPC is no bar — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 297 and 182. Basir-ul-Haq v. State of W.B., AIR 1953 SC 293: 1953 SCR 836: 1953 Cri LJ 1232.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1953]

See also AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 (1) Cri LJ 770

[8145] — Ss. 195 and 190 — Relative scope — Held, S. 195 is a fetter on the power of Magistrate under S. 190

Section 195, is, in fact, a limitation on the unfettered power of a Magistrate to take cognizance under S. 190. M.L. Sethi v. R.P. Kapur, AIR 1967 SC 528, 531: (1967) 1 SCR 520: 1967 Cri LJ 528.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1966]

[8146] — S. 195 — No interference with exercise of discretion

Whether action should be taken under S. 195 is a matter primarily for the court which hears the application, and its discretion is not to be lightly interfered with in appeal, even when that is competent. Virindar Kumar Satyawadi v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 153, 158: (1955) 2 SCR 1013: 58 Punj LR 583: 1956 Cri LJ 326.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1955]

[8147] — S. 195 — Prosecution cannot bypass a serious charge to avoid formalities under S. 195

It is not permissible for the prosecution to drop a serious charge and select one which does not require the procedure under S. 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. If the offence was under S. 196, Indian Penal Code, a complaint in writing by the Court concerned was required. Before a complaint is made the Court has to consider whether it is expedient in the interests of justice to order a prosecution. In the lesser offence no such complaint by the Court is necessary and it is obvious that the lesser offence was chosen to bypass the Sessions Judge who had earlier decided that Dr. Dutt should not be prosecuted for perjury. Such a device is not to be commended. S. Dutt (Dr.) v. State of U.P., AIR 1966 SC 523, 529: (1966) 1 SCR 493: 1966 Cri LJ 459.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-1965]

[8148] — S. 195 — Scope and applicability — S. 195 does not bar the trial of an accused for a distinct offence disclosed by same facts and not included within the ambit of that section — Provision of the section not to be permitted to be evaded by resorting to devices and camouflages

Though S. 195 does not bar the trial of an accused person for a distinct offence disclosed by the same facts and which is not included within the ambit of that section, it has also to be borne in mind that the provisions of that section cannot be evaded by resorting to devices or camouflages. The test whether there is evasion of the section or not is whether the facts disclose primarily and essentially an offence for which a complaint of the Court or of the public servant is required. In other words, the provisions of the section cannot be evaded by the device of charging a person with an offence to which that section does not apply and then convicting him of an offence to which it does, upon the ground that such latter offence is a minor offence of the same character, or by describing the offence as being one punishable under some other section of the Indian Panel Code, though in truth and substance the offence falls in the category of section mentioned in S. 195, CrPC. Merely by changing the garb or label of an offence which is essentially an offence covered by the provisions of S. 195 prosecution for such an offence cannot be taken cognizance of by misdescribing it or by putting a wrong label on it. Basir-ul-Haq v. State of W.B., AIR 1953 SC 293: 1953 SCR 836: 1953 Cri LJ 1232.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1953]

Limited in State, CBI v. Sashi Balasubramanian, (2006) 13 SCC 252: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 337

[8149] — S. 195 — Scope and applicability — Whether offences under Ss. 297 & 500 IPC are bound by S. 195 CrPC when the accused could also be tried under S. 182 IPC — Acting on a false information given by the accused at the police station the accused and the police proceeding to cremation ground, taking out a dead body from funeral pyre and sending it for post-mortem — Held, the offence under Ss. 297 and 500 IPC disclosed by the facts not bound by the section even though the accused could be tried under S. 182 IPC the trial of which offence is barred by the section

D, whose mother died a natural death took her to cremation ground N made a report to the police that D had murdered his mother by throttling. When the funeral pyre was in flame N, the police Sub-Inspector and some others came and N told the Police Sub-Inspector that the lady had been murdered by D and there were injury marks on the dead body. Thereupon the fire was extinguished and the dead body was first examined and then sent for post-mortem. No injury marks were found on the dead body. The accused N was tried and convicted for offences under Ss. 297 and 500 IPC. It was contended that the trial was barred by S. 195 CrPC, because the accused could be prosecuted for offences under S. 182 IPC.

Held :

The charge for the offence under S. 297, Penal Code, could in no circumstance, as pointed out by the High Court, be described as falling within the purview of S. 195, CrPC. The act of trespass was alleged to have been committed subsequent to the making of the false report and all the ingredients of the offence that have been held to have been established on the evidence, concern the conduct of the appellants during the post-report period. In these circumstances, no serious contention could be raised that the provisions of S. 195 would stand defeated by the magistrate having taken cognizance of the offence under that section.

As regards the charge under S. 500, Penal Code, it seems fairly clear both on principle and authority that where the allegations made in a false report disclose two distinct offences, one against the public servant and the other against a private individual, that other is not debarred by the provisions of S. 195 from seeking redress for the offence committed against him. Section 199, Penal Code, which mentions the ingredients of the offence of defamation gives within defined limits immunity to persons making depositions in Court, but it is now well settled that immunity is a qualified one and is not absolute. An offence under S. 499, Penal Code, can only be initiated at the instance of the person defamed, in like manner as cognizance for an offence under S. 182 cannot be taken except at the complaint of the public servant concerned. In view of these provisions, there does not seem in principle any warrant for the proposition that a complaint under S. 499 in such a situation cannot be taken cognizance of unless two persons join in making it i.e. it can only be considered if both the public servant and the person defamed join in making it, otherwise the person defamed is without any redress. The statute has prescribed distinct procedure for the making of the complaints under these two provisions of the Indian Penal Code and when the prescribed procedure has been followed, the Court is bound to take cognizance of the offence complained of. Basir-ul-Haq v. State of W.B., AIR 1953 SC 293: 1953 SCR 836: 1953 Cri LJ 1232.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1953]

[8150] — S. 195 — Scope of — Credentials of an expert examined in a court challenged — Expert filing his diplomas and certificates for examination by the Court under its orders — Allegation that the documents filed were forged — Court refusing to file a complaint under S. 195 CrPC — Government expert filing a complaint against the expert under Ss. 465/471 IPC — Held, facts disclosed an offence under Ss. 139/196 IPC and not under Ss. 465/471 IPC — Expert could not be prosecuted in the absence of a complaint by Court under S. 195 CrPC. S. Dutt (Dr.) v. State of U.P., AIR 1966 SC 523: (1966) 1 SCR 493: 1966 Cri LJ 459, 61, 64.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-1965]

[8151] — S. 195 — Scope of — Does not bar trial for an offence not covered by the section — Provisions of the section cannot be evaded by resorting to devices or camouflage

Section 195, CrPC, does not bar the trial of an accused person for a distinct offence disclosed by the same or slightly different set of facts and which is not included within the ambit of the section, but it must be pointed out that the provisions of S. 195 cannot be evaded by resorting to devices or camouflage. For instance, the provisions of the section cannot be evaded by the device of charging a person with an offence to which that section does not apply and then convicting him of an offence to which it does, on the ground that the latter offence is a minor one of the same character, or by describing the offence as one punishable under some other section of the IPC, though in truth and substance the offence falls in the category of sections mentioned in S. 195, CrPC. Merely by changing the garb or label of an offence which is essentially an offence covered by the provisions of S. 195 prosecution for such an offence cannot be taken cognizance of by misdescribing it or by putting a wrong label on it. Durgacharan Naik v. State of Orissa, AIR 1966 SC 1775: (1966) 3 SCR 636: 1966 Cri LJ 1491, 93, 94.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-1966]

[8152] — Ss. 195, 476 and 476-B — Appeal under S. 476-B — Lies if the offence under S. 193 IPC is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in "Court" — Does not lie if the offence under S. 193 IPC is committed before a Returning Officer in proceedings under S. 36, Representation of the People Act, 1951

Section 476-B provides for an appeal from an order passed under S. 476 to the appropriate Court. The result then is that if the complaint relates to offences mentioned in Ss. 195(1)(b) and 195(1)(c), an appeal would be competent, but not if it relates to offences mentioned in S. 195(1)(a). Now, the order of the Magistrate, dated September 17, 1952 directs that the appellant should be prosecuted for offences under Ss. 181, 182 and 193. There is no dispute that the order in so far as it relates to offences under Ss. 181 and 182 is not appealable, as they fall directly under S. 195(1)(a).

Section 193 makes it an offence to give false evidence whether it be in a judicial proceeding or not, and it likewise makes it an offence to fabricate false evidence for use in a judicial proceeding or elsewhere. If the offence is not committed in a judicial proceeding then it will fall outside S. 195(1)(b), which applies only when it is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in court, and there is in consequence no bar to a complaint being made in respect thereof unaffected by the restrictions contained in S. 195(1)(b).

But if the offence under S. 193 is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in court, then it will fall under S. 195(1)(b), and the order directing prosecution under S. 476 will be appealable under S. 476-B.

The returning officer deciding on the validity of a nomination paper is not a court for the purpose of S. 195(1)(b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and the result is that even as regards the charge under S. 193, the order of the Magistrate was not appealable, as the offence was not committed in or in relation to any proceeding in a court. Virindar Kumar Satyawadi v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 153: (1955) 2 SCR 1013: 58 Punj LR 583: 1956 Cri LJ 326, 330.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1955]

— S. 195(1)(a) See Ss. 190, 195(1)(a) to (c)

[8153] — S. 195(1)(a) — Complaint by public servant for offence under S. 182 IPC — Court is barred from taking seisin of the case except in the manner provided by S. 195 CrPC — Complaint must be lodged by a public servant — Charge-sheet by the police is without jurisdiction ab initio

There is an absolute bar against the Court taking seisin of a case under S. 182 IPC except in the manner provided by S. 195(1)(a). Where the patwari makes a false report against certain persons knowing and believing that action would be taken the offence under S. 182 IPC was complete. It was therefore incumbent if the prosecution was to be launched, that the complaint in writing should be made by the Tahsildar viz. the public servant concerned. Compliance of S. 195 is not made if the Superintendent of Police, after the allegations were disproved asked the Tahsildar for "a calender". The Court having taken cognizance without the complaint in writing of a public servant the cognizance of the case wrongly assumed and the trial was thus without jurisdiction ab initio. Daulat Ram v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 1206: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 812: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 286.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, M. Hidayatullah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-1962]

[8154] — Ss. 195(1)(a) and (b) — FIR being registered against the accused — Later a complaint on the same facts disclosing an offence under S. 211 IPC having been filed — Held, Magistrate not to take cognizance unless provisions of S. 195(1)(b) complied with — Proceedings under S. 182 IPC — Offence disclosed also covered by S. 211 IPC — Held, Magistrate again not to take cognizance unless provisions of S. 195(1)(b) complied with

So far as prosecution under S. 211 of the Penal Code is concerned, once a complaint filed by the informant is being proceeded with which is based on the same facts and allegations on which the first information was registered it is not open to a Magistrate to take cognizance of any offence alleged to have been committed under that section unless there has been proper compliance with the provisions of S. 195(1)(b) of the CrPC.

Where the prosecution is under S. 182 IPC but the offence disclosed is covered by S. 211 IPC and a complaint is pending which has been filed by the informant on the same facts and allegations as were contained in his FIR no cognizance can be taken by the Magistrate for the alleged offence under S. 193 of the Penal Code which is one of the sections mentioned in S. 195(1)(b) on a parity of reasoning with regard to an offence under S. 211 of the Penal Code. State of Punjab v. Brij Lal Palia, AIR 1969 SC 355: (1969) 1 SCR 853: 1969 Cri LJ 645, 47-49.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-8-1968]

[8155] — Ss. 195(1)(a) to (c), 190 — Scope of S. 195(1) — Magistrate submitted an explanation in a transfer application pending against him in a superior court — Cl. (c) operates as a bar when the offence is alleged to have been committed by a 'party to any proceedings in any court' — Complaint — Non-compliance with the provisions of S. 195(1)(a) to (c) — Magistrate will have no jurisdiction to take cognizance — Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 167, 475. Govind Mehta v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 329: 1971 SCC (Cri) 608: AIR 1971 SC 1708: 1971 Cri LJ 1266.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1971]

Overruled in S.L. Goswami (Dr.) v. High Court of M.P., (1979) 1 SCC 373*

— S. 195(1)(b) See Ss. 190, 195(1)(a) to (c)
See also Ss. 190 and 195(1)(b)
See also Ss. 195(1)(a) and (b)
See also Ss. 195(1)(a) to (c) and 190
See also Ss. 195(1)(b), (2) and 6

[8156] — S. 195(1)(b) — Offence under S. 193 IPC referred to in S. 195(1)(b), CrPC, 1898 must be in relation to "judicial proceedings" before a "Court" — Penal Code, 1860, S. 193

S. 193 makes it an offence to give false evidence whether it be in a judicial proceeding or not, and it likewise makes it an offence to fabricate false evidence for use in a judicial proceeding or elsewhere. If the offence is not committed in a judicial proceeding, then it will fall outside S. 195(1)(b), which applies only when it is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in Court, and there is in consequence no bar to a complaint being made in respect thereof unaffected by the restrictions contained in S. 195(1)(b).

But if the offence under S. 193 is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in Court, then it will fall under S. 195(1)(b), and the order directing prosecution under S. 476 will be appealable under S. 476-B. Virindar Kumar Satyawadi v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 153: (1955) 2 SCR 1013: 58 Punj LR 583: 1956 Cri LJ 326, 329.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1955]

[8157] — S. 195(1)(b) — Proceedings before Income Tax Officer are judicial proceedings — They must be treated as judicial proceedings in any court for the purpose of S. 195(1)(b), CrPC, 1898 — Complaint filed by private individual and not by Income Tax Officer incompetent — Penal Code, 1860, S. 193

Per majority

Section 37(4) of the Income Tax Act, 1922 makes the proceedings before the Income Tax Officer judicial proceedings under S. 193, IPC and these judicial proceedings must be treated as proceedings in any Court for the purpose of S. 195(1)(b), CrPC, 1898. A complaint filed by a private individual was not maintainable because the condition precedent prescribed by S. 195(1)(b), CrPC, 1898 had not been complied with as no complaint had been filed by the Income Tax Officer.

Per Das Gupta and Sarkar, JJ. (dissenting)

The words used in S. 37(4) of the Income Tax Act furnish no reason to alter the legal position that is inescapable on a consideration of the functions of the Income Tax Officer that he is not a court within the meaning of S. 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Lalji Haridas v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 1154: (1964) 6 SCR 700: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 249, 253: (1964) 52 ITR 423: 66 Bom LR 460.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J.[1] and A.K. Sarkar[2], K.N. Wanchoo[1], K.C. Das Gupta[2] and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1964]

[8158] — S. 195(1)(b) — Cautious use of

Every incorrect or false statement does not make it incumbent on the Court to order prosecution. The Court has to exercise judicial discretion in the light of all the relevant circumstances when it determines the question of expediency. The Court orders prosecution in the larger interest of the administration of justice and not to gratify feelings of personal revenge or vindictiveness or to serve the ends of a private party. Too frequent prosecutions for such offence tend to defeat its very object. It is only in glaring cases of deliberate falsehood where conviction is highly likely that the Court should direct prosecution. Santokh Singh v. Izhar Hussain, (1973) 2 SCC 406: 1973 SCC (Cri) 828: AIR 1973 SC 2190: (1974) 1 SCR 78: 1973 Cri LJ 1176.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1973]

[8159] — S. 195(1)(b) — False entry relating to Bhumidari Lands — Complaint by party affected — Held, case could only be instituted by court in which or in relation to which offence committed. Kamla Prasad Singh v. Hari Nath Singh, AIR 1968 SC 19: (1967) 3 SCR 828: 1968 Cri LJ 86.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-4-1967]

[8160] — S. 195(1)(b) — Interruption of Income Tax proceedings covered — IT Act, 1922, S. 37(4)

Per majority

Section 37(4) of the Act makes the proceedings before the Income Tax Officer Judicial proceedings under S. 193 IPC and these judicial proceedings must be treated as proceedings in any court for the purpose of S. 195(1)(b), CrPC.

The offence with which S. 228 IPC deals is an offence committed against a public servant sitting in a judicial proceeding. This section is one of the sections mentioned in S. 195(1)(b), CrPC, and so, any complaint in respect of the offence alleged to have been committed under S. 228, IPC has to be made by the Court in question.

Section 37(4) makes a proceeding before the Income Tax Officer a proceeding under S. 228 IPC and thus, an interruption in his proceedings, or an insult given to him, has now become punishable under the said section.

Per majority

The words used in S. 37(4) of the Income Tax Act furnish no reason to alter the legal position that is inescapable on a consideration of the functions of the Income Tax Officer that he is not a court within the meaning of S. 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Lalji Haridas v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 1154, 1159: (1964) 6 SCR 700: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 249: (1964) 52 ITR 423: 66 Bom LR 460.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J.[1] and A.K. Sarkar[2], K.N. Wanchoo[1], K.C. Das Gupta[2] and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1964]

[8161] — S. 195(1)(b) — Proceeding in contemplation not a proceeding

A proceeding in contemplation cannot be said to be a proceeding in a court. M.L. Sethi v. R.P. Kapur, AIR 1967 SC 528, 533: (1967) 1 SCR 520: 1967 Cri LJ 528.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1966]

[8162] — S. 195(1)(b) — Proceedings need not be actually pending

Section 195(1)(b) does not require that the proceeding in any court must actually be pending at the time when the question of applying this bar arises. M.L. Sethi v. R.P. Kapur, AIR 1967 SC 528, 533: (1967) 1 SCR 520: 1967 Cri LJ 528.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1966]

[8163] — Ss. 195(1)(b), (2) and 6 — Expression "in relation to, any proceeding in any court" in Section 195(1)(b) — Meaning of — On a complaint lodged with the police by the appellant against the accused, the Magistrate by bailing out the accused and ultimately by discharging him on the basis of a final report submitted by the police stating the complaint to be false, held, acted as a 'court' and hence proceeding before him fell within the expression "any proceeding in any court" — Subsequent complaint before the Magistrate, alleging that the appellant committed an offence under S. 211, IPC, having initiated a false case against him, held, was "in relation to" the earlier proceeding before the Magistrate's Court — Magistrate, therefore, held, barred under S. 195(1)(b) to take cognizance of the offence complained of by the accused in absence of any written complaint made by him. Kamlapati Trivedi v. State of W.B., (1980) 2 SCC 91: 1980 SCC (Cri) 347: AIR 1979 SC 777: 1979 Cri LJ 679.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Jaswant Singh[1], P.S. Kailasam[2] and A.D. Koshal[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1978]

[8164] — Ss. 195(1)(b), (c) and 476 — Expression "in or in relation to" — Meaning of — Proceedings for release of accused on bail before one Magistrate and subsequent proceedings for prosecution of the accused by presentation of challan by police in the court of another magistrate, held, not distinct but stages of the same process — Offences under Ss. 205, 419, 465, 467 and 471, IPC committed by certain other accused involved in forging the bail bonds, discovered in the course of the subsequent proceedings, held, are "in relation to" proceedings in the court of the second magistrate — Hence, S. 195(1)(b) would not bar the second Magistrate from taking action under S. 476

One 'D' was produced before 'L', a Judicial Magistrate (First Class), Akola, in connection with offences under S. 85(1) of the Bombay Prohibition Act. While in judicial custody, an application for releasing 'D', together with an affidavit, scribed by one 'M' and purportedly sworn in by one 'G' as a surety, were filed. The affidavit was sworn before a senior clerk of the court and the first respondent allegedly identified 'G' and attested that application for this purpose. The senior clerk accepted the affidavit and on that basis 'D' was released on bail. The case against 'D' was then transferred to the court of 'K', another Judicial Magistrate (First Class), Akola. But on the date of hearing 'D' having failed to appear, the Magistrate issued a non-bailable warrant of arrest and production against 'D' and a notice to the surety 'G'. Accordingly, 'G' appeared and filed a reply denying having either stood as a surety of 'D' or made the affidavit or signed the application or the affidavit. The Magistrate then conducted an inquiry as a result of which he was satisfied that 'G' was not the real surety. Later, 'M' made an application to the Magistrate stating that the real name of the surety was 'S', the second respondent. The Magistrate, therefore, summoned 'S' and recorded his admission that the bail application and the affidavit had been thumb marked by him at the instance of the first respondent and without any knowledge of the same. The Magistrate then made a complaint under S. 476 read with Section 195, CrPC, 1898 to the Judicial Magistrate (First Class), Akola for prosecution of the two respondents and 'M' in respect of offences under Ss. 205, 419, 465, 467 and 471, IPC. The complaint came up before 'P', Judicial Magistrate, who after holding an inquiry under S. 207-A, CrPC, 1898, and recording a finding that there was a prima facie case against all the accused, committed them for trial to the Court of Session. The Sessions Judge acquitted 'M' but convicted the two respondents under the aforesaid provisions of the Penal Code. On appeal, the High Court, held that the complete proceedings before the committing Magistrate were without jurisdiction since the proceedings before 'K' were not the same proceedings or continuation of the same proceedings which were before 'L', the previous Magistrate, in which or in relation to which the offence is said to have been committed within the meaning of Section 476 read with Section 195, CrPC, 1898.

Held :

The words "in or in relation to" which occur in cl. (b) of S. 195(1) are not repeated in clause (c). But these words occur in S. 476 both with reference to cl. (b) and cl. (c) of S. 195(1). If the two proceedings, one in which the offence is committed and the other, the final proceedings, in the same or a transferee Court are, in substance, different stages of the same integrated judicial process, the offence can be said to have been committed "in relation to" the proceedings before the court to whom the case was subsequently transferred or which finally tried the case.

While considering a bail application of a person accused of an offence under investigation of the police, the Magistrate acts as a 'court', the proceedings in the bail application being judicial proceedings. Thus in the instant case, the bail proceedings before the Magistrate 'L' were judicial proceedings before a court, although such proceedings took place at a stage when the offence against the accused, who was bailed out, was under police investigation. The very terms of the bail bonds (surety bond and personal bond) show that they were intended to be a preliminary part of the proceedings of inquiry or trial before the Magistrate commencing with the presentation of a charge-sheet under S. 173, CrPC against the accused. This being the real position, the bail proceedings before 'L' and the subsequent proceedings before 'K' commencing with the presentation of the challan by the police for the prosecution of 'D', could not be viewed as distinct and different proceedings but as stages in and parts of the same judicial process. Neither the time-lag between the order of bail and the challan, nor the fact that on presentation of the challan, the case was not marked to 'L' but was transferred under S. 192 of the Code, to 'K', would make any difference to the earlier and subsequent proceedings being parts or stages of the same integral whole. Indeed, the commission of the offences under Ss. 205, 419, 465, 467 and 471, Penal Code, came to light only when 'K', on the basis of the forged surety bond in question, attempted to procure the attendance of the accused. Thus the offences under the Penal Code could be said to have been committed "in or in relation to" the proceedings in the court of 'K', and therefore 'K' was competent to hold a preliminary inquiry under S. 476, CrPC and/or to make a complaint for prosecution of the respondents, herein, in respect of those offences. State of Maharashtra v. Sk. Bannu, (1980) 4 SCC 286: 1980 SCC (Cri) 951: AIR 1981 SC 22: 1980 Cri LJ 1280.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-9-1980]

— S. 195(1)(c) See Ss. 190, 195(1)(a) to (c)
See also Ss. 195(1)(a) to (c), 190
See also Ss. 195(1)(b), (c) and 476

[8165] — S. 195(1)(c) — Scope — Held, offence under S. 466, IPC is covered by the expression "offences described in S. 463 [IPC]"

Section 466 is an aggravated form of forgery in that the forgery should relate to a document specified in the section. One of the documents specified is a document purporting to be a record or proceeding of or in a court of justice. Section 466, is therefore an offence as described in S. 463 which is committed in relation to a record or proceeding of or in a court of justice. In S. 195(1)(c) the words used are "of any offence described in S. 463 or punishable under S. 471, S. 475 or S. 476 of the same Code". Thus, S. 466, Penal Code is covered by cl. (b) or (c) of S. 195(1). S.L. Goswami (Dr.) v. High Court of M.P., (1979) 1 SCC 373: 1979 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1979 SC 437: 1979 Cri LJ 193.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.S. Kailasam, D.A. Desai and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1978]

[8166] — S. 195(1)(c) — Words "by a party to any proceeding in any court" occurring in — Omission of, in the corresponding provision of new CrPC of 1973 i.e. S. 195(1)(b)(ii) — Object of, held, is to afford protection against vexatious prosecutions to witnesses also — CrPC, 1973, S. 195(1)(b)(ii) (Paras 20 and 19). Iqbal Singh Marwah v. Meenakshi Marwah, (2005) 4 SCC 370: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1101: AIR 2005 SC 2119: (2005) 3 Mah LJ 530: 2005 Cri LJ 2161.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and B.N. Agrawal, H.K. Sema, G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-2005]

[8167] — S. 195(1)(c) — Presenting forged will before Patwari and mutation proceedings commenced on the strength of such will — Requirement of S. 195(1)(c) — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 464, 467 and 468

The allegation of the complainant was that the appellants forged a will in the name of K and thereafter produced it either before the Patwari or the Tehsildar in the mutation proceedings commenced by them on the strength of the will. The forgery therefore was alleged to have been committed by the appellants not after they became parties to the mutation proceedings but prior to the commencement of those proceedings. Section 195(1)(c) can therefore have no application at least in regard to the offences under Ss. 464, 467 and 468, Penal Code. Mohan Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (1974) 3 SCC 628: 1974 SCC (Cri) 118: AIR 1974 SC 299: 1974 Cri LJ 350.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1973]

[8168] — S. 195(1)(c) — Applicability — Offence to be committed by party to a proceeding after he becomes such party — Material document neither produced nor given in evidence in the proceeding — S. 195(1)(c) inapplicable — On facts, trial under Ss. 418, 471 and 477-A, IPC could be proceeded with before the High Court under its original criminal jurisdiction — Companies Act, 1956, Ss. 397 and 398. Legal Remembrancer of Govt. of W.B. v. Haridas Mundra, (1976) 1 SCC 555: 1976 SCC (Cri) 67: AIR 1976 SC 2225: (1976) 2 SCR 933: 1976 Cri LJ 1732.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, P.K. Goswami and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-12-1975]

[8169] — S. 195(1)(c) — Object, construction and meaning — Words "such court" — Meaning of — Party to a proceeding producing document in respect of which an offence is committed — Whether Magistrate can take cognizance of such an offence

The object and purpose of S. 195(1)(c) is that it is the Court before which an offence is alleged to have been committed in respect of a document produced in a proceeding before it by a party to such proceeding, which should file or cause a complaint to be filed and not a private party.

The words "such court" used in S. 195(1)(c) of the Code mean the very court before which a party to a proceeding in that court has produced or tendered in evidence a document in respect of which the offence is alleged to have been committed. Clause (c) means that it is that court before which there is a proceeding and the party to such a proceeding is said to have committed an offence in respect of a document produced or tendered in evidence by him, on whose complaint the offence can be taken cognizance of.

Thus the proper construction of S. 195(1)(c) is that when a party to a proceeding before any court produces or tenders in evidence a document in respect of which an offence e.g. S. 471 read with S. 467, is alleged to have been committed, it is that court before which the document is produced in or tendered evidence which can file a complaint regarding such an offence and a Magistrate cannot take cognizance of such an offence except upon a complaint by such court or a court subordinate to it. Nirmaljit Singh Hoon v. State of W.B., (1973) 3 SCC 753: 1973 SCC (Cri) 521: AIR 1972 SC 2639.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat[1], I.D. Dua[1] and H.R. Khanna[1&2], JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1972]

[8170] — S. 195(1)(c) — Offence committed by a party to any proceeding in a court — Accused filing a copy of a forged document in a court — Prosecution under S. 471 IPC — S. 195(1)(c) does not apply — Complaint by the Court is not necessary

From a plain grammatical construction of S. 195(1)(c) it is clear that a complaint by the Court is required where the offence is of forging or of using as genuine any document which is known or believed to be a forged document when such document is produced or given in evidence in court. It is clear therefore that it is only when the forged document is produced in court that a complaint by the Court is required. Where, however, what is produced before the Court is not the forged document itself, but its copy, S. 195(1)(c) will not apply on its terms. Budhu Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (1963) 3 SCR 376: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 698.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1962]

[8171] — S. 195(1)(c) — Prosecution for offences relating to documents given in evidence — Forgery of sale deed — Duration of time between date of forgery and production of document in court — Whether governing factor in the matter

The duration of time between the date of forgery and the production or giving in evidence of the forged document in court is not a governing factor.

The principle laid down in Somabhai case was not founded on any such consideration. Reference to such delay was made in that decision in another context. Raghunath v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 564: 1973 SCC (Cri) 448: AIR 1973 SC 1100: 1973 Cri LJ 858.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1973]

[8172] — S. 195(1)(c) — Scope — Party producing forged document in judicial proceedings — Complaint by other party — Complaint by Civil Court necessary — Effect on proceeding — Scope of prohibition under S. 195(1)(c) — Requires offence to be committed after having become a party to proceeding — Construction in light of S. 476 necessary

The allegation of commission of an offence in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in a proceeding in a Court; and (ii) the commission of such offence by a party to such proceeding. The use of the words "in respect of" in the first ingredient would seem to some extent to enlarge the scope of this clause. Judicial opinion, however, differs on the effect and meaning of the words "to have been committed by a party to any proceeding in any Court". As cl. (b) of S. 195(1) does not speak of offence committed by a party to the proceedings, while considering decision on that clause this distinction deserves to be borne in mind.

The underlying purpose of enacting Ss. 195(1)(b) and (c) and S. 476, seems to be to control the temptation on the part of the private parties considering themselves aggrieved by the offences mentioned in those sections to start criminal prosecutions on frivolous, vexatious, or insufficient grounds inspired by a revengeful desire to harass or spite their opponents. These offences have been selected for the court's control because of their direct impact on the judicial process. It is the judicial process, in other words the administration of public justice, which is the direct and immediate object or victim of those offence and it is only by misleading the courts and thereby perverting the due course of law and justice that the ultimate object of harming the private party is designed to be realised. As the purity of the proceedings of the court is directly sullied by the crime, the Court is considered to be the only party entitled to consider the desirability of complaining against the guilty party. The private party designed ultimately to be injured through the offence against the administration of public justice is undoubtedly entitled to move the court for persuading it to file the complaint. But such party is deprived of the general right recognised by S. 190, CrPC, of the aggrieved parties directly initiating the criminal proceedings. The offences about which the court alone, to the exclusion of the aggrieved private parties, is clothed with the right to complain may, therefore, be appropriately considered to be only those offences committed by a party to a proceeding in that court, the commission of which has a reasonably close nexus with the proceedings in that court so that it can, without embarking upon a completely independent and fresh inquiry, satisfactorily consider by reference principally to its records the expediency of prosecuting the delinquent party. It is more appropriate to adopt the strict construction of confining the prohibition contained in S. 196(1)(c) only to those cases in which the offences specified therein were committed by a party to the proceeding in the character as such party. Therefore, the Legislature could not have intended to extend the prohibition contained in S. 195(1)(c), CrPC, to the offences mentioned therein when committed by a party to a proceeding in that court prior to his becoming such party.

So the purpose and object of the Legislature in creating the bar against cognizance of private complaints in regard to the offences mentioned in Ss. 195(1)(b) and (c) is both to save the accused person from vexatious or baseless prosecutions inspired by feelings of vindictiveness on the part of the private complainants to harass their opponents and also to avoid confusion which is likely to arise on account of conflicts between findings of the courts in which forged documents are produced or false evidence is led and the conclusions of the criminal courts dealing with the private complaint. It is for this reason as suggested earlier, that the Legislature has entrusted the court, whose proceedings had been the target of the offence of perjury to consider the expediency, in the larger public interest, of a criminal trial of the guilty party. Patel Laljibhai Somabhai v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 2 SCC 376: 1971 SCC (Cri) 548: AIR 1971 SC 1935: 1971 Cri LJ 1437.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1971]

[8173] — S. 195(1)(c) — Scope and applicability — Forged document produced before the Sales Tax Officer — Sales Tax Officer is not a Court under S. 195(1)(c) — No complaint under S. 195(6) CrPC, 1898 necessary for prosecution under S. 471 IPC — Penal Code, 1860, S. 471

No doubt the Sales Tax Officers have certain powers which are similar to the powers exercised by court but still they are not courts as understood in S. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code. A Sales Tax Officer is not a Court within the meaning of S. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code and therefore it was not necessary for a Sales Tax Officer to make a complaint and the proceedings without such a complaint are not without jurisdiction. Jagannath Prasad v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 416: (1963) 2 SCR 850: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 330, 333: (1963) 14 STC 536.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1962]

[8174] — Ss. 195(1)(c), 476, 476-A and 476-B — Complaint against a person filing a forged document before Subordinate Judge I Class in respect of offences under Ss. 193 and 471 — Subordinate Judge I Class transferred and replaced Subordinate Judge IV Class — On being asked to make a complaint he submitted the case to the District Judge who sent the case to Senior Subordinate Judge who made the complaint — Senior Subordinate Judge was neither the same court nor the Court to which the Court of Subordinate Judge I Class was subordinate. He had no jurisdiction to file the complaint — District Judge's Court was the Court to which the Court of Subordinate Judge I Class was subordinate and was competent to file the complaint

The appellant filed a forged document in the Court of A, a Subordinate Judge I Class. After A was transferred 'B' a Subordinate Judge IV Class, was posted in his place. The complainant filed an application before B requesting that a complaint under Ss. 193 and 471 IPC be filed against the appellant. Since B was a Subordinate Judge IV Class he thought that he was not a successor Court of A and referred the complaint to the District Judge who transferred the matter to the Senior Subordinate C, who made the complaint. The appellant filed an appeal against this order to the Court of District Judge who transferred it to the Court of Additional District Judge. Additional District Judge held that the senior Subordinate Judge C had no jurisdiction because he was not the successor of A and there was no prima facie case. In revision the High Court held that C had jurisdiction and there was a prima facie case. In revision the High Court held that C had jurisdiction and there was a prima facie case and set aside the order of the Additional District Judge and restored the order of C. The appellant came in appeal before the Supreme Court.

Held :

The Senior Subordinate Judge C, who made the complaint had no jurisdiction to make it, either as the original court which tried the suit or as the appellate authority under S. 476-B, CrPC. It is not enough that he also had I Class powers because he was not the same Court.

When the matter was reported to the District Judge by B the District Judge dealt with it. The District Judge was the appellate authority for the purposes of Ss. 476-A and 476-B CrPC. He had, therefore, authorised under S. 476-A either to make the complaint himself or reject the application. He did neither and instead sent the case to C who had no jurisdiction. He could have sent the case to the original Court or the successor Judge of that court if there was any, but he sent it to a court without jurisdiction and so his order was ineffective and the subsequent order of the Court C was without jurisdiction.

When the case came back to the District Judge in appeal he could act under S. 476-A, because the original court had not taken any action. Addl. District Judge who too had no jurisdiction to deal with the case because he was not a Judge of the District Court but was a separate court of his own. Therefore the order of the Additional District Judge was also without jurisdiction. Kuldip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 391: 1956 SCR 125: 58 Punj LR 595: 1956 Cri LJ 781, 785, 86.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1956]

[8175] — Ss. 195(1)(c) and 476 — Offence under Ss. 467/109 IPC alleged by Additional District Judge in respect of a Will held to be executed under suspicious circumstances — However, no finding given as to part played by the accused in respect of the offence — Held, such complaint deserves to be quashed. Har Gobind v. State of Haryana, (1979) 4 SCC 482: 1980 SCC (Cri) 98: AIR 1979 SC 1760: 1979 Cri LJ 1334.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1979]

— S. 195(2) See Ss. 195(1)(b), (2) and 6

— S. 195(3) See Ss. 476, 476-B and 195(3)

See also Ss. 476-B and 195(3)

[8176] — Ss. 195(3) and 476-B — High Court by a notification authorising Senior Subordinate Judge to hear appeals against orders and decrees passed by Subordinate Judge — Senior Subordinate Judge does not become appellate tribunal within the meaning of S. 195(3) — District Court must be regarded as appellate authority for purposes of S. 476-B — Punjab Courts Act, 1918 (6 of 1918), S. 39. Kuldip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 391: 1956 SCR 125: 58 Punj LR 595: 1956 Cri LJ 781.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1956]

[8177] — S. 195(3) — Subordinate court — Court of Additional District Magistrate if subordinate to High Court

The Court of the Additional District Magistrate would not seem to be subordinate to the High Court as provided by S. 195(3), CrPC. Santokh Singh v. Izhar Hussain, (1973) 2 SCC 406: 1973 SCC (Cri) 828: AIR 1973 SC 2190: (1974) 1 SCR 78: 1973 Cri LJ 1176.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1973]

[8178] — Ss. 195(3), 476, 476-A and 476-B — "Court subordinate to the Court" used in S. 195(3) — Meaning of Subordination has been given a special meaning in S. 476-A. It is not the superior court that has jurisdiction, nor yet the court to which the "former court" is subordinate for, what might be termed, most general purposes, but only the Court to which it is subordinate within the meaning of S. 195(3) Criminal Procedure Code.

The question about the interpretation of S. 195(3) CrPC is to be viewed thus. The first question to be asked is whether any decrees, orders or sentences of the original court are appealable at all. If they are not and the Court is a civil court, then, under S. 195(3) the appeal against the order making or refusing to make a complaint will be to the principal court of ordinary original civil jurisdiction. If, however, appeals from its various decrees and orders lie to different courts, then it will have to be seen to which of them they ordinarily lie and select the one of the lowest grade from among them.

In determining the court or courts to which an appeal will ordinarily lie it will have to be seen which court or courts entertain appeals from that class of tribunal in the ordinary way apart from special notification or laws that lift the matter out of the general class.

It would be wrong to say that the nature of the proceedings in the case must be wholly ignored because sub-clause (b) to the proviso to sub-section (3) of S. 195 CrPC provides that where appeals lie to a civil court and also to a Revenue Court such court will be deemed to be subordinate to the civil court of Revenue Court according to the nature of the case of proceedings. Therefore to that limited extent the nature of the proceedings must be taken into account but once the genus of the proceedings is determined, namely whether Civil, Criminal or Revenue, the hierarchy of the superior courts for these purposes will be determined, first by the rule in third special cases and hit by the rule in S. 195(3). Kuldip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 391: 1956 SCR 125: 58 Punj LR 595: 1956 Cri LJ 781, 785, 86.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1956]

[8179] — Ss. 195(3) and 476-B — Order of division bench of High Court — Whether appeal lies to Supreme Court under S. 476-B — S. 476-B r/w S. 195(3) — True meaning of

Right of appeal has been expressly conferred by S. 476-B provided there is a higher forum to which an appeal can be made; and the appellate forum has been designed in an artificial way. The appeal lies to the court to which the former Court is subordinate within the meaning of S. 195(3). But "subordinate" does not bear its ordinary meaning. It is used as a term of art and has been given a special meaning by reason of the definition in S. 195(3); a fiction has been imposed by the use of the word "deemed".

In case where the former court is a Division Bench of the High Court the only Court to which an appeal 'ordinarily' lies from the "appealable' decrees and sentences of a Division Bench of a High Court is the Supreme Court. Therefore, a Division Bench of a High Court is a court "subordinate" to the Supreme Court within the meaning of S. 195(3); accordingly an appeal lies to the Supreme Court from an order of a Division Bench under S. 476.

Before the Supreme Court can apply the definition given in S. 195(3) it has to see whether there is a class of decrees or sentences in the Court under consideration which are at all open to appeal. If there are not, the matter ends and there is no right of appeal under S. 476-B. If there are, then it has to see to which court those appeals will "ordinarily" lie. It is evident that the only 'Court' to which the 'appealable' decrees and sentences of a Division Bench of a High Court can lie is the Supreme Court. There is no other 'Court' to which an appeal can be made. It follows that there is the ordinary course in the case of all 'appealable' decrees and sentences and that consequently Supreme Court is the Court to which such appeals will ordinarily lie. M.S. Sheriff v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 397: 1954 SCR 1144: 1954 Cri LJ 1019.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

— S. 196 See Ss. 190 and 195 to 199

[8180] — S. 196-A — Applicability — Prior consent of State Government or District Magistrate for initiation of proceeding — Requirement of — Offence under S. 161 IPC may be punished with imprisonment up to three years — Punishment under S. 5(1)(d), Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 shall not be less than one year, but may extend to seven years — Thus, conspiracy to commit either of the offences was punishable with imprisonment for a term exceeding two years' RI — Hence S. 196(2), held, not applicable in the instant case — Discretion of court in respect of said offences to award lesser sentence (below 2 years), held, would not support the defence plea as to applicability of S. 196(2) — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 161 and 120-B — Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, S. 5(1)(d) — Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, S. 13(1)(d) — CrPC, 1973, S. 196(2)

The conspiracy to commit either of the offences in question was punishable with imprisonment for a term exceeding two years' rigorous imprisonment and, therefore, Section 196(2) CrPC had no application because in respect of both the offences, the court had jurisdiction to pass a sentence of over two years' RI. The submission that it was permissible for the court to award simple imprisonment for any term subject to the maximum prescribed and, therefore, Section 196(2) was applicable, cannot be accepted. Equally without substance is the submission that the conspiracy alleged must be compulsorily punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term exceeding two years, leaving no discretion in the court to pass a lesser sentence. (Para 3). Shiv Nandan Dixit v. State of U.P., (2003) 12 SCC 636.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-12-2003]

[8181] — S. 196-A — Charge clearly of conspiracy to cheat by impersonation — Sanction not necessary — CrPC, 1973, S. 196(2). Yash Pal Mittal v. State of Punjab, (1977) 4 SCC 540: 1978 SCC (Cri) 5: AIR 1977 SC 2433: 1978 Cri LJ 189.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.K. Goswami, N.L. Untwalia and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1977]

[8182] — S. 196-A — Question whether charges which require sanction under S. 196-A can be tried along with charges not requiring such sanction and entire sanction is vitiated for want of sanction — Not considered. Union of India v. Maj. I.C. Lala, (1973) 2 SCC 72: 1973 SCC (Cri) 738: AIR 1973 SC 2204: (1973) 3 SCR 818: 1973 Cri LJ 1190.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-3-1973]

[8183] — S. 196-A — Sanction for prosecution — Form and proof of — Home Department's letter to the District Magistrate communicating that the Governor has been pleased to grant the sanction — There is a presumption that a sanction has been validly granted — Valid sanction is proved

It is admitted that there is a document on the record which is a letter addressed by the Under Secretary to Government, Uttar Pradesh Department to the District Magistrate, Kanpur informing him that the Governor has been pleased to grant sanction to the initiation of proceedings. The document is an official communication emanating from the Home Department and addressed to the District Magistrate, Kanpur. A presumption would, therefore, arise that sanction to which reference has been made in the document, had in fact been accorded. Further, since the communication is an official one, a presumption would also arise that the official act to which reference has been made in the document was regularly performed. Therefore the document prima facie meets the requirements of S. 196-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Tulsi Ram v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 666: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 382: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 623: ILR (1963) 1 All 840.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1962]

[8184] — S. 196-A — Sanction for prosecution for certain types of criminal conspiracies — Absence of sanction — Plea not raised in the trial Court or before the High Court in appeal — Plea is barred in the Supreme Court

The question whether a sanction had been granted under S. 196-A CrPC is a question of fact which ought to have been urged at the trial and before the High Court. It is impossible in the Supreme Court in special leave case to go into this question of fact. Kanta Prashad v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1958 SC 350: 1958 SCR 1218: 1958 Cri LJ 698.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1958]

[8185] — S. 196-A — Sanction for prosecution under S. 120-A IPC — Complaint disclosing an offence of abetment by conspiracy — No sanction under S. 196-A is necessary

Though expression "criminal conspiracy" was used in the complaint, but it disclosed an offence by abetment of conspiracy for which no sanction under S. 196-A CrPC was necessary. The Magistrate was, therefore, right in taking cognizance of the offence without sanction under S. 196-A and there was no violation of the provisions of the section. Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 297: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1961]

[8186] — S. 196-A — Sanction for prosecution under S. 120-A IPC — "Criminal conspiracy" mentioned in the heading of complaint — Allegations in the complaint should be examined to find if consent under S. 196-A is necessary. Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 297: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1961]

[8187] — S. 196-A — Sanction under — Sanction in case of offence under S. 5 of Prevention of Corruption Act is not required

The offences under Ss. 161, 165 and 165-A of the Indian Penal Code and S. 5 of the Prevention of Corruption Act are cognizable offences and there is no question of their being cognizable if investigated by a Deputy Superintendent of Police and non-cognizable when investigated by an Inspector of Police. Nor can there be any question of those offences being cognizable if they are investigated under S. 156 of the CrPC but not when investigated in accordance with the provisions of S. 5-A of the Prevention of Corruption Act. The question, therefore, of the need for a sanction under S. 196-A does not arise. Consequently, the need to order reinvestigation or to begin the trial again after the sanction under S. 196-A is obtained, and the consequent inordinate delay and harassment of the officers concerned, reasons that weighed with the learned Single Judge for quashing the charges, does not arise. Union of India v. Maj. I.C. Lala, (1973) 2 SCC 72: 1973 SCC (Cri) 738: AIR 1973 SC 2204: (1973) 3 SCR 818: 1973 Cri LJ 1190.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-3-1973]

[8188] — S. 196-A(2) — Requirement under — Authorisation obtained by Assistant Collector of Customs for prosecution under S. 120-B, Penal Code, read with Item 81, Schedule to S. 167, Sea Customs Act, 1878, read with Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947, held, not improper where such officer was not holding authorisation envisaged by S. 187-A, Sea Customs Act, 1878 — No such requirement can be read into S. 196-A, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 — Customs Act, 1962, S. 137 — CrPC, 1973, S. 196(2). S.N. Banerjee v. Babulal Gupta, (1979) 2 SCC 390: 1979 SCC (Cri) 507: AIR 1979 SC 1526: 1979 Cri LJ 950.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-4-1979]

[8189] — S. 196-A(2) — Commission of non-cognizable offences committed while cheating (IPC 1860, S. 420) — Sanction if necessary

No sanction is necessary, under S. 196-A(2) CrPC, when the object of the conspiracy is to commit the offence of cheating (420 IPC), but forgery of documents (467 IPC) and similar non-cognizable offences are also committed as merely steps taken, by one or other of the accused, for the purpose of effecting the main object of the conspiracy. A trial under such circumstances, for offences under S. 120-B, read with Ss. 467/471 and 420 IPC, without obtaining sanction, is neither illegal, nor void.

It is necessary to keep in mind the difference between the object of a conspiracy and the means adopted for realising that object. Even if the object of the conspiracy viz. of cheating, is sought to be attained by resort to non-cognizable offences, sanction under S. 196-A of the Code is not necessary.

The object of the conspiracy has to be determined, not only by reference to the sections of the penal enactment, referred to in the charge, but on a reading of the charges themselves. Bhanwar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1968 SC 709, 713: (1968) 2 SCR 528: 1968 Cri LJ 867.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-12-1967]

[8190] — S. 196-A(2) — Consent — Offence primarily and essentially of abetment of forgery and of false impersonation — Charge-sheet — No reference to offence of conspiracy — Magistrate later considering charge under S. 120-B at the time of passing of committal order — Magistrate did not take cognizance of offence of criminal conspiracy — Consent under S. 196-A(2) was not necessary

Taking cognizance does not involve any formal action or indeed action of any kind but occurs as soon as a Magistrate applies his mind to the suspected commission of an offence. Cognizance, therefore, takes place at a point when a Magistrate first takes judicial notice of an offence. This is the position whether the Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence on a complaint, or on a police report, or upon information of a person other than a police officer. Therefore, when a Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence upon a police report, prima facie he does so of the offence or offences disclosed in such report.

It is clear from the charge-sheet submitted to the Magistrate that the offence of criminal conspiracy was not even referred to. The offence "primarily and essentially" alleged therein was one of abetment of forgery under Ss. 468 and 471 and of false impersonation under S. 419 read with S. 109. It cannot be disputed that the charge-sheet also prima facie disclosed the offence of abetment. It was only at a later stage i.e. at the time of passing the committal order that he considered that a charge under S. 120-B was the more appropriate charge and not a charge under S. 109 of the Penal Code. That being so, it must be held that the Magistrate took cognizance of the offence of abetment of an offence of forgery and impersonation so far as the appellant was concerned and not of the offence of criminal conspiracy. That being so, it is impossible to sustain the argument that the Magistrate took cognizance of the offence under S. 120-B, and, therefore, consent under S. 196-A(2) was required as a condition precedent or that the committal order and the proceedings of committal which he took were vitiated for want of such consent. Darshan Singh Ram Kishan v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 2 SCC 654: 1971 SCC (Cri) 628: AIR 1971 SC 2372: 1971 Cri LJ 1697.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1971]

[8191] — S. 196-A(2) — Criminal conspiracy — Sanction for prosecution — Necessity of — No sanction necessary when the object of conspiracy is to commit the cognizable offence of cheating even though offences of forgery and other non-cognizable offences are committed for effecting the main object of conspiracy

The case of the prosecution was that Bhanwar Singh and Kapoorchand were constables in the CID, Ajmer Zone, during 1956-57. In the course of their duties of censoring postal mail, these two constables, after having opened the mail, for the purpose of censoring pilfered certain Indian Postal Orders and British Postal Orders and cheques and, after erasing the names of the original payees, as also the names of the post offices or banks, where payment was to be made, inserted their own names or some fictitious names and got the postal orders or cheques encashed at different post offices and banks. Bhanwar Singh and Kapoorchand had entered into a conspiracy, with Kishanlal and Yasoda Devi, whose services were utilised for getting the moneys from the banks. On investigation, the four accused were charged and convicted.

All the four accused challenged their conviction, for these offences and the sentences passed against them contending that the trial held by the Sessions Judge was illegal and void, inasmuch as the prosecution had been conducted, without, obtaining the necessary sanction, under S. 196-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in respect of the charge under Ss. 467 and 471 read with S. 120-B IPC.

The only object of the conspiracy was to cheat the bank or the post offices, which is an offence under S. 420 read with S. 120-B IPC for which no sanction is necessary, the sanction for prosecution is not necessary even though there are also charges of committing forgery of valuable security and using such forged documents which are offences under Ss. 467 and 471 and non-cognizable. Bhanwar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1968 SC 709: (1968) 2 SCR 528: 1968 Cri LJ 867, 870, 871.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-12-1967]

[8192] — S. 196-A(2) — Sanction for trial — Sanction of Government is necessary for trial under S. 120-B for conspiracy to commit offences under Ss. 466 and 467 IPC

Offences under Ss. 466 and 467 are admittedly non-cognizable and, therefore, it would seem from the plain language of sub-section (2) that for the offences under S. 120-B read with Ss. 466 and 467, IPC the sanction of the Government will be necessary. State of A.P. v. Kandimalla Subbaiah, AIR 1961 SC 1241: (1962) 1 SCR 194: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 302.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and J.R. Mudholkar and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-3-1961]

[8193] — S. 196-A(2) — Scope of S. 196-A — Accused tried for offence under Ss. 120-B, 409 & 277-A IPC — No sanction for prosecution under S. 120-B obtained — Trial under S. 409 Penal Code not vitiated — Conviction under S. 409 is valid — Conviction valid also because accused not prejudiced

The conspiracy to commit an offence is by itself distinct from the offence to do which the conspiracy is entered into. Such an offence, if actually committed, would be the subject-matter of a separate charge. If that offence does not require sanction though the offence of conspiracy does and sanction is not obtained it would appear that the Court can proceed with the trial as to the substantive offence as if there was no charge of conspiracy.

Where there was not a charge for conspiracy under S. 120-B but also two other separate charges for offences under Ss. 409 and 477-A IPC alleged to have been committed in the pursuance of the conspiracy, the charge under S. 120-B required sanction in view of S. 196-A CrPC no such sanction was necessary in respect of the charge under S. 409. The fact that sanction was not obtained in respect of the complaint under S. 120-B did not vitiate the trial on the substantive charge under S. 409. No prejudice could be said to have resulted in view of the appellant's confession that he had in fact misappropriated Rs 2,500 and was prepared to deposit that amount. Madan Lal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 1590: (1967) 3 SCR 439: 1967 Cri LJ 1401, 1403-0.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Bachawat and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1967]

— S. 197 See Ss. 190 and 195 to 199

See also Ss. 537 and 197

[8194] — S. 197 — Held, not discriminatory — Government in giving sanction does not discriminate between one government servant and the other — Person to whom no permission given cannot complain on the ground of discrimination — Constitution of India — Art. 14

Article 14 does not render S. 197, Criminal Procedure Code, "ultra vires" as the discrimination is based upon a rational classification.

Public servants have to be protected from harassment in the discharge of official duties while ordinary citizens not so engaged do not require this safeguard.

There is no question of any discrimination between one person and another in the matter of taking proceedings against a public servant for an act done or purporting to be done by the public servant in the discharge of his official duties. No one can take such proceedings without such sanction. If the Government gives sanction against one public servant but declines to do so against another, then the government servant against whom sanction is given may possibly complain of discrimination. Matajog Dobey v. H.C. Bhari, AIR 1956 SC 44, 48: (1955) 2 SCR 925, 931: (1955) 28 ITR 941: 1956 Cri LJ 140.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8195] — S. 197 — "Offence committed in discharge of official duty" — Test — Held, there must be direct and reasonable nexus between the offence committed and the discharge of official duty — Charge of dishonest misappropriation or conversion of goods by Customs Authorities which they had seized and held in trust — The act, held, not in discharge of official duty — Hence, sanction under S. 197 not required — Accused must act in his official capacity so far as entrustment is concerned to attract S. 409, IPC, and for subsequent act of misappropriation or conversion, he need not be in his official capacity — CrPC, 1973, S. 197. B. Saha v. M.S. Kochar, (1979) 4 SCC 177: 1979 SCC (Cri) 939: AIR 1979 SC 1841: 1979 Cri LJ 1367: (1979) 16 ACC 318.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, P.N. Shinghal and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-1979]

[8196] — S. 197 — Sanction under — Question in this regard can be raised at any stage of the proceedings — Court can go beyond the allegations in the complaint to consider the question — Material on record up to the stage when question of want of sanction was raised, considered — CrPC, 1973, S. 197

The question of sanction under S. 197, Criminal Procedure Code can be raised and considered at any stage of the proceedings. Further, in considering the question whether or not sanction for prosecution was required, it is not necessary for the Court to confine itself to the allegations in the complaint, and it can take into account all the material on the record at the time when the question is raised and falls for consideration.

No copy of the statements of the complainant and the SDM recorded in proceedings preliminary to the issue of process having been furnished before the Court, the contention regarding false allegations in the complaint does not stand.

Although precise and detailed particulars were not given in the complaint, some foundation for the allegation that the goods in question had been misappropriated by the appellants some time after their seizure and before their deposit in the Customs House had been laid during the preliminary enquiry made by the Magistrate. B. Saha v. M.S. Kochar, (1979) 4 SCC 177: 1979 SCC (Cri) 939: AIR 1979 SC 1841: 1979 Cri LJ 1367: (1979) 16 ACC 318.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, P.N. Shinghal and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-1979]

[8197] — S. 197 — Prosecution of public servant for conspiracy and bribery — Sanction under S. 197, CrPC, 1898 whether necessary — Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 161 and 120-B

Sanction under S. 197, CrPC is not necessary where proceedings are instituted against a public servant on charges of conspiracy and bribery. Ronald Wood Mathams v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 455: (1955) 1 SCR 216: 1954 Cri LJ 1161, 1164.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1954]

H.H.B. Gill v. King, AIR 1948 PC 128 and Phanindra Chandra Neogy v. King, AIR 1949 PC 117, approved.

See also cases under S. 409, IPC

[8198] — S. 197 — Applicability — Entrustment and/or dominion in capacity as public servant — Disposal lawful or otherwise not possible save by an act done or purporting to be done in his official capacity — S. 197, CrPC, 1898 applies, sanction was necessary and trial is vitiated in its absence — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 409

If S. 197, CrPC is construed too narrowly it can never be applied, for of course it is not part of an official's duty to commit an offence and never can be. But it is not the duty to examine so much as the act, because an official act can be performed in the discharge of official duty as well as in dereliction of it. Section 197 has content and its language must be given meaning. Shreekantiah Ramayya Munipalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 287: (1955) 1 SCR 1177: 1955 Cri LJ 857.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1954]

See also 1954 Cri LJ 1161: AIR 1954 SC 455; 1956 Cri LJ 140: AIR 1956 SC 44; and AIR 1966 SC 220: 1966 Cri LJ 179

[8199] — S. 197 — Obstruction — Use of force — Prosecution of officials — Need for sanction under S. 197 — Income Tax — Search and Seizure

Under Ss. 6(7) and 6(9) and R. 8 of the Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act, 1947, Warrants of Authorisation were issued to four Authorised Officials to enter and search P-17 Kalakar Street and 36 Armenian Street and seize account books and documents found there. When the officials reached the premises, a darwan offered resistance at the former place and the proprietor at the latter. A scuffle ensued in which the darwan got two ecchymosis and the proprietor a couple of abrasions and a swelling. Complaints were lodged under Ss. 109, 323, 341, 342 and 504, IPC. The accused objected to the prosecution proceeding, in the absence of sanction under S. 197, CrPC. The objection was upheld and all the accused were discharged by the Presidency Magistrate.

Held :

No question of sanction can arise under S. 197, unless the act complained of is an offence; the only point to determine is whether it was committed in the discharge of official duty. There must be a reasonable connection between the act and the official duty. It does not matter even if the act exceeds what is strictly necessary for the discharge of the duty, as this question will arise only at a later stage when the trial proceeds on the merits. What we must find out is whether the act and the official duty are so inter-related that one can postulate reasonably that it was done by the accused in the performance of the official duty, though possibly in excess of the needs and requirements of the situation.

It is not correct to say that when obstruction is laid or resistance offered against an authorised and therefore lawful search, the officials conducting the search have no right to remove or cause to be removed the obstruction or resistance by the employment of reasonable force, and their remedy is only to resort to the police or the magistracy with a complaint. Such a view would frustrate the due discharge of the official duty and defeat the very object of the search, as the books, etc. might be secreted or destroyed in the interval; and it would encourage obstruction or resistance even to lawful acts. It may be that more than reasonable force is used to clear the obstruction or remove the resistance, but that would be a fit subject matter for inquiry during the proceedings; it would not make the act of removal improper or unlawful. Matajog Dobey v. H.C. Bhari, AIR 1956 SC 44: (1955) 2 SCR 925: (1955) 28 ITR 941, 948: 1956 Cri LJ 140.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8200] — S. 197 — Accused Government servant ceasing to be so when cognizance taken — No previous sanction under the section is necessary for the prosecution of a magistrate if he had ceased to be a Magistrate at the time of the taking of the cognizance of the offence committed

No previous sanction is necessary for a court to take cognizance of an offence committed by a Magistrate while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty if he had ceased to be a Magistrate at the time the complaint is made or police report is submitted to the Court i.e. at the time of the taking of cognizance of the offence committed. Keshavlal Mohanlal Shah v. State of Bombay, AIR 1961 SC 1395: (1962) 1 SCR 451: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 571.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-1961]

[8201] — S. 197 — Connection of offence with discharge of duties — Whether sanction is required will depend on the facts of each case

If the acts complained of are so integrally connected with the duties attaching to the office as to be inseparable from them, then sanction under S. 197(1) would be necessary; but if there was no necessary connection between them and the performance of those duties, the official status furnishing only the occasion or opportunity for the acts, then no sanction would be required.

Whether sanction is necessary to prosecute a public servant on a charge of criminal misappropriation, will depend on whether the acts complained of hinge on his duties as a public servant. If they do, then sanction is requisite. But if they are unconnected with such duties, then no sanction is necessary. Amrik Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1955 SC 309: (1955) 1 SCR 1302: 1955 Cri LJ 865, 867.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-1955]

[8202] — S. 197 — Object, nature and scope — Nature of offence — Tests — Government's sanction when called for

The intention behind S. 197, CrPC is to prevent public servants from being unnecessarily harassed. The section is not restricted only to cases of anything purported to be done in good faith, for a person who ostensibly acts in execution of his duty still purports so to act, although he may have a dishonest intention. Nor is it confined to cases where the act, which constitutes the offence, is the official duty of the official concerned. Such an interpretation would involve a contradiction in terms, because an offence can never be an official duty. The offence should have been committed when an act is done in the execution of duty or when an act purports to be done in the execution of duty.

The test appears to be not that the offence is capable of being committed only by a public servant and not by anyone else, but that it is committed by a public servant in an act done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty. The section cannot be confined to only such acts as are done by a public servant directly in pursuance of his public office, though in excess of the duty or under a mistaken belief as to the existence of such duty. Nor need the act constituting the offence be so inseparably connected with the official duty as to form part and parcel of the same transaction. What is necessary is that the offence must be in respect of an act done or purported to be done in the discharge of an official duty. It does not apply to acts done purely in a private capacity by a public servant. Expressions such as the "capacity in which the act is performed", "cloak of office" and "professed exercise of office" may not always be appropriate to describe or delimit the scope of the section. An act, merely because it was done negligently, does not cease to be one done or purporting to be done in execution of a duty.

Thus, there must be a reasonable connection between the act and the discharge of official duty, the act must bear such relation to the duty that the accused could lay a reasonable, but not a pretended or fanciful claim that he did it in the course of the performance of his duty.

The mere fact that the accused proposes to raise a defence of the act having purported to be done in execution of duty would not in itself be sufficient to justify the case being thrown out for want of sanction. Facts subsequently coming to light during the course of the judicial inquiry or during the course of the prosecution evidence at the trial may establish the necessity for sanction. Whether sanction is necessary or not may have to depend from stage to stage. The necessity may reveal itself in the course of the progress of the case. It would be open to the accused to place the material on record during the course of the trial for showing what his duty was and also that the acts complained of were so interrelated with his official duty so as to attract the protection afforded by S. 197, CrPC. Pukhraj v. State of Rajasthan, (1973) 2 SCC 701: 1973 SCC (Cri) 944: AIR 1973 SC 2591: 1973 Cri LJ 1795: (1974) 1 SCR 559.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1973]

[8203] — S. 197 — "Discharge of official duty" — Test — Postmaster General visiting a post office for inspection — A clerk working there requesting for cancellation of his transfer — P.M.G. abusing and kicking the clerk — Clerk lodging a complaint against P.M.G. under Ss. 323 and 504, IPC — P.M.G. filing application under S. 197 — Held, alleged act of abusing and kicking cannot be said to be in purported exercise of his duty — Hence court can take cognizance of the offence without sanction of Government. Pukhraj v. State of Rajasthan, (1973) 2 SCC 701: 1973 SCC (Cri) 944: AIR 1973 SC 2591: 1973 Cri LJ 1795: (1974) 1 SCR 559.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1973]

[8204] — S. 197 — Expression "acting or purporting to act in the discharge of official duties" — Meaning of — H certifying a false claim of accused knowing it to be false and thereby abetting offence of cheating — Sanction for prosecution under the section is not necessary

Per Imam, J.

Some offences cannot by their very nature be regarded as having been committed by public servants while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of their official duty. For instance, acceptance of a bribe, and offence punishable under S. 161 of the Indian Penal Code, is one of them and the offence of cheating or abetment thereof is another. Supreme Court has no hesitation in saying that where a public servant commits the offence of cheating or abets another so to cheat, the offence committed by him is not one while he is acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty, as such offences have no necessary connection between them and the performance of the duties of a public servant, the official status furnishing only the occasion or opportunity for the commission of the offences. H was not prosecuted for any offence concerning his act of certification. He was prosecuted for abetting the accused to cheat. His offence was not one committed by him while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty. Therefore provisions of S. 197 of the Code are inapplicable even if H be regarded as a public servant who was removable from his office by the Governor-General in Council or a Provincial Government.

Per Kapur, J.

The evidence to support the plea under S. 197 and to establish the requisite nexus between the act done by H and the scope and extent of his duties is lacking and therefore the applicability of S. 197 to the facts of the case is not proved. K. Satwant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 266: (1960) 2 SCR 89: 1960 Cri LJ 410, 13 to 1.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and Syed Jafer Imam[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1] and K.C. Das Gupta[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1959]

[8205] — S. 197 — Facts constituting offence to be shown on the face of the sanction — Otherwise prosecution to prove by extraneous evidence that those facts were placed before the sanctioning authority

The burden of providing that the requisite sanction has been obtained rests on the prosecution, and such burden includes proof that the sanctioning authority had given the sanction in reference to the facts on which the proposed prosecution was to be based; and these facts might appear on the face of the sanction or might be proved by extraneous evidence. Madan Mohan Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 637, 641: 1954 Cri LJ 1656.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1954]

Gokul Chand Dwarkadas Morarka v. King, 75 IA 30: AIR 1948 PC 82 approved; 1963 Supp 2 SCR 652: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 65, followed

[8206] — S. 197 — Failure to obtain sanction

Where on the facts, S. 197(1) is applicable and sanction is essential, failure to obtain such sanction is fatal to the maintainability of the conviction. Amrik Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1955 SC 309: (1955) 1 SCR 1302: 1955 Cri LJ 865, 867.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-1955]

[8207] — S. 197 — Failure to obtain sanction not to affect co-accused not a Government servant — Accused a contractor tried up to certain stage with an officer of Government — Accused charged under S. 420 IPC and officer charged for abetment of the offence — Trial of accused not bad if the officer was being tried without sanction

The appellant was not a Government servant, but only an independent contractor, and in his case, therefore, there was no question of any sanction of the Central Government being obtained under S. 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. His trial would, therefore, be unaffected by the want of sanction of the Central Government for the prosecution of. Bakhshish Singh Dhaliwal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 752: (1967) 1 SCR 211: 1967 Cri LJ 656.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-8-1966]

[8208] — S. 197 — Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947, S. 6 — Principles under S. 197 held not applicable. Electrical Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. D.D. Bhargava, AIR 1968 SC 247: (1968) 1 SCR 394: 1968 Cri LJ 236.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1967]

[8209] — S. 197 — Object and purpose of — Sanction for prosecution of public servant for offence committed in discharge of official duty — Public servant charged with having used defamatory and abusive words — Sanction for prosecution — Necessity — Relation between the act and discharge of official duty

The object and purpose underlying this section is to afford protection to public servants against frivolous, vexatious or false prosecution for offences alleged to have been committed by them while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of their official duty. The larger interest of efficiency of State administration demands that public servants should be free to perform their official duty fearlessly and undeterred by apprehension of their possible prosecution at the instance of private parties to whom annoyance or injury may have been caused by their legitimate acts done in the discharge of their official duty. This section is designed to facilitate an effective and unhampered performance of their official duty by public servants by providing for scrutiny into the allegations of commission of offence by them by their superior authorities and prior sanction for their prosecution as a condition precedent to the cognizance of the cases against them by the courts. It is neither to be too narrowly construed nor too widely. Too narrow and pedantic construction may render it otiose for it is no part of an official duty — and never can be — to commit an offence. It is not the "duty" which requires examination so much as the "act" because the official act can be performed both in the discharge of the official duty as well as in dereliction of it. One must also guard against too wide a construction because in our constitutional set-up, the idea of legal equality or of universal subjection of all citizens to one law administered by the ordinary courts has been pushed to its utmost limits by enshrining equality before the law in our fundamental principles. Broadly speaking, with us no man, whatever his rank or condition is above the law and every official from the highest down to the lowest is under the same responsibility for every act done without legal justification as any other citizen. In construing S. 197, CrPC, therefore, a line has to be drawn between the narrow inner circle of strict official duties and acts outside the scope of official duties. The principle embodied in this section seems to be well understood; the difficulty normally lies in its application to the facts of a given case. The question whether a particular act is done by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty is substantially one of fact to be determined on the circumstances of each case. Bhagwan Prasad Srivastava v. N.P. Mishra, (1970) 2 SCC 56: 1970 SCC (Cri) 292: AIR 1970 SC 1661: 1970 Cri LJ 1401.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1970]

[8210] — S. 197 — Object of sanction for prosecution — Object is that the sanctioning authority is able to consider the evidence and conclude if prosecution be sanctioned or forbidden

The object of the provision for sanctions is that the authority giving the sanction should be able to consider for itself the evidence before it comes to a conclusion that the prosecution in the circumstances be sanctioned or forbidden. Jaswant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1958 SC 124: 1958 SCR 762: 1958 Cri LJ 265, 267, 68: (1958) 2 LLJ 269.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1957]

[8211] — S. 197 — Offence committed in private capacity — Hawkers threatening to trespass over complainant's land — Police asking the hawkers not to commit trespass — Accused a Deputy Superintendent of Police coming to the land threatening the complainant and asking the hawkers to trespass over the land — Held, accused not acting in discharge of his Official duties — Sanction under the section not necessary. Prabhakar V. Sinari v. Shanker Anant Verlekar, AIR 1969 SC 686: (1969) 2 SCR 1013: 1969 Cri LJ 1057, 60: (1969) 2 MLJ 1 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-11-1968]

[8212] — S. 197 — Offence under Ss. 120-B & 409 IPC and S. 5(2) of Prevention of Corruption Act — Whether acts complained of concerned with the official duties of a public servant — Sanction for prosecution — Whether necessary

Sanction for prosecutions under S. 197(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (5 of 1898) is required if the act complained of is directly concerned with the performance of the official duties by a public servant. The real question for determination while examining the question of sanction under S. 197(1) in a particular case is whether the acts complained of were directly concerned with the official duties of the accused in their capacity as public servants. As far as the offence of criminal conspiracy punishable under S. 120-B, read with S. 409 of the Penal Code is concerned and also S. 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act are concerned they cannot be said to be of the nature mentioned in S. 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. It is no part of the duty of a public servant, while discharging his official duties, to enter into a criminal conspiracy or to indulge in criminal misconduct. Want of sanction under S. 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is, therefore, no bar to a prosecution under S. 120-B, read with S. 409 of the Penal Code. Harihar Prasad v. State of Bihar, (1972) 3 SCC 89: 1972 SCC (Cri) 409: 1972 Cri LJ 707.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-9-1971]

[8213] — S. 197 — Power to grant sanction — Vests absolutely in the Government — Court has no jurisdiction in the matter — Court should examine whether it can take cognizance of a case without necessary sanction if no sanction exists

The Court has to find out if the act complained against was committed by the accused while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of official duty. Once this is settled, the case proceeds or is thrown out.

Whether sanction is to be accorded or not is a matter for the Government to consider. The absolute power to accord or withhold sanction conferred on the Government is irrelevant and foreign to the duty cast on the Court, which is the ascertainment of the true nature of the act. Matajog Dobey v. H.C. Bhari, AIR 1956 SC 44: (1955) 2 SCR 925: (1955) 28 ITR 941: 1956 Cri LJ 140, 143, 45.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8214] — S. 197 — Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 — S. 6 — Effect on construction of Section 6, must be construed with reference to the words used therein independent of any construction which may have been placed by these decisions on the words used in S. 197 of the Code. S.A. Venkataraman v. State, AIR 1958 SC 107, 110: 1958 SCR 1040: (1958) 2 LLJ 1: 1958 Cri LJ 254.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1957]

[8215] — S. 197 — Prosecution for offence other than sanctioned improper — Accused prosecuted under S. 5(1)(a) for habitually taking bribe — Sanction for prosecution given for taking one individual item of bribe by the accused — Conviction under S. 5(1)(d) for taking one individual item of bribe is not illegal

The sanctioning authority sanctioned the prosecution of the accused for taking one item of bribe, but he was prosecuted under S. 5(1)(a) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 for habitually accepting bribe. The incident for which prosecution was sanctioned was also mentioned in the charge. The Special Judge convicted the accused. In appeal conviction under S. 5(2) was maintained but the sentence was reduced on the ground that the sanction for prosecution was with respect to one item of bribe only.

The contention before the Supreme Court was that the trial for two offences requiring sanction is wholly void, where the sanction is granted for one offence and not for the other.

Held :

S. 6(1) of the Prevention of Corruption Act bars the jurisdiction of the Court to take cognizance of an offence for which previous sanction is required and has not been given. The prosecution for offence under S. 5(1)(d) is therefore not barred because the proceedings are not without previous sanction which was validly given for the offence of receiving one item of bribe, but the offence of habitually receiving illegal gratification could not be taken cognizance of and the prosecution and trial for that offence was void for want of sanction which is a condition precedent for the Courts taking cognizance of the offence alleged to be committed and therefore the High Court has rightly set aside the conviction for that offence. The want of sanction for the offence of habitually accepting bribe, therefore does not make taking of cognizance of the offence of taking one item of bribe void nor the trial of that offence illegal and the Court a court without jurisdiction. Jaswant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1958 SC 124: 1958 SCR 762: 1958 Cri LJ 265, 267, 68: (1958) 2 LLJ 269.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1957]

[8216] — S. 197 — Provisions with regard to sanction must be strictly observed

The sanction under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 is not intended to be nor is an automatic formality and it is essential that the provisions in regard to sanction should be observed with complete strictness. Jaswant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1958 SC 124: 1958 SCR 762: 1958 Cri LJ 265, 267, 68: (1958) 2 LLJ 269.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1957]

[8217] — S. 197 — Public servant committing criminal breach of trust — No sanction necessary

A public servant committing criminal breach of trust does not normally act in his capacity as a public servant. Om Parkash Gupta v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 458, 464: 1957 SCR 423: (1958) 2 LLJ 645: 1957 Cri LJ 575.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, S.K. Das and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1957]

[8218] — S. 197 — Public servant employed by the State Government — Loaned to the Central Government — Governor-General and not the Governor is competent to sanction prosecution

The first part of S. 197(1) provides a special protection, inter alia to public servants who are not removable from their offices save by or with the sanction of the State Government or the Central Government where they are charged with having committed offences while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of their official duties; and the form which this protection has taken is that before a criminal court can take cognizance of any offence alleged to have been committed by such public servants, a sanction should have been accorded to the said prosecution by the appropriate authorities. In other words, the appropriate authorities must be satisfied that there is a prima facie case for starting the prosecution and this prima facie satisfaction has been interposed as a safeguard before the actual prosecution commences. The object of S. 197(1) clearly is to save public servants from frivolous prosecution.

That being the object of the section it is clear that if persons happened to be employed in connection with the affairs of the Federation, it was the Governor-General who gave sanction and if persons happened to be employed in connection with the affairs of the State, it was the Governor.

Therefore when a public servant belonging to State service was loaned to the Central Government and at the relevant time he was employed in connection with the affairs of Federation it was the Governor-General alone who was competent to accord sanction. R.R. Chari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1573: (1963) 1 SCR 121: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 510: ILR (1962) 2 All 904.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1962]

[8219] — S. 197 — Public servant illegally exercising his discretion as a public servant — Sanction is necessary — Assistant Commissioner of Police refusing to grant bail unless a condition which could not be legally imposed, was fulfilled — His prosecution under S. 348, IPC — Sanction is necessary

Whether a person charged with an offence should or should not be released on bail was a matter within the discretion of the respondent and if while exercising a discretion he acted illegally by saying that bail would not be granted unless the appellant did something which the appellant was not bound to do, the respondent cannot be said to have acted otherwise than in his capacity as a public servant. For this reason the sanction of the appropriate authority for the respondent's prosecution was necessary under S. 197, Criminal Procedure Code. Somchand Sanghvi v. Bibhuti Bhusan Chakravarty, AIR 1965 SC 588: (1964) 6 SCR 275: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 499.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-1-1964]

[8220] — S. 197 — Sanction — Lacuna in — When can be remedied

If there is any lacuna in the sanction of the kind contemplated in Gokulchand's case, AIR 1948 PC 82, it can be remedied in the course of the trial by specific evidence in that behalf. M.K. Gopalan v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 362: (1955) 1 SCR 168: 1954 Cri LJ 1012.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1954]

[8221] — S. 197 — Sanction accorded after the Court taking cognizance is not proper sanction. Baijnath v. State of M.P., AIR 1966 SC 220: (1966) 1 SCR 210: 1966 Cri LJ 179.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar[1], M. Hidayatullah[2] and V. Ramaswami[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1965]

[8222] — S. 197 — Sanction for prosecution — Necessity of — Sanction is necessary only when the public servant is acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his duties

The language of S. 197 CrPC clearly is that no court can take cognizance of an offence alleged to have been committed by any person belonging to the categories mentioned in the section. When he is accused of an offence alleged to have been committed by him while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty, it was not every offence committed by a public servant which required sanction for prosecution under S. 197(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure nor even every act done by him while he was actually engaged in the performance of his official duties. But if the act complained of was directly concerned with his official duties so that, if questioned, it could be claimed to have been done by virtue of the office, then sanction would be necessary and that would be so, irrespective of whether it was in fact, a proper discharge of his duties or not. Prabhakar V. Sinari v. Shanker Anant Verlekar, AIR 1969 SC 686: (1969) 2 SCR 1013: 1969 Cri LJ 1057, 60: (1969) 2 MLJ 1 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-11-1968]

[8223] — S. 197 — Sanction for prosecution for abetment of cheating — Not necessary when an officer of Government prosecuted for abetment of the offence of cheating committed by persons submitting bogus bills by falsely certifying the correctness of bills

He was not being prosecuted for the act of certification of the correctness of the bills which were sent to him for verification, but was to be prosecuted for abetment of the offence of cheating committed by those persons who had submitted the bills by falsely certifying the correctness of those bills. The act of thus abetting the principal offenders could not possibly be held to have been done in the discharge of official duties as a public servant. Bakhshish Singh Dhaliwal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 752: (1967) 1 SCR 211: 1967 Cri LJ 656.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-8-1966]

[8224] — S. 197 — Sanction for prosecution of a public servant — Scope and test for determination — There must be reasonable connection between the act and the official duty

The offence alleged to have been committed must have something to do, or must be related in some manner, with the discharge of official duty. No question of sanction can arise under S. 197, unless the act complained of is an offence; the only point to determine is whether it was committed in the discharge of official duty. There must be a reasonable connection between the act and the official duty. It does not matter even if the act exceeds what is strictly necessary for the discharge of the duty, as this question will arise only at a later stage when the trial proceeds on the merit.

What has to be found out is whether the act and the official duty are so interrelated that one can postulate reasonably that it was done by the accused in the performance of the official duty, though possibly in excess of the needs and requirements of the situation. Matajog Dobey v. H.C. Bhari, AIR 1956 SC 44: (1955) 2 SCR 925: (1955) 28 ITR 941: 1956 Cri LJ 140, 143, 45.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8225] — S. 197 — Sanction for prosecution of a public servant for offence under S. 409 IPC — Not necessary when act of criminal misappropriation was not committed by the appellant while he was acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties and that offence has no direct connection with the duties of the accused as a public servant

Sanction of the State Government was not necessary for the prosecution of a public servant under S. 409 IPC where the act of criminal misappropriation was not committed by the appellant while he was acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties and that offence has no direct connection with the duties of the appellant as a public servant, and the official status of the appellant only furnished the appellant with an occasion or an opportunity of committing the offence. Baijnath v. State of M.P., AIR 1966 SC 220: (1966) 1 SCR 210: 1966 Cri LJ 179.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar[1], M. Hidayatullah[2] and V. Ramaswami[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1965]

[8226] — S. 197 — Sanction for prosecution of a railway servant — Class I Railway Officer removable by Railway Board and not by the Central Government — Section not applicable to such an Officer — Sanction for prosecution not necessary under the section. K.N. Shukla v. Navnit Lal Manilal Bhatt, AIR 1967 SC 1331: (1967) 2 SCR 290: 1967 Cri LJ 1200: (1967) 2 LLJ 261.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-12-1966]

[8227] — S. 197 — Sanction for prosecution of a Sub-Inspector of Police in Mysore State — Inspector-General of Police competent to dismiss a Sub-Inspector under Mysore Police Act, 1908 — No sanction for prosecution necessary. Nagraj v. State of Mysore, AIR 1964 SC 269: (1964) 3 SCR 671: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 161, 66.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1963]

[8228] — S. 197 — Sanction for prosecution under S. 409 IPC — Accused charged under S. 409 IPC and S. 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 — Sanction for prosecution under the said S. 5(2) accorded, but no sanction for prosecution under the said S. 409 accorded — The sanction for prosecution under the said S. 5(2) cannot be extended to cover prosecution under S. 409 IPC — In case the sanctioning authorities to the two prosecutions on the same the prosecution under S. 409

IPC after the sanction for prosecution under the said S. 5(2) is incompetent. Shreekantiah Ramayya Munipalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 287: (1955) 1 SCR 1177: 1955 Cri LJ 857, 860.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1954]

[8229] — S. 197 — Sanction should be given in respect of the facts constituting the offence charged. Ram Sagar Pandit v. State of Bihar, 1963 Supp (2) SCR 652: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 65.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafar Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1962]

Gokal Chand Dwarkadas v. King, AIR 1948 PC 82: 75 IA 30, Approved

See also AIR 1954 SC 359

[8230] — S. 197 — Sanction should indicate that the sanctioning authority has applied its mind

It should be clear from the form of the sanction that the sanctioning authority considered the evidence before it and after a consideration of all the circumstances of the case sanctioned the prosecution, and therefore unless the matter can be proved by other evidence, in the sanction itself the facts should be referred to indicate that the sanctioning authority had applied its mind to the facts and circumstances of the case. Jaswant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1958 SC 124: 1958 SCR 762: 1958 Cri LJ 265, 267, 68: (1958) 2 LLJ 269.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1957]

[8231] — S. 197 — Sanction under S. 270, Government of India Act, 1935 accorded — Such sanction cannot be treated as sanction under S. 197 CrPC. K. Satwant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 266: (1960) 2 SCR 89: 1960 Cri LJ 410, 13 to 1.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and Syed Jafer Imam[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1] and K.C. Das Gupta[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1959]

[8232] — S. 197 — Scope and application — "Acting or purporting to act in the discharge of official duty" — Meaning of — Railway officials witnessing a search in the house of another Railway official at the request of the police, and not under the orders of superior Officers — During the search such officials, committing offences under Ss. 461, 379, 403, 342, 166 and 167, Penal Code — No sanction under S. 197, Criminal Procedure Code necessary. Dhannjay Ram Sharma v. M.S. Uppadaya, AIR 1960 SC 745: 1960 Cri LJ 1153: (1960) 2 MLJ 98 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1960]

[8233] — S. 197 — Taking "Cognizance" — Sanction of Government when necessary — Can a court take cognizance of an offence without sanction

The word 'cognizance' in this section indicates the stage of initiation of proceedings against a public servant. R.R. Chari v. State of U.P., AIR 1951 SC 207: 1951 SCR 312: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 775.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Harilal J. Kania, C.J. and Patanjali Sastri and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1951]

[8234] — S. 197 — Time when question of sanction to be considered — Court can consider the question of necessity of sanction at any stage of the trial when necessity of sanction is disclosed

The question whether sanction under S. 197 CrPC is necessary may arise at any stage of the proceedings. The complaint may not disclose that the act constituting the offence was done or purported to be done in the discharge of official duty; but facts subsequently coming to light on a police or judicial inquiry or even in the course of the prosecution evidence at the trial, may establish the necessity of sanction. Whether sanction is necessary or not may have to be determined from stage to stage. The necessity may reveal itself in the course of the progress of the case. Matajog Dobey v. H.C. Bhari, AIR 1956 SC 44: (1955) 2 SCR 925: (1955) 28 ITR 941: 1956 Cri LJ 140, 143, 45.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

— S. 197(1) See also Ss. 14, 197(1) and 197(2)

[8235] — S. 197(1) — Objection as to want of sanction under for prosecution of accused public servant not taken in courts below — Held, the objection open to accused at the stage of Supreme Court, as it was a pure question of law — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 409. Rameshwar Sahai v. State of U.P., Cr. A. No. 144 of 1954

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, C.J., T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-1955]

(1955) 1 SCR 1177, distinguished

[8236] — S. 197(1) — Scope — Sanction to prosecute for offences committed by public servants in the discharge of official duties

It is not every offence committed by a public servant that requires sanction for prosecution under S. 197(1), Criminal Procedure Code, nor even every act done by him while he is actually engaged in the performance of his official duties, but if the act complained of is directly concerned with his official duties so that, if questioned, it could be claimed to have been done by virtue of the office, then sanction would be necessary; and that would be so, irrespective of whether it was, in fact, a proper discharge of his duties, because that would really be a matter of defence on the merits, which would have to be investigated at the trial, and could not arise at the stage of the grant of sanction, which must precede the institution of the prosecution. Amrik Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1955 SC 309: (1955) 1 SCR 1302: 1955 Cri LJ 865, 867.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-1955]

[8237] — S. 197(1) — Prosecution of a public servant under S. 409 IPC — Whether sanction is required under S. 197(1) will depend on the facts of each case — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 409

Even when the charge is one of misappropriation by a public servant, whether sanction is required under S. 197(1) will depend upon the facts of each case. If the acts complained of are so integrally connected with the duties attaching to the office as to be inseparable from them, then sanction under S. 197(1) CrPC would be necessary; but if there was no necessary connection between them and the performance of those duties, the official status furnishing only the occasion or opportunity for the acts, then no sanction would be required.

Whether sanction is necessary to prosecute a public servant on a charge of criminal misappropriation, will depend on whether the acts complained of hinge on his duties as a public servant. If they do, then sanction is requisite. But if they are unconnected with such duties, then no sanction is necessary. Amrik Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1955 SC 309: (1955) 1 SCR 1302: 1955 Cri LJ 865, 867.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-1955]

[Ed.: Reviewing Shreekantiah (AIR 1955 SC 287) and Amrik Singh (AIR 1955 SC 309) the Supreme Court in Matajog Dubey v. H.C. Bhari, (1955) 2 SCR 925: AIR 1956 SC 44: 1956 Cri LJ 140, 145 stated: "There must be a reasonable connection between the act and the discharge of official duty; the act must bear such relation to the duty that the accused could lay a reasonable but not a pretended or fanciful claim, that he did it in the course of the performance of duty."

Also "whether sanction is necessary or not may have to be determined from stage to stage. The necessity may reveal itself in the course of progress of the case".

AIR 1939 FC 43: 40 Cri LJ 468; AIR 1948 PC 128: 49 Cri LJ 503: and AIR 1949 PC 117: 50 Cri LJ 395, affirmed

See also AIR 1966 SC 20: 1966 Cri LJ 179; AIR 1969 SC 686: 1969 Cri LJ 1057; AIR 1954 SC 455: 1954 Cri LJ 1161; and AIR 1956 SC 44: 1956 Cri LJ 140

For an instance see (1955) 1 SCR 1177: AIR 1955 SC 287: 1955 Cri LJ 857

Followed in (1972) 3 SCC 89: 1972 SCC (Cri) 409.]

[8238] — S. 197(1) — Public servant — Sanction not necessary if act not connected with his official duty — S. 106, T.N. Village Panchayats Act, 1950 (10 of 1950) — Held, similar prosecution of President of Panchayat Board upheld — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 409. P. Arulswami v. State of Madras, AIR 1967 SC 776: (1967) 1 SCR 201: 1967 Cri LJ 665.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1966]

[8239] — S. 197(1) — Policy behind the section

Section 197(1) CrPC is inspired by the underlying policy of protection of the concerned public servant. M.K. Gopalan v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 362: (1955) 1 SCR 168: 1954 Cri LJ 1012.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1954]

— S. 197(2) See Ss. 14, 197(1) and 197(2)
See also Ss. 14(1) and 197(2)

[8240] — S. 197(2) — Not inspired by any policy for protection of public servants

There is no reason to think that S. 197(2) is inspired by any policy of protection of the public servant concerned, as S. 197(1) is. There can be no question of protection involved by an accused being tried by one court rather than by another at the choice of the Government.

The power under S. 197(2) appears to be vested in the appropriate Government for being exercised, on grounds of convenience, or the complexity or gravity of the case or other relevant considerations.

The power to specify a court for trial in such cases is a permissive power. M.K. Gopalan v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 362, 363: (1955) 1 SCR 168: 1954 Cri LJ 1012.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1954]

[8241] — Ss. 197(2) and 14 — Relative scope

As regarding the scopes of the powers under S. 197(2) and S. 14, the one relates to the "Court" and the other to the "person". Under sub-section (2) of S. 197, the sanctioning Government may specify a court for the trial of the case but is not bound to do so. When it does not choose to specify the Court, the trial is subject to the operation of the other provisions of the Code. But even when it chooses to exercise the power of specifying the Court before which the trial is to be held, such specification of the Court does not touch the question as to who is the person to function in such court before which the trial is to take place. That is a matter still left to be exercised by the Provincial Government of the area where the trial is to take place. The argument of learned counsel proceeds on treating the word "court" in sub-section (2) of S. 197 as being the same as a "person" in sub-section (1) of S. 14, for which there is no warrant. M.K. Gopalan v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 362, 363: (1955) 1 SCR 168: 1954 Cri LJ 1012.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1954]

— S. 198 See also Ss. 190 and 195 to 199

[8242] — S. 198 — Scope — Mandatory nature

Section 198, lays down an exception to the general rule that a complaint can be filed by anybody whether he is an aggrieved person or not, and modifies that rule by permitting only an aggrieved person to move a magistrate in cases of defamation. The section is mandatory, so that if a magistrate were to take cognizance of the offence of defamation on a complaint filed by one who is not an aggrieved person, the trial and conviction of an accused in such a case by the Magistrate would be void and illegal. G. Narasimhan v. T.V. Chokkappa, (1972) 2 SCC 680: 1972 SCC (Cri) 777: AIR 1972 SC 2609: (1972) 2 MLJ 61 (SC): 1973 Cri LJ 52.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-9-1972]

[8243] — S. 198 — "Aggrieved person" — Defamation — Class if definite, identifiable and determinate in relation to the imputation. G. Narasimhan v. T.V. Chokkappa, (1972) 2 SCC 680: 1972 SCC (Cri) 777: AIR 1972 SC 2609: (1972) 2 MLJ 61 (SC): 1973 Cri LJ 52.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-9-1972]

[8244] — S. 198 — Complaint by an aggrieved person only — Accused charged on facts not made out in the complaint — Mandatory provisions of the section are violated. Abdul Rehman Mahomed Yusuf v. Mahomed Haji Ahmad Agbotwala, AIR 1960 SC 82: (1960) 1 SCR 749: 1960 Cri LJ 158.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1959]

[8245] — Ss. 198 and 198-B — Scope and meaning — Complaint for offence under S. 500 IPC against a public servant in respect of his conduct in discharge of his public functions can be filed direct in Sessions Court

Section 198, CrPC provides inter alia that no court shall take cognizance of an offence falling under Ch. XXI (which contains Ss. 499 and 500 IPC) except upon complaint made by some person aggrieved by such offence. Section 198-B, however, is an exception to the provisions of S. 198 and provides that notwithstanding anything contained in the Code, when any offence falling under Ch. XXI of the Indian Penal Code other than the offence of defamation by spoken words is alleged to have been committed against any public servant, employed in connection with the affairs of a State, in respect of his conduct in the discharge of his public functions, a Court of Sessions may take cognizance of such offences without the accused being committed to it for trial, upon a complaint in writing made by the public prosecutor. It is thus that a public prosecutor can file a complaint in writing in the Court of Sessions directly with respect to an offence under S. 500 IPC committed against a public servant in respect of his conduct in the discharge of his public functions. Sahib Singh Mehra v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 1451: (1965) 2 SCR 823: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 434.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1965]

[8246] — Ss. 198 and 435 — Presidency Magistrate framing a charge and ordering acquittal in a case violating mandatory provisions of S. 198 — Order of acquittal is bad — Magistrate must refer the case to the High Court for correction of the error

The offence charged was a separate offence although of the same kind from the offence in respect of which the facts had been stated in the complaint. For the separate offence a complaint should have been filed and provisions of S. 198, CrPC which are mandatory, complied with. The Presidency Magistrate wrongly framed the charge, as on the record, when in respect of the offence charged there was no complaint filed and the facts as stated in the complaint actually filed did not make out the offence as charged. In such a situation the Presidency Magistrate, instead of proceeding to record an order of acquittal should have brought the matter to the notice of the High Court so that the error might be corrected. The Supreme Court can when the matter is before it in appeal do that which High Court could have done.

The Supreme Court allowed the appeal, set aside the order of acquittal and dismissed the complaint. Abdul Rehman Mahomed Yusuf v. Mahomed Haji Ahmad Agbotwala, AIR 1960 SC 82: (1960) 1 SCR 749: 1960 Cri LJ 158.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1959]

[8247] — Ss. 198 and 495 — Trial on complaint of a non-cognizable non-compoundable offence exclusively triable by Sessions Judge under Ss. 493 & 496 IPC — Complainant dying during pendency of trial — Court substituting complainant's mother in her place and there by permitting the continuance of the case — Magistrate acted legally and the prosecution can be continued by complainant's mother

Section 198, CrPC creates a bar that cognizance of the case under Ss. 493 and 496 can only be taken on the complaint of a person aggrieved subject to some exceptions and this bar has to be removed before cognizance is taken. Once the bar is removed, because the proper person has filed a complaint, the section works itself out. If any other restriction was also there the Code would have said so. Not having said so, one must treat the section as fulfilled and worked out. There is nothing in the Code or in Ch. XVIII which says that, if any, consequence would follow if the complainant remains absent at any subsequent hearing after filing the complaint. In this respect Ch. XVIII is distinctly dissimilar to the chapters dealing with the trial of summons and warrant cases where it is specifically provided what consequence follows on the absence of the complainant.

When the complaint was rightly filed by a person aggrieved as required by S. 198, CrPC for offences under Ss. 417, 493 and 496 IPC and the Magistrate on the death of the complainant has substituted the complainant's mother in her place what he has done is to allow the mother to act as the complainant to continue the prosecution. This power was undoubtedly possessed by the Presidency Magistrate because of S. 495 of the Code by which courts are empowered (with some exceptions) to authorise the conduct of prosecution by any person. The words, any person, would indubitably include the mother of the complainant in a case such as this. Section 198 itself contemplates that a complaint may be made by a person other than the person aggrieved and there seems to be no valid reason why in such a serious case one should hold that the death of the complainant puts an end to the prosecution.

The Presidency Magistrate was right in proceeding with the inquiry by allowing the mother to carry on the prosecution, and under S. 495 the mother may continue the prosecution herself or through a pleader. Ashwin Nanubhai Vyas v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1967 SC 983: (1967) 1 SCR 807: 1967 Cri LJ 943, 45, 46: 69 Bom LR 308.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1966]

— S. 198-B See also Ss. 198 and 198-B

[8248] — S. 198-B(3) — Sanction for prosecution — Facts constituting the charge not appearing on the face of sanction — Court not vested to exercise jurisdiction unless proved by extraneous evidence that the facts were placed before the sanctioning authority and the said authority applied its mind

Mere production of a document which sets out the names of the persons to be prosecuted and the provisions of the statute alleged to be contravened, and purporting to bear the signature of an officer competent to grant the sanction where such sanction is a condition precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction does not invest the Court with jurisdiction to try the offence. If the facts which constitute the charge do not appear on the face of the sanction, it must be established by extraneous evidence that those facts were placed before the authority competent to grant the sanction and that the authority applied his mind to those facts before giving sanction. P.C. Joshi v. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 387: (1961) 2 SCR 63: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 566, 570.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.K. Das and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1960]

[8249] — S. 198-B(3) — Sanction to file a complaint — Form of — Sanction to file a complaint under S. 500 IPC for making defamatory remarks against a particular Public Prosecutor and other prosecuting staff of the State — Validity of sanction

The sanction conveyed by the Home Secretary for making a complaint under S. 500, IPC against the appellant with respect to the defamatory article containing defamatory remarks against the Assistant Public Prosecutor, Aligarh and other prosecuting staff against the Government in respect of their conduct in the discharge of public functions. The sanction was therefore with respect to defamation of two persons: (i) Assistant Public Prosecutor Aligarh; and (ii) other police prosecuting staff of Government of Uttar Pradesh which would be the entire prosecuting staff in the State. There was therefore nothing wrong in the form of sanction. Sahib Singh Mehra v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 1451: (1965) 2 SCR 823: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 434.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1965]

[8250] — S. 198-B(3)(a) — Scope — Complaint under Ss. 500 & 501 IPC for defaming the Governor — Essentials explained — Secretary to Government according the sanction — Authorization by the Governor before the sanction is essential — Governor cannot leave the decision relating to authorization to Government — Decision must first be taken by him — Thereafter he is free to accord or not accord the sanction — Sanction by the Secretary without proper authorization — Is illegal and prosecution is without jurisdiction

Under S. 198-B(3)(a) CrPC there are two restrictions placed upon the power of the Public Prosecutor to lodge a complaint with respect to defamation of a high dignitary such as the Governor. The first is that he must have been given a sanction to lodge such complaint and the other is that the sanction should be accorded by a Secretary to the Government, authorised by the Governor in this behalf. This means that the Governor has first to consider for himself whether the alleged defamatory statement is of a kind of which he should take notice and seek to vindicate himself or whether the defamatory statement being of a trivial nature of having been made by an irresponsible person or for some other reason should be ignored. This decision has to be taken by the Governor himself. He cannot leave it to some other person or an authority like the Government to decide whether, a complaint should be lodged or not.

While it is no doubt true that it is the sanctioning authority which has to apply its mind to the facts of a case before according sanction and that in performing the function of according the sanction the Secretary does not merely perform a ministerial act, it is clear that initiative has to be taken by the Governor by indicating unequivocally that he desires action to be taken and that the authorization by him is not an idle formality, where the Governor leaves the matter to the Government that to take such action as it deems necessary the authorization is neither proper nor it is an authorization to the Secretary.

The Secretary is expected to look at the question objectively and decide whether it is in the public interest to take notice of the alleged defamatory statement and prosecute the person who made it. A person who is directly aggrieved by the statement may not be in a position to take an objective view of an alleged defamatory statement and since the expenses for the prosecution will have to be borne by the State the Legislature evidently felt that there was a good reason for leaving the final decision to a third person rather than with the aggrieved person. All the same the initiative to lodge a complaint must be taken by the Governor himself and unless he has, in pursuance of this decision to lodge a complaint, authorised a Secretary to sanction its being lodged, the Secretary gets no power to accord his sanction. Gour Chandra Rout v. Public Prosecutor, Cuttack, AIR 1963 SC 1198: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 447: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 194, 98.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1962]

[8251] — S. 198-B(3)(a) — Authorisation by the Governor to accord sanction to the Secretary to Government — Mode of proof — Can be proved either by the statement of the Governor or from any writing emanating from him

Whether sanction was authorised by the Governor could be proved either from the evidence of the Governor himself or from any writing emanating from the Governor in which the Governor has said that he has authorised the lodging of a complaint. Gour Chandra Rout v. Public Prosecutor, Cuttack, AIR 1963 SC 1198: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 447: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 194, 98.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1962]

[8252] — S. 198-B(3)(a) — Authorisation by Governor for according sanction to the Secretary to Government — General authorisation is not sufficient — Authorisation must be for each specific complaint

Sub-sec. (3) of S. 198-B speaks of a complaint under sub-section (1) and the complaint under sub-section (1) is specific complaint in writing made by the Public Prosecutor. Therefore, reading the two sub-sections together it would be clear that the authorization by the Governor is of the sanction with respect to a specific complaint. A general sanction can, therefore, not be of any avail. Clause (a) contemplates authorisation by the Governor defamed and, therefore, an authorisation of the type which we have here made by someone else in 1956 can be of no avail. Indeed, considering the nature of the offence it is difficult to appreciate how an authorisation in advance to sanction the making of a complaint of defamation can at all be given. Gour Chandra Rout v. Public Prosecutor, Cuttack, AIR 1963 SC 1198: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 447: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 194, 98.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1962]

[8253] — Ss. 198-B(5) and (7) — Compensation payable to an accused if the complaint is false and frivolous or vexatious — Person aggrieved by the alleged defamation is concerned with the lodging of the complaint even though it is filed by the Public Prosecutor — Compensation to the accused under Cl. (7) can be awarded only on satisfaction that the allegation made by the aggrieved person are false and frivolous or vexatious

Clause (5) of S. 198-B indicates that the question whether the claim was false and either frivolous or vexatious may fall to be determined only if the person complaining to be defamed actively supports the complaint. Therefore S. 198-B does not provide for compensation being awarded against a person who is not concerned with the complaint.

The complainant eo nomine in cases under S. 198-B, is undoubtedly the Public Prosecutor, but the complaint may when the person defamed is a Minister or a Public servant, properly be regarded as filed at the instance of such Minister or Public servant. It cannot be said that a person who has either been instrumental in the initiation of a complaint, or in any event has to support it by his evidence, has no concern with the lodging of the complaint. The Court would obviously award compensation only if it is satisfied that the claim made by the person posing to be aggrieved is false and either frivolous or vexatious. P.C. Joshi v. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 387: (1961) 2 SCR 63: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 566, 570.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.K. Das and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1960]

— S. 198-B(7) See Ss. 198-B(5) and (7)

[8254] — S. 198-B(13) — "Derogation" — Words and Phrases

"Derogation" means, taking away, lessening or impairing the authority, position or dignity, and the context in which sub-s. (13) occurs clearly shows that the provisions of S. 198-B do not impair the remedy provided by S. 198. P.C. Joshi v. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 387: (1961) 2 SCR 63: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 566.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.K. Das and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1960]

[8255] — S. 198-B(13) — Scope and interpretation — Complaint under the section by a Public Prosecutor — Need not be signed by the person aggrieved

Clause (13) of S. 198-B means that S. 198-B is an additional provision and is not intended to take away the right of a person aggrieved even if he belongs to the specified classes and the offence is in respect of his conduct in the discharge of his public function to file a complaint in the manner specified in S. 198. The provisions of S. 198 are therefore not applicable to a complaint under S. 198-B and cognizance of an offence of defamation under S. 198-B can be taken by a court on a complaint filed by the Public Prosecutor which need not be signed by the person aggrieved. P.C. Joshi v. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 387: (1961) 2 SCR 63: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 566, 570.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.K. Das and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1960]

— S. 199 See also Ss. 190 and 195 to 199

[8256] — S. 199 — Taking cognizance of an offence on the basis of FIR is a judicial and not administrative act

The District Magistrate must be held to have taken cognizance of the offence at least when, on the first information report having ben produced before him, he noted that he was prima facie satisfied that the accused persons had committed the offence set out in that document. This was clearly not an administrative act on his part but a judicial act after he had applied his mind to the contents of the first information report before him for the purpose of initiation of proceedings before him. Mowu v. Supdt., Special Jail, (1971) 3 SCC 936: 1972 SCC (Cri) 184: 1971 CAR 66 (SC).

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J., J.M. Shelat, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1970]

— S. 200 See Ss. 190 and 200

See also Ss. 195 and 200

See also Ss. 417(3), 200, 202, 156(3) and 173

[8257] — S. 200 — Duty of Special Judge to examine complainant before taking cognizance — Such obligation does not arise where he is governed by the provisions of a Special Act under which the case is allotted to him for trial. State of W.B. v. Bejoy Kumar Bose, (1978) 1 SCC 173: 1978 SCC (Cri) 78: AIR 1978 SC 188: 1978 Cri LJ 138: (1978) 2 SCR 382: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 250.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and V.D. Tulzapurkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1977]

[8258] — S. 200 — Examination of complainant and his witness — Object of

The object of examination of the complainant and his witness under S. 200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is to ascertain whether there is prima facie case against the person accused of the offence in the complaint, and to prevent the issue of process on a complaint which is either false or vexatious or intended only to harass such a person. Such examination is provided therefore to find out whether there is or not sufficient ground for proceeding. Nirmaljit Singh Hoon v. State of W.B., (1973) 3 SCC 753: 1973 SCC (Cri) 521: AIR 1972 SC 2639.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat^{1}, I.D. Dua^{1} and H.R. Khanna$^{1&2}$, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1972]

[8259] — Ss. 200, 202 and 156(3) — After taking cognizance investigation under S. 202 only proper

If the learned Magistrate had used the words "for investigation" instead of the words "for instituting a case" the order would clearly be under S. 202 of the Code of the Criminal Procedure. We do not think that the fact that he used the words "for instituting a case" makes any difference. It has to be noticed that the Magistrate was not bound to take cognizance of the offences on receipt of the complaint. He could have, without taking cognizance, directed an investigation of the case by the police under S. 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Once however he took cognizance he could order investigation by the police only under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and not under S. 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. As it is clear here from the very fact that he took action under S. 200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that he had taken cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint, it was open to him to order investigation only under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and not under S. 156(3) of the Code. It would be proper in these circumstances to hold that though the Magistrate used the words "for instituting a case" in the order he was actually taking action under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that being the only section under which he was in law entitled to act.

The fact that the Sub-Inspector of Police treated the copy of the petition of complaint as a first information report and submitted "charge-sheet" against the accused persons cannot make any differences. Jamuna Singh v. Bhadai Shah, AIR 1964 SC 1541, 1544: (1964) 5 SCR 37: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 468.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-10-1963]

[8260] — Ss. 200, 202 and 203 — Scope and meaning — Dismissal of complaint under S. 203 — Enquiry under S. 202 — Scope of — Enquiry officer supporting plea of self defence — The Magistrate can accept the report and dismiss the complaint — Not obligatory to issue process and compel the accused to prove the plea of self-defence

When a Magistrate directs an enquiry under S. 202 CrPC for ascertaining the truth or falsehood of complaint and receives a report from the enquiry officer supporting a plea of self defence made by the person complained against it is open to the Magistrate to hold that the plea is correct on the basis of the report and the statement of the witnesses recorded by the enquiry officer. He is not bound as a matter of law to issue process in such a case and leave the person complained against to establish his plea of self-defence at the trial.

It is manifestly clear from the provisions of S. 203 that the judgment which the Magistrate has to form must be based on the statements of the complainant and his witnesses and the result of the investigation or inquiry. But the judgment which the Magistrate has to form is whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. This does not mean that the Magistrate is bound to accept the result of the inquiry or investigation or that he must accept any plea that is set up on behalf of the person complained against. The Magistrate must apply his judicial mind to the materials on which he has to form his judgment. In arriving at his judgment he is not fettered in any way except by judicial considerations; he is not bound to accept what the inquiring officer says, nor is he precluded from accepting a plea based on an exception, provided always there are satisfactory and reliable materials on which he can base his judgment as to whether there is sufficient ground for proceeding on the complaint or not. If the Magistrate has not misdirected himself as to the scope of an enquiry under S. 202 and has applied his mind judicially to the materials before him, we think that it would be erroneous in law to hold that a plea based on an exception can never be accepted by him in arriving at his judgment. What bearing such a plea has on the case of complainant and his witnesses, to what extent they are falsified by the evidence of other witnesses — all these are questions which must be answered with reference to the facts of each case. No universal rule can be laid in respect of such questions. Vadilal Panchal v. Dattatraya Dulaji Ghadigaonkar, AIR 1960 SC 1113: (1961) 1 SCR 1: 1960 Cri LJ 1499, 1503: (1961) 2 MLJ 16 (SC).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, J.L. Kapur and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1960]

[8261] — Ss. 200 and 202 — Scope — Application to a complaint by Court — Enquiry or examination of the complainant is not necessary when complaint is by court

Under S. 200 proviso (aa) it is not necessary for a Magistrate when a complaint is made by a court to examine the complainant and neither S. 200 nor S. 202 requires a preliminary enquiry before the Magistrate can assume jurisdiction to issue process against the person complained against. Ranjit Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1959 SC 843: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 727: 1959 Cri LJ 1124, 26, 27.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-4-1959]

[8262] — Ss. 200 and 204 — Magistrate taking cognizance

It is only when a Magistrate applies his mind for the purpose of proceedings under S. 200 and subsequent sections of Ch. XVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure or under S. 204 of Ch. XVII of Code that it can be positively stated that he had applied his mind and therefore had taken cognizance. Narayandas Bhagwandas Madhavdas v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1118, 1123-2: (1960) 1 SCR 93: 1959 Cri LJ 1368.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1959]

— S. 202 See Ss. 155, 61, 94, 167, 164 and 202
See also Ss. 190, 202 and 156(3)
See also Ss. 200 and 202
See also Ss. 200, 202 and 156(3)
See also Ss. 200, 202 and 203
See also Ss. 417(3), 200, 202, 156(3) and 173

[8263] — S. 202 — Inquiry by the Magistrate — Scope — Accused does not come into the picture till process is issued — He can insist on his physical presence, but cannot make him to take part in proceedings

The entire scheme of Ch. XVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure that an accused person does not come into the picture at all till process is issued. This does not mean that he is precluded from being present when an enquiry is held by a Magistrate. He may remain present either in person or through a counsel or agent with a view to be informed of what is going on. But since the very question for consideration being whether he should be called upon to face an accusation, he has no right to take part in the proceedings nor has the Magistrate any jurisdiction to permit him to do so. It would follow from this therefore, that it would not be open to the Magistrate to put any question to witnesses at the instance of the person named as accused but against whom process has not been issued; nor can he examine any witnesses at the instance of such a person. Of course, the Magistrate himself is free to put such questions to the witnesses produced before him by the complainant as he may think proper in the interest of justice. But beyond that, he cannot go.

No doubt, one of the objects behind the provisions of S. 202, CrPC is to enable the Magistrate to scrutinize carefully the allegations made in the complaint with a view to prevent a person named therein as accused from being called upon to face an obviously frivolous complaint. But there is also another object behind this provision and it is to find out what material there is to support the allegations made in the complaint. It is the bounden duty of the Magistrate while making an enquiry to elicit all facts not merely with a view to protect the interests of an absent accused person, but also with a view to bring to book a person or persons against whom grave allegations are made. Whether the complaint is frivolous or not has, at that stage, necessarily to be determined on the basis of the material placed before him by the complainant. Whatever defence the accused may have can only be enquired into at the trial. An enquiry under S. 202 can in no sense be characterised as a trial for the simple reason that in law there can be but one trial for an offence. Permitting an accused person to intervene during the enquiry would frustrate its very object and that is why the Legislature has made no specific provision permitting an accused person to take part in an enquiry.

Where the Magistrate in inquiry under S. 202 CrPC examined two witnesses as court witnesses at the instance of the accused the enquiry is vitiated. Chandra Deo Singh v. Prokash Chandra Bose, AIR 1963 SC 1430: (1964) 1 SCR 639: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 397, 401.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1963]

[8264] — S. 202 — Reinvestigation on breach of mandatory provisions

When the breach of a mandatory provision is brought to the knowledge of the Court at a sufficiently early stage, the Court while not declining cognizance, will have to take the necessary steps to get the illegality cured and the defect rectified, by ordering such reinvestigation as the circumstances of an individual case may call for.

Such a course is not altogether outside the contemplation of the scheme of the Code as appears from S. 202 under which a Magistrate taking cognizance on a complaint can order investigation by the police. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 204: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[8265] — S. 202 — Scope — Magistrate to be satisfied if there is sufficient ground for proceeding and not whether there is sufficient ground for conviction — Inquiry not like a trial

For determining the question whether any process is to be issued or not, what the Magistrate has to be satisfied is whether there is "sufficient ground for proceeding" and not whether there is sufficient ground for conviction. Whether the evidence is adequate for supporting the conviction can be determined only at the trial and not at the stage of enquiry.

An enquiry under S. 202 is not to be likened to a trial which can only take place after process is issued, and that there can be only one trial. No doubt, as stated in sub-section (1) of S. 202 itself, the object of the enquiry is to ascertain the truth of falsehood of the complaint, but the Magistrate making the enquiry has to do this only with reference to the intrinsic quality of the statements made before him at the enquiry which would naturally mean the complaint itself, the statement on oath made by the complainant and the statements made before him by persons examined at the instance of the complainant. Chandra Deo Singh v. Prokash Chandra Bose, AIR 1963 SC 1430: (1964) 1 SCR 639: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 397, 401.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1963]

Distinguished in Prabha Mathur v. Pramod Aggarwal, (2008) 9 SCC 469

[8266] — Ss. 202 and 203 — Fresh complaint on dismissal of the earlier complaint — Grounds of entertaining — Magistrate taking evidence into consideration — Order not absurd, unjust or foolish — Necessary principles applied — Fresh complaint not to be entertained

The Magistrate taking the evidence into consideration came to the conclusion that there was no ground to proceed, and therefore refused to issue process. In his opinion the evidence was not worthy of credit and he was not satisfied with the correctness of the complaint and dismissed it as he was entitled to do so on these findings. The order was, therefore, not in any manner manifestly absurd, unjust or foolish, nor can it be said that the Magistrate ignored any principles which were necessary to apply under Ss. 202 and 203 CrPC.

On the facts of the case the bringing of the fresh complaint is a gross abuse of the process of the Court and is not with the object of furthering the interest of justice.

Per S.K. Das, J. (minority)

The Magistrate instead of holding an enquiry into the complaint proceeded as though he was trying the case itself on merits. This mistake on the part of the Magistrate gave a wrong direction to the whole proceedings on the first complaint and the order of dismissal passed by him was due to a manifest error and resulted in miscarriage of justice.

The entertaining of the second complaint fully serves the interests of justice and its dismissal would defeat the ends of justice. Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 297: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1961]

[8267] — Ss. 202 and 203 — Object

The object of the provisions of S. 202, CrPC, is to enable a Magistrate to form an opinion as to whether the processes should be issued or not. At that stage what the Magistrate has to see is whether there is evidence in support of the allegations made in the complaint and not whether the evidence is sufficient to warrant conviction. The function of the Magistrate holding a preliminary enquiry is only to be satisfied that a prima facie case is made out against the accused on the materials placed before him by the complainant. Where a prima facie case has been made out even though much can be said on both sides, the committing Magistrate is bound to convict the accused for trial and the accused does not come into the picture at all till the process is issued. The dismissal of a complaint at that stage under S. 203, CrPC, on the ground that the case is covered by the Exceptions to S. 499, IPC, as well as all other defences that may be available to the appellants will have to be gone into during the trial of the complaint. Balraj Khanna v. Moti Ram, (1971) 3 SCC 399: 1971 SCC (Cri) 647: AIR 1971 SC 1389: 1971 Cri LJ 1110.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1971]

[8268] — Ss. 202 and 203 — Scope of — Magistrate's judgment under S. 203 to be based on the statements of the complainant and his witnesses and the result of the inquiry if any — Magistrate does not act erroneously if he has not misdirected himself as to the scope of the enquiry and has applied his mind to the material on record

The scope of enquiry under S. 202 is limited to finding out the truth or otherwise of the complaint in order to determine whether process should issue or not and S. 203 lays down what materials are to be considered for the purpose. Under S. 203 Criminal Procedure Code the judgment which the Magistrate has to form must be based on the statements of the complainant and of his witnesses and the result of the investigation or enquiry if any. He must apply his mind, to the materials and form his judgment whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. Therefore if he has not misdirected himself as to the scope of the enquiry made under S. 202, Criminal Procedure Code, and has judicially applied his mind to the material before him and then proceeds to make his order it cannot be said that he has acted erroneously. Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 297: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1961]

[8269] — Ss. 202 and 204 — Cognizance of offence taken by one Magistrate — Issue of process by another Magistrate in the absence of transfer of case to him by the Magistrate taking cognizance of offence — Legality — Power of Magistrate under S. 202 whether limited by S. 204

The High Court quashed the issue of process by the Magistrate Shri Sarkar on the ground that he not having cognizance of the offence had no right to issue of process. The cognizance of the offence had been taken by another Magistrate, Shri Ganguly, on appeal to the Supreme Court.

Held:

The High Court correctly quashed the issue of process. In the present case there was no order of the transfer of the case by Shri Ganguly to Shri Sarkar. The issue of process is a matter for judicial determination. Before issuing a process the Magistrate has to examine the complainant. That is why the issue of process is by the Magistrate who has taken cognizance or the Magistrate to whom the case has been transferred. The power of the Magistrate to issue process under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not limited by the terms of S. 204 to issue process. Rajindra Nath Mahato v. T. Ganguly, Dy. Supdt., (1972) 1 SCC 450: 1972 SCC (Cri) 206: AIR 1972 SC 470: (1972) 2 SCR 671: 1972 Cri LJ 268.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1971]

[8270] — Ss. 202 and 204 — Issue of process — Existence of sufficient cause for proceeding — When complaint is dismissed and when process is issued — Whether for issue of process sufficient evidence is required to be adduced by complainant

Per Khanna, J.

If the Magistrate before whom the complaint is made or to whom it has been transferred, after considering the statement on oath of the complainant and his witnesses and the result of enquiry or investigation under S. 202 is of the opinion that there is no sufficient cause for proceeding, he may for reasons to be recorded briefly, dismiss the complaint. If, on the contrary, the Magistrate taking cognizance of the offence is of the opinion that there is sufficient cause for proceeding, he should issue process against the accused in accordance with S. 204 of the Code. It may be that the evidence which is required to be adduced by the complainant at that stage may not be sufficient for recording a finding of conviction, but that fact would not absolve the complainant who wants the Magistrate to issue a process against the accused persons from leading some credible evidence as may prima facie show the commission of the offence. Nirmaljit Singh Hoon v. State of W.B., (1973) 3 SCC 753: 1973 SCC (Cri) 521: AIR 1972 SC 2639.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat[1], I.D. Dua[1] and H.R. Khanna[1&2], JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1972]

— S. 203 See Ss. 200, 202 and 203

See also Ss. 202 and 203

[8271] — S. 203 — Dismissal of complaint — When can be made — Whether in spite of patent absurdities of evidence it is justified to proceed with

An order of dismissal of a complaint under S. 203, Criminal Procedure Code, has to be made on judicially sound grounds. It can only be made where the reasons given disclose that the proceedings cannot terminate successfully in a conviction.

If a bare perusal of a complaint or the evidence led in support of it shows that the essential ingredients of the offences alleged are absent or that the dispute is only of civil nature or that there are such patent absurdities in evidence produced that it would be a waste of time to proceed further, the complaint could be properly dismissed under S. 203, Criminal Procedure Code. D.N. Bhattacharjee v. State of W.B., (1972) 3 SCC 414: 1972 SCC (Cri) 564: AIR 1972 SC 1607: 1972 Cri LJ 1037.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1972]

[8272] — S. 203 — Dismissal of first complaint under the section — Is no bar to the entertainment of second complaint on same facts — Exceptional circumstances to be shown before the second complaint can be entertained — Exceptional circumstances detailed

Per Kapur, J. (majority)

An order of dismissal under S. 203 is no bar to the entertainment of a second complaint on the same facts but it will be entertained only in exceptional circumstances e.g. where the previous order was passed on an incomplete record or on a misunderstanding of the nature of the complaint or it was manifestly absurd, unjust or foolish or where new facts which could not, with reasonable diligence, have been brought on the record in the previous proceedings, have been adduced. It cannot be said to be in the interest of justice that after a decision has been given against the complainant upon a full consideration of his case, he or any other person should be given another opportunity to have his complaint enquired into.

Per S.K. Das, J.

There is nothing in law which prohibits the entertainment of a second complaint on the same allegations when a previous complaint had been dismissed under S. 203 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. As a rule of necessary caution and of proper exercise of the discretion given to a Magistrate under S. 204(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, exceptional circumstances must exist for the entertainment of a second complaint on the same allegations in other words, there must be good reasons why the Magistrate thinks that there is "sufficient ground for proceeding" with the second complaint, when a previous complaint on the same allegations was dismissed under S. 203 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The exceptional circumstance must be such as would lead the Magistrate to think that the previous order of dismissal was due to a manifest error or resulted in a manifest miscarriage of justice. The exceptional circumstances are brought under three categories: (1) manifest error, (2) manifest miscarriage of justice, and (3) new facts which the complainant had no knowledge of or could not with reasonable diligence have brought forward in the previous proceedings. Any exceptional circumstances coming within any one or more of the aforesaid three categories would fulfil the test.

Whenever a Magistrate is satisfied that the previous order of dismissal was due to a manifest error or has resulted in a miscarriage of justice, he can entertain a second complaint on the same allegations even though an earlier complaint was dismissed under S. 203 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 297: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1961]

[8273] — S. 203 — Fresh complaint on dismissal of previous complaint — Fresh complaint on the same facts, filed 5 years after the first complaint was dismissed — Complainant not disclosing when he came to know about some alleged fresh evidence — Fresh complaint is an abuse of the process of court and should not be entertained. Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 297: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1961]

[8274] — S. 203 — Scope — Dismissal of complaint — Power of Magistrate to do so — Magistrate can dismiss a complaint on considering the statement on oath of the enquiring Magistrate and result of investigation or enquiry under S. 202 CrPC — Magistrate cannot take into account the statements of witnesses in enquiry by the police statements in another enquiry

The power to dismiss a complaint rests only with a Magistrate who has taken cognizance of it. If before issue of process, he had sent down the complaint to a Magistrate subordinate to him for making the enquiry, he has the power to dismiss the complaint, if in his judgment, there is no sufficient ground for proceeding. One of the conditions, however, requisite for doing so is the consideration of the statements on oath if any made by the complainant and the witnesses and of the result of the investigation or the enquiry which he had ordered to be made under S. 202 CrPC.

When the Magistrate considered the statement of witnesses recorded during investigation by the police on the basis of the formative report on the basis of any evidence adduced before him during the enquiry in another complaint, the procedure was illegal.

The object of an enquiry under S. 202 is to ascertain whether the allegations made in the complaint are intrinsically true, the Magistrate acting under S. 203 has to satisfy himself that there is sufficient ground for proceeding. In order to come to this conclusion, he is entitled to consider the evidence taken by him or recorded in an enquiry under S. 202, or statements made in an investigation under that section, as the case may be. He is not entitled to rely upon any material besides this. Chandra Deo Singh v. Prokash Chandra Bose, AIR 1963 SC 1430: (1964) 1 SCR 639: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 397, 401.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1963]

[8275] — S. 203 — Second complaint on same facts when earlier complaint dismissed — Grounds of — Fresh evidence disclosed — Should be such that it could not with reasonable diligence have been adduced

If the ground for the entertainment of a fresh complaint on the same facts, when earlier complaint was dismissed is the disclosure of fresh evidence the correct view is that it should be such that it could not with reasonable diligence have been adduced. Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 297: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[2] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1961]

[8276] — Ss. 203 and 209 — Expression "sufficient ground" — Meaning of — Construction of S. 203

Section 203 consists of two parts. The first part lays down the materials which the Magistrate must consider, and the second part says that if after considering those materials there is in his judgment no sufficient ground for proceeding, he may dismiss the complaint.

The words 'sufficient ground' used in S. 203 and in S. 209 have been construed to mean the satisfaction that a prima facie case is made out against the person accused by the evidence of witnesses entitled to a reasonable degree of credit, and not sufficient ground for the purpose of conviction. Nirmaljit Singh Hoon v. State of W.B., (1973) 3 SCC 753: 1973 SCC (Cri) 521: AIR 1972 SC 2639.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat[1], I.D. Dua[1] and H.R. Khanna[1&2], JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1972]

[8277] — Ss. 203 and 537 — Order of dismissal not containing any reasons — Order is erroneous and a nullity — Error not curable under S. 537

Under S. 203 of CrPC the Magistrate is required to record his reasons for doing so when he dismisses a complaint. When the Magistrate did not record his reasons for dismissing a complaint under S. 203 CrPC the error is of a kind which goes to the root of the matter. The defect is also not curable under S. 537 CrPC because prejudice is writ large on the face of the order. The complainant is entitled to know why his complaint has been dismissed with a view to consider an approach to a revisional court and where he takes a matter to the revisional court renders his task before that Court difficult, particularly in view of the limited scope of the provisions of Ss. 438 and 439, Code of Criminal Procedure. Chandra Deo Singh v. Prokash Chandra Bose, AIR 1963 SC 1430: (1964) 1 SCR 639: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 397, 401.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1963]

— S. 204 See Ss. 200 and 204

See also Ss. 202 and 204

— S. 205 See Ss. 540-A and 205

— S. 206 See Ss. 190, 193 and 206

See also Ss. 437, 347, 206 and 207-A

[8278] — Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220) — Nature

There is nothing in the Code or in Ch. XVIII which says what, if any, consequence would follow if the complainant remains absent at any subsequent hearing after filing the complaint. In this respect Ch. XVIII is distinctly dissimilar to the Chapters dealing with the trial of summons and warrant cases where it is specifically provided what consequence follows on the absence of the complaint. Ashwin Nanubhai Vyas v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1967 SC 983, 985: (1967) 1 SCR 807, 811: 1967 Cri LJ 943: 69 Bom LR 308.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1966]

— S. 207 See Ss. 215, 561-A and 207

See also Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

[8279] — S. 207 — Commitment proceedings — Application of section to case not exclusively triable by Sessions Court — Procedure to be followed — Magistrate must inform the accused that he is holding an enquiry

It is open to a Magistrate to hold an inquiry from the beginning under Ch. XVIII in a case not exclusively triable by the Court of Session. But the mere fact that the Magistrate has such power does not necessarily indicate to the accused that he is holding an inquiry under Ch. XVIII rather than a trial before himself. Where the case is not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, the accused would naturally conclude that the proceedings before the Magistrate are in the nature of a trial and not an enquiry under Ch. XVIII. If the Magistrate intends to use his powers under S. 207 and hold an inquiry from the beginning in a case not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, the only way in which the accused can known that he is holding an inquiry and not a trial is by the Magistrate informing the accused that he is holding an inquiry under Ch. XVIII and not a trial. If he fails to do so, the accused can reasonably conclude that a trial is being held. Chhadamilal Jain v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 41: (1960) 1 SCR 736: 1960 Cri LJ 145, 149.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1959]

[8280] — Ss. 207, 207-A and 437 — Scope — Facts disclosing a case triable by a Court of Sessions — Two views possible on the point about evidence in a case — Magistrate must commit the case and not try it himself

The ultimate duty of weighing the evidence is cast on the Court which has the jurisdiction to try an accused person. Thus, where two views are possible about the evidence in a case before the Magistrate it would not be for him to evaluate the evidence and strike a balance before deciding whether or not to commit the case to a Court of Sessions. If, instead of committing the case to a Court of Sessions, he proceeds to try the accused upon the view that on the evidence found acceptable by him only a minor offence is made out for which no commitment is required he would obviously be making an encroachment on the jurisdiction of the appropriate Court. This may lead to miscarriage of justice and the only way to prevent it would be by a superior Court stepping in and exercising its revisional jurisdiction under S. 437, CrPC. Thakur Ram v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 911: (1966) 2 SCR 740: 1966 Cri LJ 700, 703-06.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar, R.S. Bachawat and P. Satyanarayana Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1965]

[8281] — Ss. 207 and 207-A — Constitutionality — Two kinds of proceedings at the commitment stage — Provision of — Whether the classification is reasonable — Held, classification reasonable — No discrimination and Art. 14 of the Constitution not hit — Provisions held constitutional

By Ss. 207 & 207-A of Criminal Procedure Code the Legislature has provided for a clear classification between the two kinds of proceedings at the commitment stage based upon a very relevant consideration, namely, whether or not there has been a previous inquiry by a responsible public servant whose duty is to discover crime and to bring criminals to speedy justice. This basis of classification is clearly connected with the underlying principle of administration of justice that an alleged criminal should be placed on his trial as soon after the commission of the crime as circumstances of the case would permit. This classification cannot be said to be unreasonable and not to have any relation to the object of the legislation, namely, a more speedy trial of offences without any avoidable delay. Therefore there is no discrimination and that the provisions of Art. 14 of the Constitution, have not been contravened. The provisions of the Code, impugned in this case must, therefore, be held to be constitutional. Macherla Hanumantha Rao v. State of A.P., AIR 1957 SC 927: 1958 SCR 396: (1957) 1 MLJ (SC) 56: 1957 Cri LJ 1463, 67.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, B.P. Sinha, J.L. Kapur and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-1957]

— S. 207-A See Ss. 161, 207-A and 537
See also Ss. 190 and 207-A
See also Ss. 207 and 207-A
See also Ss. 207, 207-A and 437
See also Ss. 209 and 207-A
See also Ss. 215 and 207-A
See also Ss. 437, 347, 206 and 207-A

[8282] — S. 207-A — Applicability — Retrospective effect — Accused having been prosecuted in one trial under Arms Act and in another trial under S. 302 IPC — Proceeding under the Arms Act having been commenced on 30-1-1956 ended in accused's conviction on 16-3-1956 — Murder trial proceedings having been started on 3-12-1955 and the case having been committed to sessions on 3-4-1956 — Accused having been sentenced to death on 1-8-1956 and death sentence having been confirmed by the High Court — Contention being that copies of statements of witnesses recorded in Arms Act case not having been supplied to the accused the murder trial stood vitiated — Held, non compliance of S. 207-A does not vitiate the trial because when the committal proceedings started before the Magistrate S. 207-A was not in the statute and the Act came into force on 1-1-1956 when the proceedings were pending. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, 1012.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

[8283] — S. 207-A — Committal proceedings — Accused has no right to lead evidence in defence in proceedings under the section

The Scheme of S. 207-A does appear to provide for a defence witness to be examined before an order is passed either under sub-section (6) or sub-section (7) and that may be because it was thought by the Legislature that in dealing with criminal cases instituted on a police report, it may ordinarily not be necessary to prolong the enquiry by allowing the accused person to lead evidence in defence and so, no provision in that behalf has been made. Even the examination of the accused person has been left to the discretion of the Magistrate under sub-section (6). Sub-section. (7) also shows that the examination of the accused person is in the discretion of the Magistrate. It is after the charge is framed and read and explained to the accused person under sub-section (8) that the stage is reached for him to give in a list of persons whom he wants to examine under sub-section (9). On contrasting the provisions of S. 207-A with corresponding provision of S. 208, it is clear that an accused person has no right to lead evidence in defence in proceedings governed by S. 207-A, whereas he has a right to call for such evidence in proceedings governed by S. 208. State of W.B. v. Tulsidas Mundhra, 1963 Supp (1) SCR 1: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 443.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1962]

[8284] — S. 207-A — Committal proceedings in serious offences like murder — All the witnesses of actual commission of offence must be examined — Failure to do this, without examining if it was necessary in the interest of justice, amounts to failure in the discharge of the duties by the Magistrate

The Magistrate has in the inquiries relating to charges for serious offences like murder the power and indeed a duty in the interest of the accused as well as in the larger interest of the public to record the evidence of other witnesses who throw light on the case. Examination of witnesses to the actual commission of the offence should, in inquiries for committal, on charges for such serious offences, be the normal rule. With a view to shorten delays in the proceeding preliminary to bring the accused to trial, the Legislature has by enacting S. 207-A conferred a discretion upon the Magistrate in the matter of examination of witnesses not produced by the prosecution. Exercise of that discretion must be judicial: it is not to be governed by any set rules or standards, but must be adjusted in the light of circumstances of the case. The Magistrate is again not to be guided by the attitude of the prosecutor. He must of course consider the representation relating to the examination of witnesses by the prosecutor, but in considering whether it is necessary in the interest of justice to take evidence of any one or more of the other witnesses for the prosecution, he must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the offence, the interest of the accused and the larger interest of the public, and the defence if any disclosed by the accused. A Magistrate failing to examine witnesses to the actual commission of the offence because they are not produced, without considering whether it is necessary in the interest of justice to examine such witnesses fails in the discharge of his duties.

It is the duty of the Magistrate to examine all such witnesses as may be produced by the prosecutor as witnesses to the actual commission of the offence alleged, but his duty does not end with such examination. He must apply his mind to the documents referred to in S. 173, and the testimony of witnesses, if any, produced by the prosecution and examined, and consider whether in the interest of justice it is necessary to record the evidence of other witnesses. In inquiries relating to charges for serious offences like murder, normally the Magistrate should insist upon the examination of the principal witnesses to the actual commission of the offence. Failure to examine the witnesses may be justified only in exceptional cases. Kirpal Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 712: (1964) 3 SCR 992: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 636.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and J.C. Shah and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-5-1963]

[8285] — S. 207-A — Police report suggesting the commission of an offence exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions — Magistrate on the view that circumstances do not disclose an offence exclusively triable by sessions can nevertheless himself try the case — Where offence triable by Magistrate and Court of Sessions the Magistrate can try the case where in his view circumstances do not warrant a trial by Sessions Judge

Where the police report suggests the commission of an offence which is exclusively triable by a Court of Session, the Magistrate can nevertheless proceed to try the accused for an offence which is triable by him if he is of the view that no offence exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions is disclosed. Similarly, even in a case where an offence is triable both by a Magistrate and a Court of Sessions, the Magistrate is of the view that the circumstances do not warrant a trial by a Court of Sessions he can proceed with the trial of the accused for that offence himself. Thakur Ram v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 911: (1966) 2 SCR 740: 1966 Cri LJ 700, 703.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar, R.S. Bachawat and P. Satyanarayana Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1965]

[8286] — S. 207-A — Scope and interpretation — No ground for committing the accused made out according to the trial Magistrate — Magistrate can discharge the accused or try him himself or get him tried by some other Magistrate

If the Magistrate at the appropriate stage of proceedings under S. 207-A CrPC is of opinion that no ground for committing the accused for trial exists Magistrate can, after recording his reasons, discharge the accused. If, however, it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be tried by himself or some other Magistrate he must proceed accordingly. This contingency will arise if the Magistrate forms an opinion that no case exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions is disclosed but a less serious offence which it is within the competence of the Magistrate to try is disclosed. In that case the Magistrate has to proceed to try the accused himself or send him for trial before another Magistrate. Ramekbal Tiwary v. Madan Mohan Tiwary, AIR 1967 SC 1156: (1967) 2 SCR 368: 1967 Cri LJ 1076, 79, 81.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1967]

[8287] — S. 207-A — Scope and interpretation — Procedure to be followed — Committal without examining witnesses — Magistrate has jurisdiction to discharge or commit the accused on the basis of documentary evidence referred to in S. 173 CrPC when he is not of the opinion that it is in the interest of justice to take evidence and the prosecution does not examine any eyewitness

In a proceeding under S. 207-A instituted on a police report the Magistrate is bound to take evidence of only such eyewitnesses as are actually produced by the prosecution in court. The Magistrate, if he is of the opinion, that it is in the interest of justice to take evidence, whether of eyewitnesses or others, has a duty to do so. If the Magistrate is not of that opinion and if the prosecution has not examined any witness, he has jurisdiction to discharge or commit the accused to Sessions on the basis of the documents referred to in S. 173 CrPC. Shri Ram v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 674: (1961) 2 SCR 890: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 760, 63: 63 Bom LR 434.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-12-1960]

[8288] — S. 207-A — Scope of — Nature and extent of function of committing Magistrate

From sub-sections (6) and (7) of S. 207-A it is clear that the Magistrate conducting the inquiry proceedings can discharge the accused only if there is no evidence at all to base the conviction.

The committing Magistrate has jurisdiction of a limited character. He has to sift and weigh the evidence but only to determine if the prosecution has made out a prima facie case.

The committing Magistrate has a judicial, not a ministerial, duty to perform and therefore he cannot act as a post office for onward transmission of the case. He must apply his mind to the evidence in order to determine whether that evidence makes out a prima facie case against the accused. Thus, the committal proceedings go before the Sessions Court not in a virgin form but with the judicial imprimatur of the Magistrate that prima facie evidence is such as may justify the conviction of the accused. Supdt. and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Mohd. Samsuddin, (1975) 3 SCC 390: 1975 SCC (Cri) 16: AIR 1975 SC 146: 1975 Cri LJ 233.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-11-1974]

[8289] — S. 207-A — Order of discharge — When contemplated — Only where the Magistrate concludes that the act alleged does not amount to any offence

An express order of discharge is contemplated only in a case where a Magistrate comes to the conclusion that the act alleged against the accused does not amount to any offence at all and, therefore, no question of trying him either himself or by any other court arises. Thakur Ram v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 911: (1966) 2 SCR 740: 1966 Cri LJ 700, 703.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar, R.S. Bachawat and P. Satyanarayana Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1965]

[8290] — Ss. 207-A and 190(1)(a), (b) & (c) — Scope — Appellant named in Col. No. 2 of charge-sheet with heading "not sent up" — Magistrate taking cognizance of the case — During the trial the Magistrate summoning by non-bailable warrant the appellant for enquiry as an accused — Held, cognizance is taken of an offence and not accused — Is not a proceeding under S. 207(b), but is covered by S. 207(a) — Case falls within 190(1)(a) CrPC not cl. (b) or (c)

Section 207(a) refers back to S. 190(1)(b); in other words, the police report mentioned in S. 207(a) is the report mentioned in S. 190(1)(b), and once cognizance is taken under S. 190(1)(b), a proceeding is instituted within S. 207(a). Section 207(b) can only apply if the case was instituted otherwise than on a police report. On the facts of this case it is quite clear that the case does not fall within S. 190(1)(a) or S. 190(1)(c) because the Sub-Divisional Magistrate had taken cognizance of the offence on April 5, 1961. Once cognizance has been taken by the Magistrate, he takes cognizance of an offence and not the offenders; once he takes cognizance of an offence it is his duty to find out who the offenders really are and once he comes to the conclusion that apart from the persons sent up by the police some other persons are involved, it is his duty to proceed against those persons. The summoning of the additional accused is part of the proceeding initiated by his taking cognizance of an offence. The term "complaint" would include allegations made against persons unknown. If a

Magistrate takes cognizance under S. 190(1)(a) on the basis of a complaint of facts he would take cognizance and a proceeding would be instituted even though persons who had committed the offence were not known at that time. The same position prevails under S. 190(1)(b). Raghubans Dubey v. State of Bihar, AIR 1967 SC 1167: (1967) 2 SCR 423: 1967 Cri LJ 1081, 83, 84.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1967]

[8291] — Ss. 207-A and 209 — Distinction between — Existence of a stronger case for discharging an accused under S. 207-A is necessary than under S. 207

The words of the two sections are not the same, and it is possible to say that the force of the two sections is also not the same, and that S. 209 gives a power to enter upon the merits of a case in a manner which S. 207-A does not warrant.

The test for discharging the accused must, in a large way, be the same under both the sections, and it is hardly necessary to decide the full ambit of S. 207-A, and contrast it with that of S. 209. If there is any indication in the language, it is altogether on the side that the Magistrate must find a stronger case for discharging the accused under S. 207-A than under S. 209. Bipat Gope v. State of Bihar, AIR 1962 SC 1195: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 948: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 276, 77.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-1962]

[8292] — Ss. 207-A and 209 — S. 209 applies to cases instituted otherwise than on police report, but the principle underlying the section applies to cases instituted on police report also. Alamohan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1970 SC 863: (1969) 2 SCR 520: (1970) All Cri Cas 114: (1970) 40 Comp Cas 643: 1970 Cri LJ 860.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1968]

[8293] — Ss. 207-A and 271 — Framing of charge in cases triable by the Sessions Court — Comparison with procedure under the old Code — CrPC, 1973, S. 228

The charge against the accused under the procedure prescribed in the new Code is to be framed for the first time by the Court of Session while according to the procedure prescribed under the old Code, the charge is framed by the committing Magistrate and the Court of Session is merely given the power to alter or amend the charge, if it thinks necessary to do so. State of Karnataka v. K.H. Annegowda, (1977) 1 SCC 417: 1977 SCC (Cri) 106: AIR 1977 SC 357: 1977 Cri LJ 220: (1977) 2 SCR 350.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-1976]

— S. 207-A(3) See Ss. 162, 173(4) and 207-A(3)

See also Ss. 173(4) and 207-A(3)

[8294] — Ss. 207-A(3) and 173(4) — Both provisions only directory and not mandatory — Effect of non-compliance

The word "shall" occurring both in sub-section (4) of S. 173 and sub-section (3) of S. 207-A, is not mandatory but only directory, because an omission by a police officer, to fully comply with the provisions of S. 173, should not be allowed to have such a far-reaching effect as to render the proceedings including the trial before the Court of Sessions, wholly ineffective.

Certainly, if it is shown, in a particular case, on behalf of the accused persons that the omission on the part of police officers concerned or of the Magistrate before whom the committal proceedings had pended, has caused prejudice to the accused, in the interest of justice, the Court may re-open the proceedings by insisting upon full compliance with the provisions of the Code. Narayan Rao v. State of A.P., AIR 1957 SC 737, 741: 1958 SCR 283, 293: 1957 Cri LJ 1320.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-7-1957]

[8295] — Ss. 207-A(4), (6) and (7) — Examination of accused in committal proceedings — "Appearing in the evidence against him" occurring in sub-section (6) — Meaning of "evidence" in the expression — "Evidence" not restricted to evidence recorded under sub-section (4) — No evidence produced under sub-section (4) — Documentary evidence relied upon — Magistrate can nevertheless examine the accused

Per majority

The Legislature has used the expression "evidence" at three places in cl. (6) but having regard to the context in which the expression occurs at different places the contention that it uniformly means oral evidence recorded either of witnesses produced by the prosecutor or witnesses examined on his own initiation by the Magistrate and does not include documentary evidence is not correct. In the first clause of sub-section (6) the evidence is, as the statute expressly enacts "the evidence referred to in sub-section (4)" and the expression "that such evidence and documents disclose no grounds for committing" indicates, having regard to the context, that the evidence referred to in sub-section (4) alone is comprehended thereby. But the expression "the evidence in the clause" "examined the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him" is not restricted to the oral evidence recorded under sub-section (4).

There has been a deliberate change of phraseology in using the expression "the evidence" in cl. (6). In the opening clause the evidence referred to is evidence taken under sub-section (4) and in the last clause the expression "such evidence" presumably is the evidence referred to in that sub-section. But in the context of the examination of the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing against him, the Legislature has used the expression "in the evidence against him", which is not expressly qualified by reference to sub-section (4) nor does any implication arise from the context which would suggest that it has a limited content.

But by the Evidence Act which applies to the trial of all criminal cases, the expression "evidence" is defined in S. 3 as meaning and including all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under enquiry and documents produced for the inspection of the Court. There is no restriction in this definition to documents which are duly proved by evidence. Normally in a criminal trial, the Court can proceed on documents which are duly proved or by the rules of evidence made admissible without formal proof but under the amended Code the Legislature has in S. 207-A prescribed a special procedure in proceedings for commitment of the accused. The record consists of the oral evidence recorded under sub-section (4) of S. 173 and it would be difficult to regard only those documents which are duly proved, or which are admissible without proof as "evidence" within the meaning of cl. (6) and not the rest.

The Magistrate has the power, if he thinks it necessary, to examine the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence, such evidence being oral evidence, if any, as may have been recorded and the documents referred to in S. 173(4).

Per Ayyangar and Hidayatullah, JJ. (dissenting)

The word "evidence" occurs three times in sub-section (6) of S. 207-A CrPC. In the opening words of the sub-section where it occurs first referring as they do, specifically to the evidence recorded under sub-section (4) the word is obviously used only in the sense of oral evidence recorded under sub-section (4) together with the cross-examination and re-examination permitted by sub-section (5). This followed by the words "the Magistrate has considered all the documents referred to in S. 173. Documents therefore are treated here as a distinct category of material distinct from evidence and the sub-section proceeds on the existence of a dichotomy between these two species of material which the Magistrate has to take into account before ordering committal. If this dichotomy and this distinction between "evidence" and documents underlie the texture of the entire sub-section, it could not be disputed that the word "evidence" on the second occasion when it occurs in sub-section (6) which calls for construction in the appeal has to be read as meaning only the evidence of witnesses examined under sub-section (4). The last place where the word "evidence" occurs in the sub-section is the passage reading 'such Magistrate shall, if he is of opinion that such evidence and documents disclose no grounds for committing the accused person for trial'. It is clear here the word 'document' denotes the documents referred to earlier, namely those in S. 173 and these are again distinguished from 'evidence'. Here also there cannot be any doubt that the word 'evidence' is a reference to the evidence recorded under sub-section (4) and which has already been referred to in the opening words of the sub-section.

The whole scheme of S. 207-A proceeds on drawing a clear and sharp line of distinction between the two terms 'evidence' and 'documents' the latter meaning the documents referred to in S. 173 and that dichotomy is maintained throughout, admittedly twice, in sub-section (6) and in sub-section (7). When therefore 'documents' are referred to in sub-sections (6) and (7) it is reference to them en masse i.e. the entirety of the documents referred to in S. 173 and by no possible construction of S. 207(6) can a distinction be drawn between the documents which prove themselves and those which required to be proved by oral evidence.

Where there is no evidence recorded under sub-section (4) of S. 207-A, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to examine an accused under S. 207-A(6). Ramnarayan Mor v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 949: (1964) 5 SCR 1064: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 44, 54.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and K. Subba Rao[1], M. Hidayatullah[2], J.C. Shah[1] and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1963]

— S. 207-A(6) See also Ss. 207-A(4), (6) and (7)

[8296] — S. 207-A(6) — Commitment for trial — Jurisdiction — Magistrate trying the case of his own by close appraisal of evidence — Later discharging the accused — Exceeds the jurisdiction conferred

Section 207-A(6), CrPC can only mean that if there is a prima facie case triable by the Court of Sessions, the magistrate must commit the accused to the Court of Sessions to stand his trial. The jurisdiction conferred by sub-section (6) of S. 207-A, does not entitle a Magistrate to try the case on his own, and forestall the decision of the Court of Sessions. Where the magistrate did not stop to find out that there was evidence which, if believed, would establish, at least a prima facie case, but went further to disbelieve that evidence by an elaborate and painstaking process of examination, in aid of which he brought to bear his own appraisal, inconsistencies, improbabilities, etc., and tried the case of his own, the order of discharge passed by him was in excess of his jurisdiction. Bipat Gope v. State of Bihar, AIR 1962 SC 1195: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 948: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 276, 77.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-1962]

[8297] — S. 207-A(6) — Committal proceedings — Accused refusing to answer questions under S. 207-A(6) — No presumption can be raised against him

Per majority

Declining to avail himself an opportunity to explain circumstances appearing against him from oral or documentary evidence and reserving a right to make a defence at the trial do not amount to refusal to answer a question. The opportunity contemplated by S. 207-A(6) for the examination of the accused is for his benefit and solely for the purpose of enabling him if he desires to do so to explain circumstances against him from the oral evidence and also the documents referred to in S. 173(4). The scheme of cl. (6) of S. 207-A is not the same as the scheme in S. 342 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Under the latter section the Court is authorised to put questions to the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing against him and the Court is required for that purpose to question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called upon to enter upon his defence. But S. 207-A (6) does not contemplate such general questioning: it contemplates examination only for the purpose of explaining any circumstances appearing against the accused. Therefore by merely failing to avail himself of the opportunity to explain circumstances to which his attention is drawn, the accused does not refuse to answer a question which would justify a presumption against him that the answer if given would be against him.

Per Ayyangar and Hidayatullah, JJ. (dissenting)

An inference adverse to the accused might be drawn from his refusal to answer in view of illustration (h) given in S. 114 of the Indian Evidence Act. The Court would, therefore, be justified in drawing this inference from his refusal to answer. Whether or not a court would do so, it is certain that if the accused refuses to answer when examined by the Magistrate at the committal stage, any explanation which he might offer at a later stage could properly be characterised as an after-thought. In the circumstances it would not be correct to assume that the exercise of the power at this stage by the Magistrate to question the accused might not result in serious prejudice to the accused. Ramnarayan Mor v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 949: (1964) 5 SCR 1064: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 44, 54.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and K. Subba Rao[1], M. Hidayatullah[2], J.C. Shah[1] and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1963]

[8298] — Ss. 207-A(6) and 215 — No prima facie evidence of charge against accused

Held, where the only charge against the appellant was of conspiracy under S. 120-B, IPC and in the committal proceedings the prosecution produced only documentary evidence and no oral evidence was given and there was no prima facie evidence in respect of this charge, the documentary evidence only showing that the appellant made applications on behalf of the other accused, that he filed their vakalatnamas and that he identified them as the real claimant, it cannot be said that the appellant did anything beyond what a lawyer is authorised to do in a court of law. In the absence of any evidence to suggest that he had previous knowledge of the fact that the accused were not the rightful claimants whom he identified as such and there was no evidence whatsoever that there was any concert between him and the other accused antecedent to the filing of the applications and vakalatnamas in court by him and on the contrary there are circumstances showing his bona fides, it cannot be said that there is prima facie evidence for the offence of conspiracy against him. Hira Lal Jain v. Delhi Admn., (1973) 3 SCC 398: 1973 SCC (Cri) 309: AIR 1972 SC 2598: 1973 Cri LJ 47.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1972]

— S. 207-A(7) See Ss. 207-A(4), (6) and (7)

— S. 208 See Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

See also Ss. 347(1), 208 and 537

See also Ss. 537 and 208

[8299] — Ss. 208, 209, 210 and 347(1) — Scope of Right under S. 208 — Magistrate making up his mind at Different Stages

Section 208 gives a right to the accused to produce evidence in defence before the Magistrate examines him under S. 209 and proceeds to frame a charge under S. 210. Now when a Magistrate makes up his mind to commit a case not exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions under the power given to him under S. 347(1) of the Code, he has to follow this procedure.

The Magistrate may make up his mind at any stage of the trial before him and generally speaking four contingencies may arise. Firstly, he may make up his mind after the trial is practically over and the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and cross-examined after the charge, the accused has been examined both under Ss. 253 and 342 of the Code and all the defence evidence has been taken. In such a case Ss. 208, 209 and 210 have been complied with and all that the Magistrate has to do is to intimate to the accused that he intends to commit him for trial and ask him to give the list of witnesses under S. 211 and proceed thereafter as provided in Ch. XVIII. Secondly, the Magistrate may make up his mind after all the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and cross-examined and the charge has been framed but no defence has been taken. In such a case that part of S. 208 which lays down that all the evidence for the prosecution shall be taken, has been complied with and the Magistrate may then proceed to comply with the rest of S. 208 and take the defence evidence and then proceed further under Ss. 209 to 213 and amend the charge so as to make it conformable to a charge in an enquiry under Ch. XVIII or cancel it. Thirdly, the Magistrate may make up his mind after some of the prosecution witnesses have been examined and cross-examined and a charge has been framed. In such a case he has to examine the rest of the prosecution witnesses under S. 208 and take the defence evidence, if any, produced by the accused and then proceed under Ss. 209 to 213 amending or cancelling the charge already framed as indicated earlier. Lastly, the Magistrate may have only just begun taking evidence for the prosecution and may not have framed a charge. In such a case he takes the rest of the prosecution evidence and complies with the provisions from Ss. 208 to 213. But in each of these four contingencies it is the duty of the Magistrate to intimate to the accused that he has made up his mind to commit in view of the provisions of S. 347(1) and then proceed in the manner indicated above. It is necessary that the accused should know when the Magistrate makes up his mind to commit so that their right under S. 208 to produce defence, if any, before commitment is made is safeguarded. Chhadamilal Jain v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 41, 45: (1960) 1 SCR 736, 744-45: 1960 Cri LJ 145.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1959]

[8300] — Ss. 208, 209 and 342 — Examination of the accused — Evidentiary value of accused's statement — Held to be received in evidence and treated in evidence and to be duly considered at the trial — Has to be treated like any other piece of evidence coming from the mouth of a witness — Matters in favour of the accused must be viewed with as much deference and given as much weight as matters which tell against him — Version of the accused should be accepted if it is reasonable and accords with probabilities unless the prosecution can prove beyond reasonable doubt that it is false

The statements of an accused person recorded under Ss. 208, 209 and 342, CrPC are among the most important matters to be considered at the trial. It has to be remembered that in this country an accused person is not allowed to enter the box and speak on oath in his own defence. This may operate for the protection of the accused in some cases but experience elsewhere has shown that it can also be a powerful and impressive weapon of defence in the hands of an innocent man. The statements of the accused recorded by the Committing Magistrate and the Sessions Judge are intended in India to take the place of what in England and in America he would be free to state in his own way in the witness-box. They have to be received in evidence and treated as evidence and be duly considered at the trial (Ss. 287 and 342).

This means that they must be treated like any other piece of evidence coming from the mouth of a witness and matters in favour of the accused must be viewed with as much deference and given as much weight as matters which tell against him. Nay more. Because of the presumption of innocence in his favour even when he is not in a position to prove the truth of his story, his version should be accepted if it is reasonable and accords with probabilities unless the prosecution can prove that this fundamental approach has been ignored in this case. Hate Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of M.B., AIR 1953 SC 468: 1953 Cri LJ 1933.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-11-1951]

[8301] — Ss. 208, 252 and 286 — Important witness — Not examined — Effect of

It would be much better if the prosecution examines an important witness and does not drop him on the plea that his evidence would merely be a duplication of the evidence of another witness, so as to give an opportunity to the counsel for the accused to cross-examine him. This however is not such a circumstance as would detract from the testimony of the other witnesses whose evidence was believed by the High Court. Chinna Baliga v. State of Hyderabad, 1954 Cri LJ 1731.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-1-1954]

— S. 209 See Ss. 203 and 209
See also Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)
See also Ss. 207-A and 209
See also Ss. 208, 209, 210 and 347(1)
See also Ss. 208, 209 and 342
See also Ss. 435 & 439 and 209

[8302] — S. 209 — Committal of accused — Sufficient grounds for — Magistrate not to discharge the accused simply because in his view defence evidence is better than prosecution evidence — Magistrate not to appropriate to himself the function of judging whether prosecution or defence evidence was to be believed

What the Magistrate did was to appropriate to himself the function of judging whether the prosecution evidence was to be believed, or whether the defence evidence was to be believed in preference, and consequently, the evidence of the prosecution witnesses who gave eyewitness account of the offence was unreliable. No doubt a Magistrate enquiring into a case under S. 209, CrPC is not to act as a mere Post Office, and has to come to a conclusion whether the case before him is fit for commitment of the accused to the Court of Sessions; but in arriving at that conclusion, it is not the function of an enquiring Magistrate to weigh the pros and cons of the prosecution and defence evidence and to discharge the accused merely because in his view the defence evidence was better than the prosecution evidence.

Where there was direct evidence of prosecution witnesses to support the charge in the complaint and it could not be held that the witnesses who gave the evidence were such that there was no reasonable possibility of their being believed by any court. The Magistrate commits an error in discharging the appellant. The Sessions Judge was, therefore, right in ordering commitment of the appellant to the Court of Sessions for trial. K.P. Raghavan v. M.H. Abbas, AIR 1967 SC 740: 1967 Cri LJ 653, 55, 56.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1966]

[8303] — S. 209 — Committal proceedings — Magistrate to sift evidence only to see whether there is sufficient evidence for commitment and not to see if there is sufficient evidence for conviction

A Magistrate holding an enquiry is not intended to act merely as a recording machine. He is entitled to sift and weigh the materials on record, but only for seeing whether there is sufficient evidence for commitment, and not whether there is sufficient evidence for conviction. If there is no prima facie evidence or the evidence is totally unworthy of credit, it is his duty to discharge the accused: if there is some evidence on which a conviction may reasonably be based, he must commit the case. The Magistrate at that stage has no power to evaluate the evidence for satisfying himself of the guilt of the accused. The question before the Magistrate at that stage is whether there is some credible evidence which would sustain a conviction. Alamohan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1970 SC 863: (1969) 2 SCR 520: (1970) All Cri Cas 114: (1970) 40 Comp Cas 643: 1970 Cri LJ 860.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1968]

[8304] — Ss. 209 and 207-A — Committal proceedings — Extent of power of committing Magistrate under S. 209 — Power of Magistrate to assess evidence to find out whether there is sufficient evidence for conviction — Order of discharge by Magistrate — Legality

Though the language of S. 209 differs from that in S. 207-A, it is well settled that under neither of the sections the Magistrate has the jurisdiction to assess and evaluate the evidence before him for the purpose of seeing whether there is sufficient evidence for conviction. The reason obviously is that if he were to do that he would be trying the case himself instead of leaving it to be done by the Sessions Court which alone has under the Code the jurisdiction to try it. Rajpal Singh v. Jai Singh, (1970) 2 SCC 206: 1970 SCC (Cri) 392: AIR 1970 SC 1015: 1970 Cri LJ 903.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-4-1970]

Distinguished in Sarabjit Rick Singh v. Union of India, (2008) 2 SCC 417

[8305] — Ss. 209 and 207-A — Introduction of S. 207-A — Effect of an interpretation of S. 209 — Introduction of S. 207-A in CrPC does not change the principles governing Magistrate's jurisdiction under S. 209

The Introduction of S. 207-A in the Code of Criminal Procedure by a subsequent amendment does not necessarily imply that the principles governing the exercise of jurisdiction by the Magistrate under S. 209 must thereafter be different from the principles which were held to govern his jurisdiction before this amendment. K.P. Raghavan v. M.H. Abbas, AIR 1967 SC 740: 1967 Cri LJ 653, 55, 56.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1966]

[8306] — Ss. 209 and 210 — Committal proceedings — Case in which much can be said on both sides — Held, is a fit case which should be committed by the Magistrate

The High Court has taken pains to point out that this is one of those cases where much can be said on both sides. It will be for the jury to decide which of the two conflicting versions, will find acceptance at their hands. This was pre-eminently a case which should have been committed to the Court of Sessions for trial. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244, 251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

[8307] — S. 209 and 210 — Committal proceedings — Scope — Magistrate can commit when he is satisfied that prima facie case is made out

"When all the evidence has been heard, the examining justices then present who have heard all the evidence must decide whether the accused is or is not to be committed for trial. Before determining this matter they must take into consideration the evidence and any statement of the accused. If the justices are of opinion that there is sufficient evidence to put the accused upon trial by jury for any indictable offence they must commit him for trial in custody or on bail."

(Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 10, 3rd Ed. Article 666 at p. 365, approved as good law in India.)

The Magistrate holding the preliminary inquiry, has to be satisfied that a prima facie case is made out against the accused by the evidence of witnesses entitled to a reasonable degree of credit and unless he is so satisfied, he is not to commit. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244, 251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

[8308] — Ss. 209 and 210 — Committal Proceedings — Words "Sufficient grounds" in the section — Interpretation of — Scope of the section — As explained in decided cases — Conflicting observations in the cases — The observations in various decisions on the point have to be read in the light of the facts and circumstances disclosed in those cases

The High Courts in India, have, in some cases, held that the duty of the committing court, is only to satisfy itself that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial in the sense that there is prima facie evidence, which if believed by the Court of Sessions may lead to the conviction of the accused. There are also cases to the effect that the Magistrate holding the preliminary enquiry is empowered to weigh the evidence led on behalf of the prosecution and to decide for himself whether there is a probability of the trial ending in the conviction of the accused. An examination of the rulings shows that though it is not easy to say that a Magistrate should if he is satisfied that sufficient grounds for doing so have been made out, it is difficult to apply those crucial words "sufficient grounds" to individual cases. In the reported cases conflicting observations about the powers of a committing Magistrate have been made, but these observations have to be read in the light of the facts and circumstances disclosed in the case there before the Court. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244, 251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

See also AIR 1962 SC 876: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 770

Distinguished in Sarabjit Rick Singh v. Union of India, (2008) 2 SCC 417*

[8309] — S. 209(1) — Scope — Express order of discharge — When necessary

If Magistrate is of opinion that no ground for committing the accused for trial exists the Magistrate can, after recording his reasons, discharge the accused. If, however, it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be tried by himself or some other Magistrate he must proceed accordingly. The contingency will arise if the Magistrate forms an opinion that no case exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions is disclosed but a less serious offence which it is within the competence of the Magistrate to try is disclosed. In that case the Magistrate has to proceed to try the accused himself or send him for trial before another Magistrate.

It is apparent from the language of S. 209(1), Criminal Procedure Code that an express order of discharge is only contemplated in a case where the Magistrate comes to the conclusion that the allegations against the accused do not amount to an offence at all and, therefore no question arises of trying him either by himself or by any other court. But the section does not contemplate that an express order of discharge should be made in a case where upon the same facts it is possible to say that though no offence exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions is made out, an offence triable by a Magistrate is nevertheless made out and the Magistrate thereafter proceeds with the trial of that offence.

Chapter XVIII CrPC relates to enquiries into cases triable by the Court of Sessions or High Court. The primary object of S. 209 is to make provision for the procedure in such cases. If in the opinion of the Magistrate, there is no evidence to warrant a charge for an offence exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions, he may discharge the accused in respect of the alleged offence and, having done so, may proceed as regards the minor offence or offences under Ch. XXI or other appropriate chapter. In fact, a Magistrate cannot proceed to act under the latter part of sub-section (1) of S. 209 until he has discharged the accused under the former part of the sub-section.

Also where under S. 209(1) a Magistrate finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial and directs such person to be tried before himself or some other Magistrate, the revisional powers under S. 437, Criminal Procedure Code can be exercised by the Sessions Court. Ramekbal Tiwary v. Madan Mohan Tiwary, AIR 1967 SC 1156: (1967) 2 SCR 368: 1967 Cri LJ 1076, 78-80.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1967]

Krishna Reddi v. Subbamma, (1900) ILR 24 Mad 136 (FB) and In re, Nalla Balingadu, AIR 1953 Mad 801 (FB) approved

[8310] — S. 209(1) — Committal proceedings — Sufficiency of evidence — Whether necessary for the Magistrate to examine the whole evidence

All that a Magistrate has to consider is whether under S. 209(1) CrPC there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial and not whether on an appreciation of the whole evidence and other material in the case including witness for the defence, the charge against him is proved. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

— S. 210 See Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

See also Ss. 208, 209, 210 and 347(1)

See also Ss. 209 and 210

[8311] — Ss. 210, 417(3) and 423(1) — Framing of charge for commitment — Complaint under Ss. 420, 486, 468, 465/67 IPC — Offence under S. 467 IPC being prima facie established by the evidence — Magistrate not framing any charge under S. 467 IPC and acquitting the accused under Ss. 420, 486, 467, 466/471 IPC after trial — Improper for the Magistrate to drop the charge under S. 467 IPC over which he had no jurisdiction — He was bound to frame charge under S. 467 IPC and commit the case to the Court of Sessions — High Court justified in remanding the case for retrial after framing charge under S. 467 IPC. Matukdhari Singh v. Janardan Prasad, AIR 1966 SC 356: (1966) 1 SCR 255: 1966 Cri LJ 307.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-7-1965]

[8312] — Ss. 210 and 254 — Court can frame charges against an accused only if there is some material before him to prima facie prove the case against the accused

It is true that at the stage when the Court drew up charges and decided to proceed with the case on the footing of a conspiracy to defraud the Government, he had only to see that there was a prima facie case against the respondents. That could also be the basis upon which the High Court has to try the revision petitions of the respondents. Even so, there has to be some material before the Court which could point towards a conspiracy in which the respondents had joined. Such of the statements which the investigating officer could procure did not point to such a conspiracy. When a prima facie case was not made out charges should not have been framed against the respondents. Union of India v. Major J.S. Khanna, (1972) 3 SCC 873: 1973 SCC (Cri) 94: 1972 Cri LJ 849.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-1971]

— Ss. 211 to 213 See Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

[8313] — Ss. 213(1) and 441 — Presidency Magistrate — Power of — Can pass an order or commitment without recording reasons — Is permitted under S. 441 to supplement the order when it is called in question before the High Court

Under the Code, a Presidency Magistrate may pass an order without recording the reasons for such an order, for example, an order under S. 213(1) committing the accused for trial. If such an order is called in question before the High Court, the Presidency Magistrate concerned, unlike other Magistrates, is permitted by the Code to supplement the record by a statement setting forth the grounds of his decision or order, so that the High Court may have before it not only the order of decision in question but also a statement of the reasons therefor. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244, 251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

[8314] — Ss. 213(2), 437 and 439 — Held, High Court rightly set aside the discharge and committed the appellant to Court of Session — Supreme Court would not interfere with the finding of fact by the High Court that a prime facie case existed justifying commitment. M.R. Dhawan v. Delhi Admn., (1978) 2 SCC 184: 1978 SCC (Cri) 186: AIR 1978 SC 1011: 1978 Cri LJ 769.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1978]

— S. 214 See Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

— S. 215 See Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

See also Ss. 207-A(6) and 215

[8315] — S. 215 — High Court can quash committal only on point of law — High Court, on facts, ignored this limitation when basing on the first acquittal it quashed the committal in the second case arising in similar situation. S.P.E. v. K.V. Sundravelu, (1978) 2 SCC 514: 1978 SCC (Cri) 211: AIR 1978 SC 1017: 1978 Cri LJ 775.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-3-1978]

[8316] — S. 215 — Quashing of commitments by High Court — Scope — High Court not competent to quash commitment if there was no reliable evidence and no point of law involved

Under S. 215 Code of Criminal Procedure it is only on a question of law that the order of commitment can be reversed. There is not even a trace of point of law in the case on which jurisdiction under S. 215 could have been validly invoked.

If it could be said with justification that there was no legal evidence at all in support of the prosecution case, it may lead to the inference that the commitment was bad in that it was not based on any legal evidence at all. However, the distinction must always be drawn between absence of legal evidence and absence of reliable evidence.

The matter in the present proceedings is directly covered by S. 215. Therefore the High Court was clearly in error in allowing their inherent power to be invoked under S. 561-A and in setting aside order of commitment.

Applying the test laid down in S. 215 the order of commitment could not and should not have been set aside. Khushi Ram v. Hashim, AIR 1959 SC 542: 1959 Cri LJ 658.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1958]

[8317] — S. 215 — Order of commitment — Becomes final and can only be quashed by the High Court on a point of law — Order cannot be challenged in appeal before Supreme Court. Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 79: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 112.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-1963]

[8318] — Ss. 215, 561-A and 207 — Quashing the proceedings before completion of commitment enquiry by the committing Magistrate, held, improper. Supdt. and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Ashutosh Ghosh, (1979) 4 SCC 381: 1979 SCC (Cri) 991: AIR 1979 SC 1195.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-1-1979]

[8319] — Ss. 215 and 207-A — Commitment quashed — Offences committed before filing of complaint and those after to be investigated separately — No interference justified — All other points of law and fact left open to the parties. Narendra Swarup Bhatnagar v. State of Rajasthan, (1974) 4 SCC 257: AIR 1975 SC 122.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-12-1973]

— Ss. 216 to 219 See Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

[8320] — S. 219 — Scope — Power to call supplementary witnesses

The power to summon supplementary witnesses and take their evidence is merely a supplementary power for recording evidence and no more. This supplementary power does not postulate the continuance of jurisdiction in the committing magistrate to deal with the case. It is significant that this power can be exercised even by a Magistrate other than the committing Magistrate, provided he is empowered by or under S. 206 and clearly, the case covered by the commitment order passed by one magistrate cannot be said to be pending before another magistrate who may be empowered to summon supplementary witnesses. R.R. Chari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1573, 1579: (1963) 1 SCR 121, 133: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 510: ILR (1962) 2 All 904.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1962]

— S. 220 See Ch. XVIII (Ss. 206 to 220)

— S. 221 See Ss. 222 and 221

See also Ss. 223, 221, 222 and 225

See also Ss. 225, 221, 537 and 535

[8321] — S. 221 — Absence of prejudice — Facts supporting conviction under S. 420 whereas charge under S. 420 r/w S. 34 IPC

The actual findings support a conviction of the appellant under S. 420 itself, such a conviction would be valid though the charge is under S. 420 read with S. 34 of the Penal Code, unless prejudice is shown to have concurred. Mobarik Ali Ahmed v. State of Bombay, AIR 1957 SC 857, 866: 1958 SCR 328, 346: 1957 Cri LJ 1346.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1957]

See (1955) 2 SCR 1140: AIR 1956 SC 116

[8322] — S. 221 — Form of charge — Charge under S. 120-B IPC — Reference to sections of the IPC merely to clarify object of conspiracy — There is no jumbling up of several offences in the charge — Charge is properly framed

The charge by referring to various sections of the Indian Penal Code merely makes it clear that the object of the conspiracy was to forge railway receipts, which were valuable securities, to commit forgeries for the purpose of cheating and to use forged documents as genuine. What was meant by the charge was apparently fully understood by the appellants because they never complained at the appropriate stage that they were confused or bewildered by the charge. The charge is therefore in proper form and there is no jumbling of several offences in it. Tulsi Ram v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 666: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 382: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 623: ILR (1963) 1 All 840.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1962]

[8323] — S. 221 — Imperfection in the charge curable if no prejudice caused

The imperfection in the charge is curable provided no prejudice has been shown to have resulted because of it. B.N. Srikantiah v. State of Mysore, AIR 1958 SC 672, 675: 1959 SCR 496, 504: 1958 Cri LJ 1251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-4-1958]

[8324] — S. 221 — Object of

The object of the charge is not to introduce a provision that goes to the root of jurisdiction but to enable the accused to have a clear idea of what he is being tried for and of the essential facts that he has to meet. But there are other ways of conveying this information.

The sections following S. 223 detail the different situations. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116, 124: (1955) 2 SCR 1140, 115: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8325] — S. 221 — Omission to mention S. 34 IPC

The omission to mention S. 34 of the Indian Penal Code in the charge cannot affect the case unless prejudice is shown to have resulted in consequence thereof. B.N. Srikantiah v. State of Mysore, AIR 1958 SC 672, 675: 1959 SCR 496, 502: 1958 Cri LJ 1251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-4-1958]

[8326] — S. 221 — Specificity of charge an important requirement

The object of a charge is to warn the accused person of the case he is to answer. It cannot be treated as if it was a part of a ceremonial. B.N. Srikantiah v. State of Mysore, AIR 1958 SC 672, 675: 1959 SCR 496, 503: 1958 Cri LJ 1251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-4-1958]

[8327] — Ss. 221, 222, 223 and 225 — Mistake in framing of charge — Omission to mention the manner of commission of offence as required under S. 223 — The omissions are not material unless the accused was misled or there was failure of justice

The charge as framed fulfils the requirements of S. 221, Criminal Procedure Code, because it has mentioned the name of the offence, namely, criminal breach of trust and specified S. 409, Indian Penal Code, which impliedly gives notice to the accused of every legal condition required by law to be fulfilled in order to constitute the offence of criminal breach of trust. It has also fulfilled the requirements of S. 222(1) of the Code in so far as it has specified the securities in respect of which and the Cooperative Bank against which a criminal breach of trust had been committed. Those particulars, in our opinion, were sufficient to give the accused notice of the matter which he was charged. It is true that the manner of the commission of the offence as required by S. 223 of the Code has not been set out. But that had to be set out only when the nature of the case is such that the particulars required by Ss. 221 and 222 had not given the accused sufficient notice of the matter with which he is charged. Even assuming that there were certain omissions in the charge, they cannot be regarded as material unless in terms of S. 225 of the Code it is shown by the accused that he had in fact been misled by such omission or that there had been a failure of justice as a result of such error or omission.

In this case from the long written statement filed on behalf of the appellant it is clear that he was aware of the gravamen of the charge against him and that he tried to meet it in all its bearings. It is not a case in which it can be said that the omission in the charge has materially affected the trial of the case or prejudiced the appellant in his defence or has occasioned a failure of justice. Jaswantrai Manilal Akhaney v. State of Bombay, AIR 1956 SC 575: 1956 SCR 483: 26 Comp Cas 340: 1956 Cri LJ 1116, 1125: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 49.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1956]

— S. 222 See Ss. 221, 222, 223 and 225
See also Ss. 223, 221, 222 and 225

[8328] — S. 222 — Charge for criminal breach of trust specifying 13-7-1957 as the date on which the accused was in employment — Implication of — Finding by High Court that misappropriation took place on 30-6-1957 does not amount to making out a new case different from the charge — Penal Code, 1860, S. 408

The charge neither mentions the date of entrustment nor of its misappropriation but refers to July 13, 1957 as the date on which the appellant was in the employment. The implication of the charge is that it is on or about that date that the entrustment and the misappropriation took place.

As the funds were in the charge of the appellant the instructions given by him to the accountant to make a wrong cross entry are only susceptible of the inference that he wanted to misappropriate the amount. Kantilal Gandalal Shah v. State of Gujarat, (1974) 3 SCC 587: 1974 SCC (Cri) 65: AIR 1974 SC 222: 1974 Cri LJ 310.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.N. Dwivedi and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-11-1973]

[8329] — S. 222 — Charge — Irregularity in framing — Charge under S. 120-B IPC stating details of the offences committed in pursuance of conspiracy — Is irregular — No objection taken at proper stage — Trial not vitiated — In the absence of proof of prejudice trial saved by S. 225 CrPC

Where the Magistrate in framing a charge for an offence under S. 120-B IPC mentions the acts done in pursuance of criminal conspiracy his intention is nothing more than to describe the conspiracy. The trial is not vitiated simply because the charge embraces within it all the offences said to have been committed by the accused.

The object in saying what has been set out in the first charge was only to give notice to the accused as to the ambit of the conspiracy to which they will have to answer and nothing more. Even assuming for a moment that this charge is cumbersome, in the absence of any objection by the accused at the proper time and in the absence of any material from which one could infer prejudice, they are precluded by the provisions of S. 225 from complaining about it at any rate after their conviction by the trial Court. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8330] — Ss. 222 and 221 — Criminal conspiracy

Rule of prudence of mentioning specifically — S. 222 which requires the particulars of the offence to be stated does not in terms further require that in an offence like conspiracy the names of the co-conspirators should also be mentioned.

Though the statute law in India does not make it obligatory that the persons concerned in the crime of criminal conspiracy should be specifically named along with the person or persons charged in a particular trial, it is always advisable to give those particulars also in order to give a reasonable notice to the accused that he has been charged with having conspired with so and so (persons named), as also persons unnamed, to commit a certain offence. Bimbadhar Pradhan v. State of Orissa, AIR 1956 SC 469, 473: 1956 SCR 206, 216: 1956 Cri LJ 831: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 13.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1956]

[8331] — S. 222(1) — Contents of a charge — Dates of offence — Not specified in a charge under S. 376 IPC — Approximate idea of time specifying a period of 5-6 days given — The charge is not invalid — Requirements of valid charge explained

It is conceded that in almost every charge to which S. 222(1) applies, it is usual to state that the particular offence was committed on or about a certain date and that the specified date and specific time need not necessarily be stated in the charge in every case. If it is permissible to say in a charge that a particular offence was committed on or about a specified time, without specifying the particular time, it is not correct to say that because a period of 5-6 days is indicated in the charge within which the offence is alleged to have been committed S. 222(1) has been contravened.

The requirements of S. 222(1) is that the accused person must have a reasonably sufficient notice as to the case against him. The basic requirement in every criminal trial, therefore, is that the charge must be so framed as to give the accused person a fairly reasonable idea as to the case which he is to face. The criminal courts should take the precaution of framing charges with precision and particularity in order to ensure a fair trial; but it is not correct to say that a charge is invalid solely for the reason that it does not specify the particular date and time at which any offence is alleged to have been committed.

Where the provisions prescribed by the law of procedure are intended to be mandatory, the Legislature indicates its intention in that behalf clearly and contravention of such mandatory provisions may introduce a serious infirmity in the proceedings themselves; but where the provisions made by the law of procedure are not of vital importance, but are, nevertheless, intended to be observed, their breach may not necessarily vitiate the trial unless it is shown that the contravention in question has caused prejudice to the accused.

In dealing with the question as to whether the charge framed in a criminal trial has contravened S. 222(1), the Court will have to examine all the relevant facts and if it appears to the court that having regard to them, the charge could and ought to have been framed more precisely, the court may reach that conclusion and then enquire whether the defective charge has led to the prejudice of the accused. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696: (1964) 3 SCR 237: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534, 37.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

— S. 222(2) See Ss. 225 and 222(2)
See also Ss. 537 and 222(2)

[8332] — Ss. 222(2) proviso, 225 and 537 — Charge inconsistent with proviso to S. 222(2) — Defect is curable by S. 225 and 537 provided no prejudice caused

Where the form of charge is inconsistent with the proviso to S. 222(2) CrPC there is only one irregularity which can be cured under S. 225 and S. 537 of CrPC provided no prejudice is caused to the accused. Kadiri Kunhahammad v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 661: 1960 Cri LJ 1013, 16, 17.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1959]

[8333] — Ss. 222(2), 233, 234 and 235 — Nature & Scope

Sections 222(2), 234 & 235 are enabling provisions — Normal rule of separate charge for each district offence as provided in S. 233. Ranchhod Lal v. State of M.P., AIR 1965 SC 1248: (1965) 2 SCR 283: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 253.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-11-1964]

[8334] — Ss. 222(2), 233, 234 and 235 — Scope — Accused separately tried for several offences under S. 409 IPC — Acts of criminal breach of trust committed within few months — All acts said to be committed in the course of same transaction — Separate trials are not illegal. Ranchhod Lal v. State of M.P., AIR 1965 SC 1248: (1965) 2 SCR 283: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 253.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-11-1964]

[8335] — Ss. 222(2), 235(1) and 537 — Charge under S. 406 IPC contravening S. 222(2) CrPC — Could have been split into two charges and tried together under S. 235(1) CrPC — No prejudice caused and the defect curable under S. 537 CrPC

Where the charge for criminal breach of trust having been framed with respect to the gross sum embezzled within a period of more than 12 months, was in contravention of the provisions of S. 222(2) CrPC they could be split up into two charges, the total period being less than two years, and could have been tried together, in view of S. 235(1) CrPC as the offences were said to have been committed in pursuance of the criminal conspiracy entered into by the accused. No prejudice was, therefore, caused to the accused by the defect in the charge and the same is curable under S. 537 CrPC. State of Bombay v. Umarsaheb Buransaheb Inamdar, AIR 1962 SC 1153: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 711: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 259, 60.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1962]

— S. 223 See also Ss. 221, 222, 223 and 225

[8336] — Ss. 223, 221, 222 and 225 — Provisions of S. 223 obligatory when details under Ss. 221 & 222 not sufficient — In any case prejudice to be shown under S. 225

It is true that the manner of the commission of the offence as required by S. 223 of the Code has not been set out. But that has to be set out only when the nature of the case is such that the particulars required by Ss. 221 and 222 had not given the accused sufficient notice of the matter with which he is charged.

Even assuming that there were certain omissions in the charge, they cannot be regarded as material unless in terms of S. 225 of the Code it is shown by the accused that he had in fact been misled by such omission or that there had been a failure of justice as a result of such error or omission. Jaswantrai Manilal Akhaney v. State of Bombay, AIR 1956 SC 575, 585: 1956 SCR 483, 504: 26 Comp Cas 340: 1956 Cri LJ 1116: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 49.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1956]

[8337] — Ss. 223, 535 and 537 — Charge — Defect in — Prejudice — Appellant knowing what the case against him was — All the details of the offence and the incident indicated in the charge — Prejudice in trial cannot be inferred

The appellant knew that the case against him was that he is the one who is said to have struck the fatal blow, and as he was told in the charge that the offence he is said to have committed was that of murder and was informed of the date and place and person we find it impossible to infer prejudice. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116: (1955) 2 SCR 1140: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8338] — Ss. 223, 535 and 537 — Charges — Prejudice — Two accused charged under Ss. 302/34 IPC — One of them acquitted — The other's conviction under S. 302 IPC in the absence of a separate alternate charge is valid, in the absence of proof of any prejudice

Two accused were charged under S. 302 IPC read with S. 34 IPC. The allegations in the charge were that both of them went to the house of a girl and in furtherance of a common intention committed the murder of the brother of the girl. One of the accused was acquitted. The other accused viz. the appellant was convicted under S. 302 IPC on the ground that he inflicted the fatal blow.

Per Chandrashekhara Aiyar, J.

In this case the appellant has been individually charged to the murder and there is proof that his hand caused the injury, the fact that his brother was also sought to be made liable owing to the existence of a common intention, is neither have nor there so far as the legality of the conviction is concerned, as there has been no prejudice by way of failure of justice.

Per Imam, J.

The appellant was charged with murder and nothing short of it, although it was stated in the charge that the offence was committed by him in furtherance of a common intention. If the evidence failed to prove that the offence committed by him was in furtherance of a common intention, it would be nonetheless his offence, namely, murder, if his act in law amounted to murder. The law does not require, in such a case that a separate charge for murder should be framed, because the charge of murder was already on the record. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116: (1955) 2 SCR 1140: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

— S. 225 See Ss. 221, 222, 223 and 225
See also Ss. 222(2) proviso, 225 and 537
See also Ss. 223, 221, 222 and 225
See also Ss. 233 and 225
See also Ss. 537 and 225

[8339] — S. 225 — All accused lumped together though charge specifying part played by each — Law applicable can be ascertained — No prejudice

The body of the charge set out the fact that the accused formed an unlawful assembly and stated the common object; and them the charge specified in detail the part that each accused had played. In the circumstances, each accused was in a position to know just what was charged against him because once the facts are enumerated the law that applies to them can easily be ascertained; and in this particular case it was just a matter of picking out the relevant sections from among the ten mentioned.

Section 225, Criminal Procedure Code, expressly covers this kind of case. K.C. Mathew v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1956 SC 241, 243: (1955) 2 SCR 1057, 105: 1956 Cri LJ 444.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-12-1955]

[8340] — S. 225 — Charge not specific but particulars and details known by the accused

The particulars and details were all on the record before the charges were framed and accused could not have been misled in any way. The fact that he had no difficulty in knowing what case he had to meet is fully proved by the fact that no grievance was made by him.

The irregularity complained of did not cause any real prejudice to the appellant and did not vitiate the trial. K. Damodaran v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1953 SC 462: 1953 Ker LJ 295: 1953 Cri LJ 1928.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-3-1953]

[8341] — S. 225 — Charge under S. 5(2) r/w sub-sections (1) and (3), Prevention of Corruption Act — Particulars of bribe and persons alleged to have given bribe not given — Charge not invalidated — It would be better if the particulars were given — Defect cured by the section. Ram Sagar Pandit v. State of Bihar, 1963 Supp (2) SCR 652: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 65, 69.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafar Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1962]

[8342] — S. 225 — Charge vague in an offence of cheating charge not specifying the manner and the mode in which cheating has been done — Charge is vague — Effect — It is a mere irregularity and the trial is not vitiated unless accused materially prejudiced. K. Damodaran v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1953 SC 462: 1953 Ker LJ 295: 1953 Cri LJ 1928.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-3-1953]

[8343] — S. 225 — Defect in charge — S. 5(2), Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 — Charge under not giving details — Effect of — Charge not specifying the amounts of bribe taken and persons from whom bribe taken — Plea not taken in lower courts and case proceeding as if the appellant knew the case and producing all evidence — Held, charge not defective though better particulars could be demanded — Defect curable under S. 225, CrPC. Nani Gopal Mitra v. State of Bihar, AIR 1970 SC 1636: (1969) 2 SCR 411: 1970 Cri LJ 1396.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-1968]

[8344] — S. 225 — Defect in the charge — No prejudice to the accused — Conviction is not illegal

The charge framed against the appellant was not as clear as it might have been. No prejudice was, however, caused to the appellant by reason of the defect in the charge as to the intent of the appellant. He was fully aware of the case made by the prosecution and had full opportunity of rebutting the evidence given against him. The conviction was therefore not bad on that account. Romesh Chandra Arora v. State, AIR 1960 SC 154: (1960) 1 SCR 924: 1960 Cri LJ 177, 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1959]

[8345] — S. 225 — Delay in complaining prejudice detrimental

The court will be slow to entertain question of prejudice when details are not furnished; also the fact that the objection is not taken at an early stage will be taken into account. Sukha v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1956 SC 513, 520: 1956 SCR 288, 302: 1956 Cri LJ 923.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1956]

[8346] — S. 225 — No prejudice caused

The provisions of S. 225, Criminal Procedure Code, are clearly applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case. It has not been shown to us how the omission to mention the name of the approver in the charge under S. 120-B, Penal Code, has misled the appellant or has occasioned a failure of justice. Bimbadhar Pradhan v. State of Orissa, AIR 1956 SC 469, 473: 1956 SCR 206, 217: 1956 Cri LJ 831: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 13.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1956]

[8347] — S. 225 — Plea about defective charge not taken in lower courts or special leave application — Cannot be allowed to be raised before Supreme Court. Ram Sagar Pandit v. State of Bihar, 1963 Supp (2) SCR 652: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 65, 69.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafar Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1962]

[8348] — S. 225 — Supreme Court slow to entertain plea of prejudice when no details furnished. Sukha v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1956 SC 513: 1956 SCR 288: 1956 Cri LJ 923.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1956]

[8349] — Ss. 225, 221, 537 and 535 — Word "illegality" — Meaning of — Appellants charged under Ss. 148 and 302 r/w S. 149, IPC, but convicted under S. 302 r/w S. 34 IPC — Whether the irregularity amounts to an illegality and vitiates the trial — "Illegality" meaning of in this context — Trial when vitiated — Test — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 215, 211, 465 and 464

The Code does not use the word 'illegality', nor defines 'irregularity' and illegality can only mean an incurable illegality, incurable because of prejudice leading to a failure of justice.

The object of the charge is to give the accused notice of the matter he is charged with and does not touch jurisdiction. If, therefore, the necessary information is conveyed to him in other ways and there is no prejudice, the trial is not invalidated by the mere fact that the charge was not formally reduced to writing. The essential part of this part of the law is not any technical formula of words but the reality, whether the matter was explained to the accused and whether he understood what he was being tried for. Bhoor Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 4 SCC 754: 1974 SCC (Cri) 664: AIR 1974 SC 1256: 1974 Cri LJ 929.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-1974]

[8350] — Ss. 225, 226 and 227 — Error in the charge curable

No error or omission in the charge, and not even a total absence of a charge, cuts at the root of the trial. The proceedings up to the stage of the alteration, which, as we have seen can be at the very end of the trial, are not vitiated unless there is prejudice; they are good despite these imperfections. That is impossible when the error is so vital as to cut at the root of the trial. It follows that errors in the charge, and even a total absence of a charge, are not placed in the non-curable class. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116, 124: (1955) 2 SCR 1140, 115: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8351] — Ss. 225, 233, 337 and 537(b) — Error in charge — Ss. 149 & 34 IPC mixed up — Finding is not invalidated — Plea of defect in charge cannot be heard in the absence of prejudice to the accused

Any mere error, omission or irregularity in the charge will not invalidate the finding in this case as a matter of law. So far as the finding can be said to have travelled beyond the letters of the charge, the appellants have not proved any prejudice, and in the absence of prejudice no complaint can now be made of any defect in the charge. Bharwad Mepa Dana v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 289: (1960) 2 SCR 172: 1960 Cri LJ 424.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-11-1959]

[8352] — Ss. 225 and 222(2) — Breach of trust — Irregularity in the charge curable

The failure of the prosecution to split up the first court into two sub-courts cannot obviously be regarded as introducing a fatal infirmity in the validity of the trial. It would be noticed that this argument is not one of misjoinder. It is based on the formal requirement prescribed by the proviso to S. 222(2) as to how charges of breach of trust should be framed. There is no difficulty in holding that such an irregularity can be cured both under S. 225 and S. 537 of the Code, provided of course no prejudice has been thereby caused to the appellant's case. Kadiri Kunhahammad v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 661: 1960 Cri LJ 1013.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1959]

[8353] — Ss. 225 and 227 — Charge for an offence — Conviction for another offence — Omission to frame alternative charge — Validity

The appellant was charged and tried for the offence of abetting Mst Radha to cause abortion of the child in the womb of the deceased but curiously enough he was convicted for abetting the deceased to cause miscarriage. Throughout the trial the accused was asked to defend himself against the charge on which he was tried. At no stage he was notified that he would be tried for the offence of having abetted the deceased to cause miscarriage. It is now well settled that the absence of charge or an error or omission in it is not fatal to a trial unless prejudice is caused. Therefore the essential question is whether there is any reasonable likelihood of the accused having been prejudiced in view of the charge framed against him. From what has been stated above, one can reasonably come to the conclusion that the accused was likely to have been prejudiced by the charge on the basis of which he was tried. From the cross-examination of the prosecution witness, it is seen that the principal attempt made on behalf of the appellant was to show that he had nothing to do with co-accused, Mst Radha. He could not have been aware of the fact that he would be required to show that he did not in any manner abet the deceased to cause miscarriage. Madan Raj Bhandari v. State of Rajasthan, (1969) 2 SCC 385: AIR 1970 SC 436: 1970 Cri LJ 519: 1970 MLJ (Cri) 98.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-1969]

[8354] — Ss. 225 and 537 — Charge — Mere imperfection in — No prejudice to accused — Effect of

A mere imperfection in the charge cannot be used to overthrow a conviction unless prejudice can be shown. The irregularity is curable both under Ss. 225 and 537 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Moti Das v. State of Bihar, AIR 1954 SC 657: 1954 Cri LJ 1708.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1954]

[8355] — Ss. 225 and 537 — Conviction under S. 165-A IPC — In appeal charge altered into one under Ss. 161/109 IPC — Legality — There was no illegality

The accused convicted under S. 165-A IPC, but in appeal the conviction was altered into one under Ss. 161/109 IPC by the High Court on the ground that the offence was alleged to have been committed on a date when the offence under S. 165-A was not even created.

The effect in law of Ss. 161/109 IPC, is precisely the same as that of S. 165-A, at least in so far as the abetment of an offence actually committed is concerned. There were no further facts needed to be brought to the notice of the appellant by the amended charge, and the punishment both under Ss. 161/109 and S. 165-A is the same. In fact, if S. 165-A could be regarded as a freshly created offence, it did nothing more than provide expressly what was already provided by the Code by the two other sections. The change was in respect of abetment of offences not committed, that is to say, S. 161 read with S. 116. In view of the provisions of Ss. 225 and 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, this error in the charge cannot be taken note of, particularly as the appellant himself could have raised this objection at a much earlier stage during the trial, and also as no prejudice has been suggested. Om Prakash v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 409: 1960 Cri LJ 544, 46.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1959]

— S. 226 See also Ss. 225, 226 and 227

[8356] — S. 226 — Charge — Total absence from start to the end of trial in the committal court and Sessions Court — Trial is illegal

Where there is no charge at all as required by the Code from start to finish — from the committing Magistrate's court to the end of the Sessions trial; the Code contemplates in S. 226 the possibility of a committal without any charge and it is not impossible to conceive of an extreme case where the Sessions trial also proceeds without any formal charge which has to be in writing and read out and explained to the accused [S. 210(2) and S. 251(A)(4) and S. 227].

The Code requires that there should be a charge and it should be in writing. A deliberate breach of this basic requirement cannot be cured by the assertion that everything was orally explained to the accused and the assessors or jurors, and there was no possible or probable prejudice. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116: (1955) 2 SCR 1140: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

— S. 227 See Ss. 225, 226 and 227

See also Ss. 225 and 227

[8357] — Ss. 227 and 439 — Charge — Direction by High Court for alteration in — When can be given in revision

In revision before High Court the direction to alter the charge so as to include an offence for which the appellant was not originally charged, could only be given if the trial Court itself had taken action under S. 227 of the Criminal Procedure Code before it pronounced judgment which could only be so if there were materials before it either in the complaint or in the evidence to justify such action. Harihar Chakravarty v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 266: 1954 Cri LJ 724.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1953]

AIR 1951 SC 196 affirmed

[8358] — Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537 — Scope — Omission to frame a charge or error in the charge framed — Effect of — Will depend on circumstances of different cases according to the applicability of the section — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 464 & 228

Per Bose, J. and S. R. Das, acting C.J.

The cases contemplated by S. 237 are just as much a departure from S. 233 as are those envisaged in Ss. 225, 226, 227, 228, 535 and 537. Sections 236, 237 and 238 deal with joinder of charges and so does S. 233. The first condition is that there shall be a separate charge for each offence and the second is that each charge must be tried separately except in the cases mentioned in Ss. 234, 235 and 236.

So far as S. 233 is concerned, there can be no doubt that it requires a separate charge for each offence and does not envisage a situation in which there is either no charge at all or where, there being a charge for some other offence of which the accused is acquitted, he can be convicted instead of something else for which he was not charged. The Code has not regarded Ss. 237 and 238 as part of normal procedure.

Sections 225, 226, 227 and 228, 535 and 537 apply with equal force to 'every' kind of departure from that part of S. 233 that requires a separate charge for each offence. Section 237 is only a corollary to S. 236 and is there to emphasise that even when a number of charges could be joined together in the cases set out in S. 236 and one or more are not put in, even then, there can be convictions in respect of those offences despite the absence of a charge or charges.

All these sections are governed by the overriding rule about prejudice mentioned in one form or another in Ss. 225, 226, 227, 228 and 537. It would be monstrous to hold that a conviction cannot be set aside even when gross prejudice is proved in cases covered by S. 237 just because it does not speak of prejudice. Such cases can be envisaged where there would be grave prejudice under that section as clearly as we can see cases where there would be none under the others.

Sections 233 to 240 deal with joinder of charges and they must be read together and not in isolation. They all deal with the same subject-matter and set out different aspects of it. When they are read as a whole, it becomes clear that Ss. 237 and 238 cover every type of case in which a conviction can be sustained when there is no charge for that offence provided there is a charge to start with.

They do not deal with a case in which there is no charge at all, and anything travelling beyond that when there is a charge would be hit by Ss. 233, 234, 235 and 239 read as a whole.

The sections between them including Ss. 535 and 537 cover every possible case that relates to the charge and they place 'all' failures to observe the rules about the charge in the category of curable irregularities. Ch. XIX deals comprehensively with charges and Ss. 535 and 537 cover every case in which there is a departure from the rules set out in that chapter.

Such departures range from errors, omissions and irregularities in charges that are framed, down to charges that might have been framed and were not and include a total omission to frame a charge at all at any stage of the trial. In all these cases the only question is about prejudice.

Sections 225, 232, 535 and 537(a) between them, cover every conceivable type of error and irregularity referable to a charge that can possibly arise, ranging from cases in which there is a conviction with no charge at all from start to finish down to cases in which there is a charge but with errors, irregularities and omissions in it. The Code is emphatic that 'whatever' the irregularity it is not to be regarded as fatal unless there is prejudice.

Per Chandrasekhara Ayyar & Jagannadhadas, JJ.

A case of complete absence of a charge is covered by S. 535, whereas an error or omission in a charge is dealt with by S. 537. The consequences seem to be slightly different. Where there is no charge, it is for the Court to determine whether there is any failure of justice. But in the latter, where there is mere error or omission in the charge, the Court is also bound to have regard to the fact whether the objection could and should have been raised at an earlier stage in the proceedings.

Sections 535 and 537 indicate that in the generality of cases the omission to frame a charge is not 'per se' fatal. The contention that where there is no charge the conviction will be illegal, prejudice or no prejudice is not sound. The wording of S. 535 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is sufficiently wide to cover every case of no charge.

Sections 225, 226 and 232 and the powers exercisable thereunder, are with reference to a trial which has already commenced or taken place. There would, therefore, normally relate to errors or omissions which occur in a trial that has validly commenced.

There is no reason to think that S. 535 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not also to be understood with reference to the same context. There may be cases where, a trial which proceeds without any kind of charge at the outset can be said to be a trial wholly contrary to what is prescribed by the Code. In such cases the trial would be illegal without the necessity of a positive finding of prejudice.

The omission to frame a charge is a grave defect and should be vigilantly guarded against. In some cases, it may be so serious that by itself it would vitiate a trial and render it illegal, prejudice to the accused being taken for granted.

In the main, the provision of S. 535 would apply to cases of inadvertence to frame a charge induced by the belief that the matter on record is sufficient to warrant the conviction for a particular offence without express specification, and where the facts proved by the prosecution constitute a separate and distinct offence but closely relevant to and springing out of the same set of facts connected with the one charged. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116: (1955) 2 SCR 1140: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

Followed in Kammari Brahmaiah v. Public Prosecutor, (1999) 2 SCC 522

— S. 233 See Ss. 222(2), 233, 234 and 235

See also Ss. 225, 233, 337 and 537(b)

See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

See also Ss. 234 and 233

See also Ss. 234, 233 and 239

See also Ss. 239 and 233 to 236

[8359] — S. 233 — Framing of charge — Averment in complaint — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 120-B and 167

Held, it is wrong to contend that because the defendant in his complaint has confined himself to the panchnamas made by the accused and had not stated that the endorsements were falsely made, the High Court could not go beyond the scope of that complaint and convict the accused of the offence under S. 167 in respect of the endorsements made by the accused for the simple reason that this complaint was filed before the investigating officer and that complaint focussed the point as to the panchnamas made by the accused with the assistance of his co-accused. That could not circumscribe the scope of the trial. For ascertaining the true scope of the trial, the appellate court has to turn to the charges framed by the Special Judge and because those charges in express terms mentioned not only panchnamas but also other "false documents" which on the facts averred by the prosecution must necessarily include the endorsement made by the accused. Moreover the accused had from the outset clear notice that he was being tried also in respect of those endorsements. Krishna Govind Patil v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 3 SCC 706: 1973 SCC (Cri) 512: AIR 1973 SC 1388: 1973 Cri LJ 1130.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-7-1972]

[8360] — S. 233 — Misjoinder of charges — Same accused, not present at the time of the first incident, being tried with the accused of the second incident — Accused of the first incident acquitted while the accused of the second incident convicted — No misjoinder of charges

The accused who were tried in connection with the first incident along with the appellants who were responsible for the second incident have been acquitted and there has been no prejudice so far as the appellants ae concerned. It cannot also be said that there were two isolated incidents. The second incident was an offshoot of the first incident and being a consequence of the latter incident in which some of the accused were common, it could legitimately be held that the offence had been committed in the course of the transaction. There was no misjoinder of charges and the trial was not vitiated. Jai Narain Mishra v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 762: 1972 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 1972 SC 1764: 1972 Cri LJ 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1971]

[8361] — S. 233 — Separate charge for distinct offence — Accused B and C, partners of a firm, supplying wood and receiving payment from Railway against different bills — Supply against same contract — Bills signed by either B or C — B and C could be charged under S. 420 IPC jointly for all the payments irrespective of only one of them signing a particular bill

Both the accused as partners conspired to cheat the Government. The bills were presented on behalf of the firm and therefore both the partners would be responsible for obtaining money against each bill irrespective of the bill having been signed by any of the two partners. Banwarilal Jhunjhunwala v. Union of India, AIR 1963 SC 1620: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 338: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 529, 533.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1962]

[8362] — S. 233 — Separate charges for distinct offences — "Distinct offences" — Meaning of — Offences are distinct if not inter-related — Accused B and C supplying wood to the railway and receiving payment on submitting a number of bills — Recurring payment against each bill is not a separate offence under S. 420 IPC — The transaction of the receipt of the entire amount against all the bills is one offence — Framing of one charge about all the transactions is legal and was not in contravention of the section

The expression 'every distinct offence' must have a different content from the expressions 'every offence' or 'each offence'. A separate charge is required for every distinct offence and not necessarily for each separate offence. 'Distinct' means 'not identical'. It stresses characteristics that distinguish while the word 'separate' would stress the 'two things not being the same'. Two offences would be distinct if they be not in any way interrelated. If there be some inter-relation, there would be no distinctness and it would depend on the circumstances of the case in which the offences were committed whether there be separate charges for those offences or not.

Accused B and C were the partners of a firm S. The firm according to a contract supplied wood to the Central Railway and received payments against a number of bills submitted by it. The accused were prosecuted on the ground that the wood supplied was of an inferior quality and that certain officers of Railway issued false inspection notes about the quality of the wood. It was contended that in view of S. 233 CrPC one single charge should have been framed for the payment against each bill; the charge as framed is a combination of a number of charges with respect to several offences of cheating committed by obtaining money on the presentation of several bills and was therefore against the provisions of S. 233 CrPC.

The object of the conspiracy was to obtain the full contract price from the Government on supplying material inferior in quality from that undertaken to be supplied under the contract. Naturally, the entire supply could not be made at the same time even if it was to be made at one place. Actually the supply was to be made at three places. The wood inspected at a particular place of inspection could be distributed to the various places of supply. The bills could be for the supply made at the particular time by the firm to one place along or to places more than one. It is therefore obvious that the conspiracy entered into by the appellants was not for obtaining diverse amounts by cheating but to obtain the entire contract money by cheating. This circumstance justifies the conclusion that the offence of cheating contemplated by the conspirators was one offence and that was of obtaining, by cheating, the full amount due under the contract for the material supplied. The charge framed for the offence under S. 420 does not contravene S. 233 of the Code.

The obtaining of money for each bill supported by false inspection note, amounted to the offence of cheating in pursuance of the conspiracy. All such individual offences, on the basis of the various bills, were of the same kind as the single offence of obtaining the total amount as a result of the presentation of the various bills and in view of S. 71, IPC, the accused could not be punished for more than one of such offences it being provided that 'where anything which is an offence is made up of parts any of which is itself an offence, the offender shall not be punished for more than one such offences unless it be so expressly provided'.

A single charge for the offence of cheating in the circumstances of the case, does not contravene the provisions of S. 233 of the Code. Banwarilal Jhunjhunwala v. Union of India, AIR 1963 SC 1620: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 338: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 529, 533.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1962]

[8363] — S. 233 — Separate trials in a case where joint trial is possible — There is no illegality or irregularity

There is no illegality or irregularity in holding separate trial of the same accused persons even in cases where a single trial could have been permissible under the Code of Criminal Procedure. Chhutanni v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 407: 1956 Cri LJ 797.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1955]

[8364] — Ss. 233, 234(2), 235(1) and 239(d) — Joinder of charges — Conspiracy — Specific offence committed by accused — All persons party to the conspiracy and concerned in the specific offences can be jointly tried at the same trial

Whereas S. 239(d) allows a joinder of persons at a criminal trial, S. 235(1) allows joinder of charges subject to the conditions mentioned respectively in the said two provisions. In other words, these provisions constitute an exception to the provisions of S. 233 as well as those under S. 234(2). There is, therefore, no doubt that, in a case of conspiracy, if specific offences are committed in pursuance of the said conspiracy, all persons who are parties to that conspiracy and are also concerned in the specific offences thus committed can be lawfully tried jointly at the same trial. Kadiri Kunhahammad v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 661: 1960 Cri LJ 1013, 16, 17.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1959]

[8365] — Ss. 233, 239 and 537 — Charge under Ss. 120-B and 409 IPC — Conviction under S. 409 simpliciter, the charges under S. 120-B having failed, is valid

If the charge of conspiracy to commit criminal breach of trust is followed by a substantive charge of criminal breach of trust in pursuance of such conspiracy there is nothing to prevent the Court convicting an accused under the second charge even if the prosecution fails to establish conspiracy. In any event, there was no prejudice caused to him as he was aware that there was a substantive charge under S. 409 against him.

Therefore the contention that the prosecution having failed to establish conspiracy the appellant could not be convicted of the offence under S. 409, IPC simpliciter is without substance. Madan Lal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 1590: (1967) 3 SCR 439: 1967 Cri LJ 1401, 3 to 5.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Bachawat and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1967]

[8366] — Ss. 233 and 225 — Charges — Defect in framing of — Each accused not told separately what offences he is being tried for — All the accused lumped together in one charge — The defect is not fatal and is curable under S. 225 CrPC

No prejudice was and could be caused. The body of the charge set out the fact that the accused 1-29 formed an unlawful assembly and stated the common object; and then the charge specified in detail the part that each accused had played. In the circumstances, each accused was in a position to know just what was charged against him because once the facts are enumerated the law that applies to them can easily be ascertained; and in this particular case it was just a matter of picking out the relevant sections from among the ten mentioned. Section 225 CrPC expressly covers this kind of case. K.C. Mathew v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1956 SC 241: (1955) 2 SCR 1057: 1956 Cri LJ 444.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-12-1955]

[8367] — Ss. 233 and 234 — Specific and distinct charge

The framing of a specific and distinct charge in respect of every district head of criminal liability constituting an offence, is the foundation for a conviction and sentence therefor. Suraj Pal v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 419, 422: (1955) 1 SCR 1332: 1955 Cri LJ 1004.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1955]

[8368] — Ss. 233 and 235 — Distinct charges and distinct trials — Trial for offence under S. 420 IPC for submitting false claims by a contractor — Twenty claims filed with one covering letter — Claims relating to different works — Representation in respect of each different work or each different supply of material amounts to separate and distinct representation — Splitting of cases into ten different trials grouped together according to same transaction is justified — Representation made in respect of work done and materials supplied at the same place amount to one single representation. Bakhshish Singh Dhaliwal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 752: (1967) 1 SCR 211: 1967 Cri LJ 656.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-8-1966]

[8369] — Ss. 233 and 235 — Joinder of charges — Scope and object of — Exceptions to

Section 233 embodies the general law as to the joinder of charges and lays down a rule that for every distinct offence there should be a separate charge and every such charge should be tried separately. There is no doubt that the object of S. 233 is to save the accused from being embarrassed in his defence if distinct offences are lumped together in one charge or in separate charges and are tried together but the Legislature has engrafted certain exceptions upon this rule contained in Ss. 234, 235, 236 and 239.

As the series of acts attributed to the accused constituted one transaction in which the offences of murder, attempt to murder, extortion and wrongful confinement were committed, the case fell squarely within the purview of S. 235. The fact that the offence of extortion was committed at a different place and at a different time does not anytheless make the act as one committed in the course of the same transaction, and therefore the misjoinder of the above mentioned offences was permitted by the exception embodied in S. 235 CrPC. Aftab Ahmad Khan v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 436: (1955) 1 SCR 588: 1954 Cri LJ 1155.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1954]

[8370] — Ss. 233 and 537 — Separate charges not framed as required by S. 233 — Cure of irregularity — Counsel for the accused opposing public prosecutor's objection on this ground and asserting that the charges were properly framed — No prejudice caused — S. 537 cures the irregularity

It is true that no separate charges were framed under Ss. 120-B, 221/109 IPC and S. 5(2) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, although separate charges should have been framed as required by S. 233 CrPC. It is, however, to be noticed that when the Public Prosecutor raised this objection the Advocate for the accused opposed and said that the charge, as framed, was correct. It cannot, therefore, be now urged that the appellants were prejudiced by the charge as framed. The irregularity committed, in this case was thus cured by S. 537. Kanta Prashad v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1958 SC 350: 1958 SCR 1218: 1958 Cri LJ 698.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1958]

[8371] — Ss. 233 to 236 and 239 — Joinder of charges and trials — Scope and object — Gun shots causing death to Lauwa and to other persons — Trial Court treating murder of other persons separately from that of Lauwa — whether all incidents coming under same transaction — If S. 235(1) followed. Chandra Bhal v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 983: 1972 SCC (Cri) 290.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1970]

[8372] — Ss. 233 to 239 — Joint trial

The normal rule under the Criminal Procedure Code is to try each accused separately when the offence committed by him is distinct and separate. The provisions of Ss. 233 to 239 would indicate that joint trial is the exception. V.N. Kamdar v. Municipal Corpn., (1973) 2 SCC 207: 1973 SCC (Cri) 783: AIR 1973 SC 2246: (1974) 1 SCR 157: 1973 Cri LJ 1453.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-1973]

[8373] — Ss. 233 to 239 — Ss. 19(2), 20 and 21-A of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 do not derogate from provisions for separate or joint trials

The special provisions under Ss. 19(2), 20 and 21-A of the Act do not take away or derogate from the effect of the ordinary provisions of the law which enable separate as well as joint trials of accused persons in accordance with the provisions of the old Ss. 233 to 239 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (corresponding to Ss. 218 to 224 of the 1973 Code). On the other hand, there seems no logically sound reason why, if a distributor or a manufacturer can be subsequently impleaded under S. 20-A of the Act, he cannot be joined as co-accused initially in a joint trial if the allegations made justify such a course. Bhagwan Das Jagdish Chander v. Delhi Admn., (1975) 1 SCC 866: 1975 SCC (Cri) 410: AIR 1975 SC 1309: 1975 Cri LJ 1091.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg[1], A. Alagiriswami[2] and N.L. Untwalia[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1975]

[8374] — Ss. 233 to 239 and 537 — Misjoinder of charge — High Court is incompetent to set aside conviction unless there is failure of justice

Assuming that there has been a misjoinder of charges in violation of the provisions of Ss. 233 to 239 of the Code, the High Court was incompetent to set aside the conviction of the respondents without coming to the definite conclusion that misjoinder had occasioned failure of justice. Merely because the accused persons are charged with a large number of offences and convicted at the trial the conviction cannot be set aside by the appellate court unless it in fact came to the conclusion that the accused persons were embarrassed in their defence with the result that there was a failure of justice. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

— S. 234 See Ss. 222(2), 233, 234 and 235
See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537
See also Ss. 233 and 234
See also Ss. 233 to 236 and 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239 and 537
See also Ss. 239 and 233 to 236

[8375] — S. 234 — Nature — Only an enabling provision — Not incumbent on prosecution to resort to this provision. Jai Dev v. State of Punjab, Cri. A. No. 57 of 1965
[Date of decision: 15-11-1967]

[8376] — Ss. 234, 233 and 239 — Joint trial and joinder of charges — Offence committed in the course of the same transaction by more than one person — All the accused can be tried together in respect of all the offences irrespective of S. 234(1)

The limitation placed by S. 234(1) CrPC that not more than three offences of the same kind committed by an accused person within the space of 12 months can be tried at the same trial cannot operate if in any one series of act so connected together as to form the same transaction more offences than one are committed by the same person, and he may be charged with and tried at one trial for every such offence in view of the provisions of S. 235(1) CrPC. If the offence has been committed not by just one person but by all the accused all of them can be jointly tried in respect of all the offences in view of the provisions of S. 239(1). It would however be desirable to split up the charge suitably so that the accused persons be not prejudiced in answering the charges and defending themselves. State of A.P. v. Kandimalla Subbaiah, AIR 1961 SC 1241: (1962) 1 SCR 194: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 302.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and J.R. Mudholkar and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-3-1961]

[8377] — Ss. 234, 235, 236 and 239 — Scope and meaning — Misjoinder of charges — Meaning — Charge defined — There is misjoinder of charges if the joinder of charges is in contravention of the sections

A charge is not an accusation made or information given in abstract but an accusation made against a person in respect of an act committed or omitted in violation of a penal law forbidding or commanding it. In other words it is an accusation made against a person in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by him. Sections 234 to 236 permit joinder of charges and trial of different offences against a single accused in the circumstances mentioned in those sections and S. 239 provides for the joinder of charges and the trial of several persons. The scheme of the said section also indicates that a charge is not a mere abstraction but a concrete accusation against a person in respect of an offence and that their joinder is permitted under certain circumstances whether the joinder of charges is against one person or different persons. If the joinder of such charges is made in contravention of the said provisions, it will be misjoinder of charges. Birichh Bhujan v. State of Bihar, AIR 1963 SC 1120: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 328: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 190, 192.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1962]

[8378] — Ss. 234, 235 and 537 — Charge for three offences under S. 409 IPC and one under S. 477-A IPC — Offences arising out of the same acts and form part of the same transaction — There is no violation of S. 234 CrPC — Case is governed by S. 234 — Case is also saved by S. 537 as no prejudice is shown

There has not been a violation of S. 234 CrPC in that the appellant had been charged with three offences under S. 409 and one under S. 477-A. But the case is governed by S. 235 as the several offences form part of the same transaction. Moreover, the appellant has failed to show any prejudice as required by S. 537. Chandi Prasad Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 149: (1955) 2 SCR 1035: 1956 Cri LJ 322, 325: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 88: 1956 ALJ 153.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Vivian Bose and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1955]

[8379] — Ss. 234 and 233 — Charge and offences — Accused firing single shot at two persons with the intention of causing their death — Held, only one offence is committed for the purposes of the section and not two though the lives of two persons were put in danger. Bhagat Singh v. State, AIR 1952 SC 45: 1952 SCR 371: 1952 Cri LJ 323, 324.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-12-1951]

[8380] — Ss. 234 and 239 — Joint trial — Accused B and R being tried for offences under S. 302 for committing 2 murders of deceased L and B and also under S. 307 — Offences are of the same kind committed within 12 months — Joint trial is justified under Ss. 234 and 239

Accused B and R armed with gun and axe respectively were going together. B fired shots and killed L and B the same day within a space of a very short time at different places. When chased by villagers accused B fired several shots. There separate cases were registered and the Magistrate passed there separate committal orders, two under S. 302 against B and under S. 302/34 against A, and the third under S. 307/34 against both the accused. The Sessions Judge recorded evidence in one trial for all the three trials and decided the three trials by one judgment.

Section 234 allows the trial of a person accused of three or less number of offences of the same kind committed within the space of twelve months, and provides that offences of the same kind are those which are punishable with the same amount of punishment under the same section of the Indian Penal Code or of any special or local law. The two offences under S. 302 with respect to the murder of L and B are punishable under the same section of the Indian Penal Code with the same amount of punishment. In view of the proviso to S. 234 an offence of attempting to commit an offence is of the same kind as that other offence. Thus the offence under S. 307, IPC, is of the same kind as the offence under S. 302. The three offences of which the appellants were charged, therefore, are of the same kind and one joint trial of those offences would therefore be justified under S. 234 of the Code.

Section 239 lays down the joinder of persons at one trial and provides that persons accused of more than one offence of the same kind within the meaning of S. 234 committed by them jointly within a period of twelve months could be charged and tried together. Therefore, the trial of both B and R for the aforesaid three offences each of which was alleged to have been committed by them jointly within twelve months, would have been justified. Banwari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1198: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 180: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 278, 283.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1962]

[8381] — Ss. 234 and 239 — Sessions Judge not purporting to consolidate separate committal orders — Recorded evidence in one case, examined the accused once and delivered one common judgment — Amounts to joint trial permissible under the sections — Amalgamation or consolidation of trial is not involved — Trial is not vitiated by any procedural error when no prejudice caused. Banwari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1198: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 180: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 278, 283.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1962]

[8382] — Ss. 234 and 239 — Several committal orders — Sessions Judge is competent to hold one trial if covered by the sections and no prejudice is caused to the accused

The committal order does not bind the Sessions Judge to try those persons alone at one trial, who have been committed by the particular committal order. The question of the trial of the various committed persons does not depend on the number of committal orders, but on the provisions of Ss. 233 to 239 of the Code. If one trial can be justified under those provisions and there is no prejudice to the accused, the Sessions Judge can certainly consolidate the committal orders in those cases and try the accused at one trial. He may, for the purpose of the trial, frame a fresh charge with appropriate counts against the accused, in substitution of the charges framed by the Magistrate in the different committal proceedings.

Though a Sessions Judge cannot try at one trial persons committed under different committal orders with respect to distinct offences whose joint trial is not warranted by the provisions of Ss. 234 to 239 of the Code, he is competent to try at one trial persons who can be tried at one trial under the provisions of those sections even if there had been separate committal orders. Banwari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1198: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 180: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 278, 283.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1962]

— S. 234(2) See Ss. 233, 234(2), 235(1) and 239(d)

— S. 235 See Ss. 177, 235 and 239
See also Ss. 222(2), 233, 234 and 235
See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537
See also Ss. 233 and 235
See also Ss. 233 to 236 and 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239 and 537
See also Ss. 234, 235, 236 and 239
See also Ss. 234, 235 and 537
See also Ss. 239 and 233 to 236
See also Ss. 239 and 235

[8383] — S. 235 — Joint trial — Three charge-sheets being submitted and Magistrate passing three commitment orders — Joint trial by Sessions Court not justified under S. 235

The fact that three charge-sheets were submitted and that the Magistrate made three commitment orders indicate that the prosecution did not come to court with the allegation that the three offences were committed in the course of the same transaction. Therefore, the provisions of S. 235 CrPC could not have justified one trial for all these offences. Banwari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1198: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 180: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 278, 283.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1962]

[8384] — S. 235 — Misjoinder — Defect in procedure does not mean that the Court has acted without jurisdiction — Difference between want of jurisdiction and illegal and irregular exercise of jurisdiction

It is sufficient to point out that even if there was some defect in the procedure followed at the trial, it does not follow that trial acted without jurisdiction. There is a basic difference between want of jurisdiction and an illegal or irregular exercise of jurisdiction, and our attention has not been drawn to any authority in which mere non-compliance with the rules of procedure has been made a ground for granting one of the writs prayed for. In either case, the defect, if any, can according to the procedure established by law be corrected only by a court of appeal or revision. Here, the appellate Court which was competent to deal with the matter has pronounced its judgement against the petitioners, and the matter having been finally decided is not one to be reopened in a proceeding under Art. 32 of the Constitution. Janardhan Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1951 SC 217: 1951 SCR 344: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 736.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1951]

— S. 235(1) See Ss. 222(2), 235(1) and 537
See also Ss. 233, 234(2), 235(1) and 239(d)

[8385] — S. 235(1) — Joinder of charges — Conspiracy is one transaction — Single individual charged with conspiracy — Can be tried with the aid of the section for all acts committed in pursuance of the conspiracy in one trial. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8386] — S. 235(1) — Same trial of offences committed in one transaction — Several offences under S. 406, CrPC committed in pursuance of criminal conspiracy — Can be tried together in view of S. 235(1)

The two offences of criminal breach of trust could have been tried together as the offences were said to have been committed in pursuance of a criminal conspiracy entered into by the accused. All the offences committed in pursuance of criminal conspiracy are committed in the course of the same transaction and therefore can be tried together at one trial in view of sub-section (1) of S. 235 CrPC. State of Bombay v. Umarsaheb Buransaheb Inamdar, AIR 1962 SC 1153: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 711: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 259, 60.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1962]

— S. 236 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537
See also Ss. 233 to 236 and 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239 and 537
See also Ss. 234, 235, 236 and 239
See also Ss. 237 and 236
See also Ss. 239 and 233 to 236
See also Ss. 537, 236 and 237
See also Ss. 537, 236 and 337

[8387] — S. 236 — Alternative charges — Accused charged for committing an offence of forgery and to use the forged document and in the alternative for using fraudulently or dishonestly forged documents — Not a case of two alternative conspiracies — Charge is justified by the provision of 236

In the charge the particular offence to be committed was described in the alternative. One was to commit an offence of forgery and to use the forged document and the other was the offence of fraudulently or dishonestly using the license containing the forged certificates and endorsements. It was contended that the appellant was charged with two conspiracies in the alternative which is unwarranted in law.

The expression 'and/or' in first charge simply meant that the offences they had conspired to commit consisted either of the offence to commit forgery and subsequently to use the forged document as genuine or the object was merely to use the licence with forged endorsements even though there was not any conspiracy to commit forgeries in the licences. In other words, the charge was that the appellant and 'K' entered into a conspiracy to commit offences punishable with rigorous imprisonment for two years or upwards and that the offences contemplated to include the offence of using the licence with forged endorsement and may also include the offence of forging the licence. Thus there was no case of two alternative conspiracies. The conspiracy was one and it being doubtful what the facts proved would establish about the nature of offences to be committed by the conspirators, the charge illustrated the offence in this form. Such a charge is justified by the provisions of S. 236 of the Code. Purushottamdas Dalmia v. State of W.B., AIR 1961 SC 1589: (1962) 2 SCR 101: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 728: (1961) 2 MLJ (SC) 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

See (1962) 2 SCR 116: AIR 1961 SC 1601: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 736

[8388] — S. 236 — Alternative charges — When do not vitiate trial — Object of charge — Held, on facts of the case, framing of alternative charge not proper. Kahan Singh v. State of Haryana, (1971) 3 SCC 226: 1971 SCC (Cri) 426: AIR 1971 SC 983: 1971 Cri LJ 806.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.K. Mitter, K.S. Hegde and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1971]

[8389] — Ss. 236, 237 and 403 — Plea of autrefois acquit

A plea of autrefois acquit which is statutorily recognised in India under S. 403 of the Code of Criminal Procedure arises when a person is tried again for the same offence or on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under S. 236 or for which he might have been convicted under S. 237. Kharkan v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 83, 86: (1964) 4 SCR 673: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 116.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1963]

[8390] — Ss. 236, 237 and 423 — Disposal of appeal — Powers of the appellate court to convict for an offence for which accused not charged

The provisions of Ss. 236 and 237 are clear enough to enable a court to convict an accused person even of an offence with which he had not been charged if the Court is of the opinion that the provisions of S. 236 apply, that is to say, if a single act is or a series of acts are of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, then the accused can be charged with having committed all or any of such offences, and any number of such charges can be tried at once; or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences and by virtue of the provisions of S. 237 the accused although charged with one offence, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence for which he might have been charged under the provisions of S. 236, can be convicted of the offences which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

The High Court should therefore have instead of ordering a retrial decided the case on the evidence before it, whether any offence had been committed by the appellants. G.D. Sharma v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 400: 1960 Cri LJ 541.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1959]

[8391] — Ss. 236, 237 and 423 — High Court in appeal against acquittal can convict for another offence exercising power under Ss. 236, 237 & 238. Ramaswamy Nadar v. State of Madras, AIR 1958 SC 56, 59: 1958 SCR 739, 746: 1958 Cri LJ 228.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-10-1957]

[8392] — Ss. 236 and 237 — On acquittal under S. 302 IPC conviction for offence under S. 201 IPC without any further charge not illegal — Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 302 and 201

Even though no separate charge under S. 201 was filed, a conviction can be recorded under that section upon acquittal of charge under S. 302 by virtue of S. 237, CrPC, 1898, if the accused was associated with the disposal of the dead body of a person. Kashmira Singh v. State of M.P., AIR 1952 SC 159: 1952 SCR 526: 1952 Cri LJ 839, 845.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, B.K. Mukherjea and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-3-1952]

For similar situation, see 1952 Cri LJ 644: AIR 1952 SC 105.

In Palvinder Kaur v. State of Punjab, 1953 Cri LJ 154: AIR 1952 SC 354, it was stated that if it is not proved that the death was as a result of an offence, mere disposal of dead body is not enough for finding a conviction under S. 201.

[8393] — Ss. 236 and 237 — Accused charged under Ss. 148, 302/149 and 307/149, IPC and no charge framed under Ss. 302 and 307 IPC — Conviction under Ss. 302 and 307 IPC is illegal

A charge against a person as a member of an unlawful assembly in respect of an offence committed by one or other of the members of that assembly in prosecution of its common object is a substantially different one from a charge against any individual for an offence directly committed by him while being a member of such assembly. The liability of a person in respect of the latter is only for acts directly committed by him, while in respect of the former, the liability is for acts which may have been done by any one of the other members of the unlawful assembly, provided that it was in prosecution of the common object of the assembly or was such as the members knew to be likely to be so committed. A charge under S. 149, IPC puts the person on notice only of two alleged facts viz. (1) that the offence was committed by one or other of the members of the unlawful assembly of which he is one, and (2) that the offence was committed in prosecution of the common object or is such that was known to be likely to be so committed.

Section 149, IPC creates a distinct offence. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the direct individual liability of a person can only be fixed upon him with reference to a specific charge in respect of the particular offence. Such a case is not covered by Ss. 236 and 237, CrPC. The framing of a specific and distinct charge in respect of every distinct head of criminal liability constituting an offence, is the foundation for a conviction and sentence therefor. Suraj Pal v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 419: (1955) 1 SCR 1332: 1955 Cri LJ 1004.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1955]

[8394] — Ss. 236 and 237 — Conviction of an offence not included in the charge — Case not covered by Ss. 236 and 237 — Trial is illegal and the defect is not curable — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 464, 211, 216 & 228

Where the conviction is for a totally different offence from the one charged and not covered by Ss. 236 and 237 of the Code. On a charge for a minor offence, there can be no conviction for a major offence e.g. grievous hurt or rioting and murder. The omission to frame a separate and specific charge in such cases will be an incurable irregularity amounting to an illegality. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116: (1955) 2 SCR 1140: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[8395] — Ss. 236 and 237 — Scope and meaning — Provisions of S. 236 can apply only in cases where there is no doubt about the facts which can be proved but a doubt arises as to which of several offences have been committed on the proved facts

Section 237 CrPC is entirely dependent on the provisions of S. 236 of that Code. The provisions of S. 236 can apply in cases where there is no doubt about the facts which can be proved but a doubt arises as to which of several offences have been committed on the proved facts in which case any number of charges can be framed. In these circumstances if there had been an omission to frame a charge, then under S. 237, a conviction could be arrived at on the evidence although no charge had been framed. In the present case there is no doubt about the facts and if the allegation against the appellant that he had caused the injuries to the deceased with takwa was established by evidence, then there could be no doubt that the offence of murder had been committed. There was no room for the application of S. 236 CrPC. Nanak Chand v. State of Punjab, AIR 1955 SC 274: (1955) 1 SCR 1201: 1955 Cri LJ 721, 724.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-1955]

[8396] — Ss. 236 and 237 — Charge under S. 409 — Allegations in charge-sheet justified a charge under S. 420 as well — Trial Court and appellate Court competent to record a conviction under S. 420, IPC — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 409 and 430

The framing of a charge under S. 236, is, in the nature of things, earlier than the stage when it can be said what facts have been proved, a stage which is reached when the Court delivers its judgment. The power of the Court to frame various charges contemplated by S. 236, CrPC therefore arises when it cannot be said with any definiteness, either by the prosecutor or by the Court, that such and such facts would be proved. The Court had at the time of framing the charges, therefore to consider what different offences could be made out on the basis of the allegations made by the prosecution in the complaint or in the charge submitted by the investigating agency or by the allegations made by the various prosecution witnesses examined prior to the framing of the charge. All such possible offences could be charged in view of the provisions of S. 236, CrPC as it can be reasonably said that it was doubtful as to which of the offences the facts which could be ultimately proved would constitute.

The appellant was charged under S. 409, IPC but on the facts disclosed in the charge the appellant could also be charged under S. 420 IPC. When a charge under S. 420, IPC could have been framed by the trial Court by virtue of S. 236 CrPC that Court or the appellate Court can, in law, convict the appellant of this offence instead of an offence under S. 409, IPC, if it be of the view that the offence of cheating had been established. This would be in accordance with the provisions of S. 237, CrPC. Sunil Kumar Paul v. State of W.B., AIR 1965 SC 706: (1964) 7 SCR 70: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 630.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-1964]

See also AIR 1958 SC 56: 1956 Cri LJ 228

[8397] — Ss. 236 and 237(1) — Attracted only where offence would fall under either of the alternative charges and not where offence would fall under both the charges — CrPC, 1973, S. 221(1). V.K. Agarwal, Asstt. Collector of Customs v. Vasantraj Bhagwanji Bhatia, (1988) 3 SCC 467: 1988 SCC (Cri) 679: AIR 1988 SC 1106: (1988) 16 ECC 164: (1988) 64 Comp Cas 664.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.P. Thakkar and K.N. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-4-1988]

— S. 237 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537
See also Ss. 233 to 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239 and 537
See also Ss. 236 and 237
See also Ss. 236, 237 and 403
See also Ss. 236, 237 and 423
See also Ss. 537, 236 and 237

[8398] — S. 237 — Accused charged S. 307 IPC under may be convicted under S. 326 IPC even though he was not charged under S. 326, if he could on facts be charged alternatively under S. 307 and S. 326 — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 307 and 326. Bejoy Chand Patra v. State of W.B., AIR 1952 SC 105: 1952 SCR 202: 1952 Cri LJ 644.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1951]

Begu v. Emperor, 52 IA 191: 26 Cri LJ 1059, followed
See also 1952 Cri LJ 839, 845: AIR 1952 SC 159

[8399] — S. 237 — Accused charged under S. 302 r/w S. 149, IPC convicted under S. 302 r/w S. 34, IPC — Legality of conviction

If the common object which is the subject-matter of the charge under S. 149 does not necessarily involve a common intention, then the substitution of S. 34 for S. 149 might result in prejudice to the accused and ought not therefore to be permitted. But if the facts to be proved and the evidence to be adduced with reproved and the evidence to be adduced with reference to the charge under S. 34, then the failure to charge the accused under S. 34 could not result in any prejudice and in such cases the substitution of S. 34 for S. 149 must be held to be a formal matter.

Held :

On facts of the case that there could be no difference between the object and the intention with which the offence was committed. Therefore the conviction of the accused under S. 302 read with S. 34, when they had been charged only under S. 302 read with S. 149 was not illegal. Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1961 SC 1787: (1962) 2 SCR 395: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 853.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1961]

Karnail Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1954 SC 204: 1954 SCR 904: 1954 Cri LJ 580.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-1-1954]

Jagir Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1968 SC 43: (1967) 3 SCR 256: 1968 Cri LJ 89.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Bachawat and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1967]

[8400] — Ss. 237 and 236 — Charges and conviction — Accused charged and convicted under S. 299, Calcutta Municipalities Act — High Court can alter the sentence to one under S. 300 of the Act

The alteration of the conviction from S. 299, Calcutta Municipalities Act to S. 300 of the Act read with S. 488 of the Act, was no alteration in the substance of the acquisition but only in the section more properly applicable to the facts found.

Sections 236 and 337 of Criminal Procedure Code authorise the Court to alter the conviction and the sentence to be passed in respect of the offence made out in the evidence.

In this case it is manifest that the facts sought to be proved and found by the Courts below remained the same even after the alteration of the conviction from S. 299 to S. 300 read with S. 488 of the Calcutta Municipalities Act. There was, therefore, no illegality in the alteration of the conviction under one section to the other. Nani Gopal Biswas v. Municipality of Howrah, AIR 1958 SC 141: 1958 SCR 774: 1958 Cri LJ 271, 272.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-10-1957]

[8401] — Ss. 237 and 537 — Omission to mention S. 34 IPC in the charge — No prejudice alleged or shown — Curable — Matter also not agitated in trial Court or High Court — Conviction with the aid of S. 34 IPC is permissible

It would have been better if in the charge S. 34 Penal Code would have been specified. But the mere omission to specify it cannot in the circumstances of the case have any effect as no prejudice has been alleged or shown. This matter was also not agitated in either of the Courts below. The irregularity is curable under S. 537 CrPC. B.N. Srikantiah v. State of Mysore, AIR 1958 SC 672: 1959 SCR 496: 1958 Cri LJ 1251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-4-1958]

— S. 237(1) See Ss. 236 and 237(1)

— S. 238 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

See also Ss. 233 to 239

See also Ss. 233 to 239 and 537

[8402] — S. 238 — Charge under S. 302 IPC — Conviction under S. 326 IPC — Permissibility — Sharp-edged weapon used — Death caused by stab injuries inflicted by knife while the co-accused had caught hold of the victim — On facts, though common intention to cause death doubtful an intention to cause grievous hurt, held, clear — Conviction altered to that under Ss. 326/34, IPC though originally charged under Ss. 302/149 and Ss. 307/149 IPC — No prejudice caused by such alteration — CrPC, 1973, S. 222 — Criminal Trial — Wounds and Weapons. State of U.P. v. Ram Kishun, (1976) 3 SCC 449: 1976 SCC (Cri) 443: AIR 1976 SC 2016: (1976) 3 SCR 379: 1976 Cri LJ 1559.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-2-1976]

[8403] — S. 238 — Misjoinder of charges in a case of conspiracy and cheating — Single conspiracy spread over a number of years to cheat people — Several instances of cheating taking place — Instances of cheating were in pursuance of the conspiracy and were therefore parts of the same transaction — Single charge was not improper and there was no misjoinder of charges

The charge, as framed, discloses one single conspiracy, although spread over several years. There was only one object of the conspiracy and that was to cheat members of the public. The fact that in the course of years others joined the conspiracy or that several incidents of cheating took place in pursuance of the conspiracy did not change the conspiracy and did not split up a single conspiracy into several conspiracies. The instances of cheating were in pursuance of the conspiracy and were therefore parts of the same transaction. Therefore there has been no misjoinder of charges. S. Swamirathnam v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 340: 1957 Cri LJ 422, 426.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1956]

— S. 239 See Ss. 177, 180 and 239
See also Ss. 177, 235 and 239
See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537
See also Ss. 233 to 236 and 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239
See also Ss. 233 to 239 and 537
See also Ss. 234, 233 and 239
See also Ss. 234 and 239
See also Ss. 234, 235, 236 and 239

[8404] — S. 239 — "And"

Section 239 does not read as if its various clauses can be applied only alternatively. One the other hand at the end of cl. (f) there is a conjunction 'and'. If the intention of the Legislature was that the provisions of these clauses should be available only alternatively it would have used the word "or" and not "and" which has the opposite effect. Grammatically, therefore, it would appear that the provisions of the various clauses are capable of being applied cumulatively. The opening words of the section show that it is an enabling provision and, therefore, the Court has a discretion to avail itself cumulatively of two or more clauses.

Of course a court has the power to depart from the grammatical construction if it finds that strict adherence to the grammatical construction will defeat the object the Legislature had in view. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8405] — S. 239 — Scope and application — Clauses cannot be applied only alternatively — To be applied cumulatively

From the grammatical interpretation of S. 239, CrPC it is clear that its various clauses are not to be applied alternatively, but are to be applied cumulatively. The section is an enabling provision and, therefore, the Court has a discretion to avail itself cumulatively of two or more clauses for the purpose of framing charges and the charges so framed by it will not be in violation of the law, the provisions of Ss. 233, 234 and 235 notwithstanding. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8406] — Ss. 239 and 233 to 236 — Object of S. 239 — Is to avoid multiplicity of trials — "Same transaction" occurring in cls. (a) and (d) of Ss. 239 and 235(1) — Has same meaning — S. 239 is not subject to Ss. 233 to 236 — Ss. 233 to 236 to be applied to S. 239 without detracting from its provisions

The object of enacting S. 239 was to avoid multiplicity of trials and the only limitation which could properly be placed on the trial of several persons for the same kind of or different offences would be that which considerations of justice and fairness would require. No doubt, such a construction would also give rise to the result that whereas so far as the trial of a single accused person is concerned the charges must be limited to three offences committed by him within the space of 12 months from the first to the last of such offences, there would be no such limitation when along with that accused person there are one or more persons who have jointly committed those offences. The reason for this possibly is that the Legislature did not want to differentiate between cases where any number of different offences were committed jointly by a group of persons from cases where any number of offences of the same kind were committed by a group of persons.

The expression "same transaction" occurring in cls. (a), (c)(sic) and (d) of S. 239 as well as that occurring in S. 235(1) ought to be given the same meaning according to the normal rule of construction of statutes. Looking at the matter in that way, it is pointless to inquire further whether the provisions of S. 239 are subject to those of S. 235(1). The provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3) of S. 235 are enabling provisions and quite plainly can have no overriding effect. But it would be open to the court to resort to those provisions even in the case of a joint trial of several persons permissible under S. 239.

Bearing in mind the fact that the provisions in the "former part" of Ch. XIX are applicable to charges made with the aid of S. 239 only "so far as may be" it would not be right to construe S. 239 as being subject to the provisions of Ss. 235 to 236. It is a rule of construction that all the provisions of a statute are to be read together and given effect to and that it is, therefore, the duty of the Court to construe a statute harmoniously. This, while it is clear that the sections preceding S. 239 have no overriding effect on that section, the Courts are not to ignore them but apply such of them as can be applied without detracting from the provisions of S. 239. Indeed, the very expression 'so far as may be' emphasises the fact that applying S. 239 it is not those provisions but the latter which is to have an overriding effect. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8407] — S. 239 — Joint trial — "Committed in the course of the same transaction" — Meaning of — Series of acts with proximity of time or place or unity of purpose and design or continuity of action form part of same transaction

Where there is proximity of time or place or unity of purpose and design or continuity of action in respect of a series of acts, it may be possible to infer that they form part of the same transaction. It is, however, not necessary that every one of these elements should co-exist for a transaction to be regarded as the same. But if several acts committed by a person show a unity of purpose or design that would be a strong circumstance to indicate that those acts form part of the same transaction. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8408] — S. 239 — Misjoinder — Ss. 408 and 477-A IPC — Misjoinder of charges — Joint trial of six persons for the offences under — Conviction of only one — Legality of trial and conviction

Charges under S. 408 and S. 477-A, Penal Code, could, in the circumstances of this case, be tried together and the joint trial of all the accused was proper and lawful. Our attention was not drawn to any provision of law against the legality of the joint trial. Sushil Kumar Gupta v. Joy Shanker Bhattacharyya, (1970) 1 SCC 504: 1970 SCC (Cri) 210: AIR 1971 SC 1543.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-1970]

[8409] — S. 239 — Misjoinder of charges

Where the circumstances of the case show that the accused jointly committed the offences with which they were charged and that those offences were committed in the course of same transaction, they could be charged and tried together as such a course is permitted by S. 239 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Ayodhya Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1972) 3 SCC 885: 1972 SCC (Cri) 786: AIR 1972 SC 2501: (1973) 1 SCR 880: 1972 Cri LJ 1696.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-1972]

[8410] — S. 239 — Six items of cheating combined in one charge — All the items part and parcel of the same transaction — Trial permissible by the section. Shivanarayan Kabra v. State of Madras, AIR 1967 SC 986: (1967) 1 SCR 138: (1967) 1 MLJ (SC) 159: 1967 Cri LJ 946, 49, 50.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1966]

[8411] — S. 239 — Words "same transaction"

Regarding the fact whether the sale by the vendor and that by the distributor to the vendor being part of the "same transaction" under S. 233, CrPC, 1973, it is practically impossible as well as undesirable to attempt a definition of the concept of "same transaction" which has to be necessarily elastic.

It is generally thought that where there is proximity of time or place or unity of purpose and design or continuity of action in respect of a series of acts, it may be possible to infer that they form part of the same transaction. Bhagwan Das Jagdish Chander v. Delhi Admn., (1975) 1 SCC 866: 1975 SCC (Cri) 410: AIR 1975 SC 1309: 1975 Cri LJ 1091.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg[1], A. Alagiriswami[2] and N.L. Untwalia[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1975]

[8412] — Ss. 239 and 235 — A private businessman can be tried with Army Officers — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, S. 6

There can be no objection to a businessman being tried with two Army Officers under S. 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act and Ss. 120-B and 420, IPC. Union of India v. Maj. I.C. Lala, (1973) 2 SCC 72: 1973 SCC (Cri) 738: AIR 1973 SC 2204: (1973) 3 SCR 818: 1973 Cri LJ 1190.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-3-1973]

[8413] — S. 239(b) — Joint trial of person accused of an offence and person accused of abetment thereof — "Accused of an offence" — Also means "Accused of several offences" — Person accused to several offences and person accused of abetment of such several offences can be tried jointly

The entire tenor of the provisions of S. 239 CrPC indicates that several persons could be tried together for several offences committed in the circumstances mentioned therein. Clause (b) of S. 239 CrPC cannot mean that in one trial any number of persons could be tried for a single offence alongwith any number of persons accused of abetment of that offence. The words "an offence" in cl. (b) do not mean a single offence. Having regard to S. 13 of General Clauses Act singular includes the plural and the clause means that persons accused of several offences and persons accused of abetment thereof could be tried together at one trial. K. Satwant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 266: (1960) 2 SCR 89: 1960 Cri LJ 410.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and Syed Jafer Imam[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1] and K.C. Das Gupta[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1959]

— S. 239(d) See also Ss. 233, 234(2), 235(1) and 239(d)

[8414] — S. 239(d) — Joint trial — Scope and applicability — Nature of the accusations made by the prosecution is the test of the applicability of the clause

Section 239(d) authorises a joint trial of persons accused of different offences committed in the course of the same transaction; and there can be no doubt that in deciding the question whether or not more persons than one can be tried together under the said section; the criminal Court has to consider the nature of the accusation made by the prosecution. It would be unreasonable to suggest that though the accusation made by the prosecution would justify a joint trial of more persons than one the validity of such a trial could be effectively challenged if the said accusation is not established according to law. It is true that, in framing the charge against more persons than one and directing their joint trial, courts should carefully examine the nature of the accusation, but if they are satisfied that prima facie the accusation made shows that several persons are charged of different offences and that the said offences prima facie appear to have been committed in the course of the same transaction, their joint trial can and should be ordered. The point of time in the proceedings at which it is to be determined whether the condition that the offences alleged had been committed in the course of the same transaction has been fulfilled or not is at the time when the accusation is made and not when the trial is concluded and the result known. Kadiri Kunhahammad v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 661: 1960 Cri LJ 1013, 16, 17.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1959]

— S. 240 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

— S. 241 See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

[8415] — Ss. 241 and 537 — Offence triable as a summons case tried as a warrant case — Trial not vitiated — Defect curable under S. 537 CrPC. Gopal Das Sindhi v. State of Assam, AIR 1961 SC 986: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 39.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1961]

— S. 242 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

— S. 243 See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

[8416] — Ss. 243 and 362(2-A) — Relative Scope, nature and applicability — Accused pleading guilty — Admission of guilt not recorded in the words used by the accused — Magistrate simply recording "pleads guilty" — Requirements of S. 243 violated — These requirements are mandatory — Violation vitiates the trial and renders the conviction legally invalid

The requirements of S. 243 of the Criminal Procedure Code are mandatory in character and a violation of these provisions vitiates the trial and renders the conviction legally invalid. The requirement of the section is not a mere empty formality but is a matter of substance intended to secure proper administration of justice.

Section 362(2-A) of the Criminal Procedure Code has no application in a case where the accused pleads guilty and the special provision of S. 243 of the Criminal Procedure Code would be attracted in such a case. Section 243 of the Criminal Procedure Code is a provision of a special character and according to well-established rule of interpretation that special provision will take precedence and override the general provision of S. 362(2-A) of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Where the particulars of the offence were explained to the accused by the interpreter; the accused pleaded guilty and the plea was also interpreted to the Magistrate by the interpreter and the Magistrate did not record the admission of guilt as nearly as possible in the words used by the accused but simply recorded "pleads guilty" there has been a violation of S. 243, CrPC which vitiates the trial and renders the conviction legally invalid. Mahant Kaushalya Das v. State of Madras, AIR 1966 SC 22: (1966) 1 SCR 229: 1966 Cri LJ 66, 68.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1965]

— S. 244 See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

[8417] — Ss. 244 and 286 — Accused's conduct of silence — When does not become substitute for proof of guilt — Prosecution's duty

If the prosecution evidence as a whole is unreliable and cannot be accepted as correct for specific reasons the conduct of the accused can be of no avail to the prosecution, for such conduct of silence can never be permitted to become a substitute for proof by the prosecution. The substantive prosecution evidence being rejected as unworthy of credit, the alleged conduct must be referable to some innocent reason. Different persons react in different ways in similar circumstances and in the absence of satisfactory evidence the Court ought not to treat the case as positively proved beyond reasonable doubt only by reason of the accused's failure to put up his defence immediately when he was confronted. Zwinglee Ariel v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 15: 1954 Cri LJ 230.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1952]

— Ss. 245 to 247 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

[8418] — Ss. 247 and 259 — Complainant — Meaning of — Complaint by a company — Complainant would be the person who represents such company in the court — Different persons may represent such company at different times — Only Magistrate's permission necessary — Magistrate cannot insist that the person whose statement was taken on oath at the first instance alone can represent the company — Position under old Code same — Penal Code, 1860, S. 11 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 256, 249, 2(y) and Ch. XV. Associated Cement Co. Ltd. v. Keshvanand, (1998) 1 SCC 687: 1998 SCC (Cri) 475: AIR 1998 SC 596: (1998) 91 Comp Cas 361: 1998 Cri LJ 856: (1998) 1 KLT 179.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1997]

Associated Cement v. Keshav Nand, 1997 Cri LJ 3898 (J&K), reversed

[8419] — Ss. 247 and 259 — Non-appearance of complainant — Magistrate not justified in acquitting the accused unless presence of complainant on that date found necessary — Discretion to acquit the accused or proceed with the trial must be exercised judicially and fairly — On facts, held, Magistrate not justified in acquitting the accused particularly when the complainant and another witness had already been examined — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 256 and 249. Associated Cement Co. Ltd. v. Keshvanand, (1998) 1 SCC 687: 1998 SCC (Cri) 475: AIR 1998 SC 596: (1998) 91 Comp Cas 361: 1998 Cri LJ 856: (1998) 1 KLT 179.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1997]

Associated Cement v. Keshav Nand, 1997 Cri LJ 3898 (J&K), reversed

— S. 248 See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

[8420] — S. 248 — High Court finding case not triable as warrant case but as summons case — Direction to Magistrate but Magistrate discharging accused

Under S. 248, CrPC, the Magistrate has ample jurisdiction to permit the complainant to withdraw the complaint. In fact under S. 248, CrPC, the Magistrate should acquit the accused, once he permits the complaint to be withdrawn. Even if the order of discharge is to be treated as passed in a case where summons case procedure is to be followed, it was within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate and hence it cannot be characterised as either illegal or not justified. Cricket Assn. of Bengal v. State of W.B., (1971) 3 SCC 239: 1971 SCC (Cri) 446: AIR 1971 SC 1925: 1971 Cri LJ 1432.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1971]

— S. 249 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

— S. 250 See Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

[8421] — Ss. 251, 251-A, 252, 253 and 254 — Scope

These sections throw some light as to the meaning to be given to the words "charged with and tried for an offence".

Under S. 251-A(2), CrPC, if, upon consideration of all the documents referred to in S. 173 and making such examination, if any, of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary and after giving the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard, the Magistrate considers the charge against the accused to be groundless, he shall discharge him. This provision that the Magistrate may discharge the accused where the charge against the accused appears to be groundless indicates that the words "charged with" cannot be said to mean framing of a charge. It is because the charge or the allegation or accusation against the accused is groundless that he is discharged.

Again, in S. 252 it will appear that the Magistrate in any case instituted otherwise than on a police report shall proceed to hear the complainant and take evidence in support of the prosecution. Under S. 253, if, upon taking the evidence referred to in S. 252, and making such examination of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary, he finds that no case against the accused has been made out, the Magistrate shall discharge him. The provisions contained in Ss. 252 and 253 are cases where the Magistrate deals with warrant case instituted not on a police report but upon a complaint.

These three sections i.e. Ss. 251-A, 252 and 253 indicate that an accused can be discharged by the Magistrate if the charge appears to be groundless. Charge is framed under S. 254 of the Code of Criminal Procedure when the Magistrate upon evidence and examination is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which the Magistrate is competent to try and which could be ordinarily punished by them that he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused. The charge under S. 255 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is read and explained to the accused and he shall be asked whether he is guilty or has any defence to make. Lt. Col. S.K. Kashyap v. State of Rajasthan, (1971) 2 SCC 126: 1971 SCC (Cri) 452: AIR 1971 SC 1120: 1971 Cri LJ 832.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-1971]

— S. 251-A See Ss. 173, 190, 251-A and 252

See also Ss. 173 and 251-A

See also Ss. 190, 252 and 251-A

See also Ss. 251, 251-A, 252, 253 and 254

See also Ss. 548 and 251-A

[8422] — S. 251-A — Police Officer investigating an offence under S. 9(a), Opium Act, 1878 seizing opium and submitting a complaint to Magistrate — Trial to be held in accordance with the procedure laid down in S. 251-A, CrPC, 1898 — Opium Act, 1878, Ss. 9(a) and 20-G. Ashiq Miyan v. State of M.P., AIR 1969 SC 4: (1969) 1 SCR 188: 1968 Cri LJ 239.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-1968]

[8423] — Ss. 251-A and 173 — Report by police officer under S. 11, Essential Commodities Act, 1955 — Held, can included in a charge-sheet under S. 173, CrPC, 1898 — Trial under S. 251-A not improper — Essential Commodities Act, 1955, Ss. 11 & 7

The enquiry was an integrated one, being based on the same set of facts. Even if the offence under the Essential Commodities Act may not be cognizable the police officer would be competent to include it in the charge-sheet under S. 173, CrPC, 1898 with respect to a cognizable offence.

Both the offences if cognizable could be investigated together under Chapter XIV of the Code and also if one of them was a non-cognizable offence. Pravin Chandra Mody v. State of A.P., AIR 1965 SC 1185, 1187: (1965) 1 SCR 269: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 250.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, M. Hidayatullah and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1964]

[8424] — S. 251-A — Cases not started by police report — Procedure

Section 251-A prescribes a special procedure for warrant cases, instituted upon police reports. In a case started otherwise than on a police report, the old procedure of examining witnesses and framing a charge on which the accused is to be tried continues to apply. Ramnarayan Mor v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 949, 954: (1964) 5 SCR 1064, 1077: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 44.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and K. Subba Rao[1], M. Hidayatullah[2], J.C. Shah[1] and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1963]

[8425] — S. 251-A — Cognizance by Magistrate

Once cognizance has been taken by the Magistrate, he takes cognizance of an offence and not the offenders; once he takes cognizance of an offence it is his duty to find out who the offenders really are and once he comes to the conclusion that apart from the persons sent up by the police some other persons are involved, it is his duty to proceed against those persons. The summoning of the additional accused is part of the proceeding initiated by his taking cognizance of an offence. Raghubans Dubey v. State of Bihar, AIR 1967 SC 1167, 1169: (1967) 2 SCR 423: 1967 Cri LJ 1081.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1967]

[8426] — S. 251-A — Scope and applicability — Court should apply its judicial mind for considering whether or not there is ground for presuming the commission of the offence by the accused. Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 3 SCC 282: 1972 SCC (Cri) 495: AIR 1972 SC 545: 1972 Cri LJ 329.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-1971]

[8427] — S. 251-A — Scope and applicability — If the charge is found groundless on the face of the record, the accused is entitled for an order of discharge. Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. Ltd. v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 3 SCC 282: 1972 SCC (Cri) 495: AIR 1972 SC 545: 1972 Cri LJ 329.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-1971]

[8428] — S. 251-A — Supreme Court Rules, Or. 4 R. 30 — Procedure under S. 251-A can be followed. M, an Advocate, Re, AIR 1957 SC 149: 1956 SCR 811: 1957 Cri LJ 300.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1956]

[8429] — Ss. 251-A, 252, 253 and 537 — Offence under S. 16(1)(a), Prevention of Food Adulteration Act — Accused charged with selling articles of food without a licence — Procedure prescribed for warrant by Ss. 251-A, 252 and 253 not followed — Charge framed and accused convicted — Opportunity to plead that it was a case of failure to renew licence not given — Held, no prejudice caused to the accused because the licence was not renewed before its expiry and even an application for renewal was not made — Conviction not bad for failure to adopt procedure applicable to warrant cases. Gurmukh Singh v. State of Punjab, (1972) 4 SCC 805: AIR 1972 SC 824: 1972 Cri LJ 654.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1971]

[8430] — S. 251-A(1) — Failure to give copies of statements in respect of separate trial

Where there are two different trials and two different accused are tried in those trials, copies of statements of witnesses recorded in connection with one accused cannot be furnished to the accused in the other trial. Where the accused person considers that the statements of witnesses recorded in connection with the other case are necessary for cross-examination, it is open to him to inspect the record of the other case and if necessary with the permission of the Court obtain copy of those statements or secure certified copies in accordance with law and use them. State of Assam v. Krishna Rao, (1973) 3 SCC 227: 1973 SCC (Cri) 222: AIR 1973 SC 28: (1973) 2 SCR 239: 1973 Cri LJ 169.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1972]

[8431] — Ss. 251-A(2) and 190(1)(b) — Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence under S. 332 IPC — Discharging him under S. 251-A(2) — Magistrate can nevertheless proceed to try the accused under S. 323 IPC as a summons case

When a magistrate takes cognizance of offences under S. 190(1)(b) CrPC he takes cognizance of all offences constituted by the facts reported by the police officer and not only of some of such offences. Therefore when the Magistrate took cognizance under S. 190(1)(b) CrPC of the offence under S. 332 IPC, cannot but have taken cognizance also of the minor offence under S. 323 IPC. Consequently even after the order of discharge was made under S. 251-A(2) CrPC in respect of the offence under S. 332 IPC, the minor offence under S. 323 of which he had also taken cognizance remained for trial as there was no indication to the contrary. That being an offence triable as a summons case the Magistrate could proceed to try the offence under Ch.XX CrPC and a fresh complaint was not necessary. Pramatha Nath Mukherjee v. State of W.B., AIR 1960 SC 810: (1960) 3 SCR 245: 1960 Cri LJ 1165.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1960]

— S. 252 See Ss. 173, 190, 251-A and 252
See also Ss. 190, 252 and 251-A
See also Ss. 208, 252 and 286
See also Ss. 251, 251-A, 252, 253 and 254
See also Ss. 251-A, 252, 253 and 537
See also Ss. 252 to 258

[8432] — S. 252 — Scope

Section 252, Criminal Procedure Code, can only apply to those cases which are instituted otherwise than on a police report, that is to say, upon complaints which are not reports of a police officer or upon information received from persons other than a police officer. Pravin Chandra Mody v. State of A.P., AIR 1965 SC 1185, 1187: (1965) 1 SCR 269, 273: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 250.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, M. Hidayatullah and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1964]

[8433] — S. 252 — Examination of material witnesses — Prosecution's duty — Non-examination of material witnesses — Implications of

It is the bounden duty of the prosecution to examine a material witness — particularly when no allegation has been made that if produced, he would not speak the truth and in any case, the Court would have been well advised to exercise its discretionary powers to examine such witness. Not only does an adverse inference arise against the prosecution case from his non-production as a witness in view of Illustration (g) to S. 114 of the Indian Evidence Act, but the circumstance of his being withheld from the Court casts a serious reflection on the fairness of the trial. The accused is considerably prejudiced in his defence by reason of such omission on the part of the prosecution and on part of the Court. Habeeb Mohd. v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 51: 1954 SCR 475: 1954 Cri LJ 338.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1953]

Distinguished in Ramjee Rai v. State of Bihar, (2006) 13 SCC 229: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 626

[8434] — S. 252 — Non-examination of prosecution witnesses

The examination of those witnesses whose evidence does not unfold the prosecution case is not necessary. Makan Jivan v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 3 SCC 297: 1971 SCC (Cri) 587: AIR 1971 SC 1797: 1971 Cri LJ 1310.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1971]

[8435] — Ss. 252 to 258 — Nature of safeguard provided in procedure under — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 244 to 247. A.R. Antulay v. Ramdas Sriniwas Nayak, (1984) 2 SCC 500: 1984 SCC (Cri) 277: AIR 1984 SC 718: 1984 Cri LJ 647: 1984 Bom LR 228.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: D.A. Desai, R.S. Pathak, O. Chinnappa Reddy, A.P. Sen and V. Balakrishna Eradi, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1984]

— S. 253 See Ss. 251, 251-A, 252, 253 and 254

See also Ss. 251-A, 252, 253 and 537

See also Ss. 252 to 258

[8436] — Ss. 253, 254-A & 258 and 439 & 403 — Trial of warrant cases — Held, 'discharge' and 'acquittal' are distinct concepts — After framing of charge there cannot be a 'discharge' but only an 'acquittal' based on a finding of not guilty turning on the merits of the case — Hence, High Court could rightfully interfere in revision under S. 439 with an order of discharge passed after the framing of the charge and order retrial — High Court was not barred by plea of autrefois acquit under S. 403(1) — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 239 to 249 and 401 & 300. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. State of Maharashtra, (1979) 2 SCC 179: 1979 SCC (Cri) 405: AIR 1979 SC 94: 1979 Cri LJ 41.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, O. Chinnappa Reddy and A.P. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1978]

Followed in Bharat Parikh v. CBI, (2008) 10 SCC 109: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 609

[8437] — S. 253(2) — Prima facie case — Discharge under S. 253(2), CrPC, not proper — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 447/379 and 428/34

Where a prima facie case is made out regarding alleged criminal trespass, etc. discharge of the accused person by bringing in a discussion of title to property is improper. Mahant Abhey Dass v. S. Gurdial Singh, (1972) 4 SCC (N) 44: 1971 SCC (Cri) 244: AIR 1971 SC 834: 1971 Cri LJ 691.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P.Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1971]

[8438] — S. 253(2) — Scope and power under section — Chief Presidency Magistrate issuing summons against accused persons under Ss. 337 and 338, r/w S. 114 of IPC — Complainant conceding that no offence made out — Complaints withdrawn subsequently — Magistrate discharging all accused under S. 253(2) — Action justified

After the concession of the counsel for the complainant and the categorical finding of the learned Judge that no offence under Ss. 337 and 338, IPC, is made out and that an investigation is to be made only in respect of an offence under S. 336, IPC, it is idle to expect the Magistrate to ignore these clear directions and proceed with the trial again for an offence under Ss. 337 and 338, IPC, as if nothing has happened.

Assuming that the Chief Presidency Magistrate has still to proceed with the trial for offences under Ss. 337 and 338, IPC, it is no doubt true that he has to follow the warrant case procedure. Even under such circumstances, the Magistrate has got ample jurisdiction to discharge the accused under S. 253(2), CrPC, S. 253 deals with the discharge of accused.

Sub-section (2) of S. 253, CrPC, gives ample jurisdiction to the Magistrate to discharge an accused in the circumstances mentioned therein and the order of discharge can be passed at any previous stage of the case. Sub-section (1), under those circumstances, will not operate as a bar to the exercise of jurisdiction by the Magistrate under sub-section (2). It is under sub-section (2) of S. 253 that the Magistrate has discharged the accused. He has given good reasons in the order for discharging the accused.

There is no controversy that at the material time, the Sen Commission was inquiring into the identical matter which was the subject of the criminal complaint. Under those circumstances, it cannot be said that the discharge of the accused by the Magistrate is either illegal or not justified.

Even on the basis that the inquiry has to proceed for an offence under S. 336, IPC, the position will be that the summons case procedure will have to be followed. Cricket Assn. of Bengal v. State of W.B., (1971) 3 SCC 239: 1971 SCC (Cri) 446: AIR 1971 SC 1925: 1971 Cri LJ 1432.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1971]

[8439] — S. 253(2) — Second complaint — Entertained in exceptional circumstances — Held, not an abuse of the process of the Court. Mohan Lal Ganguly v. Jayanarayan Chaudhury, Cri. A. No. 24 of 1967

[Date of decision: 12-12-1968]

— S. 254 See Ss. 210 and 254

See also Ss. 251, 251-A, 252, 253 and 254

See also Ss. 252 to 258

[8440] — Ss. 254, 438 and 439 — Magistrate's order framing charges under S. 254 when not open to interference by High Court in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under S. 439 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 246(1) and 401

The Magistrate on consideration of evidence formed an opinion that there was ground for presuming that the accused had committed an offence triable by him and accordingly framed a charge under S. 254, CrPC, 1898 against him in each of four matters. Four revisional applications filed under S. 435 of the Code by the accused against the Magistrate's order framing the charges were rejected by the Sessions Judge. However, in one of the revisional applications the Sessions Judge formed the opinion that the Magistrate's order was not legal and proper and made a report to the High Court under S. 438. The High Court in an elaborate judgment allowed the applications, accepted the opinion of the Sessions Judge and quashed the charge framed against the accused.

Allowing the State's special leave appeals Supreme Court,

Held :

Since the Magistrate had formed the opinion that there were grounds to presume that the accused had committed the offence and since it cannot be said that the prosecution was false, frivolous or vexatious or one which was by way of abuse of the process of law, the High Court should not have quashed the charge in exercise of the revisional and reference powers. State of U.P. v. Man Mohan, (1986) 2 SCC 587: 1986 SCC (Cri) 214: AIR 1986 SC 1652: 1986 Cri LJ 1245.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.P. Thakkar and G.L. Oza, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1986]

Man Mohan v. State of U.P., 1975 Cri LJ 1241 (All), reversed

— S. 254-A See Ss. 253, 254-A & 258 and 439 & 403

— S. 255 See Ss. 252 to 258

— S. 256 See also Ss. 252 to 258

[8441] — S. 256 — Defence cannot rely in the Supreme Court on evidence not produced in the lower courts

It was the bounden duty of the appellant if he wanted to prove his defence to adduce evidence in support of his contentions and if he did not do so, he had only to thank himself for it. The prosecution could not be blamed for that lacuna and if both the courts below went on the record as it stood and came to the conclusion, finding it as a fact, that the prosecution had established its case, it could not be urged, as was sought to be done in the judgment delivered by the learned Chief Justice in the petition for leave to appeal to this Court, that that evidence, if forthcoming, would have demolished the case of the prosecution. Haripada Dey v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 757, 760: 1956 SCR 639, 643: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 65: 1957 ALJ 70.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-9-1956]

[8442] — S. 256 — Written statement by accused cannot be filed before the Sessions Court. Sidheswar Ganguly v. State of W.B., AIR 1958 SC 143: 1958 SCR 749: 1958 Cri LJ 273.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-10-1957]

See also (1965) 2 SCR 235: AIR 1966 SC 97

[8443] — S. 256(1) — Opportunity to defend — Denied to the accused — Conviction cannot be sustained

Where the accused has been denied the fullest opportunity to defend himself or in other words where a conviction has been arrived at without affording opportunity to the defence to lead whatever evidence it wanted to produce, conviction cannot be sustained. Habeeb Mohd. v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 51: 1954 SCR 475: 1954 Cri LJ 338.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1953]

[8444] — S. 256(2) — Written statement by accused — There is no general rule that the written statement should not receive Court's attention on the ground that it is likely to have been influenced by legal advice

In many cases, the accused person would prefer to file a written statement and give a connected answer to the questions raised by the prosecution evidence. Indeed, S. 256(2) of the CrPC, provides that if an accused person puts in a written statement, the Magistrate shall file it with the record. If the written statement is filed after a long delay and contains pleas which can otherwise be legitimately regarded as matters of after-thought, that no doubt would affect the value of the pleas taken in the written statement. But it would not be possible to lay down a general rule that the written statement filed by an accused person should not receive the attention of the Court because it is likely to have been influenced by legal advice. Such a distrust of legal advice would be entirely unjustified.

Where the written statement filed by the accused is an elaborate document and it gives the version of the appellant in great detail, the appellant at the very commencement of the proceedings gave a list of 328 witnesses and called for a large number of documents, the witnesses examined and some of the documents produced, tend to show that the appellant had received information at the relevant time which supported his plea that the allegation made by him appeared to him to be true, the allegations made in the written statement could not be dismissed as not more than an after-thought. Harbhajan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1966 SC 97: (1965) 2 SCR 235: 1966 Cri LJ 82.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and Raghubar Dayal and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-1965]

— S. 257 See also Ss. 252 to 258

[8445] — S. 257 — Accused's application to summon defence witnesses — When may be refused — Hyderabad Criminal Procedure Code, 1313 F, S. 216

Accused's application to summon defence witnesses may be refused on the ground of it being made for the purpose of vexation or delay or for defeating the ends of justice.

Held :

On facts that the ground did not exist in the case. Habeeb Mohd. v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 51: 1954 SCR 475: 1954 Cri LJ 338.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1953]

[8446] — S. 257 — Court declining to issue process for examination of witnesses — Effect of

The evidence on record may tend to establish a strong case against the accused. But that is a case which they are entitled to rebut and if any documents would furnish good material for rebutting that case, the Court, by declining to issue process for the examination of the witnesses connected with those documents would deprive the accused of an opportunity of rebutting it. They cannot be convicted without an opportunity being given to them to present their evidence, and that having been denied to them, there has been no fair trial, and this conviction cannot stand. The result may be unfortunate. But it is essential that rules of procedure designated to ensure justice should be scrupulously followed, and Courts should be jealous in seeing that there is no breach of them. Ronald Wood Mathams v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 455: (1955) 1 SCR 216: 1954 Cri LJ 1161.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1954]

[8447] — S. 257 — Power of court to decline to summon a witness after recording reasons therefor — Refusal to summon a witness and police diary — Whether an illegality

It was open to the trial Court to decline to summon a witness after recording its reasons for the refusal.

There is no legal infirmity made out and certainly no failure of justice is shown from the record. Kishan v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 3 SCC 35: 1970 SCC (Cri) 385.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1970]

[8448] — Ss. 257 and 510 — Report of Public Analyst — Application of accused to summon Public Analyst for cross-examination — Refusal of — Conviction based on report — Legality — Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954, S. 13

It will be open to the party against whom certificates which are declared to be sufficient evidence either to rebut the facts stated therein by his own or other evidence or to require the expert to be produced for cross-examination which prayer the Court is bound to consider on merits in granting or rejecting it. There is no presumption that the contents are true or correct though such a certificate is evidence without formal proof. In any case, where there is evidence to the contra, the Court is bound to consider that evidence along with such a certificate with or without the evidence of the expert who gave it being called and having come to his own conclusion. The certificate under S. 13(3) of the Act supersedes the Public Analyst's certificate and is conclusive and final under sub-section (5). But nothing contained in these sub-sections relating to certificate of the Director of the Central Food Laboratory in any way limits the right of the accused under S. 257, CrPC to require the Public Analyst to be produced. The Court may reject the prayer for good and sufficient reasons. Ram Dayal v. Municipal Corpn. of Delhi, (1969) 3 SCC 35: AIR 1970 SC 366: 1970 Cri LJ 515.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1969]

[8449] — S. 257(1) — Reported destruction of important documents required by accused — Procedure open to accused

Where important documents required by the accused are reported to be destroyed or not available, curious though it may be, held, the Court is not called upon to make investigation into the question whether the replies from different officers as to what documents were destroyed or were not available were correct or not. It was open to the Counsel for the accused whenever any such report came, to challenge the statement and at that stage the Court might have been in a position to ask the prosecution to support their replies by affidavits or otherwise. Habeeb Mohd. v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 51: 1954 SCR 475: 1954 Cri LJ 338.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1953]

— S. 258 See Ss. 252 to 258

See also Ss. 253, 254-A & 258 and 439 & 403

[8450] — Ss. 258, 419, 410 and 423 — Maintainability of joint appeal by State against order of acquittal against several persons in a joint trial — Bombay High Court Appellate Side Rules, 1960, Ch. XXVI — R. 6

Section 419, CrPC, does not prohibit a joint appeal from an order of acquittal. Nor are Ss. 258, 410 and 423 CrPC a bar. State of Gujarat v. Ramprakash P. Puri, (1969) 3 SCC 156: 1970 SCC (Cri) 29.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Ramaswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1969]

[8451] — S. 258 — Wrongful acquittal — High Court ordering retrial — Upheld. Matukdhari Singh v. Janardan Prasad, AIR 1966 SC 356: (1966) 1 SCR 255: 1966 Cri LJ 307.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-7-1965]

[8452] — S. 258(1) — Accused found not guilty of offence charged with — Acquittal necessary to be recorded

Once a charge is framed and the accused is found not guilty of that charge an acquittal must be recorded under S. 258(1), Criminal Procedure Code. There is no option in this matter. Harihar Chakravarty v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 266: 1954 Cri LJ 724.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1953]

— S. 259 See Ss. 247 and 259

— S. 267 See Ss. 439, 561-A, 526 & 267

[8453] — S. 268 — Nature of Jury

In substance it may be said that the jury forms part of the Court which tries the accused while the assessors only aid the Court in its trial of the accused. This distinction appears to be clearly brought out by the very language used in S. 268, CrPC. Notwithstanding this fundamental difference it cannot be doubted that the participation of the assessors in the trial as prescribed by law, is an essential feature of the trial in Courts of Sessions for certain offences, and that a trial in violation of the substance of the procedure so prescribed is an illegal trial. Prem Nath v. State of Delhi, AIR 1956 SC 4, 7: 1956 Cri LJ 121.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, N.H. Bhagwati and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-1953]

[8454] — S. 269 — Jury trial under the Code — Scope of — Its revocation — Method of — Notification denying to certain individuals the right to be tried by jury while retaining that right in the case of other individuals who have committed the same or similar offences — Validity of Section 269(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure is an enabling section and empowers the State Government to direct that the trial of all offences or of any particular class of offences before any Court of Sessions shall be by jury. It has the further power to revoke or alter such on order. There is nothing wrong if the State discontinues trial by jury in any district with regard to all or any particular class of offences, but the question is whether it can direct that the trial of a particular case or of a particular accused shall be in the Court of Sessions by jury while in respect of other cases involving the same offence the trial shall be by means of assessors. The section does not empower the State Government to direct that trial of a particular case or of a particular accused person shall be by jury while the trial of other persons accused of the same offence shall not be by jury. It does not take notice of individual accused or of individual cases. It only speaks of offences or of a particular class of offences, and does not direct its attention to particular cases or classes of cases and it does not envisage that persons accused of the same offence but involved in different cases can be tried by the Court of Sessions by a different procedure, namely, some of them by jury and some of them with the help of assessors.

The ambit of the power of revocation or alteration is co-extensive with the power conferred by the opening words of the section and cannot go beyond those words. In exercise of the power of revocation also the State Government cannot pick out a particular case or set of cases and revoke the notification qua these cases only and leave cases or other persons charged with the same offence triable by the Court of Sessions by jury.

Where the notification denies to certain individuals the right to be tried by jury while retaining that right in the case of other individuals who have committed the same or similar offences and in this respect it travels beyond the power conferred on the State Government by S. 269(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and is thus void and inoperative. Further the notification is also bad as contravening Art. 14 of the Constitution. Dhirendra Kumar v. Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Govt. of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 424: (1955) 1 SCR 224: (1954) 2 MLJ 128: 1954 Cri LJ 1036.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1954]

— S. 270-A See Ss. 162, 270-A and 510

— S. 271 See also Ss. 207-A and 271

[8455] — Ss. 271 and 537 — Charge framed by the Magistrate not read over and explained to the accused in sessions trial — Defect is curable under S. 537 if no prejudice is caused to the accused. Banwari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1198: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 180: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 278, 283.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1962]

[8456] — Ss. 278(g) and 297 — Jury trial — Two of five jurors not having sufficient knowledge of English — Large number of documents relied upon in English — Held, a case of mistrial

The effect of incompetence of a juror is to deny to the accused an essential part of protection accorded to him by law and the result of trial where some jurors did not know sufficient English was a clear miscarriage of justice.

When the jury had returned a unanimous verdict of not guilty or the objection was for the first time raised in the High Court, the trial will be nonetheless bad because the question of prejudice does not arise, because the fact that some jurors did not know English was not a mere irregularity but it was a case of "mistrial". The conviction should therefore be set aside. Kapil Deo Shukla v. State of U.P., AIR 1958 SC 121: 1958 SCR 640: 1958 Cri LJ 262, 265.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1957]

[8457] — Ss. 284 and 285 — Scope and applicability — A, B and C summoned for appointment as assessors at the date of commencement of the trial — A and B appeared and C absented — Court chose A, B and D as assessors — D though on list of assessors was not summoned — Trial held on 22-3-1952 with A, B and D as assessors — On June 6, 1952 trial held with A, B, and E (a new person) as assessors — On June 23, 1952 trial again held with A, B and E as assessors — On June 27, 1953 trial held with A, B, D and E as assessors — Later trial daily held with A, B, D, and E as assessors — All these four assessors gave their opinion — Held, trial not held in accordance with the procedure laid down in the Code and hence illegal, inasmuch as the Court was not empowered to substitute E for D on 6-6-1962 and permit the trial with E as assessor on subsequent dates and take the opinion of all the four assessors. Magga v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1953 SC 174: 1953 SCR 973: 1953 Cri LJ 892.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1953]

[8458] — Ss. 284 and 285 — Scope and interpretation — Effect of the sections is that a trial cannot be validly commenced with less than three assessors validly chosen in accordance with the sections — Once validly commenced the trial can be continued to a finish even if only some of the persons originally appointed as assessors attend throughout — Addition in the number of assessors or change or substitution in the personnel of assessors not permissible by the Code — Procedure prescribed in S. 285(2) is mandatory. Magga v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1953 SC 174: 1953 SCR 973: 1953 Cri LJ 892.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1953]

(Sections repealed by Act 26 of 1955)

— S. 285 See also Ss. 284 and 285

[8459] — S. 285 — Scope and interpretation — Court not ascertaining before proceeding further with the trial whether an appointed assessor who was absent due to sufficient cause and whether it was practicable to enforce his attendance — Omission curable under S. 537 CrPC. Magga v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1953 SC 174: 1953 SCR 973: 1953 Cri LJ 892.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1953]

(Section repealed by Act 26 to 1955)

— S. 286 See Ss. 208, 252 and 286

See also Ss. 244 and 286

[8460] — S. 286 — Prosecution — Non-examination of a very material witness — Effect — Criminal Trial — Prosecution

The non-examination of a very material witness would give rise to an inference that, if examined, he would not have supported the prosecution evidence. Khatri Hemraj Amulakh v. State of Gujarat, (1972) 3 SCC 671: 1972 SCC (Cri) 715: AIR 1972 SC 922: 1972 Cri LJ 626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1972]

[8461] — S. 286 — Application by prosecution that witness has been won over — Not conclusive

The mere presentation of an application to the effect that a witness had been won over was not conclusive of the question that the witness had been won over. State of U.P. v. Jaggo, (1971) 2 SCC 42: 1971 SCC (Cri) 401: AIR 1971 SC 1586: 1971 Cri LJ 1173.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1971]

[8462] — S. 286 — Calling of witnesses by prosecution

Witnesses essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution is based, must, of course, be called by prosecution. (Seneviratne v. King, AIR 1936 PC 289.)

The test whether a witness is material for the present purpose is not whether he would have given evidence in support of the defence. The test is whether he is a witness "essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution is based". Whether a witness is so essential or not would depend on whether he could speak to any part of the prosecution case or whether the evidence led disclosed that he was so situated that he would have been able to give evidence of the facts on which the prosecution relied. It is not however that the prosecution is bound to call all witnesses who may have seen the occurrence and so duplicate the evidence. But apart from this, the prosecution should call all material witnesses. Narain v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 484, 487: 1959 Supp (1) SCR 724: 61 Punj LR 509: 1959 Cri LJ 537.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1958]

[8463] — S. 286 — Discretion of prosecution in the production of witnesses — Nature and extent of — Non-production of a witness not an eyewitness — Inference — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 114, Ill(g)

It is not as if every witness who has something to do with some part of the prosecution story should pass through the witness-box. There is a discretion in the public prosecutor to pick and choose but to be fair to the Court and to truth. If 'D' were essential to unfold the prosecution story and had been suspiciously suppressed from the Court, the Court would and should have drawn an adverse inference but in the circumstances 'D' does not seem to be an eyewitness to the actual attack and his absence from the witness-box is not, therefore, fatal to the prosecution. No sinister motive can be imputed to his not being examined. Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033: AIR 1973 SC 2622: 1973 Cri LJ 1783.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, H.R. Khanna and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1973]

[8464] — S. 286 — Examination of all prosecution witnesses

It is no doubt very important that, as a general rule, all Crown witnesses should be called to testify at the hearing of a prosecution, but important as it is, there is no obligation compelling counsel for the prosecution to call all witnesses who speak to facts which the Crown desire to prove. Ultimately it is a matter for the discretion of Counsel for the prosecution and though a Court ought, and no doubt will, take into consideration the absence of witnesses whose testimony would be expected, it must adjudge the evidence as a whole and arrive at its conclusion accordingly taking into consideration the persuasiveness of the testimony given in the light of such criticism as may be levelled at the absence of possible witnesses. (Malak Khan v. Emperor, AIR 1946 PC 16). Abdul Gani v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 31: 1954 Cri LJ 323.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1952]

[8465] — S. 286 — Failure of investigating officer to take prompt action — No adverse inference against accused

The defence of the accused before the trial Judge was that while he was working in his field the deceased with one other person started plying a tractor in the same field. On his protests the deceased fired a shot from a gun described as carbine. The gun developed a defect immediately after the first shot was fired, whereupon the deceased hit the accused by the butt end of the gun. The Investigating Officer took the gun and cartridges etc. in his possession 11 days after the incident, with the result that it could not be sent to the ballistic expert in time to find out the correctness or otherwise of the allegation that the gun had become defective. On these facts the High Court drew an adverse inference against the defence for not getting the gun examined for any alleged defect. Held, it was the duty of the prosecution in the circumstances of the case to have taken the carbine and cartridges, etc., into custody and to have obtained the opinion of the ballistic expert on material points. This not having been done no adverse inference could have been drawn from the omission on the part of the defence to get the carbine tested for any alleged defect in it. Tarachand v. State of Haryana, (1971) 2 SCC 579: 1971 SCC (Cri) 593: AIR 1971 SC 1891: 1971 Cri LJ 1411.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-7-1971]

[8466] — S. 286 — Failure to examine material witnesses — Right and duty of prosecution — Material witness — Meaning of

Although it is the duty of the prosecution to examine all material witnesses essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution is based, whether in the result the effect of that testimony is for or against the case of the prosecution, but there may exist peculiar circumstances in which the non-examination of such witnesses will have no adverse effect, for instance, where such witnesses have filed affidavits before the committing Magistrate that they had not seen the incident and it would serve no purpose to insist on the prosecution examining them as witnesses. Similarly, the non-examination of a witness whose evidence would not carry the matters further would not affect the evidence of other witnesses. Where the evidence of a witness is not essential to the unfolding of the prosecution case, he cannot be considered to be a material witness. (Paras 23 and 24). State of U.P. v. Iftikhar Khan, (1973) 1 SCC 512: 1973 SCC (Cri) 384: AIR 1973 SC 863: (1973) 3 SCR 328: 1973 Cri LJ 636.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-1-1973]

[8467] — S. 286 — Non-examination by prosecution of those witnesses who came to the spot of the crime or saw the incident from a distance — No oblique motive suggested for such lapse by prosecution — Held, failure of prosecution not material

The prosecution had examined the best informed witnesses whose evidence was necessary to unfold the narrative and to establish the identity of the victim's assailant and the manner in which the victim was assaulted. It was not necessary for it to examine all those persons, who had come to the spot at one stage or the other, or who had seen the occurrence from a distance. There is nothing on the record to suggest that the production of those witnesses was withheld by the prosecution from any oblique motive. So there is no infirmity in the prosecution case. Bhagwan Tana Patil v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 3 SCC 536: 1974 SCC (Cri) 11: AIR 1974 SC 21: 1974 Cri LJ 145.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1973]

[8468] — S. 286 — Non-production of material witness by prosecution

It is true that all the witnesses of the prosecution need not be called but it is important to notice that the witness whose evidence is essential to the "unfolding of the narrative" should be called whether the effect of his testimony is for or against the case for the prosecution. Failure to examine such a witness might affect a fair trial. Presentation of an application to the effect that a witness had been won over was not conclusive to the question that the witness had been won over. In such a case the witness could have been produced for cross-examination by the accused which would have elicited correct facts. State of U.P. v. Jaggo, (1971) 2 SCC 42: 1971 SCC (Cri) 401: AIR 1971 SC 1586: 1971 Cri LJ 1173.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1971]

[8469] — S. 286 — Non-production of witness mentioned in dying declaration — That he was won over accepted

The non-production of 'S' who is stated in the dying declaration and in the statement of PW 12 to have witnessed the occurrence was commented upon by counsel as a very serious omission. The Public Prosecutor stated at the trial that he was giving up 'S' as he had been won over. Therefore, if produced, 'S' would have been no better than a suborned witness. He was not a witness "essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution was based" and if examined the result would have been confusion, because the prosecution would have automatically proceeded to discredit him by cross-examination. No oblique reason for his non-production was alleged, least of all proved. There was therefore no obligation on the part of the prosecution to examine his witness. Bakhshish Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 904, 907: 1958 SCR 409, 417: 1957 Cri LJ 1459.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-1957]

[8470] — S. 286 — Production of witnesses not mentioned in FIR and non-production of witness mentioned — Inference — Former witnesses were not present at the scene of occurrence. State of U.P. v. Jaggo, (1971) 2 SCC 42: 1971 SCC (Cri) 401: AIR 1971 SC 1586: 1971 Cri LJ 1173.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1971]

[8471] — S. 286 — Prosecution duty to produce all material witnesses

If a material witness has been deliberately or unfairly kept back, then a serious reflection is cast on the propriety of the trial itself and the validity of the conviction resulting from it may be open to challenge. Narain v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 484, 487: 1959 Supp (1) SCR 724: 61 Punj LR 509: 1959 Cri LJ 537.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1958]

[8472] — S. 286 — Prosecution not bound to call all the witnesses — Choosing of witnesses — Adverse inference when to be drawn

It is no doubt, true that the prosecution is bound to produce witnesses who are essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution is based. Apart from that, it cannot be laid down as a rule that if a large number of persons are present at the time of the occurrence, the prosecution is bound to call and examine each and every one of these persons. The answer to the question as to what is the effect of the non-examination of a particular witness would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. In case enough number of witnesses have been examined with regard to the actual occurrence and their evidence is reliable and sufficient to base the conviction of the accused thereon, the prosecution may well decide to refrain from examining the other witnesses. Likewise, if any of the witnesses is won over by the accused party and as such is not likely to state the truth, the prosecution would have a valid ground for not examining him in court. The prosecution would not, however, be justified in not examining a witness on the ground that his evidence even though not untrue would go in favour of the accused. It is as much the duty of the prosecutor as of the Court to ensure that full and material facts are brought on the record so that there may be no miscarriage of justice. The discharge of such a duty cannot be affected by the consideration that some of the facts if brought on the record would be favourable to the accused. In case the Court finds that the prosecution has not examined witnesses for reasons not tenable or not proper, the Court would be justified in drawing an inference adverse to the prosecution. Ram Prasad v. State of U.P., (1974) 3 SCC 388: 1973 SCC (Cri) 953: AIR 1973 SC 2673: 1973 Cri LJ 1807: (1974) 1 SCR 650.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-1973]

[8473] — S. 286 — Prosecution not bound to produce all the evidence when best evidence available.

Aftab Ahmad Khan v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 436: (1955) 1 SCR 588: 1954 Cri LJ 1155.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1954]

[8474] — S. 286 — Selection of witnesses from among the eyewitnesses

The duty of the prosecutor is to assist the Court in reaching a proper conclusion in regard to the case which is brought before it for trial. It is no doubt open to the prosecutor not to examine witnesses who, in his opinion, have not witnessed the incident, but, normally he ought to examine all the eyewitnesses in support of his case. It may be that a large number of persons have witnessed the incident, it would be open to the prosecutor to make a selection of those witnesses, but the selection must be made fairly and honestly and not with a view to suppress inconvenient witnesses from the witness-box. If at the trial it is shown that persons who had witnessed the incident have been deliberately kept back, the Court may draw an inference against the prosecution and may, in a proper case, regard the failure of the prosecutor to examine the said witnesses as constituting a serious infirmity in the proof of the prosecution case. In such a case if the ends of justice require, the Court may even examine such witnesses by exercising its powers under S. 540. Darya Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328, 333: (1964) 3 SCR 397, 408: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 350.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1963]

See also (1968) 3 SCR 774: AIR 1968 SC 1402 (1407): 1968 Cri LJ 1655

[8475] — S. 286 — Witness if won over need not be called

If the prosecutor honestly and bona fide believes that some of his witnesses have been won over, it would be unreasonable to insist that he must tender such witnesses before the Court. It is undoubtedly the duty of the prosecution to lay before the Court all material evidence available to it which is necessary for unfolding its case; but it would be unsound to lay down as a general rule that every witness must be examined even though his evidence may not be very material or even if it is known that he has been won over or terrorised. In such a case, it is always open to examine such witnesses as their witnesses and the Court can also call such witnesses in the box in the interest of justice under S. 540, CrPC. Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202, 209: (1964) 8 SCR 133, 144: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1964]

[8476] — S. 286(2) — Non-examination of non-material witness by prosecution, held, inconsequential — CrPC, 1973, S. 231.

Boya Ganganna v. State of A.P., (1976) 1 SCC 584: 1976 SCC (Cri) 102: AIR 1976 SC 1541: 1976 Cri LJ 1158.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-11-1975]

[8477] — S. 286(2) — Prosecution not producing witnesses won over by opposite party — It would be unreasonable to insist tendering such witnesses before Court — CrPC, 1973, S. 231

It is undoubtedly the duty of the prosecution to lay before the Court all material evidence available to it which is necessary for unfolding its case, but it would be unsound to lay down as a general rule that every witness must be examined even though his evidence may not be very material or even if it is known that he has been won over or terrorized. Bava Haji Hamsa v. State of Kerala, (1974) 4 SCC 479: 1974 SCC (Cri) 515: AIR 1974 SC 902: 1974 Cri LJ 755.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg, Y.V. Chandrachud and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-2-1974]

[8478] — S. 287 — Charge to Jury — Charge not amounting to a complete misdescription of the whole bearing of the evidence or any failure of justice — There is no misdirection

There is nothing in the Judge's charge to the jury which would, to use the words of Their Lordships of the Privy Council, "amount to a complete misdescription of the whole bearing of the evidence" or that "there is any failure of justice". The charge was therefore, not grossly unfair or contained any serious misdirection or non-direction such as to vitiate the verdict of the jury. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

— S. 288 See also Ss. 33 and 288

[8479] — S. 288 — Tendering of a witness for cross-examination without there being any examination-in-chief not permissible — It amounts to giving up of the witness — Even under old Code recourse to such a practice was inconsistent with S. 138, Evidence Act — Under new CrPC recording of evidence in committal proceedings having been dispensed with, tendering of witness for cross-examination only no more relevant or available — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 138. Sukhwant Singh v. State of Punjab, (1995) 3 SCC 367: 1995 SCC (Cri) 524: AIR 1995 SC 1601: (1995) 2 An LT(Cri) 201.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1995]

Veera Koravan v. Emperor, AIR 1929 Mad 906: ILR 53 Mad 69; Sadeppa Gireppa Mutgi v. Emperor, AIR 1942 Bom 37: ILR 1942 Bom 115; Emperor v. Kasamalli Mirzalli, AIR 1942 Bom 71: ILR 1942 Bom 384; Kesar Singh v. State, AIR 1954 Punj 286: 56 Cri LJ 86; Dhirendra Nath v. State, AIR 1952 Cal 621: 53 Cri LJ 1427; Chhota Singh Hira Singh v. State, AIR 1964 Punj 120: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 350; Thazhathethil Hamsa v. State of Kerala, AIR 1967 Ker 16: 1967 Cri LJ 73; Manzurul Haque v. State of Bihar, AIR 1958 Pat 422: 1958 Cri LJ 931, approved

State of U.P. v. Jaggo, (1971) 2 SCC 42: 1971 SCC (Cri) 401: AIR 1971 SC 1586, explained and distinguished

[8480] — S. 288 — S. 145, Evidence Act, 1872 — Relative Scope and applicability

There is no reason why S. 145 should be excluded when S. 288 of Criminal Procedure Code states that the previous statements are to be "subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act". Section 145 falls fairly and squarely within the plain meaning of these words. It is a fair and proper provision and is in accord with the sense of fair play to which courts are accustomed. On giving effect to the plain meaning of these words, the evidence in the Committal Court cannot be used in the Sessions Court unless the witness is confronted with his previous statement as required by S. 145. If the prosecution wishes to use the previous testimony to the contrary as substantive evidence, then it must confront the witness with those parts of it which are to be used for the purpose of contradicting him. Then only can the matter be brought in as substantive evidence under S. 288, CrPC. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441, 446: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8481] — S. 288 — Witness turning hostile in trial court — His statement before committing court being on record under S. 288 — No objection by the defence counsel on the ground of inadmissibility of evidence — Objection, whether can be raised in appeal — Compliance of the provisions of S. 145, Evidence Act — How far. State of Rajasthan v. Kartar Singh, (1970) 2 SCC 61: 1970 SCC (Cri) 297: AIR 1970 SC 1305: 1970 Cri LJ 1144.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1970]

[8482] — S. 288 — Admissibility of evidence given in committing Court where accused resiled from it in the Sessions Court — Held, can be relied upon where there are cogent reasons and intrinsic circumstances supporting the inference that the statement made before the committing Court was true and correct. State of U.P. v. Boota Singh, (1979) 1 SCC 31: 1979 SCC (Cri) 115: AIR 1978 SC 1770: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 290: (1979) 1 SCR 298: 1978 ALJ 1156.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-8-1978]

[8483] — S. 288 — Evidence given at preliminary enquiry — Admissibility — Statement of a witness recorded at preliminary enquiry not transferred specifically to the record of sessions trial — The accused examined about the statement and told that the statement was marked under S. 288 — Technical requirements not complied with — No prejudice caused to the accused — Statement rightly used as substantive evidence

There is no order specifying the transfer of the statement of the witness recorded at the time of preliminary hearing to the record of Sessions Court under S. 288. It is highly desirable that the Court should, before the transfer of the earlier statement to the record of the Sessions case under S. 288 indicate in a brief order why the earlier deposition was being transferred to the record of the trial. This will make it quite clear to the accused that the earlier statement is likely to be used as substantive evidence against him. However, the accused was questioned with reference to the statement of the solitary eyewitness made before the committing Magistrate which, the Judge informed him, was marked under S. 288 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and he was asked what he had to say about it. Therefore, although the technical requirement of the section, namely, that an order should be passed to indicate that the statement is transferred so as to be read as substantive evidence, was not complied with, there does not appear to be any substantial departure from the requirements of the law. There is also no likelihood of any prejudice to the accused since he was informed, while he was being examined that the statement was being used under S. 288, Criminal Procedure Code, and was invited to say what he wished to say in defence. The High Court and the Court below were, therefore, right in using the statement as substantive evidence which undoubtedly the Code of Criminal Procedure does allow. Periyasami v. State of Madras, AIR 1967 SC 1027: (1967) 2 SCR 122: 1967 Cri LJ 975, 77.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1966]

[8484] — S. 288 — Evidentiary value of — Witness resiling from his statement of the committal Court — Evidence accepted under S. 288 — Satisfaction of the evidence being true and reliable necessary — Unsatisfactory evidence not to be relied without corroboration

Where a person has made two contradictory statements on oath it is plainly unsafe to rely implicitly on his evidence. In other words, before one decides to accept the evidence brought in under S. 288 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as true and reliable one has to be satisfied that this is really so. In most cases this satisfaction can come only if there is such support in extrinsic evidence as to give a reasonable indication that not only what is said about the occurrence in general but also what is said against the particular accused sought to be implicated in the crime is true. If there be a case and there is such infinite variety in facts and circumstances of the cases coming before the Courts that it cannot be dogmatically said that there can never be such a case where even without such extrinsic support the Judge of facts, after bearing in mind the intrinsic weakness of the evidence, in that two different statements on oath have been made, is satisfied that the evidence is true and can be safely relied upon, the Judge will be failing in his duty not to do so. Again, witness resiling from her statement on oath given for the committing Magistrate in the Court of Sessions. Her previous statement admitted in evidence under S. 288, CrPC. The statement so admitted not satisfactory because it left many points unexplained.

Held: such statement admitted in evidence under S. 288, CrPC should not be accepted in the absence of corroboration. Sharnappa Mutyappa Halke v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 1357: (1964) 4 SCR 589: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 359, 361: 66 Bom LR 250.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1963]

[8485] — S. 288 — Previous statement of witness made in committal court not transferred to the Sessions record — Held, could not be used as substantive evidence in the case. Jit Singh v. State of Punjab, (1976) 2 SCC 836: 1976 SCC (Cri) 341: AIR 1976 SC 1421: 1976 Cri LJ 1162.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1976]

[8486] — S. 288 — Prosecution witnesses making statements before committing court and later retracting — Can be treated as substantive evidence by Sessions Court under S. 288. Har Prasad v. State of M.P., (1971) 3 SCC 455: 1971 SCC (Cri) 703: AIR 1971 SC 1450: 1971 Cri LJ 1135.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-4-1971]

[8487] — S. 288 — Witness making two inconsistent statements — Normally not reliable, but if court is satisfied about veracity of the earlier statement, it can act upon such testimony — While deposing before Sessions Court, witness resiling from his earlier statement made before committing court — But at the same time he admitting his earlier statement to be correct and not alleging that that statement was given under police pressure — Earlier statement corroborated by testimony of another witness as well as by recovery evidence and also believed to be true by the courts — In the circumstances held, Supreme Court will not reappraise that testimony in appeal by special leave — Constitution of India, Art. 139 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 155(3). Zile Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), 1980 Supp SCC 690: 1981 SCC (Cri) 622.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1979]

[8488] — S. 288 — Scope — Witness supporting the prosecution in the examination-in-chief and resiling in the cross-examination — During cross-examination by the prosecution he admitting to have made the statement under S. 161, CrPC — Judge relying on the statement under S. 161, CrPC — Held, not necessary to use the statement under S. 161, CrPC as substantive evidence — Evidence deemed to have been treated as corroboration of what was said in examination-in-chief

That statement cannot be used as substantive evidence unless S. 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code is called in aid. But even without S. 288 a court would be entitled to say in such a case, 'basing on the evidence in chief, which is substantive evidence', that what the witness said to the police or to the Committing Magistrate, is the true version, not because those statements form substantive evidence but because they tally with the evidence in chief which 'is' substantive. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 214: 1952 SCR 812: 1952 Cri LJ 1131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1952]

[8489] — S. 288 — Scope and applicability — The section can be used to make the former statement substantive evidence whether it is used to contradict what was said in the cross-examination or to corroborate what was said in the chief

The prosecution had a choice because of the two conflicting versions given in chief in cross-examination. It was entitled to use the former statement either to contradict what was said in cross-examination or to corroborate what was said in chief. In either event, S. 233 of the CrPC could be used to make the former statement substantive evidence because what the section says is "subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Art", and not subject to any particular section in it. Section 157 is as such a provision of the Indian Evidence Act as S. 145 and if the former statement can be brought in under S. 157 it can be transmuted into substantive evidence by the application of S. 288. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 214: 1952 SCR 812: 1952 Cri LJ 1131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1952]

[8490] — S. 288 — Sessions Court has discretion to use as substantive evidence a statement of witness recorded in committing court — Compliance with S. 145, Evidence Act, necessary. Ashok Kumar v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1977) 2 SCC 233: 1977 SCC (Cri) 303: AIR 1977 SC 1304: (1977) 3 SCR 143: 1977 Cri LJ 814.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-1977]

[8491] — S. 288 — Solitary witness resiling from his earlier statement — Evidentiary value

It is no doubt true that the evidence of a solitary witness who has resiled from his earlier statement has to be treated with caution but where there is other independent corroboration in the form of the first information report and the report of the ballistic expert to support his earlier statement, reliance can be placed on the earlier statement of such a witness. Bansilal v. State of Rajasthan, (1971) 3 SCC 203: 1971 SCC (Cri) 376: AIR 1971 SC 1116: 1971 Cri LJ 828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1971]

[8492] — S. 288 — Statement of a witness becomes substantive evidence, if it is read in extenso to the witness and the witness admits having made it in the committal Court — No need to read passage by passage — Procedure under, has to be followed where the witness makes a statement under S. 164 to which he sticks in the committal enquiry but from which he resiles in the Session Court — Statement of one witness under can corroborate that of another under — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 145

The statement under S. 164, CrPC has the endorsement of the Magistrate that it had been made by the witness. The mere fact that the police had reasons to suspect that the witness might be gained over and that it was expedient to have his statement recorded by the Magistrate, would not make the statement tainted. If the witness resiles from his statement made under Section 164, he can be cross-examined. But if he sticks to it before the committal enquiry and resiles from it in the Sessions Court, the procedure prescribed under S. 288, CrPC will have to be observed. It is for the Court to consider taking into account all the circumstances including the fact that the witness had resiled in coming to the conclusion as to whether the witness should be believed or not. The fact that the police had S. 164 statement recorded by the Magistrate, would not by itself make his evidence suspect.

Though the statements made under S. 164 is not evidence it is corroborative of what has been stated earlier in the committal Court. Therefore, the High Court was right in relying on the statement of the witnesses under S. 164 as corroborating their subsequent evidence before the committal Court.

The High Court was also right in observing that a statement recorded under S. 288 of one witness can corroborate the statement of another witness under S. 288 as such statements are treated as substantive evidence in law. Dhanabal v. State of T.N., (1980) 2 SCC 84: 1980 SCC (Cri) 340: AIR 1980 SC 628: 1980 Cri LJ 439: (1980) 17 ACC 115.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, P.S. Kailasam and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1979]

[8493] — S. 288 — Statement recorded in committal proceedings — Can be used in session trials — Evidence Act, 1872 — S. 145 — Whether excluded by S. 288, CrPC — Sessions trials

The other line of reasoning is that S. 288 makes no exception of any provision in the Evidence Act and therefore S. 145 cannot be excluded. As the section is one of the provisions of the Act, the statements are subject to its provisions as well. All that S. 288 does is to import into the law of Evidence Act, namely, to make a statement of this kind substantive evidence, but only when all the provisions of the Evidence Act have been duly complied with. Supreme Court sees no reason why S. 145, Evidence Act, should be excluded when S. 288 states that the previous statements are to be "subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act". Section 145 falls fairly and squarely within the plain meaning of these words. More than that, this is a fair and proper provision and is in accord with the sense of fairplay to which Courts are accustomed. Even the learned Judges who take the view consider for the most part that though it is not obligatory to confront a witness with his former statement when S. 288 is resorted to, it is always desirable that, that should be done if only for the reason that an omission to do so weakens the value of the testimony. The evidence in the committal Court cannot be used in the Sessions Court unless the witness is confronted with his previous statement as required by S. 145, Evidence Act.

If the prosecution wishes to go further and use the previous testimony to the contrary as substantive evidence, then it must, in my opinion, confront the witness with those parts of it which are to be used for the purpose of contradicting him. Then only can the matter be brought in as substantive evidence under S. 288. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8494] — Ss. 288 and 297 — Previous statement put to a witness in criminal trial — Its primary object is to contradict the witness — Judge telling jury that the previous contradictory evidence may help the defence to show that the witness is unreliable — Is statement of true legal position — S. 145 Evidence Act

It is clear that when a previous statement is put to a witness in cross-examination under S. 145 of the Indian Evidence Act, its primary purpose is to contradict the witness by reference to the evidence he gives at the trial, and so, it cannot be said that the learned Judge was wrong in law in telling the jury that the previous statement on which the defence relied may help the defence to contend that the girl was not a straightforward witness and was changing her story from time to time, but the said previous statement cannot be treated as substantive evidence at the trial. That is the true legal position and no grievance can be made against the charge for stating the said position in the terms adopted by the learned Session Judge. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696: (1964) 3 SCR 237: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534, 37.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

[8495] — Ss. 289 and 342 — Examination of accused — Question regarding the defence evidence — When to be put to the accused

Section 289 requires that if the trial Judge comes to the conclusion that there is evidence to show that the accused has committed the offence, then the accused should be called upon to enter upon his defence.

After putting the questions that are required to be put under S. 342, CrPC, the accused was asked whether he had any defence evidence. We do not think that that procedure in any way conflicts with S. 289, CrPC. Pati Ram v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 703.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1969]

[8496] — S. 290 — Right of the accused — Prosecution case not accepted — New prosecution case cannot be made to imperil defence

The core of prosecution case was that Brijlal and Nathu carried guns and were present at the busstand and that Nathu shouted that the enemies should be attacked and that Nathu fired the gun. This story of the prosecution was disbelieved by the trial court. If the pivot of the prosecution case is not accepted, a new prosecution case cannot be made to imperil defence. When those two persons are found both by the Sessions Court and the High Court not to have been present, the whole prosecution case changed colour and became unworthy of belief. Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (1971) 3 SCC 471: 1971 SCC (Cri) 719: AIR 1971 SC 1444: 1971 Cri LJ 1132.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1971]

— S. 297 See Ss. 154 and 297
See also Ss. 278(g) and 297
See also Ss. 288 and 297

[8497] — S. 297 — Charge to Jury — Duty of the Judge — To lay down the law and to sum up the evidence for the prosecution and defence. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

[8498] — S. 297 — Charge to Jury — Duty of the Judge — To lay down the law and to sum up the evidence for the prosecution and defence. Nagindra Bala Mitra v. Sunil Chandra Roy, AIR 1960 SC 706: (1960) 3 SCR 1: 1960 Cri LJ 1020.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], A.K. Sarkar[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1960]

[8499] — S. 297 — Judge to decide admissibility of evidence before letting it pass to the Jury. Sardul Singh v. State of Bombay, AIR 1957 SC 747, 760: 1958 SCR 161, 193: 60 Bom LR 691: 1957 Cri LJ 1325.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-5-1957]

[8500] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge admitting evidence inadmissible under S. 162 CrPC in his charge to Jury — That evidence being of minor nature — Verdict of jury is not vitiated on this ground and there is no misdirection. Nagindra Bala Mitra v. Sunil Chandra Roy, AIR 1960 SC 706: (1960) 3 SCR 1: 1960 Cri LJ 1020.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], A.K. Sarkar[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1960]

[8501] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge asking the Jury to take into consideration the probabilities of a case, where no definite evidence in connection with an incidental matter exists — Judge was justified in so doing and there was no misdirection. Purushottamdas Dalmia v. State of W.B., AIR 1961 SC 1589: (1962) 2 SCR 101: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 728, 32: (1961) 2 MLJ (SC) 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

[8502] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge expressing his opinion about the effects of certain pieces of evidence — Also stating that jury was not bound by his opinion — No misdirection. Purushottamdas Dalmia v. State of W.B., AIR 1961 SC 1589: (1962) 2 SCR 101: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 728, 32: (1961) 2 MLJ (SC) 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

[8503] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge indicating a possibility — Letter addressed to shop No. 16 giving correct locality while the correct No. of the shop was 19 — Letter not returned to Dead Letter Office — Postman expected to know the correct place of the addressee — Circumstances indicating that the letter delivered to the addressee — Judge expressing that the letter would have reached the addressee — No misdirection. Purushottamdas Dalmia v. State of W.B., AIR 1961 SC 1589: (1962) 2 SCR 101: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 728, 32: (1961) 2 MLJ (SC) 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

[8504] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge introducing a highly prejudicial document in charge to Jury — This amounted to misdirection causing prejudice to the accused. State of Bombay v. Rusy Mistry, AIR 1960 SC 391: 1960 Cri LJ 532.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1959]

[8505] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge not telling the Jury that the accused could be held guilty under S. 323, IPC instead of S. 325, IPC in case it was proved that a blow was given but it did not cause fracture — Omission does not amount to misdirection

The failure to direct the jury that it was open to them to return a verdict of guilty on a minor offence occasioned any failure of justice. If the eyewitnesses for the prosecution were believed, it would be undoubtedly a case under S. 325, Penal Code; if on the contrary, the eyewitnesses were not believed and the defence version was accepted that the victim sustained the injuries by a fall, then there would be no case even under S. 323, Indian Penal Code. Nagindra Bala Mitra v. Sunil Chandra Roy, AIR 1960 SC 706: (1960) 3 SCR 1: 1960 Cri LJ 1020.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], A.K. Sarkar[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1960]

[8506] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge telling the Jury that even if the endorsements were made by the proper departmental officer and they were ante-dated forgery would have been committed — Held, no misdirection. Purushottamdas Dalmia v. State of W.B., AIR 1961 SC 1589: (1962) 2 SCR 101: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 728, 32: (1961) 2 MLJ (SC) 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1961]

[8507] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Judge while dealing with S. 325, IPC described the meaning of word "voluntarily" as "of one's free will" and did not refer to S. 39, IPC — Lapse is minor and there was no failure of justice. Nagindra Bala Mitra v. Sunil Chandra Roy, AIR 1960 SC 706: (1960) 3 SCR 1: 1960 Cri LJ 1020.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], A.K. Sarkar[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1960]

[8508] — S. 297 — Misdirection — There is no misdirection where upon a general view the case has been fairly left within the jury's province — Appellate Court will interfere when something gross amounting to a complete misdescription of the evidence has happened. Nagindra Bala Mitra v. Sunil Chandra Roy, AIR 1960 SC 706: (1960) 3 SCR 1: 1960 Cri LJ 1020, 25, 26.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das[1], A.K. Sarkar[1] and M. Hidayatullah[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1960]

[8509] — S. 297 — Misdirection — Trial by Jury under Ss. 302 & 326 IPC — Defence of accident under S. 80, IPC — Charge to jury not explaining Ss. 304-A & 338, IPC — There is no misdirection. Shibraj Singh v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1173: 1959 Cri LJ 1488: 1960 All Cri R 28.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P.B. Gajendragadkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-4-1959]

[8510] — S. 297 — Misdirection and non-direction — Prosecution under S. 409, IPC — Judge telling the jury that the evidence about payment of the price for which the goods were disposed of is useless — Jury not told that it indicated absence of motive collapsing strongest part of the prosecution case — Amounts to non-direction. Shreekantiah Ramayya Munipalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 287: (1955) 1 SCR 1177: 1955 Cri LJ 857, 860.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1954]

[8511] — S. 297 — Misdirection to Jury — Judge asking the Jury to piece together the various pieces of a jigsaw puzzle by use of their ingenuity in the matter without reference to evidence of prosecution — Judge in the charge placing his own conjectures before the jury — Held, there was a misdirection. Mushtak Hussein v. State of Bombay, AIR 1953 SC 282: 1953 SCR 809: 1953 Cri LJ 1127.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1953]

[8512] — S. 297 — Trial by Jury — Appellant in order to succeed would have to establish that there were misdirections or non-directions in the charge. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

[8513] — Ss. 297, 298 and 299 — Charge to Jury — Judge cannot pronounce on the reliability of witnesses and thus usurp the function of the Jury. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696: (1964) 3 SCR 237: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

[8514] — Ss. 297, 298 and 299 — Misdirection — Age of prosecutrix in a case under S. 376, IPC — Judge, while explaining the ingredients of S. 376 telling the jury that prosecution had to prove that the prosecutrix was less than 16 years of age — Not telling this while discussing oral and expert evidence about the age — No misdirection. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696: (1964) 3 SCR 237: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534, 37.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

[8515] — Ss. 297, 423 and 537 — Misdirection to the Jury by admitting inadmissible evidence — Appellate Court should exclude the inadmissible evidence and consider whether the balance of evidence is sufficient to maintain the conviction. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

[8516] — Ss. 297 and 298 — Misdirection or non-direction — Legal concept underlying S. 34, IPC could have been expressed by the Judge in the charge to Jury in more lucid terms but no patent mistake — There is no misdirection or non-direction. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 43, 44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8517] — Ss. 297 and 537 — Misdirection — Judge admitting in evidence and including in the charge admissions not admissible under S. 160, CrPC — There is clear misdirection. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[8518] — Ss. 297 and 537(2) — Misdirection — Judge not reading to the Jury some letters effecting the credibility of witnesses and not telling them the said effect — Is misdirection affecting verdict. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[8519] — Ss. 297 and 537(b) — Misdirection — Judge telling the Jury that the question of grave and sudden provocation on the wife confessing to the accused as to her adultery is a question of fact to be decided by them — There is no misdirection. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[8520] — Ss. 297 and 537(b) — Misdirection — Judge telling the Jury to apple the rule of circumstantial evidence to extra-judicial confession — Is grave misdirection and correctness of the verdict is affected. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[8521] — Ss. 297 and 537(d) — Misdirection — Judge in charge to Jury mixing up the ingredients of the offence with exceptions in S. 80, IPC — Not placing the distinction in the matter of burden of proof between the ingredients of the offence and those of the exception — Omissions are grave — Amount to misdirection — Vitiates the verdict of jury. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[8522] — Ss. 297 and 537(d) — Misdirection — Meaning of — It is so when a judge tells the jury and is wrong, or misleads them or an omission to mention matters essential to the case — Effect of misdirection — Verdict to be set aside only when there is failure of justice. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

— S. 298 See Ss. 297 and 298

See also Ss. 297, 298 and 299

— S. 299 See Ss. 297, 298 and 299

[8523] — S. 302 — Dismissal of complaint — Magistrate's duty — Whether Magistrate is barred from going into merits of evidence — Whether Magistrate at the stage of issue of process should determine correctness of probabilities of individual evidence — Some facts discovered contrary to allegations in complaint — Whether demolishes the entire case

What the Magistrate has to determine at the stage of issue of process, is not the correctness or the probabilities or improbability of individual items of evidence on disputable grounds, but the existence or otherwise of a prima facie case, on the assumption that what was stated in the complaint could be true.

The Magistrate is not debarred at this stage, from going into the merits of the evidence produced by the complainant. But the object of such consideration of the merits of the case, at that stage, could only be to determine whether there are sufficient grounds for proceeding further or not.

The mere existence of some grounds which would be material in deciding whether the accused should be convicted or acquitted does not generally indicate that the case must necessarily fail. Such grounds may indicate the need for proceeding further in order to discover the truth after a full and proper investigation.

Whether the Magistrate dismissed the complaint, merely because one or two names of the former employees of the Company were mentioned in the pay sheets, this does not mean other fictitious payments were not made. The whole case cannot be held to have been demolished by that. D.N. Bhattacharjee v. State of W.B., (1972) 3 SCC 414: 1972 SCC (Cri) 564: AIR 1972 SC 1607: 1972 Cri LJ 1037.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1972]

— S. 305(3) See Ss. 307(1) and 305(3)

[8524] — S. 306 — Verdict of Jury — Causing disagreeable surprise to the Judge — Is no justification for characterising the verdict as perverse. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696: (1964) 3 SCR 237: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

[8525] — Ss. 306 and 307 — Disagreement with Jury — Scope of sections — In his charge to the jury the Judge indicating an opinion favourable to the accused — Jury returning verdict of guilty — It is desirable, but not imperative for the Judge to give reasons for accepting the verdict of the jury

It may be that in a case when the Judge in his charge to the jury has clearly and definitely expressed himself for acquittal, it would be very desirable, though not imperative, that he should give his reasons why he changed his view and accepted the verdict of jury. But where, as in this case, the Judge in his charge did not reject the prosecution evidence and arrived at a clear and categorical conclusion in his own mind that the appellant were not guilty, there is no basis for any such contention. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 43, 44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

— S. 307 See also Ss. 306 and 307

[8526] — S. 307 — Failure by High Courts to consider entire evidence — Supreme Court declining to do that — Case remanded — Proper for High Court to consider the entire evidence — Constitution of India, Art. 136. Ramyed Rai v. State of Bihar, AIR 1957 SC 373, 376: 1957 SCR 273: 1957 ALJ 470: 1957 Cri LJ 557.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1957]

[8527] — S. 307 — Reference in a case tried with the aid of Jury — Trial in which some of the offences are triable by assessors and some with the aid of jury — Whole case should not be referred under S. 307

The accused was prosecuted for offences under Ss. 409 and 477-A, Penal Code. The trial under S. 477-A was held with the aid of jury, while trial under S. 409, IPC was held with the aid of assessor. Both jury and assessor returned a verdict of not guilty. The Sessions Judge referred the case under S. 377-A, IPC to the High Court under S. 307, CrPC and himself convicted the accused under S. 409, IPC. The appellant appealed against his conviction under S. 409, IPC and the reference under S. 307, CrPC and appeals were heard together. It was argued that the Sessions Judge should have referred both the cases under S. 307, CrPC.

Held :

The only provision of law dealing with the matter of reference in the case of trial by jury is S. 307, CrPC. But that section applies in terms only to trials with the aid of jury. There is therefore no power in the Sessions Court to refer cases triable with the aid of assessor for decision of the High Court under that section. Therefore the Sessions Judge had contravened no provision of law, and had committed no illegality in deciding the case in so far as it related to the charge under S. 409 himself. Chandi Prasad Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 149: (1955) 2 SCR 1035: 1956 Cri LJ 322, 325: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 88: 1956 ALJ 153.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Vivian Bose and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1955]

[8528] — S. 307 — Reference in Jury trial — Scope — Evidence being such as would support the verdict of guilty or not guilty — Jury taking one view of evidence and Judge thinking that they should have taken other view — Jury's view to prevail — Reference not justified — High Court thinking that upon the evidence no reasonable body of men could reach the conclusions arrived at by the Jury — Reference will be justified and verdict of jury to be disregarded

In a reference under S. 307 of the Code of Criminal Procedure if the evidence is such that it can properly support a verdict of guilty or not guilty, according to the view taken of the evidence by the trial Court, and if the jury take one view of the evidence and the Judge is of the opinion that they should have taken the other, the view of the jury must prevail, for they are the judges of fact. In such a case reference under S. 307 of the CrPC is not justified. But if the High Court holds that upon the evidence no reasonable body of men could have reached the conclusion arrived at by the jury, the reference will be justified and the verdict of the jury will be disregarded. Sekendar Sheikh v. State of W.B., (1964) 1 SCR 852: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 733, 35.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-1963]

[8529] — S. 307 — Reference to High Court on disagreement with Jury — Scope — Charge to jury indicating Sessions Judge's opinion in favour of acquittal — Jury returning a verdict of guilty — Sessions Judge not bound to refer the case to the High Court under S. 307

Even assuming that the charge to the jury can be read as being indication of a definite opinion reached by the Sessions Judge in favour of the appellants, it does not follow that merely on that account he is obliged to make a reference under S. 307, CrPC. What is required under that section is not merely disagreement with the verdict of the jury but the additional factor that the Sessions Judge "is clearly of the opinion that it is necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case to the High Court". A Sessions Judge even if he disagrees with the verdict of the jury must normally give effect to that verdict unless he is prepared to hold the further and clear-opinion "that no reasonable body of men could have given the verdict which the jury did". Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 43, 44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8530] — S. 307 — Reference under the section — Powers and duties of High Court — High Court must consider the entire evidence and come to its own conclusions if the evidence was such that it could properly support the verdict of guilty against the accused — Opinion of jury should be accepted if it finds that the evidence was such that it could properly support the verdict of guilty even if the High Court thought that High Court should have taken another view — If High Court concluded that no reasonable body of men could have reached the conclusion arrived at by the jury the verdict should be disregarded

In a reference under S. 307, CrPC it was incumbent on the High Court when the reference was heard by it to consider the entire evidence and come to its own conclusion whether the evidence was such that it could properly support the verdict of guilty against the appellants. If the High Court came to the conclusion that the evidence was such that it was possible for the jury to take the view that it did even though the Judge thought that they should have taken another view the reference would not have been justified and the High Court should have accepted the opinion of jury. If the High Court was however of opinion upon the evidence that no reasonable body of men could have reached the conclusion arrived at by the jury the reference would have been quite justified and the ends of justice required that the verdict should be disregarded.

Where the High Court only considered the arguments in regard to the defect in the charge to the jury addressed before it by the learned Counsel for the appellants did not consider the entire evidence which was on the record before it violated the provisions of S. 307(3), CrPC. Ramyed Rai v. State of Bihar, AIR 1957 SC 373: 1957 SCR 273: 1957 ALJ 470: 1957 Cri LJ 557.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1957]

[8531] — S. 307 — References under S. 307, CrPC — Correct method of approach in — Underlying principle — Jury's verdict — Interference with — When justified

The proper method of approach in the matters of reference under S. 307, CrPC is that the High Court will only interfere with the verdict of the jury if it finds the verdict "perverse in the sense of being unreasonable", "manifestly wrong" or "against the weight of evidence".

The section was intended to guard the danger that the introduction of trial by jury in the Mofussil would be experimental, and might lead to miscarriages of justice through jurors, in their ignorance and inexperience, returning erroneous verdicts, and not to enable the Sessions Judge and the High Court to deprive jurors, acting properly within their powers, of the right to determine the facts conferred upon them by the Code.

If the facts and circumstances of the case are such that a reasonable body of men could arrive at the one conclusion or the other, it is not competent to the Sessions Judge or the High Court to substitute their verdict in place of the verdict which has been given by the jury. The jury are the sole judges of the facts and it is the right of the accused to have the benefit of the verdict of the jury. Even if the Sessions Judge or the High Court would if left to themselves have arrived at a different verdict it is not competent to the Sessions Judge to make a reference nor the High Court to accept the same and substitute their own verdict for the verdict of the jury provided the verdict was such as could be arrived at by a reasonable body of men on the facts and circumstances of the case. Akhlakali Hayatalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1954 SC 173: 1954 SCR 435: 1954 Cri LJ 451.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-12-1953]

[8532] — Ss. 307(1) and 305(3) — Trial with assessors and by Jury

A trial with the aid of assessors differs from a trial by jury in two fundamental respects. The assessors are to give only their individual opinions and the Judge is not bound to conform to them, while the jury gives its combined verdict either unanimously or by a majority through its foreman and the Judge has no power to ask for the opinions of the individual jurors. He is normally bound to follow the verdict of the jury excepting where he adopts the course allowed to him under Ss. 305(3) and (4) or S. 307(1), CrPC. Prem Nath v. State of Delhi, AIR 1956 SC 4, 7: 1956 Cri LJ 121.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, N.H. Bhagwati and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-1953]

[8533] — S. 307(2) — Reference to High Court — Trial Judge accepting a part of jury's verdict of not guilty and passing an order of acquittal and disagreeing with a part of verdict of guilty and making a reference under S. 307 — Reference violates sub-section (2) and is illegal

The case to be submitted to the High Court is the whole case against the accused and not a part of it. This appears to us to be clearly the effect of the provisions of Ss. 306 and 307 when read together. Section 307(2) specifically prohibits the Judge, when he considers it necessary to submit the case by way of reference to the High Court, from recording any judgment of acquittal or of conviction on any of the charges on which the accused had been tried. This prohibition is mandatory and a judge, who records a judgment of acquittal or of conviction on any of the charges on which the accused had been tried contravenes the provisions of S. 307(2) and the judgment so recorded is illegal. The Judge's action in recording a judgment is not a mere irregularity. Sashi Mohan Debnath v. State of W.B., AIR 1958 SC 194: 1958 SCR 962: 1958 Cri LJ 303, 306, 30.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1957]

— S. 307(3) See also Ss. 418 and 307(3)

[8534] — S. 307(3) — Power of the High Court to interfere in a reference under S. 307 — High Court not to disregard the verdict of jury on questions of fact

Ordinarily, jury's verdict on questions of fact would not easily be disregarded by the High Court because the basic principle of a trial by jury is that the jury are masters of fact. The verdict of the jury would not be reversed by the High Court merely because it disagreed with it. If the High Court, after considering the entire evidence, came to the conclusion that no reasonable body of men could have reached the conclusion arrived at by the jury, then the High Court would be entitled to disregard the verdict. Sashi Mohan Debnath v. State of W.B., AIR 1958 SC 194: 1958 SCR 962: 1958 Cri LJ 303, 306, 30.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1957]

[8535] — S. 307(3) — Reference to the High Court illegal — The High Court is not competent to deal with it under sub-section (3) of S. 307

Before the High Court could exercise the powers conferred on it under S. 307(3) it was necessary that the reference under S. 307 should have been according to law. This was, in our opinion, a condition precedent to the exercise of such power by the High Court. The words "with the case so submitted" make it quite clear that a reference under S. 307(1) must be of the whole case against the accused and not a part of it. In order that the High Court may be in a position to properly exercise its powers under S. 307(3), it was necessary for it to consider the entire evidence in the case, which obviously it could not do if the trial Judge had already recorded a judgment. By recording a judgment the trial Judge prevents the High Court from properly exercising its powers under S. 307(3) as the reference made thereafter is not of the entire case with respect to the accused. Indeed, in the present case the Judge having accepted the jury's verdict and having recorded a judgment of acquittal under Ss. 304/149, Indian Penal Code, in the case of each accused, took it out of the hands of the High Court to deal with the case of each accused with reference to the other charges framed against him. Sashi Mohan Debnath v. State of W.B., AIR 1958 SC 194: 1958 SCR 962: 1958 Cri LJ 303, 306, 30.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1957]

[8536] — Ss. 307(3), 418 and 423 — Scope — High Court's power under S. 307(3) — Is wider than the power under S. 418 — There is essential difference between High Court's power to dispose of appeal against order of acquittal or conviction in jury trial and a case submitted by Sessions Judge under S. 307 — High Court's power under S. 307(3) in different — Circumstances summarized

There is an essential difference between the scope of the jurisdiction of the High Court in disposing of an appeal against a conviction or acquittal, as the case may be, in a jury trial and that in a case submitted by the Sessions Judge when he differs from the verdict of the jury: in the former the acceptance of the verdict of the jury by the Sessions Judge, is considered to be sufficient guarantee against its perversity and therefore an appeal is provided only on questions of law, whereas in the latter the absence of such agreement necessitated the conferment of a larger power on the High Court in the matter of interfering with the verdict of the jury.

The Legislature designedly conferred in larger power on the High Court under S. 307(3) of the Code than that conferred under S. 418 thereof, as in the former case the Sessions Judge differs from the jury while in the latter he agrees with the jury.

The competency of a reference made by a Sessions Judge depends upon the existence of two conditions, namely: (i) that he disagrees with the verdict of the jurors, and (ii) that he is clearly of the opinion that the verdict is one which no reasonable body of men could have reached on the evidence; after reaching that opinion, in the case submitted by him he shall record the grounds of his opinion. If the case submitted shows that the conditions have not been complied with or that the reasons for the opinion are not recorded, the High Court may reject the reference as incompetent: the High Court can also reject it if the Sessions Judge has contravened sub-section (2) of S. 307. If the case submitted shows that the Sessions Judge has disagreed with the verdict of the jury and that he is clearly of the opinion that no reasonable body of men could have reached the conclusion arrived at by the jury, and he discloses his reasons for the opinion, sub-section (3) of S. 307 of the Code comes into play, and thereafter the High Court has an obligation to discharge its duty imposed thereunder. Under sub-section (3) of S. 307 of the Code the High Court has to consider the entire evidence and after giving due weight to the opinions of the Sessions Judge and the jury, acquit or convict the accused. The High Court may deal with the reference in two ways, namely: (i) if there are misdirections vitiating the verdict, it may, after going into the entire evidence, disregard the verdict of the jury and come to its own conclusion and (ii) even if there are no misdirections, the High Court can interfere with the verdict of the jury if it finds the verdict "perverse in the sense of being unreasonable", "manifestly wrong", or "against the weight of evidence", or in other words, if the verdict is such that no reasonable body of men could have reached on the evidence. In the disposal of the said reference, the High Court can exercise any of the procedural powers appropriate to the occasion, such as issuing of notice, calling for records, remanding the case, ordering a retail, etc. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521. Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

[8537] — S. 309 — Object and Scope — Number of offences committed — Taking opinion on each charge

The requirement as to the opinion of the assessors having to be taken on all the charges on which the accused has been tried was specifically inserted in S. 309 by amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code in the year 1923. Prior to this amendment the Court was merely enjoined, at the conclusion of the trial, to require each of the assessors to state his opinion orally and to record such opinions. Even this requirement, reasonably construed could certainly indicate the ascertainment of the opinion in respect of all the charges, for that is the only intelligible way of ascertaining their opinion on the entire case.

Where, however, a joint trial in respect of a number of offences is held under circumstances falling under S. 235 or 239, CrPC, that is, where the various acts constituting the offences form one transaction or are committed in the course of the same transaction, the position may conceivably be different.

In such a case the truth or the falsity of one portion of the prosecution case may well have a reasonable bearing on the other. The non-ascertainment of the opinion of the assessors on all such charges which form an integrally connected portion of the transaction may cause prejudice. Consistent opinions of an individual assessor on all such interconnected charges are likely to carry greater weight with the Judge. On the other hand, if the individual opinions so expressed, appear to be somewhat contradictory to each other, it may be the duty of the Judge to exercise his powers of questioning under S. 309, CrPC, and to ascertain the real opinions.

In such a case, if a judge acts on the opinion expressed on a portion of the case covered only by one of the charges without the benefit of the opinions on the other integrally connected charges, it may well turn out that he has not had the benefit of the real opinion in respect of the material charge upon which he convicts. In view of these considerations, the legal position appears to be as follows.

The not taking of the opinion of the assessors in respect of all the charges for which the accused was tried is certainly a grave violation of an imperative provision of the Code.

A conviction in respect of a charge on which the opinion of the assessors was not at all taken would be clearly illegal. But whether the conviction in respect of any other charge for which he was jointly tried but in respect of which the opinion was in fact taken is bad or not, would depend on the facts of each case. The question in each case would be whether there is reason to think that the not taking of the opinion in respect of the other charges was likely to have prejudiced a consideration of the charge in respect of which the opinion was taken.

In a case where the charges are so inter-connected that the truth or otherwise of the one would reasonably react on the truth or otherwise of the other, such prejudice has to be presumed and the conviction would be illegal. Prem Nath v. State of Delhi, AIR 1956 SC 4, 8, 9: 1956 Cri LJ 121.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, N.H. Bhagwati and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-1953]

[8538] — S. 309(2) — Opinion of assessor not binding on the Sessions Judge — This cannot mean that the Judge is entitled to ignore the very existence of the assessors

The provision in the Code that the opinion of the assessor is not binding on the Sessions Judge cannot lend support to the contention that the Sessions Judge is entitled to ignore their very existence. As already pointed out, though he may not be bound to accept their opinions, he is certainly bound to take them into consideration. The weight to be attached to such opinions may well vary with the number of assessors. Magga v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1953 SC 174: 1953 SCR 973: 1953 Cri LJ 892.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1953]

[8539] — S. 310 — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 75 & 303 — Distinction

Per majority

There is a distinction between the conviction of a person under S. 310, CrPC and a person being under a sentence of imprisonment under S. 303, IPC. The conviction by a court may be followed either by the sentence being remitted under the provisions of the Code or the sentence may have been served out. In such cases though the person concerned could still be spoken of as having been convicted, he cannot be said to be under a sentence. Under S. 310, CrPC also it is enough that the person concerned has been earlier convicted. It is not necessary that the sentence should be in force. But under S. 303, IPC the person's sentence must be in force if the person is to be dealt with for a subsequent offence of murder under that section. If the previous sentence of life imprisonment had been remitted or had been served out when the subsequent murder was committed, S. 303, will not apply. Section 75, IPC and S. 310 of the Code of Criminal Procedure deal with persons with previous conviction — the previous sentence need not necessarily be in force when the subsequent offence is committed. It could be clear that the latter section is intended to be applicable only to cases to which S. 75 of the Penal Code applies. Section 75, IPC will be applicable as often as the necessity arises and in respect of any of the offences subsequently, whereas S. 303 of the Penal Code will be applicable only in one circumstance, that is, of the accused committing murder while he is under sentence of imprisonment and not any other offence either. S. 303 is like a proviso to S. 302. Pratap v. State of U.P., (1973) 3 SCC 690: 1973 SCC (Cri) 496: AIR 1973 SC 786: 1973 Cri LJ 565.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami[1], C.A. Vaidialingam[1] and I.D. Dua[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1972]

[8540] — S. 326 — Confirmation of death sentence — High Court's power in proceedings of — High Court must consider the evidence carefully and record its conclusions clearly — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302

In dealing with confirmation cases, the High Court should consider the evidence carefully and record its conclusions clearly after dealing with all the points urged before it by the counsel for the defence. Judicial approach both at the trial and in appeal has to be careful and thorough and so it is of utmost importance that no room should be left for any legitimate complaint by the defence that important points were argued before the High Court and were not considered by it. Gurcharan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 340: (1963) 3 SCR 585: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 323.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-1962]

[8541] — S. 336 — Trial — Even on the basis that the inquiry has to proceed for an offence under S. 336, IPC, the position will be that the summons case procedure will have to be followed. Cricket Assn. of Bengal v. State of W.B., (1971) 3 SCC 239: 1971 SCC (Cri) 446: AIR 1971 SC 1925: 1971 Cri LJ 1432.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1971]

—S. 337 See Ss. 225, 233, 337 and 537(b)
See also Ss. 435, 337 and 338
See also Ss. 529(g), 337 and 338
See also Ss. 537, 236 and 337
See also Ss. 540, 337 and 338

[8542] — S. 337 — Discretionary power unguided — Exception — Held valid — Accomplice evidence — Constitution of India — Art. 14

Unrestrained power of selection without guidelines offends Art. 14. But the case of the accomplice evidence is different. Section 337 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has already been held not to offend Art. 14 and the matter of taking accomplice evidence outside S. 337 by using S. 494 or otherwise is not very different. Laxmipat Choraria v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 938: (1968) 2 SCR 624: 1968 Cri LJ 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[8543] — S. 337 — Amendment of — Not retrospective

The amendment to S. 337 of the Code, which came into effect in January, 1956, spoke of an offence punishable with imprisonment which may extend to seven years, but this amendment could have no application to a pardon tendered on 1-12-1955. Kanta Prashad v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1958 SC 350, 352: 1958 SCR 1218: 1958 Cri LJ 698.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1958]

[8544] — S. 337 — Approver not admitting any active participation in the crime but admitting to be a privy to or an abettor in the commission of the offence — S. 337, held, not violated — CrPC, 1973, S. 306. Maghar Singh v. State of Punjab, (1975) 4 SCC 234: 1975 SCC (Cri) 479: AIR 1975 SC 1320: 1975 Cri LJ 1102.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-4-1975]

[8545] — S. 337 — Approver's evidence — Approver's statement that the accused called the deceased, both went together and thereafter the deceased was not seen alive corroborated — Jury entitled to rely for concluding that the circumstances connected or tended to connect the accused with the crime. Jnanendra Nath Ghose v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1199: (1960) 1 SCR 126: 1959 Cri LJ 1492, 94, 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1959]

[8546] — S. 337 — Approver's evidence — Corroboration — Approver's evidence that while committing murder the accused received injuries corroborated by medical evidence — Jury entitled to accept this evidence as sufficient corroboration in material particulars connecting or tending to connect the accused with the crime. Jnanendra Nath Ghose v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1199: (1960) 1 SCR 126: 1959 Cri LJ 1492, 94, 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1959]

[8547] — S. 337 — Approver's evidence — Must be corroborated in material particulars — Such corroboration must be concerning the crime and approver's story connecting the accused with crime

The moment there is corroborative evidence which connects or tends to connect an accused with the crime such corroborative evidence relates to the identity of the accused in connection with that crime. It is the approver's evidence which is the direct evidence of the crime. There should be corroboration in material particulars not only concerning the crime but corroboration of the approver's story by evidence which connects or tends to connect an accused with the crime. It is this corroborative evidence which determines the mind of the Court or a jury that the approver's evidence that the accused committed the crime is true. Jnanendra Nath Ghose v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1199: (1960) 1 SCR 126: 1959 Cri LJ 1492, 94, 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1959]

[8548] — S. 337 — Approver's evidence — Reliability of — Must be shown that he is a reliable witness

The approver's evidence must show that he is a reliable witness and that is the test which is common to all witnesses. Jnanendra Nath Ghose v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1199: (1960) 1 SCR 126: 1959 Cri LJ 1492, 94, 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1959]

[8549] — S. 337 — Pardon to an approver — Tender of, by District Magistrate in a case triable by Special Judge under Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952 — Is valid and legal

The provisions of S. 337, CrPC enable a District Magistrate inter alia, to tender a pardon in the case of any offence triable exclusively by the High Court or a Court of Sessions. Although a Special Judge is a court constituted under the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, yet for the purposes of the Code of Criminal Procedure and that Act, it is a Court of Sessions. Accordingly although the offence was triable exclusively by the Court of Special Judge the District Magistrate had authority to tender a pardon under S. 337, CrPC as the Court of Special Judge was, in law, a Court of Sessions.

The District Magistrate is empowered to tender a pardon even after a commitment if the Court so directs. Under S. 8(2) of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952 the Special Judge has also been granted power to tender pardon. The conferment of this power on the Special Judge in no way deprives the District Magistrate of his power to grant a pardon under S. 337 of the Code. Kanta Prashad v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1958 SC 350: 1958 SCR 1218: 1958 Cri LJ 698.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1958]

[8550] — S. 337 — Taking accomplice evidence outside S. 337 by using S. 494 does not offend Art. 14. Laxmipat Choraria v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 938: (1968) 2 SCR 624: 1968 Cri LJ 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[8551] — Ss. 337 and 338 — Power of District Magistrate to tender pardon after commitment — Inquiry Magistrate or trial Magistrate refusing to tender pardon

The powers conferred on the District Magistrate and the other Magistrates under S. 337 are concurrent, and that a District Magistrate, even after commitment, has power to tender pardon. The proviso to S. 337(1) makes it clear that the District Magistrate, in addition to the Magistrate referred to therein, has power to tender pardon during inquiry into or trial of the offence. As the power conferred by sub-section (1) of S. 337 on the different classes of Magistrates is concurrent and is of the same character, it follows that the power to tender pardon can be exercised by every one of the authorities mentioned therein subject to the limitations specified in the section itself. The mere fact that a Magistrate of the First Class enquiring into the offence has declined to grant pardon, does not take away the power or jurisdiction of the District Magistrate to entertain a further application for grant of pardon. Though the District Magistrate has got power to consider a further application, he should have due regard to the views expressed by the Magistrate for refusing to grant pardon, because judicial propriety requires that if a higher authority had declined to tender pardon, a lower authority should not grant pardon except on fresh facts. Even if pardon has been refused on one occasion, a further request may be made before the same Magistrate or the District Magistrate if fresh or additional facts are placed by the party concerned. State of U.P. v. Kailash Nath Agarwal, (1973) 1 SCC 751: 1973 SCC (Cri) 698: AIR 1973 SC 2210: 1973 Cri LJ 1196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1973]

[8552] — Ss. 337 and 339 — Tender of pardon to approver — Examination of approver in committing court as well as in trial court mandatory even if he resiles from his earlier statement or does not make full and true disclosure of facts within his knowledge — However, his examination not necessary if Public Prosecutor certifies that he is wilfully concealing facts or giving false evidence contrary to condition of pardon — State cannot withdraw nor can approver cast away the pardon granted to him — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 306 and 308

The power to grant pardon carries with it the right to impose a condition limiting the operation of such a pardon. Hence a pardoning power can attach any condition, precedent or subsequent so long as it is not illegal, immoral or impossible of performance. Section 306 clearly enjoins that the approver who was granted pardon had to comply with the condition of making a full and true disclosure of the whole of the circumstances within his knowledge relative to the offence and to every other concerned whether as principal or abettor, in the commission thereof. It is because of this mandate, the State cannot withdraw the pardon from the approver nor the approver can cast away the pardon granted to him till he is examined as a witness by the prosecution both in the Committing Court as well as in the trial court. The approver may have resiled from the statement made before the Magistrate in the Committing Court and may not have complied with the condition on which pardon was granted to him, still the prosecution has to examine him as a witness in the trial court. It is only when the Public Prosecutor certifies that the approver has not complied with the conditions on which the tender was made by wilfully concealing anything essential or by giving false evidence, he may be tried under S. 308 of the Code of Criminal Procedure not only for the offence in respect of which pardon was granted but also in respect of other offences. In these circumstances, the question of casting away the pardon granted to an approver and his claim not to be examined by the prosecution as a witness before the trial court is without any substance. State (Delhi Admn.) v. Jagjit Singh, 1989 Supp (2) SCC 770: 1990 SCC (Cri) 133: AIR 1989 SC 598: 1989 Cri LJ 986.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.C. Ray and N.D. Ojha, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1988]

Arusami Goundan, In re, AIR 1959 Mad 274: ILR 1954 Mad 320: 1959 Cri LJ 852, explained

Emperor v. Shahdino Dhaniparto, AIR 1940 Sind 114: 41 Cri LJ 747, approved

[8553] — Ss. 337 and 339(1) — Tender of pardon to an accomplice — Effect if the pardon tendered is not accepted by the accomplice — S. 339(1) does not apply and the accomplice can be tried with the other accused irrespective of the provisions of S. 339(1)

One of the appellants made a confessional statement. At the request of the police he was also tendered pardon under S. 337, CrPC, but he did not accept the pardon and stated before the trial Court that he made the confessional statement as he had been assaulted by the police and that he did not want to become an approver. After the completion of the enquiry he with two others was committed to the Court of Session. Before the Supreme Court it was contended that the trial was vitiated because provisions of S. 339 were not complied with.

The provisions of sub-section (1) of S. 339, CrPC clearly presuppose that the pardon which had been tendered to a person had been accepted by him and that thereafter that person had wilfully concealed anything essential or had given false evidence and therefore had not complied with the conditions on which the tender was made to him. Sub-section (2) of S. 337 requires that every person who has accepted a tender shall be examined as a witness in the Court of the Magistrate taking cognizance of the offence and in the subsequent trial, if any. A mere tender of pardon, therefore does not attract the provisions of S. 339. There must be an acceptance of it and the person who has accepted the pardon must be examined as a witness. It is thereafter that S. 339 comes into play and the person who accepted the pardon may be tried for the offence in respect of which the pardon was granted, if the Public Prosecutor certifies that in his opinion he has either wilfully concealed anything essential or had given false evidence and had not complied with the conditions on which the tender was made. Provisions of S. 339 can only come into operation if there is in existence an effective pardon under S. 337.

On the facts of the case there was no valid pardon and hence S. 339 did not apply, the confessing accused could be tried with others and the trial was not vitiated. Bipin Behari Sarkar v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 13: 1959 SCR 1324: 1959 Cri LJ 102.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, S.K. Das and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1958]

[8554] — Ss. 337 and 342 — Tender of pardon — Whether presumption of discharge arises — Formal order of release — Whether necessary

Where the accused admitted before the District Magistrate that the confessional statement made by him at Bombay, a copy of which was read over to him, was voluntarily made by him and that he accepted it as true statement of all that transpired in connection with the conspiracy and also about the murder and disposal of the dead body of the deceased and the District Magistrate thereupon passed the order that it was a fit case for tendering pardon to him under S. 337(1) of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Held :

That the objection that the tender of pardon was illegal in the absence of a formal order releasing the accused was never raised before the Courts below. Apart from this there was no merit in this objection. The moment the pardon was tendered to the accused he must be presumed to have been discharged whereupon he ceased to be an accused and became a witness. A.J. Peiris v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 616: 1954 Cri LJ 1638.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

[8555] — Ss. 337 and 343 — Accomplice testimony — Prohibitions against use of

The only prohibition against the use of accomplice testimony exists in the rule of caution about corroboration and the interdiction of influence in any form by S. 343 of the Code. Laxmipat Choraria v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 938, 943: (1968) 2 SCR 624: 1968 Cri LJ 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[8556] — Ss. 337 and 494 — Accomplice evidence — Constitution of India — Art. 14

Unrestrained power of selection without guidelines offends Art. 14. But the case of the accomplice evidence is different. Section 337 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has already been held not to offend Art. 14 and the matter of taking accomplice evidence outside S. 337 by using S. 494 or otherwise is not very different. Laxmipat Choraria v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 938-947: (1968) 2 SCR 624: 1968 Cri LJ 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[8557] — S. 337 and S. 8(2), Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952 — Pardon to an accused — How to be granted by Special Judge

— Before granting pardon Judge must have material before him to show what the nature of approver's testimony is likely to be — When accused making a request directly to the Judge must refer the request to the prosecution — Power to be exercised only when the prosecution joins accused's request

To determine whether the accused's testimony as an approver is likely to advance the interest of justice, the Special Judge must have material before him to show what the nature of that testimony will be. Ordinarily it is for the prosecution to ask that a particular accused, out of several, may be tendered pardon. But even where the accused directly applies to the Special Judge he must first refer the request to the prosecuting agency. It is not for the Special Judge to enter the ring as a veritable director of prosecution. The power which the Special Judge exercises is not on his own behalf but on behalf of the prosecuting agency, and must, therefore, be exercised only when the prosecution joins in the request. Lt. Commander Pascal Fernandes v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 594: (1968) 1 SCR 695: 1968 Cri LJ 550, 554.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1967]

[8558] — S. 337(1) — Application for grant of pardon rejected — Fresh application, held, could only be entertained if new and additional facts were adduced — Pointing out the advantages to prosecution by grant of pardon, held, not sufficient. State of W.B. v. R.S. Adiseshan, (1979) 4 SCC 558: 1980 SCC (Cri) 127.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1978]

[8559] — S. 337(1) — Offences covered — Ss. 409 & 120-B, IPC are covered — Pardon can be tendered to an approver charged under these sections of IPC

Since the offence under S. 409 was not merely punishable with transportation for life but alternatively also punishable with imprisonment which could extend to 10 years, S. 337(1) would apply. This section does not expressly say that the only punishment provided for the offence should be imprisonment not exceeding 10 years. For these very reasons S. 337(1) would apply to an offence under S. 120-B, IPC also because the punishment for it is the same as that for the offence under S. 409 State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8560] — S. 337(1) — Pardon tendered to approver — Validity of — Is to be determined with reference to the offence alleged against the approver alone and not with reference to the offences for which his associates were convicted. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8561] — Ss. 337(1), 10(2), 529 and Sch. III, Part V, Entry 7(a) — Power to tender pardon — Additional District Magistrate means a District Magistrate occurring in proviso to S. 337(1) — Can grant pardon — Pardon thus granted bona fide — Is protected by S. 529

The power to grant pardon in a case pending before another Magistrate is no doubt conferred by the proviso only on the District Magistrate. But Entry 7(a) in Part V of Sch. III when it refers to the power of a District Magistrate under S. 337(1) does not exclude the power under the proviso. There is, therefore, no warrant for drawing a distinction between the powers of "the District Magistrate". The power of a District Magistrate to grant pardon has been specifically conferred on Additional District Magistrates as would appear from Sl. No. 37 of Sch. III of the Government Order. It is clear from the other part of the Government order that this refers to the Additional District Magistrate (Independent). This was and is being regarded as a direction of Government falling under S. 10(2), CrPC. In any view of the matter there is no doubt that the action of the Additional District Magistrate (Independent) in granting a pardon to the approver though it was pending enquiry before the District Magistrate (Judicial) was bona fide and a pardon granted bona fide is fully protected by S. 529, CrPC. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8562] — Ss. 337(1) and 339 — Scope and application of S. 337 — Offences under S. 5, Official Secrets Act, read with S. 120-B, IPC — S. 337(1) does not apply and pardon cannot be tendered

Pardon can only be tendered under S. 337(1) Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 with respect to the three categories of offences mentioned therein. An offence under S. 5 Official Secrets Act, read with S. 120-B, Penal Code does not fall within any of these categories. So if the proceedings were with respect only to an offence under S. 5 of the Official Secrets Act, read with S. 120-B of the IPC, S. 337 of the Criminal Procedure Code would not apply and no pardon could be tendered to any person. The person to whom pardon has been tendered cannot therefore be examined as an approver.

The words used in S. 339, Criminal Procedure Code are of no help in construing S. 337 in deciding whether a pardon could be tendered for an offence under S. 5, Official Secrets Act, read with S. 120-B, Indian Penal Code. State v. Hiralal Girdharilal Kothari, AIR 1960 SC 360: (1960) 2 SCR 355: 1960 Cri LJ 524, 27: 1960 All Cr R 133.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-1959]

[8563] — Ss. 337(1), proviso and 338 — Tender of pardon by District Magistrate after commitment — Validity — Respective scopes of sections

By S. 338, Criminal Procedure Code, power is no doubt given after the commitment to the Court to which the commitment is made to pardon person, before judgment is passed, to any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned with any offence or order the Committing Magistrate or the District Magistrate to tender the pardon. The section vests the Court to which commitment is made, with power to tender pardon or order the Committing Magistrate or the District Magistrate to tender pardon during the trial of the case but it does not take away the power conferred under the proviso to S. 337(1). The proviso appended to S. 337(1), CrPC contains an additional provision which empowers the District Magistrate to tender pardon where the offences are under inquiry or trial. Held :

On facts that the case was covered by the proviso to S. 337 and not by S. 338 CrPC and, therefore, the tender of pardon by the District Magistrate was valid. A.J. Peiris v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 616: 1954 Cri LJ 1638.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

[8564] — S. 337(2) — Approver's evidence — Credibility — Should be determined by applying the usual tests about credibility of witness — Principles to be applied explained

Section 337 itself shows that the motivating factor for an approver to turn, what in England is called "King's evidence" is the hope of pardon and not any noble sentiment like contrition at the evil in which he has participated. Whether the evidence of the approver should in any given case be accepted or not will have to be determined by applying the usual tests such as the probability of the truth of what he has deposed to, the circumstances in which he has come to give evidence whether he has made a full and complete disclosure, whether his evidence is merely self-exculpatory and so on and so fourth. The Court has, in addition, to ascertain whether his evidence has been corroborated sufficiently in material particulars. What is necessary to consider is whether applying all these tests the evidence of the approver should be acted upon.

While it must be shown that the approver is a witness of truth the evidence adduced in a case cannot be considered in compartments and that even for judging the credibility of the approver the evidence led to corroborate him in material particulars would be relevant for consideration. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696: (1964) 3 SCR 237: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

[8565] — S. 337(2-B) — Approver granted pardon — Charge-sheet against accused filed before Special Judge for offences under Ss. 161, 165 and 165-A, Indian Penal Code and S. 5(2), Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 — Proceeding cannot be quashed on the ground that charge-sheet should have been filed before Magistrate to enable accused to cross-examine the approver twice, once before Magistrate and a second time before Special Judge if the case is committed to him. Sardar Iqbal Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1977) 4 SCC 536: 1978 SCC (Cri) 1: AIR 1977 SC 2437: 1977 Cr LR (SC) 508: 1978 Cri LJ 192.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.C. Gupta and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-11-1977]

— S. 338 See Ss. 337 and 338
See also Ss. 337(1), proviso and 338
See also Ss. 435, 337 and 338
See also Ss. 529(g), 337 and 338
See also Ss. 540, 337 and 338

[8566] — S. 338 — Power to direct tender of pardon — Proceeding committed to the Court of Session — Held, only that court to which commitment is made can grant pardon to the approver — Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to direct the committing Magistrate or any other Magistrate to grant pardon — Sessions Judge not competent to make such direction even in exercise of power under S. 10(3) unless he himself is absent or unable to act and there is no Additional or Assistant Sessions Judge — Position under S. 338 CrPC, 1898 com- pared — Expression "trial" in S. 306(1), CrPC, 1973 — Meaning of — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 306, 307 and 10(3). A. Devendran v. State of T.N., (1997) 11 SCC 720: AIR 1998 SC 2821.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.B. Pattanaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-1997]

[8567] — S. 338 — Power of District Magistrate to tender pardon after commitment

The District Magistrate has power to grant pardon even after commitment, but if the Court of Session had declined to grant pardon, the District Magistrate will not on the same facts entertain an application for grant of pardon. State of U.P. v. Kailash Nath Agarwal, (1973) 1 SCC 751: 1973 SCC (Cri) 698: AIR 1973 SC 2210: 1973 Cri LJ 1196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1973]

[8568] — S. 338, 339 and 339-A — Special Judge's power to grant pardon under S. 8(2), 1952 Act — Not circumscribed by condition other than those detailed in the clause — Can be exercised at any time during the trial — Exercise of power possible without the request of prosecution and at the request of the accursed asking for pardon — Relation between S. 8(2) of 1952 Act and Ss. 338, 339 and 339-A CrPC detailed — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, S. 8(2)

The fiction in the latter part of S. 8(2) is only this that the tender of pardon is to be deemed to be one under S. 338 for purposes of applying Ss. 339 and 339-A. The whole of S. 338 is not applicable. The power to order the Committing Magistrate or the District Magistrate to tender pardon is not available to the Special Judge because the fiction does not cover that part of S. 338. Similarly, the opening words of S. 338 "at any time after the commitment" are inappropriate to trials before Special Judges because there is no commitment. It is obvious that the powers of the Special Judge commence only after he has taken cognizance of the case, and they are available to him throughout the trial.

The powers of the Special Judge are not circumscribed by any condition except one, namely, that the action must be with a view to obtaining the evidence of any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to an offence. The pardon so tendered is also a condition of his making a full and true disclosure of the whole circumstances within his knowledge relating to the offence and to every other person concerned, whether as principal or abettor. The disclosure must be complete as a himself and as to any other person concerned as principal or abettor. There is no provision for the recording of reasons for so doing. Nor is the Special Judge required to furnish a copy to the accused. There is no provision for recording a preliminary statement of the person.

Section 8(2) is enabling and its terms are wide enough to enable the Special Judge to tender a pardon to any person who is supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, an offence. This must necessarily include a person arraigned before him, But it may be possible to tender pardon to a person not so arraigned. The power so conferred can also be exercised at any time after the case is received for trial and before its conclusion. There is nothing in the language of the section to show that the Special Judge must be moved by the prosecution. He may consider an offer by an accused as in this case. Lt. Commander Pascal Fernandes v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 594, 597, 59: (1968) 1 SCR 695, 700: 1968 Cri LJ 550.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1967]

— S. 339 See Ss. 338, 339 and 339-A
See also Ss. 337 and 339
See also Ss. 337(1) and 339
— S. 339(1) See Ss. 337 and 339(1)
— S. 339-A See Ss. 338, 339 and 339-A

[8569] — S. 340 — Lawyer at State expense — Capital cases — Constitution of India — Art. 22 (1)

It cannot be laid down as a rule of law that in every capital case where the accused is unrepresented, the trial should be held to be vitiated. Besides a Court of appeal or revision is not powerless to interfere, if it is found that the accused was so handicapped for want of legal aid that the proceedings against him may be said to amount to negation of a fair trial. Janardhan Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1951 SC 217, 222: 1951 SCR 344, 357: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 736.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1951]

[8570] — S. 340 — Mandatory in nature — Expression "the court may engage counsel to defend the accused person" — Use of word "may" does not make it directory — Rule 37 of 1957 High Court Rules is not in conflict with S. 340, CrPC, 1898 — Counsel so appointed should be given sufficient time to prepare the defence — Sufficiency of time depends upon circumstances of each case — Rule is a "law" within the meaning of Art.

21 and hence its violation vitiates the conviction of an accused — Absence of prejudice to the accused in spite of non-compliance of the Rule will not validate the conviction — Allahabad High Court General Rules (Criminal), 1957, R. 37. Bashira v. State of U.P., AIR 1968 SC 1313, 1316-1: (1969) 1 SCR 32: 1968 Cri LJ 1495.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1968]

See also (1973) 3 SCC 690, 705

[8571] — S. 340 — Allahabad High Court General Rules (Criminal), 1957, R. 37 — Held, does not contravene S. 340, CrPC. Bashira v. State of U.P., AIR 1968 SC 1313, 1317: (1969) 1 SCR 32: 1968 Cri LJ 1495.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1968]

[8572] — S. 340 — Capital case — Whether representation by the lawyer necessary — Effect of — Hyderabad Criminal Procedure Code, 1313 F, S. 271

Section 271 of the Hyderabad CrPC corresponds to S. 340, CrPC. This provision must undoubtedly be construed liberally in favour of the accused and must be read along with the rules made by the High Courts and the Circular orders issued by them enjoining that where in capital cases the accused has no means to defend himself, a counsel should be provided to defend him. The proper view to be: (1) that it cannot be laid down as a rule of law that in every capital case where the accused is unrepresented, the trial should be held to be vitiated; and (2) that a Court of appeal or revision is not powerless to interfere, if it is found that the accused was so handicapped for want of legal aid that the proceedings against him may be said to amount to negation of a fair trial. Janardhan Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1951 SC 217: 1951 SCR 344: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 736.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1951]

[8573] — S. 340 — No right to legal counsel

Section 340, CrPC by itself, does not cast any duty on a court to provide a counsel at State expense even when the offence triable is punishable with death. Bashira v. State of U.P., AIR 1968 SC 1313, 1316: (1969) 1 SCR 32: 1968 Cri LJ 1495.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1968]

[8574] — S. 340 — Right to counsel in grave cases — Amicus curiae — Adequate opportunity and facility to be given to counsel to prepare defence — Constitution of India — Art. 22(1). Ranchod Mathur Wasawa v. State of Gujarat, (1974) 3 SCC 581: 1974 SCC (Cri) 59: AIR 1974 SC 1143: (1974) 2 SCR 72: 1974 Cri LJ 799.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-1973]

[8575] — S. 340 — Time for preparation to amicus curiae

No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to the time which must elapse between the appointment of the counsel and the beginning of the trial; but, on the circumstances of each case, the Court of Session must ensure that the time granted to the counsel is sufficient to prepare for the defence. Bashira v. State of U.P., AIR 1968 SC 1313, 1318: (1969) 1 SCR 32: 1968 Cri LJ 1495.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1968]

[8576] — S. 340(1) — Right of accused to be defended by a legal practitioner of his choice — Interference with — Effect — False criminal cases launched against lawyers appearing for defence — Attempt made by prosecution machinery to demoralise and scare the accused's senior counsel by scandalising his reputation and casting a slur on his character and conduct — On facts, held, defence lawyers could not perform their professional duty in a proper and dignified manner on account of hurdles created by the State machinery — It was bound to result in miscarriage of justice — Accused were seriously handicapped in defending themselves — CrPC, 1973, S. 303 — Constitution of India, Art. 22(1). Sri Jayendra Saraswathy Swamigal (II) v. State of T.N., (2005) 8 SCC 771.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur, J. [Date of decision: 26-10-2005]

[8577] — S. 340(1) — Ingredients of offence under — Duty of trial Court to act on evidence uninfluenced by opinions expressed in inquiry under S. 340(1) — Penal Code, 1860, S. 193. K. Karunakaran v. T.V. Eachara Warrier, (1978) 1 SCC 18: 1978 SCC (Cri) 32: AIR 1978 SC 290: 1978 Cri LJ 339: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 237.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and V.D. Tulzapurkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1977]

[8578] — S. 340(1) — Nature of right conferred under — Whether extends to a right to provide the accused with a lawyer

The right conferred by S. 340(1), CrPC does not extend to a right in an accused person to be provided with a lawyer by the State or by the Police or the Magistrate. That is a privilege given to him and it is his duty to ask for a lawyer if he wants to engage one or get his relations to engage one for him. The only duty cast on the Magistrate is to afford him necessary opportunity. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8579] — S. 340(1) — Lawyer not to be provided by State — Constitution of India — Art. 22(1)

It is the duty of the accused person to ask for a lawyer if he wants to engage one himself or get his relations engage one for him. The only duty cast on the Magistrate is to afford him the necessary opportunity. The right does not extend in an accused. Person to be provided with a lawyer by the State or by the police or by the Magistrate. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441, 443: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8580] — S. 341 — Plea of private defence — Not taken in the statement — Can be considered if necessary basis laid in the cross-examination by prosecution

It is true that the appellants in their statement under S. 342, CrPC, had not taken the plea of private defence but necessary basis for that plea had been laid in the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses as well as by adducing defence evidence. It is well settled that even if an accused does not plead self-defence, it is open to the court to consider such a plea if the same arises from the material on record. The burden of establishing that plea is on the accused and that burden can be discharged by showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea on the basis of the material on record. Munshi Ram v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1968 SC 702, 703: (1968) 2 SCR 455: 1968 Cri LJ 806.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-11-1967]

— S. 342 See Ss. 208, 209 and 342
See also Ss. 289 and 342
See also Ss. 337 and 342
See also Ss. 537 and 342

[8581] — S. 342 — Criminal appeal — New plea not allowed to be raised — Plea of biased jury and inadequate examination under S. 342, CrPC not raised in High Court — Not permitted to be raised. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8582] — S. 342 — New plea — Plea that prejudice caused due to contravention of S. 342, CrPC, 1898 — Not taken before the lower Courts — Supreme Court not to permit the question to be for the first agitated in Supreme Court — Constitution of India — Art. 136 — Pleadings/New plea/Additional plea. Radha Kishan v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 822, 824: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 408: 1963 Cri LJ 809: (1963) 2 LLJ 667.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1962]

[8583] — S. 342 — Remand — Appeal before Supreme Court — Accused not properly examined under S. 342, CrPC — The Supreme Court will not be justified in remanding the case for retrial and permit the prosecution to repair the effect of the omission — Constitution of India — Art. 136. Machander v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 792: (1955) 2 SCR 524: 1955 Cri LJ 1644.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1955]

[8584] — S. 342 — Circumstances in respect of which accused not examined under, cannot be used against him — CrPC, 1973, S. 313

Per Fazal Ali, J.

It is vital that any circumstance adverse to the accused must be put to him under S. 313, CrPC, 1973; otherwise it must be completely excluded from consideration because the appellant did not have any chance to explain them.

As many as 10 out of the 17 circumstances held against the accused were not put to him under S. 313, CrPC, 1973 and must therefore be excluded from consideration.

Per Varadarajan, J.

Since the circumstances not put to the appellant in his examination under S. 313 CrPC have to be completely excluded from consideration and since no question has been put to the appellant in this regard in the course of his examination under S. 313 CrPC, even if there is any evidence about any ill-treatment of the deceased by the appellant or his parents it has to be completely excluded from consideration. Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116: 1984 SCC (Cri) 487: AIR 1984 SC 1622: 1984 Cri LJ 1738.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali[1], A. Varadarajan[2] and Sabyasachi Mukharji[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 19-7-1984]

Hate Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of M.P., AIR 1953 SC 468: 1953 Cri LJ 1933; Shamu Balu Chaugule v. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 1 SCC 438: 1976 SCC (Cri) 56 and Harijan Megha Jesha v. State of Gujarat, 1979 SCC (Cri) 652, relied on [8585] — S. 342 — On facts, offence under S. 302, Indian Penal Code not established — High Court had misread the statement under S. 342, CrPC, 1898. Banamali Samal v. State of Orissa, 1980 Supp SCC 718: 1979 SCC (Cri) 646: AIR 1979 SC 1414: 1979 Cri LJ 1086: (1979) 48 Cut LT 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-1979]

[8586] — S. 342 — Pledging of ornaments of deceased soon after the murder — Evidence on record showing that appellant did not pledge the articles on his own but brought them at the instance of his father who was a goldsmith — Held, reversal of acquittal by High Court not justified — Statement of co-accused under S. 342, CrPC, 1898 taken into consideration — CrPC, 1973, S. 313 — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 302 and 416

When the receipt evidencing the pledging itself does not implicate the appellant, it would not be safe to base the conviction either for murder or under S. 411 of IPC. Rajendra Prasad v. State of U.P., 1989 Supp (2) SCC 145: 1990 SCC (Cri) 32.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jagannatha Shetty and K.N. Saikia, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-1-1989]

[8587] — S. 342 — Burden of proof — Prosecution proving concentration of alcohol in blood in excess of that mentioned in S. 66(2), Bombay Act, 1949 — Burden is on the accused to prove exception detailed in S. 66(2) — Burden in suitable cases can be discharged by accused's statement under S. 342 CrPC, 1898 — Bombay Prohibition Act, 1949 (25 of 1949), S. 66(1)(b) & (2)

If the prosecution proves that the concentration of alcohol in the blood of an accused person is more than 0.05% as mentioned in S. 66(2) then under this section the burden was on him to show that the liquor which he had consumed was a medicinal or toilet preparation the consumption of which is not in contravention of Act or any Rules made thereunder.

Under S. 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code the Court has the power to examine the accused so as to enable him to explain any circumstance appearing in evidence against him. Under sub-section (3) of that section the answers given by an accused person may be taken into consideration in such enquiry or trial. The object of examination under S. 342 therefore is to give the accused an opportunity to explain the case made against him and that statement can be taken into consideration in judging the innocence or guilt of the person so accused. Therefore if the courts below have accepted this explanation it must be held that the respondent has discharged the onus which was placed on him by S. 66(2) of the Act. State of Maharashtra v. Laxman Jairam, AIR 1962 SC 1204: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 230: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 284.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1962]

C.S. D. Swami v. State, AIR 1960 SC 60: (1960) 1 SCR 461: 1960 Cri LJ 131, explained

Applied in Ram Krishna Bedu Rane v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 1 SCC 366: 1973 SCC (Cri) 335

[8588] — S. 342 — Generally — Opportunity to accused — Question of prejudice to be decided in each case on facts — Penal Code, 1860

The question of prejudice is ultimately one of inference from all the facts and circumstances of each case. The fact of the trial being with the jury may possibly also be an additional circumstance for consideration in an appropriate case. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 943, 944.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8589] — S. 342 — Generally — Plea of prejudice — Plea that the accused was prejudiced on account of a mistake in charge and irregularity in examination under S. 342, CrPC — Plea not taken in grounds of appeal — Supreme Court not to permit such a plea to be raised — Penal Code, 1860

The Supreme Court will be slow to entertain question of prejudice when details are not furnished; also the fact that the objection is not taken at an early stage will be taken into account. There is not a hint of prejudice in the petition filed by the appellant either in the High Court or Supreme Court. The only complaint about prejudice was on the score that there was no proper examination under S. 342, CrPC. This matter cannot be permitted to be raised. Sukha v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1956 SC 513: 1956 SCR 288: 1956 Cri LJ 923.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1956]

See also K.C. Mathew v. State of T.C., AIR 1956 SC 241: 1956 Cri LJ 444 and AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 944

[8590] — S. 342 — Charge under Ss. 302/148/149 but conviction under Ss. 302/34 — Prior concert evidenced by examination under S. 342, CrPC — No prejudice caused — Conviction not improper — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 34/149. Bhoor Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 4 SCC 754: 1974 SCC (Cri) 664: AIR 1974 SC 1256: 1974 Cri LJ 929.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-1974]

[8591] — S. 342 — Plea of private defence was not set up by the accused nor any suggestion made in the statements under S. 342, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 — Held, High Court was not justified in acquitting the accused — Plausibility of actions being in exercise of private defence, held, not borne out by the facts — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 96-100. State of U.P. v. Mohd. Musheer Khan, (1977) 3 SCC 562: 1977 SCC (Cri) 565: AIR 1977 SC 2226: 1977 Cri LJ 1897.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-1977]

[8592] — S. 342 — Failure of prosecution to explain injuries on the accused — Conclusions possible out of such failure on the part of the prosecution — Plea of self-defence not taken by accused in her statement under S. 342, CrPC, 1898 — Nor any basis laid in the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses or by adducing any defence witnesses — On facts, the accused did not discharge the limited burden of showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of plea on the basis of the material on record — Penal Code, 1860, S. 97

When the prosecution fails to explain the injuries on the person of an accused, depending on the facts of each case, any of the three results may follow:

(1) That the accused had inflicted the injuries on the members of the prosecution party in exercise of the right of self-defence.

(2) It makes the prosecution version of the occurrence doubtful, and the charge against the accused cannot be held to have been proved beyond reasonable doubt.

(3) It does not affect the prosecution case at all.

In the instant case not only the plea of private defence was not taken by the respondents in their statement under S. 342 but no basis for that plea was laid in the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses or by adducing any defence evidence. In the opinion of the Supreme Court the burden of establishing that plea was not discharged in any manner by the respondents even applying the test of preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea. There was absolutely no material in the records of the present case to lead to any such conclusion.

Hence in the instant case the failure of the prosecution to explain the injuries on the accused falls in the third category and does not affect the prosecution case at all. State of Gujarat v. Bai Fatima, (1975) 2 SCC 7: 1975 SCC (Cri) 384: AIR 1975 SC 1478: (1975) 12 ACC 243: 1975 Cri LJ 1079.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A. Alagiriswami and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1975]

See also (1975) 4 SCC 518: 1975 SCC (Cri) 608

As an illustration of the third category see (1975) 4 SCC 241: 1975 SCC (Cri) 1494

See also (1976) 4 SCC 394: 1976 SCC (Cri) 671

[8593] — S. 342 — Presumption under S. 4(1) of 1947 Act — Rebuttal — Extent of burden of proof on accused — Not of the same degree and character as under S. 101 of Evidence Act — Explanation under S. 342, CrPC, 1898 when enough — Prosecution story mitigating against facts presumed — Effect of — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 161 and 165 and S. 4(1) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947. Trilok Chand Jain v. State of Delhi, (1975) 4 SCC 761: 1975 SCC (Cri) 725: AIR 1977 SC 666: (1976) 1 SCR 348: 1977 Cri LJ 254.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1975]

[8594] — S. 342 — Accused charged for kidnapping a girl for the purposes of illicit intercourse — Kidnapping not proved — Accused not examined under S. 342, CrPC about the evidence relating to abduction — Conviction under S. 366 on the ground of the proof of abduction for the purposes of illicit intercourse not possible — Penal Code, 1860, S. 366

The accused cannot be convicted under S. 366, IPC by reason of his having abducted the girl for the purposes of illicit intercourse, because apart from the fact that, that was not the charge sought to be proved against the appellant, the evidence on the record did not warrant a conclusion that the girl was either compelled by force or induced by any deceitful means to go from her father's place by the appellant nor was any question put to the appellant in the examination under S. 342, CrPC in regard to her compelling or inducing the girl to leave her father's place. Ram Devi v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 574: 1955 Cri LJ 1296, 1297.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-2-1955]

[8595] — S. 342 — Accused charged under Ss. 302/149 but convicted under S. 302 simpliciter and sentenced to death — No question as to his individual role put to him under S. 342, CrPC, 1898 — No grievance made out by the accused either in the trial Court or the High Court — On facts, held, no prejudice was caused to the accused — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302 r/w Ss. 149 and 302 simpliciter. Ishwar Singh v. State of U.P., (1976) 4 SCC 355: 1976 SCC (Cri) 629: AIR 1976 SC 2423: 1976 Cri LJ 1883.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.C. Gupta and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-1976]

Distinguished in Aniruddha Singh v. State of M.P., (2008) 11 SCC 403*

[8596] — S. 342 — Confession — Not put to the accused in his examination under S. 342, CrPC in the court of Committing Magistrate — Default does not show that the confession was involuntary — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302

No question under S. 342, CrPC was put to the accused in the court of the Committing Magistrate with regard to the confession. Even though the confession was not put in the forefront as a piece of evidence against the accused in the committing court, such a default, if it is one, would not in any way show that the confession was involuntary. Subramania Goundan v. State of Madras, AIR 1958 SC 66: 1958 SCR 428: 1958 Cri LJ 238.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-1957]

[8597] — S. 342 — Court can convict on confession made in the statement under S. 342, CrPC but not open to the Court to dissect the statement and pick out incriminating part — Admission not to be used divorced from explanation — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302

Examination under S. 342 is primarily to be directed to those matters on which evidence has been led for the prosecution, to ascertain from the accused his version or explanation. If any, of the incident which forms the subject-matter of the charge and his defence. By sub-section (3), the answers given by the accused may "be taken into consideration" at the enquiry or the trial. If the accused person in his examination under S. 342 confesses to the commission of the offence charged against him the court may, relying upon that confession, proceed to convict him, but if he does not confess and in explaining circumstances appearing in the evidence against him sets up his own version and seeks to explain his conduct pleading that he has committed no offence the statement of the accused can only be taken into consideration in its entirety. It is not open to the Court to dissect the statement and to pick out a part of the statement which may be incriminative, and then to examine whether the explanation furnished by the accused for his conduct is supported by the evidence on the record. If the accused admits to have done an act which would but for the explanation furnished by him be an offence, the admission cannot be used against him divorced from the explanation. Narain Singh v. State of Punjab, (1963) 3 SCR 678: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 730.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafar Imam, J.C. Shah and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-1962]

[8598] — S. 342 — Prejudice — Failure to examine accused — Shoemaker identifying the shoes found at the spot as belonging to the accused — Circumstance not put to the accused in his statement under S. 342, CrPC, 1898 — Held, it is likely that the accused when questioned on the circumstance may have offered to demonstrate that the shoe did not fit his feet — The circumstance cannot be used against him — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302. Sarwan Singh Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637: 1957 SCR 953: 1957 Cri LJ 1014.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1957]

[8599] — S. 342 — Prejudice — Non-compliance with — Effect — Every error or omission not in compliance with the Section does not vitiate the trial — Trial vitiated only when the error or omission causes prejudice to the accused

Every error or omission not in compliance with the provisions of S. 342 does not necessarily vitiate a trial. Errors of this type, fall within the category of curable irregularities. The question whether the trial is vitiated, in each case depends upon the degree of the error and upon whether prejudice has been or is likely to have been caused to the accused. Ajmer Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 76: 1953 SCR 418: 1953 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-12-1952]

Rama Shankar Singh v. State of W.B., AIR 1962 SC 1239: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 49: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 296.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1961]

[8600] — S. 342 — Adverse inference if can be drawn from accused's failure to explain a piece of his conduct while under examination under S. 342, CrPC, 1898 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 114, Illustration (h)

The appellant woman, V, along with her son and three other men, was tried in connection with the murder of one K. The deceased K, a practising lawyer was returning from the court on the fateful evening. When he approached the ill-fated spot the appellant woman is alleged to have shouted: "The vakil has come", whereupon her five companions armed with guns and hockey sticks surrounded the deceased who was then shot at point-blank range by one of them. Both the courts below convicted her under S. 302, read with S. 109, IPC.

Held, the fact that V gave the shout cannot be disturbed in view of the concurrent finding of the courts below.

Whether by so doing she intended to facilitate the murderer of K is another question. In order to constitute abetment, the abettor must be shown to have "intentionally" aided the commission of the crime. Mere proof that the crime charged could not have been committed without the interposition of the alleged abettor is not enough compliance with the requirements of S. 107. It is not enough that an act on the part of the alleged abettor happens to facilitate the commission of the crime. Intentional aiding and therefore active complicity is the gist of the offence of abetment under the third paragraph of S. 107.

No adverse inference can be drawn from appellant's failure to explain her conduct. Such an approach is impermissible. The burden is on the prosecution to establish its case. Moreover an accused cannot while being examined under S. 342, CrPC be subjected to cross-examination, and a bald assertion to explain a piece of conduct almost always fails to convince. Shri Ram v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 495: 1975 SCC (Cri) 87: AIR 1975 SC 175: 1975 Cri LJ 240: 1976 MLJ (Cri) 78.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-1974]

[8601] — S. 342 — Extent of reliance on statement of accused

That the Court may rely on a portion of the accused's statement and considering the other evidence led by the prosecution, find him guilty. Sampat Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1969) 1 SCC 367: AIR 1969 SC 956: 1969 Cri LJ 1430: (1969) 3 SCR 228.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and G.K. Mitter, J. [Date of decision: 2-1-1969]

[8602] — S. 342 — Appellant found in custody of gold bars with foreign makings — Statement of accused under S. 342, CrPC that the place of recovery was under his possession — Conviction upheld — Sea Customs Act, 1878, S. 167(81) — Customs Act, 1962, S. 135. Jethamal Pithaji v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, (1974) 3 SCC 393: 1973 SCC (Cri) 958: AIR 1974 SC 699: (1974) 1 SCR 645: 1974 Cri LJ 621.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-9-1973]

[8603] — S. 342 — Abscondence cannot be used against the accused if not put to him for explanation under — Even an innocent person knowing to have been implicated for offence of murder would abscond. Shamu Balu Chaugule v. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 1 SCC 438: 1976 SCC (Cri) 56: AIR 1976 SC 557: 1976 Cri LJ 492.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1975]

[8604] — S. 342 — "Accused" — Meaning

The moment the pardon was tendered to the accused he must be presumed to have been discharged whereupon he ceased to be an accused and became a witness. A.J. Peiris v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 616, 620: 1954 Cri LJ 1638.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

[8605] — S. 342 — Accused charged with murder not examined about his judicial confession made eight days after his arrest — High Court was justified in refusing to take into consideration the confession

The High Court excluded from evidence the judicial confession of the accused because the appellant was not questioned about it under S. 342, CrPC. It is gathered that the High Court thought that this occasioned prejudice to the accused. The confession of the accused was recorded 8 days after his arrest. Much might have happened between this period of 8 days. The High Court was therefore not unjustified in refusing to take into consideration the confession without hearing the appellant's side of the story. Machander v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 792: (1955) 2 SCR 524: 1955 Cri LJ 1644.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1955]

[8606] — S. 342 — Accused instead of explaining the fact situation set up by the prosecution setting up a false counterversion — Held, this factor must be taken into account in deciding whether the circumstances set up by the prosecution are of a determinative character. State of Punjab v. Mukhtiar Singh, (1975) 4 SCC 590: 1975 SCC (Cri) 625: AIR 1975 SC 2001: 1975 Cri LJ 1745.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-1975]

[8607] — S. 342 — Accused not fully examined under the section — Effect — Accused must also show that the omission has materially prejudiced him, before the Appellate Court can interfere on that ground. Bejoy Chand Patra v. State of W.B., AIR 1952 SC 105: 1952 SCR 202: 1952 Cri LJ 644.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1951]

[8608] — S. 342 — Accused not questioned about the presence of blood on his clothes — No inference can be drawn on that account against the accused. Rahim Beg v. State of U.P., (1972) 3 SCC 759: 1972 SCC (Cri) 827: AIR 1973 SC 343: 1972 Cri LJ 1260.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1972]

[8609] — S. 342 — Accused not questioned by the Sessions Court about committing the offence — He admitted that his statement recorded by the Committing Magistrate where he denied to have committed the offence was correct — His statement under S. 342 taken as a whole showed that the accused knew what the accusations against him were — There is no prejudice and the trial is not vitiated

At the very commencement of the record of that statement, the Sessions Judge read out the appellant's statement under S. 342, CrPC, before the Committing Magistrate and enquired whether it was correct, to which the appellant replied in the affirmative.

The statement of the appellant before the Magistrate is admissible under S. 287, CrPC. The Magistrate pointedly asked the appellant as to whether he along with the other accused murdered the deceased and had taken his property to which the appellant replied in the negative. It was not necessary for the Sessions Judge to specifically repeat the same when the appellant admitted his statement before the Committing Magistrate as correct when read out to him.

A part from this, when the statement of the appellant to the Sessions Judge is read as a whole, it clearly shows that the appellant knew what the accusation against him was and he offered an explanation for the disappearance of deceased from his cart and for his possession of the deceased's goods. There is no justification for supposing that there had been any prejudice caused to the appellant on account of improper or insufficient recording of his statement by the Sessions Judge under S. 342, CrPC. Wasim Khan v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 400: 1956 SCR 191: 1956 Cri LJ 790, 792: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 9: 1956 ALJ 457.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1956]

[8610] — S. 342 — Accused not told to enter witness-box if he so chose — Court not obliged to draw the attention of the accused to sub-section (4)

It was not the duty of the Court to draw the pointed attention of the accused to the provisions of sub-section (4) of S. 342 and tell them that they may, if they chose, enter the witness-box. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8611] — S. 342 — Admissibility of statement of accused — Statement under S. 342, CrPC in another case — Accused admitting in his statement in a previous case facts amounting to admissions for the purposes of the subsequent case — The statement is admissible in evidence in the subsequent case to prove accused's admissions with respect to the facts mentioned in the statement. State of Gujarat v. Vinaya Chandra Chhota Lal Pathi, AIR 1967 SC 778: (1967) 1 SCR 249: 1967 Cri LJ 668.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1966]

[8612] — S. 342 — Admissibility of statement of accused under the section against his statement at a time when he was not facing the charge — Statement under the section cannot be accepted

In view of the statements made by the accused at a time when he was not required to face a charge his statement made in the Court that he travelled in a separate compartment cannot be accepted. Anant Chintaman Lagu v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 500: (1960) 2 SCR 460: 1960 Cri LJ 682: 62 Bom LR 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar[2] and M. Hidayatullah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1959]

[8613] — S. 342 — Applicability in proceeding under S. 207-A — Court has discretion to examine the accused — Failure to examine an accused under S. 342, CrPC does not amount to material irregularity. State of W.B. v. Tulsidas Mundhra, 1963 Supp (1) SCR 1: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 443, 47.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1962]

[8614] — S. 342 — Bare denial — Appellant making a bare denial in his statement in the committing proceedings about his meeting the deceased on a particular date — His statement before the Sessions Judge that he met the deceased on a different date is an afterthought. Deonandan Mishra v. State of Bihar, AIR 1955 SC 801: (1955) 2 SCR 570: 1955 Cri LJ 1647, 48.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1955]

[8615] — S. 342 — Circumstances not put to accused not to be relied on

The Court should not rely upon those circumstances against the accused with regard to which no opportunity of explanation has been given to the accused in his statement under S. 342, CrPC. Zwinglee Ariel v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 15: 1954 Cri LJ 230.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1952]

[8616] — S. 342 — Co-accused making statement — Cannot be used against the accused. Narayan Swami v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 609: (1968) 2 SCR 88: 1968 Cri LJ 657: (1968) 68 ITR 221, 225.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1967]

[8617] — S. 342 — Complex and complicated questions put to the accused — Procedure is irregular — Object of examination — Is not an idle formality

Where the Sessions Judge while examining an accused under S. 342, CrPC rolls up several distinct matters of evidence in single question he acts irregularly.

The object of S. 342, CrPC is to afford to the accused an opportunity of showing that the circumstance relied upon by the prosecution which may be prima facie against him, is not true or is consistent with his innocence. The opportunity must be real and adequate. Questions must be so framed as to the accused clear notice of the circumstances relied upon by the prosecution, and must give him an opportunity to render such explanation as he can of that circumstance. Each question must be so framed that the accused may be able to understand it and to appreciate what use the prosecution desires to make of the evidence against him. Examination of the accused under S. 342 is not intended to be an idle formality, it has to be carried out in the interest of justice and fairplay to the accused: by a slipshod examination which is the result of imperfect appreciation of the evidence, idleness or negligence the position of the accused cannot be permitted to be made more difficult than what it is in a trial for an offence. Rama Shankar Singh v. State of W.B., AIR 1962 SC 1239: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 49: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 296, 99.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1961]

[8618] — S. 342 — Court can rely on a portion of the statement of the accused and find him guilty in consideration with the other evidence led against him by the prosecution — Reconstruction of the incident with other evidence — CrPC, 1973, S. 313

Where the commencement or genesis of the occurrence is not available because there was no witness to the occurrence available, the only direct version of the commencement of the occurrence would be found in the statement of the accused, if he chooses to give out his version of the occurrence. His statement has to be considered in the light of the evidence adduced by the prosecution and weighing his statement with the probabilities of the case either in his favour or against him.

Here though the dying declaration refers to assailants and those present, it throws no light on how the occurrence commenced or what was the genesis of the trouble. Taking the statement of the accused along with the remaining evidence a case of sudden fight on sudden quarrel is established. The conviction under S. 304, Part II was improper and should be under S. 304, Part I, Indian Penal Code. State of H.P. v. Wazir Chand, (1978) 1 SCC 130: 1978 SCC (Cri) 58: AIR 1978 SC 315: 1978 Cri LJ 347.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.K. Goswami, N.L. Untwalia and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1977]

[8619] — S. 342 — Defect in examination of an accused — Amounts to an irregularity — Does not call for interference of Supreme Court in appeal by special leave. C.T. Muniappan v. State of Madras, AIR 1961 SC 175: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 315.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1960]

[8620] — S. 342 — Distinct and separate matters may be separated

With reference to the statement of the accused under S. 342, CrPC, it is true that if it is sought to be used as an admission it must be read as a whole; but where it consists of distinct and separate matters, there is no reason why an admission contained in one matter should not be relied on without reference to the statements relating to other matters. Karnail Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1954 SC 204, 206: 1954 SCR 904: 1954 Cri LJ 580.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-1-1954]

[8621] — S. 342 — Duty of prosecution to enable the accused to explain each circumstance against him, specifically and separately

Section 342 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, casts a duty on the Court to put, at any enquiry or trial, questions to the accused for the purposes of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him. It follows as a necessary corollary therefore that each material circumstance appearing in evidence against the accused is required to be put to him specifically, distinctly and separately. Failure to do so amounts to a serious irregularity vitiating the trial if it is shown to have prejudiced the accused. If the irregularity does not, in fact, occasion a failure of justice, it is curable under S. 537 of the Code. S. Harnam Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1976) 2 SCC 819: 1976 SCC (Cri) 324: AIR 1976 SC 2140: 1976 Cri LJ 913.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-3-1976]

[8622] — S. 342 — Effect of false explanation by accused. Ram Narain v. State of Punjab, AIR 1955 SC 322: 1955 Cri LJ 871.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1955]

[8623] — S. 342 — Evidence of circumstances need not be put to accused — War diaries produced by prosecution as evidence of circumstances — Diaries not put to the accused under S. 342, CrPC — No irregularity committed

Under S. 342, CrPC questions are put to an accused to enable him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, and for that purpose, the accused is also to be questioned generally on the case, after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called on for his defence. These War Diaries were not circumstances appearing in evidence against the appellant. They were, in fact, evidence of circumstances which were put to the accused when he was examined under S. 342, CrPC. It was not at all necessary that each separate piece of evidence in support of a circumstance should be put to the accused and he should be questioned in respect of it under that section; and consequently, the High Court committed no irregularity at all in treating these War Diaries as part of the evidence against the appellant. Bakhshish Singh Dhaliwal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 752: (1967) 1 SCR 211: 1967 Cri LJ 656.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-8-1966]

[8624] — S. 342 — Examination of accused in a trial with the aid of Jury — Inadequate examination of the accused — Prejudice cannot necessarily be presumed

The contention of the counsel for the appellant that the non-examination or inadequate examination under S. 342, Criminal Procedure Code, in a jury trial must be presumed to cause prejudice and that a conviction in jury trial should be set aside and retrial ordered, if there is no adequate examination under S. 342, Criminal Procedure Code, cannot be accepted as a matter of law. The question of prejudice is ultimately one of inference from all the facts and circumstances of each case. The fact of the trial being with the jury may possibly also be an additional circumstance for consideration in an appropriate case. In this case there is no reason to think that this would have made any difference. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 43, 44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8625] — S. 342 — Examination of accused through pleader where personal attendance of accused dispensed with — Held, not sufficient compliance of the section

From the scheme, purpose and language of S. 342, CrPC, it is apparent that the examination under the section must be of the accused person and not his pleader even though the personal attendance of the accused has been dispensed with by the Court. Where the accused is a company or juridical person then alone it need not be examined because that is not possible. Bibhuti Bhusan Das Gupta v. State of W.B., AIR 1969 SC 381: (1969) 2 SCR 104: 1969 Cri LJ 654, 55.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1968]

See however (2000) 8 SCC 740 at 750

[8626] — S. 342 — Examination of the accused not as full or clear as it should be — No objection taken in the trial and the Appellate Courts or in grounds of appeal before the Supreme Court — Plea is an afterthought and no prejudice having been caused is of no avail

The examination of the accused under S. 342, CrPC, was not as full or as clear as it should have been. However there was no prejudice. The question of prejudice was not taken in either of the Courts below nor was it raised in the grounds of appeal. The point was taken for the first time in the arguments and even then the counsel for the accused was unable to say that his client had in fact been prejudiced; all he could urge was that there was a possibility of prejudice.

If the accused is not afforded the opportunity of full and clear examination under S. 342, CrPC, he is entitled to ask the Appellate Court to place him in the same position as he would have been in had he been asked. In other words, he is entitled to ask the Appellate Court, which is the ultimate court of fact, to take the explanation that he would have given in the first court into consideration when weighing the evidence just the same way as it would have done if it had been there all along.

Therefore, all he is entitled to say on appeal is "I was not asked to explain this matter. Here is my explanation: this is what I would have said: please consider it". But if he does not take up that position at the appellate stage and complains of prejudice for the first time before the Supreme Court, the inference is strong that the plea is an afterthought and that there was no prejudice. K.C. Mathew v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1956 SC 241: (1955) 2 SCR 1057: 1956 Cri LJ 444.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-12-1955]

[8627] — S. 342 — "Explaining of circumstances appearing in evidence against the accused" — Meaning of — Circumstances that the accused absconded used by the trial Court and the High Court against the accused — Accused not examined about this circumstance in his examination under the section — Held, the circumstance cannot be used against the accused. Hate Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of M.B., AIR 1953 SC 468: 1953 Cri LJ 1933.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-11-1951]

[8628] — S. 342 — Failure to ask questions on an important matter on which prosecution based its case — Effect of

It a point in the evidence is considered important against the accused and the conviction is intended to be based upon it, then it is right and proper that the accused should be questioned about the matter and be given an opportunity of explaining it if he so desires. This is an important and salutary provision and Supreme Court cannot permit it to be slurred over. Whether the matter arises in the Sessions Court or in that of the Committing Magistrate, it is important that the provisions of S. 342 should be fairly and faithfully observed. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8629] — S. 342 — Failure to comply with the provisions of the section — Compliance with the provisions of S. 342 is not a mere idle formality — Examination of the accused neither full nor satisfactory — But no serious prejudice caused — Trial is not vitiated. Chikkarange Gowda v. State of Mysore, AIR 1956 SC 731: ILR 1956 Mys 377: 1957 Ker LJ 25: 1956 Cri LJ 1365, 69-70.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and N.H. Bhagwati and S.K. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-5-1956]

[8630] — S. 342 — Failure to comply with the provisions of S. 342 — Is an irregularity, curable if accused is not prejudiced

Failure to comply with the provision of S. 342 is an irregularity; and unless injustice is shown to have resulted therefrom a mere irregularity is by itself not sufficient to justify an order of retrial. The Appellate Court must always consider whether by reason of failure to comply with a procedural provision, which does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court, the accused have been materially prejudicated. In the present case, Supreme Court is of the view, having regard to the circumstances, that the appellants have not been prejudiced, because of failure to examine them strictly in compliance with the terms of S. 342 of the Code and that view is strengthened by the fact that the plea was not raised in the High Court by their counsel who had otherwise raised numerous questions in support of the case of the appellants. Rama Shankar Singh v. State of W.B., AIR 1962 SC 1239: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 49: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 296, 99.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1961]

[8631] — S. 342 — Failure to examine the accused properly — Disregard of — Provisions of S. 342 — Whether vitiates the trial

Where the examination of the accused under S. 342, CrPC was perfunctory both in the committal and the Sessions Court and he was questioned afresh as to additional evidence recorded at the instance of the High Court, held that in the circumstances the disregard of the provisions of S. 342 had caused grave prejudice to accused which vitiated the trial. Bihari Singh Madho Singh v. State of Bihar, AIR 1954 SC 692: 1954 Cri LJ 1742.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

[8632] — S. 342 — Importance and purpose of examination — High Court presuming that crop cut was green and unripe — On that basis informing that 'P', if he would have sown and tended the crop would not have cut unripe crop — Not put to the accused 'P' if the crop was green and unripe — Held, since the case that crop was green and unripe was not put to the accused, High Court was not justified in holding that 'P' would not have cut green and unripe crop had he grown it — CrPC, 1973, S. 313

The real importance of S. 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code is that there is a duty cast upon the Courts to question the accused properly and fairly so that it is brought home to the accused in clear words the exact case that the accused will have to meet, and thereby an opportunity is given to the accused to explain any such point.

Where it was not put to 'P' the accused in the statement under S. 342, CrPC whether he had cut the tilli crop in green and unripe condition. The High Court was wrong in holding that 'P' would not have cut the tilli in green and unripe condition if tilli crop had been sown by him. Parichhat v. State of M.P., (1972) 4 SCC 694: AIR 1972 SC 535: 1972 Cri LJ 322.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1971]

[8633] — S. 342 — Irregularity — Retrial — Test of prejudice

There has been no questioning under S. 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code of the two appellants, on this part of case, as regards any of these adverse circumstances which form the basis of the conclusion of the Courts below. There is a complete lack of any reference to these matters in the questions put to either of the appellants under S. 342, CrPC. This undoubtedly is a serious irregularity and cannot be lightly ignored.

If prejudice was thereby caused, such an irregularity would entail retrial in the circumstances of a case like this. But before a retrial can be ordered the Court must be clearly satisfied about prejudice having been caused. Kedar Nath Bajoria v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 660, 679: 1954 Cri LJ 1679.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1954]

[8634] — S. 342 — Irregularity in complying with S. 342 — Trial when vitiated

Every error or omission in complying with S. 342, Criminal Procedure Code, does not necessarily vitiate the trial. Unless injustice results from an irregularity in complying with S. 342, interference on this ground would not be justified. Ajit Kumar Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (1972) 2 SCC 451: 1972 SCC (Cri) 748: AIR 1972 SC 2058: 1972 Cri LJ 1315: (1972) 9 ACC 280.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-1972]

[8635] — S. 342 — Irregularity in examination of the accused — Same questions relating to the details of the incident not specifically put to the accused — Omission not occasioning failure of justice — Conviction cannot be quashed on this ground. Ram Chandra Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1961 SC 1629: (1962) 2 SCR 50: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 811, 812.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1961]

[8636] — S. 342 — Magistrate not examining accused regarding one aspect — Prosecution relying on that aspect in the Supreme Court — Held, open to the accused to plead failure of Magistrate to examine him on that point — Fact that he did not complain earlier not material. Kaur Sain v. State of Punjab, (1974) 3 SCC 649: 1974 SCC (Cri) 179: AIR 1974 SC 329: (1974) 2 SCR 393: 1974 Cri LJ 358.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1973]

[8637] — S. 342 — Manner of examination of accused — Accused asked only one question that "You have heard the charges made and evidence adduced against you. Now say what is your defence? What have you got to say?" — Evidence not specifically put to the accused — The examination is not in accordance with S. 342 and is perfunctory. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 43, 44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8638] — S. 342 — Manner of examination of accused — Non-compliance of provision — Effect — Trial not vitiated

It is not a compliance of the provisions of S. 342, CrPC, to merely read out the statements made by the accused in the committal Court and ask them as to what they have to say about the prosecution evidence recorded in their presence. This is not a satisfactory way of questioning the accused. The Trial Court ought to put to each of the accused the various circumstances appearing against them and further put the prosecution case generally for the purpose of affording the accused an opportunity to explain the circumstances appearing against them.

Every error or omission in compliance with S. 342 does not necessarily vitiate the trial. Errors of that type fall within the category of curable irregularity and the question whether the trial has been vitiated depends in each case upon the degree of error and upon whether prejudice has been or is likely to have been caused to the accused. Makan Jivan v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 3 SCC 297: 1971 SCC (Cri) 587: AIR 1971 SC 1797: 1971 Cri LJ 1310.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1971]

[8639] — S. 342 — Manner of examination of accused — Question put embracing a number of matters — Better procedure is to put separate questions on each separate point — Answer showing that the accused understood the question and gave detailed answers — No prejudice is caused and trial not vitiated. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8640] — S. 342 — Manner of examination of accused — Specific questions on each material fact should be put in readily understandable manner — Failure to comply — Effect of Section 342 requires the accused to be examined for the purpose of enabling him "to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him". Now it is evidence that when the Sessions Court is required to make the examination under this section the evidence referred to is the evidence in the Sessions Court and the circumstances which appear against the accused in that Court. It is not therefore enough to read over the questions and answers put in the Committing Magistrate's Court and ask the accused whether he has anything to say about them.

Section 342(2) requires that the answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration. If the accused had been properly questioned and had given reasonable explanations and the Sessions Judge had omitted to take them into consideration, it is obvious that that would have constituted a grave defect in his judgment. How much graver is the defect when the accused is not questioned at all and is not given an opportunity of explaining the circumstances which are intended to be used against him. It is not a proper compliance to read out a long string of questions and answers made in the Committal Court and ask whether the statement is correct. A question of that kind is misleading. It may mean either that the questioner wants to know whether the recording is correct, or whether the answers given are true, or whether there is some mistake or misunderstanding despite the accurate recording.

Fairness therefore requires that each material circumstance should be put simply and separately in a way that an illiterate mind, or one which is perturbed or confused, can readily appreciate and understand. Errors of this type fall within the category of curable irregularities. Therefore, the question in each case depends upon the degree of the error and upon whether prejudice has been occasioned or is likely to have been occasioned. Tara Singh v. State, AIR 1951 SC 441: 1951 SCR 729: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1491.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali[1], Patanjali Sastri[2], S.R. Das[3] and Vivian Bose[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-6-1951]

[8641] — S. 342 — Manner of examination of the accused — Accused to be separately questioned about each material circumstance intended to be used against him — Questions to be put to be fair and in simple language

Judge's duty is not discharged by merely reading over the questions and answers to the accused put in the committing magistrate's Court and by asking him whether he has to say anything about them. It is not sufficient compliance with S. 342, CrPC, to generally ask the accused that having heard the prosecution evidence what he has to say about it. The accused must be questioned separately about each material circumstance which is intended to be used against him. The whole object of the section is to afford the accused a fair and proper opportunity of explaining circumstances which appear against him and that the questions must be fair and must be couched in a form which an ignorant of illiterate person will be able to appreciate and understand. Ajmer Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 76: 1953 SCR 418: 1953 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-12-1952]

[8642] — S. 342 — Nature and scope — Duty of Court towards accused to offer him opportunity to explain every circumstance established against him — Effect of failure by Court to do so — Burden on accused to show prejudice

It is trite law, nevertheless fundamental, that the prisoner's attention should be drawn to every inculpatory material so as to enable him to explain it. This is the basic fairness of a criminal trial and failures in this area may gravely imperil the validity of the trial itself, if consequential miscarriage of justice has flowed. However, where such an omission has occurred it does not ipso facto vitiate the proceedings and prejudice occasioned by such defect must be established by the accused. In the event of evidentiary material not being put to the accused, the Court must ordinarily eschew such material from consideration. It is also open to the appellate Court to call upon the counsel for the accused to show what explanation the accused has as regards the circumstances established against him but not put to him and if the accused is unable to offer the appellate Court any plausible or reasonable explanation of such circumstances, the Court may assume that no acceptable answer exists and that even if the accused had been questioned at the proper time in the trial court he would not have been able to furnish any good ground to get out of the circumstances on which the trial Court had relied for its conviction. In such a case, the Court proceeds on the footing that though a grave irregularity has occurred as regards compliance with S. 342, CrPC, the omission has not been shown to have caused prejudice to the accused.

Great care is expected of Sessions Judges who try grave cases to collect every incriminating circumstance and put it to the accused even though at the end of a long trial the Judge may be a little fagged out. Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033: AIR 1973 SC 2622: 1973 Cri LJ 1783.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, H.R. Khanna and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1973]

[8643] — S. 342 — Nature and scope of — Examination of accused

The Magistrate and Judges must appreciate the importance of S. 342, Criminal Procedure Code and carry out the duty that is cast upon them of questioning the accused properly and fairly, bringing home to his mind in clear and simple language the exact case he has to meet and each material point that is sought to be made against him, and of affording him a chance to explain them if he can and so desires. Machander v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 792: (1955) 2 SCR 524: 1955 Cri LJ 1644.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1955]

[8644] — S. 342 — Non-compliance of — Effect — Every error or omission not in compliance with the section does not vitiate the trial — Trial vitiated only when the error or omission causes prejudice to the accused

Every error or omission not in compliance with the provisions of S. 342 does not necessarily vitiate a trial. Errors of this type, fall within the category of curable irregularities. The question whether the trial is vitiated, in each case depends upon the degree of the error and upon whether prejudice has been or is likely to have been caused to the accused. Ajmer Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 76: 1953 SCR 418: 1953 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-12-1952]

[8645] — S. 342 — Non-examination or defective examination of the accused — Is no ground for interference unless prejudice to the accused is shown. Bibhuti Bhusan Das Gupta v. State of W.B., AIR 1969 SC 381: (1969) 2 SCR 104: 1969 Cri LJ 654, 55.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1968]

[8646] — S. 342 — Omission to draw attention to some evidence — Effect — Accused not questioned about his having entered into conspiracy with the approver and the statement of a witness corroborating the statement of the approver — Compliance of S. 342, CrPC, depends on the facts of each case — The accused having not been prejudiced no interference is called for

It was contended that the examination of the accused was not in full compliance of S. 342, Code of Criminal Procedure, because (1) though the other accused acquitted by the trial Court were questioned with reference to the conspiracy with the approver no such question was put to the appellant, and (2) the evidence of the witnesses which has been chiefly relied upon as corroborating the approver had not been specifically put to the appellant.

Held :

It is true that the Court questioned him about his "conspiracy with the other accused persons". Counsel for the parties before us did not agree as to the significance of the words "in conspiracy with the other accused persons." The contention on behalf of the appellant was that they referred only to the persons actually standing trial before the Court, whereas counsel for the State contented that they had reference to all the accused persons named in the petition of complaint including the approver.

It is not ordinarily necessary to put the evidence of each individual witness to the accused in his examination under S. 342, CrPC. The appellant was put the question "Have you got anything to say on the evidence of the witnesses?"

That is sufficient in the circumstances of this case to show that the attention of the accused was called to the prosecution evidence. As to what is or is not a full compliance with the provisions of that section of the Code must depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. It cannot be said that the accused has been in any way prejudiced by the way he has been questioned under that section. Bimbadhar Pradhan v. State of Orissa, AIR 1956 SC 469: 1956 SCR 206: 1956 Cri LJ 831, 34, 36: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 13.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1956]

[8647] — S. 342 — Opportunity to be afforded to accused to explain circumstances against him and not the inferences flowing from such circumstances — Accused is not to be cross-examined

— Also his answers to be considered by the Court. State of H.P. v. Wazir Chand, (1978) 1 SCC 130: 1978 SCC (Cri) 58: AIR 1978 SC 315: 1978 Cri LJ 347.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.K. Goswami, N.L. Untwalia and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1977]

[8648] — S. 342 — Other statements made during examination of accused — Prosecution evidence indicating that a godown was in accused's possession — Witness stating this point not having been cross-examined on the point — Accused admitting this in his statement under the section — Court justified in referring to this statement of the accused in the judgment. Vijendrajit Ayodhya Prasad Goel v. State of Bombay, AIR 1953 SC 247: 1953 Cri LJ 1097.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1953]

[8649] — S. 342 — Plea of denial simpliciter — Subsequent assertion of a new fact — Effect

The accused was convicted for an offence under S. 409, Penal Code. The prosecution case was that the accused had received Rs 946 but deposited a sum of Rs 810 only, thus misappropriating the balance amount of Rs 136. The accused made not even the slightest suggestion to the effect in his statement under S. 342, Code of Criminal Procedure, that he actually received only Rs 810.

Held :

The failure of the accused to mention this fact in his statement under S. 342, Code of Criminal Procedure, would go to show that the above plea is the result of an afterthought. Bali Ram Prasad v. State of Mysore, (1972) 3 SCC 681: 1972 SCC (Cri) 725: AIR 1973 SC 506: 1973 Cri LJ 3.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1972]

[8650] — S. 342 — Prejudice as a ground for setting aside the trial — Examination of the accused under S. 342 perfunctory — Trial is not vitiated unless prejudice and miscarriage of justice is established and judgment cannot be set aside

It is true that there is very inadequate compliance of S. 342, CPC. It is however well recognised that a judgment is not to be set aside merely by reason of inadequate compliance with S. 342, CPC. It is settled that clear prejudice must be shown when the accused is represented by a counsel in trial and in appeal it is all the more necessary. It is up to the accused or his counsel in such cases to satisfy the Court that such inadequate examination has resulted in miscarriage of justice. If the counsel was unable to say that his client had in fact been prejudiced and if all that he could urge what that there was a possibility of prejudice, that was not enough. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 43, 44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8651] — S. 342 — Prejudice likely to occur by failure to frame a charge or if one omnibus question put to the accused without intimating him of the offence of which he was likely to be convicted — Penal Code, 1860, S. 411 — CrPC, 1973, S. 313. Karnal Singh Uttam Singh v. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 1 SCC 882: 1976 SCC (Cri) 204: AIR 1976 SC 1097: 1976 Cri LJ 842.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1975]

[8652] — S. 342 — Presumption about possession of liquor manufacturing apparatus raised under S. 103, Bombay Prohibition Act — Accused not questioned on the point and not given an opportunity to rebut the presumption — Accused under S. 342 stating that he did not know about the various parts of the apparatus — Accused's attitude indicates that no prejudice caused

Various articles used for the purpose of manufacturing illicit liquor were recovered from the possession of the accused who was finally convicted by the High Court under S. 65(f), Bombay Prohibition Act having in possession apparatus for the purpose of manufacturing intoxicant other than Toddy. A presumption under S. 103 of the Act was raised against the accused. Accused was not questioned about the apparatus or presumption under S. 103 in his examination under S. 342, CrPC, and was not given an opportunity to rebut the presumption. It is contended that for these reasons the finding is vitiated and the conviction is bad.

Held :

When the appellant was examined under S. 342 of the Code of Criminal Procedure he had volunteered the statement that he did not know about the various contrabands seized by the police. Since this was his attitude in the matter, it is difficult to understand what further questions could have been put to him to explain the possession of the still and the various other articles found in the premises occupied by him. It is not possible to say in this particular case that this appellant had been prejudiced by the failure of the Magistrate to put to him any specific questions about the still and the other articles found in the premises occupied by him.

The presumption which arises under S. 103 of the Act is that an offence under the Act is committed where a person is found in mere possession, without further evidence, of any still, utensil, implement or apparatus, whatsoever, for the manufacture of any intoxicant as are ordinarily used in the manufacture of such intoxicant until the contrary is proved. It is difficult to conceive that the appellant could have given any satisfactory evidence to establish that the still and other articles found in the premises occupied by him could ordinarily be used for the manufacture of Toddy.

There was, therefore, no prejudice caused to the appellant, in the circumstances of the present case, when the High Court relied upon the presumption arising under S. 103 to uphold his conviction under S. 65(f) of the Act. Keki Bejonji v. State of Bombay, AIR 1961 SC 967: (1961) 2 SCR 515: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 37.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-11-1960]

[8653] — S. 342 — Record of observations by the Court about a fact seen during examination under S. 342 — Propriety of — During examination under S. 342, CrPC, the accused wore shoes recovered from his house on a question from the Court — Accused complaining that they were too tight — The Court recorded its own remarks that they quite fitted his feet — The Court is not entitled to allow his view or observations to take the place of evidence — The observations taken together with the complaint of the accused admissible

During the examination under S. 342, CrPC, the Court asked the accused to wear the shoes recovered from his house, which the accused deemed having belonging to him. The accused wore the shoes and complained that they were too tight for him. Nevertheless the Court remarked that to all appearance they quite fitted his feet.

Held :

The Judge was certainly not entitled to allow his view or observation to take the place of evidence because such view or observation of his could not be tested by cross-examination and the accused would certainly not be in a position to furnish any explanation in regard to the same.

The observations of the Judge could not carry the matter any further for the prosecution and the only fact which could be relied upon by the prosecution was that the shoes apparently fitted the feet of the accused and the Judge and the assessors were entitled only to take into account the fact that the shoes apparently fitted the feet of the accused though he complained that they were too tight for his feet. Pritam Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 415: 1956 Cri LJ 805, 810.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1955]

[8654] — S. 342 — Reliance on inculpatory portion of statement of accused

It is well settled that where a confession or an admission is separable there can be no objection to taking one part into consideration which appears to be true and reject the other part which is false. Keshoram Bora v. State of Assam, (1978) 2 SCC 407: 1978 SCC (Cri) 219: AIR 1978 SC 1096: 1978 Cri LJ 1089: (1978) 26 BLJR 8.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-1978]

[8655] — S. 342 — Removal of vagueness in the charge by questioning — Accused specifically questioned in the Court of Session if he fired pistol shots at the victim — Whether this question removes prejudice caused by vagueness in the charge at sessions trial

This cannot be said to remove any prejudice that would arise by virtue of the vagueness in the charge at the sessions trial, as to who was the author of the pistol fire. Normally in a sessions trial the accused has no right of examination after the questioning under S. 342, CrPC.

The very fact that in spite of such questioning the charges framed in the Magistrate's Court, with their vagueness, in so far as this feature therein is concerned, has been maintained, before the Sessions Court without any amendment, is likely to have been misleading. Suraj Pal v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 419: (1955) 1 SCR 1332: 1955 Cri LJ 1004, 1008.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1955]

[8656] — S. 342 — Scope — Circumstances and not their inferences to be put to accused

An accused is questioned under S. 342, CrPC, to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him. It is not necessary to ask him to explain any inference that a Court may be asked to draw and be prepared to draw from the evidence on record. R.K. Dalmia v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1962 SC 1821, 1876: (1963) 1 SCR 253: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 805: (1962) 32 Comp Cas 699.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1962]

[8657] — S. 342 — Scope — Court not competent to accept inculpatory part and reject exculpatory part of the statement of the accused. Yusufalli Esmail Nagree v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 147: (1967) 3 SCR 720: 1968 Cri LJ 103, 05-06.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, R.S. Bachawat and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1967]

[8658] — S. 342 — Scope and nature of examination — Not proper either to put a few broad and general questions or detailed questions amounting to his cross-examination

Section 342 is undoubtedly intended to give him an opportunity to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him. In exercising its powers under S. 342, the Court must take care to put all relevant circumstances appearing in the evidence to the accused person. It would not be enough to put a few general and broad questions to the accused, for by adopting such a course the accused may not get opportunity of explaining all the relevant circumstances. On the other hand, it would not be fair or right that the Court should put to the accused person detailed questions which may amount to his cross-examination.

The ultimate test in determining whether or not the accused has been fairly examined under S. 342 would be to enquire whether, having regard to all the questions put to him he did get an opportunity to say what he wanted to say in respect of prosecution case against him. Jai Dev v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 612: (1963) 3 SCR 489: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 495, 504.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-1962]

[8659] — S. 342 — Statement of accused — Partial acceptance — The court cannot split the statement made by the accused under S. 342 and accept a portion and reject the rest. The statement either has to be accepted as a whole or not to be relied at all. State of Gujarat v. Acharya D. Pandey, (1970) 3 SCC 183: 1971 SCC (Cri) 1: AIR 1971 SC 866: 1971 Cri LJ 760.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1970]

[8660] — S. 342 — Non-compliance with — Effect — Suspicious circumstances prejudicial to the accused not disclosed

The High Court reversed the decision of the trial Court without noticing or giving due weight and consideration to important matters relied upon by that Court and its decision has to a large extent been influenced by suspicious circumstances disclosed at the trial which are undoubtedly prejudicial to the accused, but in regard to which no opportunity of explanation was given to him when he was examined under the provision of the Cochin Criminal Procedure Code which corresponds to S. 342 of the Indian Code. According to the principles which are recognised and acted upon by the Supreme Court in dealing with criminal appeals coming before it on special leave these would be considered adequate grounds justifying its interference with the decision of the High Court. C.M. Narayan Ittiravi Nambudiri v. State of Travan- core-Cochin, AIR 1953 SC 478, 484: 1954 Cri LJ 102: 1953 Ker LT 173.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-11-1952]

[8661] — S. 342 — Written statement — Accused not examined under S. 342, CrPC, at his own request and submitted a written statement — Written statement very exhaustive and afforded an answer to all possible questions — No prejudice caused and interference in the order is not called for on this ground

When the Court commenced the examination of the accused under S. 342, CrPC, the appellants stated that they would file written statements. These statements were very elaborate and furnished the answer of the appellants to all the points raised in the prosecution evidence.

Held :

It is no doubt that S. 342, CrPC, contemplates an examination in court and the practice of filing statements is to be deprecated. But this is not a ground for interference, unless prejudice is established. Tilkeshwar Singh v. State of Bihar, AIR 1956 SC 238: (1955) 2 SCR 1043: 1956 Cri LJ 441, 443.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-1955]

Explained in (1965) 3 SCR 235: AIR 1966 SC 97: 1966 Cri LJ 82

[8662] — S. 342 — Written statement — Filing of — Not to be deprecated unless prejudice caused

It would be possible to lay down a general rule that the written statement filed by an accused person should not receive the attention of the Court because it is likely to have been influenced by legal advice. Such a distrust of legal advice would be entirely unjustified. Harbhajan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1966 SC 97, 104: (1965) 2 SCR 235: 1966 Cri LJ 82.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and Raghubar Dayal and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-1965]

Observations in (1955) 2 SCR 1043: AIR 1956 SC 238: 1956 Cri LJ 441, explained

[8663] — S. 342 — Written statement by accused cannot be permitted especially in a jury trial. Sidheswar Ganguly v. State of W.B., AIR 1958 SC 143: 1958 SCR 749: 1958 Cri LJ 273.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-10-1957]

[8664] — Ss. 342 and 164 — Rejection of exculpatory part of the statement — Upheld where the inculpatory part not inextricably linked with the exculpatory part

Inculpatory part of the statement could be accepted even though the exculpatory part of the statement of the accused was rejected. In case, the Court finds the exculpatory part of the statement of the accused to be inherently improbable, there is no reason why the other part of the statement which implicates the accused and which the Court sees no reason to disbelieve, should not be accepted.

The present is not a case wherein the two parts of the statement are inextricably linked together and that it is not possible to accept one part without accepting the other part. Jethamal Pithaji v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, (1974) 3 SCC 393: 1973 SCC (Cri) 958: AIR 1974 SC 699: (1974) 1 SCR 645: 1974 Cri LJ 621.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-9-1973]

[8665] — Ss. 342 and 342-A — Accused's statement — Statement under S. 342 is not strictly evidence, but may be taken into consideration — Statement under S. 342-A can be read as statement proper

Under the Code of Criminal Procedure the statement of an accused may be taken into consideration in an inquiry or trial but it is not strictly evidence in the case. An accused, when he makes his statement under S. 342, does not depose as a witness because no oath is administered to him, when he is examined under that section. The recent amendment of the Code, however, enables an accused to give evidence on his own behalf under S. 342-A and this is only when an accused offers in writing to give evidence his own behalf that his statement can be read as evidence proper. State of Maharashtra v. Dr. R.B. Chowdhari, AIR 1968 SC 110: (1967) 3 SCR 708: 1968 Cri LJ 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1967]

[8666] — Ss. 342 and 537 — Questions put to the accused not strictly in compliance with S. 342 — Does not vitiate the trial if no injustice done — Mere technical defect not enough. Labhchand Dhanpat Singh Jain v. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 3 SCC 385: 1975 SCC (Cri) 11: AIR 1975 SC 182: 1975 Cri LJ 246.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg, Y.V. Chandrachud and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1974]

[8667] — S. 342(3) — Accused admitting possession of primary gold but disclaiming its acquisition or ownership — The answer being separable, the first part of the statement can be used against him — CrPC, 1973, S. 313(4). CCE v. V.P. Sayed Mohd., (1983) 1 SCC 370: 1983 SCC (Cri) 191: AIR 1983 SC 168: 1983 Cri LJ 225: (1983) 53 Comp Cas 377.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: E.S. Venkataramiah and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1983]

— S. 342-A See also Ss. 342 and 342-A

[8668] — S. 342-A — Conviction cannot be sustained where the burden of proof was wrongly shifted on the accused — No adverse inference can be drawn by failure of accused to examine himself under S. 342-A, CrPC, 1898 — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 109/467. Baidyanath Prasad Srivastava v. State of Bihar, AIR 1968 SC 1393: (1969) 1 SCR 172: 1968 Cri LJ 1650.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1968]

[8669] — S. 342-A — Accused appearing as defence witness — Evidence recorded regarding communications between conspirators during continuance of the conspiracy — Relevancy of evidence of the witness

When a person, accused along with others, voluntarily steps in the witness-box as a witness in defence, he is in the same position as an ordinary witness and is, therefore, subject to cross-examination by the prosecution counsel and evidence brought out in such cross-examination can be used against his co-accused. If such a witness incriminates his co-accused, the other accused, jointly tried with him, has the right to cross-examine him if he wants so to do.

The same consequences must also flow after accused persons have been made competent witneses for the defence under S. 342-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

An accused person cannot be compelled to give evidence on "in disproof of the charges" in S. 342-A. But once his evidence as a witness for the defence is on record, under S. 10 of the Evidence Act, 1872, evidence, as to the communications between one conspirator and the other during the time that the conspiracy is going on and relating to implementing that conspiracy, is relevant evidence. The statements by one accused to another and the evidence as to the acts done by him disclosing participation by the other accused in the conspiracy are also relevant. As to whether they merit reliance or not is another question depending upon their credibility. Tribhuvan Nath v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 3 SCC 511: 1972 SCC (Cri) 604: AIR 1973 SC 450: 1972 Cri LJ 1277.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, H.R. Khanna and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1972]

[8670] — S. 342-A — Applicability to the proceeding pending on the date it came into force — Applies to the criminal proceedings pending before the Magistrate and in which the recording of evidence had commenced on the date on which the section came into force

There is nothing in the amending Act or the amended Code which makes the provisions of S. 342-A inapplicable to criminal proceedings which are pending before a Magistrate and in which the recording of evidence has commenced. Anant Gopal Sheorey v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 915: 1959 SCR 919: 1958 Cri LJ 1429, 30.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-5-1958]

[8671] — S. 342-A — No compulsion under the section to invite contravention of Art. 20(3)

In a criminal trial any person accused of an offence is a competent witness for the defence under S. 342-A of the CrPC and may give evidence on oath in disproof of the charges made against him. It may be necessary for the accused person to enter the witness-box for substantiating his defence. But this is no reason for saying that the criminal trial compels him to be a witness against himself and is in violation of Art. 20(3). Tukaram G. Gaokar v. R.N. Shukla, AIR 1968 SC 1050, 1053: (1968) 3 SCR 422: 1968 Cri LJ 1234.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and R.S. Bachawat, C.A. Vaidialingam, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-3-1968]

[8672] — S. 342-A proviso — Scope and interpretation — High Court in an appeal against acquittal observing that the accused did not examine himself under the section and raising a presumption against him — High Court committed a breach of proviso to the section

The High Court has really committed a breach of the proviso to S. 342-A, when it has commented upon the non-examination of D an accused who died during the pendency of appeal against acquittal that he has not examined himself, as a defence witness. Under cl. (b) of the proviso to S. 342-A, CrPC, it is specifically provided that the failure of an accused to give evidence, shall not be made the subject of any comment, by any of the parties, or the Court, or give rise to any presumption against himself, or any person charged, together with him, at the same time. High Court has also taken the view that the same reasons will apply to the appellant's defence also. That is, the failure of the appellant, to give evidence, has been commented upon, by the High Court, and it has also drawn a presumption, against him, both of which are illegal, under cl. (b) of the proviso to S. 342-A, CrPC. Baidyanath Prasad Srivastava v. State of Bihar, AIR 1968 SC 1393: (1969) 1 SCR 172: 1968 Cri LJ 1650.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1968]

— S. 343 See Ss. 337 and 343

— S. 344 See also Ss. 167(2) and 344

[8673] — S. 344 — Writ of habeas corpus whether can challenge remand order under S. 344 CrPC — Constitution of India — Art. 32. A. Lakshmanarao v. Judicial Magistrate, (1970) 3 SCC 501: 1971 SCC (Cri) 107: AIR 1971 SC 186: 1971 Cri LJ 253.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1970]

[8674] — S. 344 — Remand — Magistrate's jurisdiction — Accused arrested in Jamshedpur and remanded by S.DM, Jamshedpur — Accused transferred to Gaya jail — Magistrate at Gaya would have no jurisdiction to order further remand — CrPC, 1973, S. 309. Sandip Kumar Dey v. Officer-in-Charge, Sakchi P.S., Jamshedpur, (1974) 4 SCC 273: 1974 SCC (Cri) 435: AIR 1974 SC 871: 1974 Cri LJ 740.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1974]

[8675] — S. 344 — Remand — Order of remand passed without physical production of accused not invalid — However, orders of remand not to be passed mechanically and notwithstanding the above rule Magistrate should require physical production — CrPC, 1973, S. 309. Sandip Kumar Dey v. Officer-in-Charge, Sakchi P.S., Jamshedpur, (1974) 4 SCC 273: 1974 SCC (Cri) 435: AIR 1974 SC 871: 1974 Cri LJ 740.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1974]

[8676] — S. 344 — Must be strictly followed

Those who feel called upon to deprive other persons of their personal liberty in the discharge of what they conceive to be their duty, must strictly and scrupulously observe the forms and rules of the law. Ram Narayan Singh v. State of Delhi, AIR 1953 SC 277, 278: 1953 SCR 652: 1953 Cri LJ 1113.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Ghulam Hasan and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1953]

[8677] — S. 344 — No fresh order of remand to accused on adjournment — Detention held illegal. Ram Narayan Singh v. State of Delhi, AIR 1953 SC 277: 1953 SCR 652: 1953 Cri LJ 1113.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Ghulam Hasan and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1953]

[8678] — S. 344 — Preventive detention in Mizo District — Applicability of Criminal Procedure Code — Strict compliance with S. 344 — Whether necessary — Constitution of India, Sch. VI

The Criminal Procedure Code is not applicable by reason of the Sixth Schedule to the Constitution in this area. Only the spirit of the Criminal Procedure Code applies. In this view of the matter a strict compliance with the provisions of S. 344 of the Criminal Procedure Code cannot be insisted upon. The petitioner had to be kept at Dibrugarh for want of space at Aizwal. Long distance, difficult terrain and hostile country are considerations to take into account. The period each time was slightly longer than fifteen days but not so unconsciousably long so as to violate the spirit of the Code. Although the Armed Forces delayed somewhat the petitioner's surrender to the civil authorities, which is not the intention of the law, there is not too much delay. Now he is an undertrial prisoner and on a proper remand. It cannot be now held that his detention is illegal. V.L. Rohlua v. Dy. Commr., (1970) 2 SCC 908: 1970 SCC (Cri) 587.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-1970]

[8679] — Ss. 344 and 167 — Scope of — Whether S. 344 applies even at the stage of investigation and collection of evidence

Section 167 operates at a stage when a person is arrested and either an investigation has started or is yet to start, but is such that it cannot be completed within 24 hours. Section 344, on the other hand, shows that investigation has already begun and sufficient evidence has been obtained raising a suspicion that the accused person may have committed the offence and further evidence may be obtained, to enable the police to do which, a remand to jail custody is necessary. The fact that S. 344 occurs in the chapter dealing with inquiries and trials does not mean that it does not apply to cases in which the process of investigation and collection of evidence is still going on. That is clear from the very language of sub-section (1-A) under which the Magistrate has the power to postpone the commencement of the inquiry or trial. That would be the stage prior to the commencement of the inquiry or trial which would be the stage of investigation.

The power under S. 344 can be exercised even before the submission of the charge-sheet. Gouri Shankar Jha v. State of Bihar, (1972) 1 SCC 564: 1972 SCC (Cri) 328: AIR 1972 SC 711: (1972) 3 SCR 129: 1972 Cri LJ 505.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1972]

[8680] — Ss. 344 and 167(2) — Habeas corpus application — Remand order of Lucknow Magistrate expired when detenu in Delhi Jail custody — Can Lucknow Magistrate extend remand in the absence of accused — Validity of the orders of remand — S. 167(2), CrPC — Majority view upholding remand orders — Dissenting view, that remand is illegal

The Lucknow Magistrate had done all he should under S. 344, CrPC. In the case of transferred custody, the Magistrate cannot recall the prisoner from the Court's custody. He is only required to intimate to the jail authorities, the prisoner and Court, that the original remand has been extended while adjourning the case. Raj Narain v. Supdt., Central Jail, (1970) 2 SCC 750: 1970 SCC (Cri) 543: AIR 1971 SC 178: 1971 Cri LJ 244.

Bench Strength 7. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J.[1] and J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam[2], A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1970]

[8681] — Ss. 344 and 344(1-A) — Personal presence of accused in case of remand — Judicial power to adjourn under S. 344(1-A) — Explanation to S. 344 — Detention pursuant to an order of remand not open to challenge in habeas corpus

The personal presence of accused persons before a Magistrate is not a necessary requirement for the purpose of his remand under S. 344, CrPC, at the instance of the police, though as a rule of caution it is highly desirable that the accused should be personally produced before the Magistrate, so that he may, if he so chooses, make a representation against his remand and for his release on bail.

The impugned sub-section vests in the Court seized of a criminal case power to postpone the commencement of or adjourn any inquiry or trial before him by order in writing stating the reasons therefor from time to time on such terms as the Court thinks fit and for such time as it considers reasonable. When the case is so postponed or adjourned the Court may also by a warrant remand the accused if in custody. This judicial power to postpone or adjourn the proceedings is to be exercised only if from the absence of witnesses or any other reasonable cause the Court considers it necessary or advisable to do so. Reasonable cause for remand according to explanation to this section covers a case where sufficient evidence is obtained to raise a suspicion about the complicity of an accused person in the offence and it appears likely that more evidence may be obtained by remand. The Court has in the exercise of its judicial discretion in granting or declining postponement or adjournment of the case and in ordering remand of the accused to keep in view all the relevant facts and circumstances of the case.

This discretion being vested in a Court of law has to be exercised judicially on well-recognised principles and is immune from challenge on the ground of arbitrariness or want of guidelines. Therefore, not only are the guidelines clearly contained in the statutes but the discretion being judicial is required to be exercised on general principles guided by rules of reason and justice on the facts of each case and not in any arbitrary or fanciful manner. It may also be remembered that if the discretion is exercised in an arbitrary or unjudicial manner remedy by way of resort to the higher Courts is always open to the aggrieved party.

Under sub-section (1-A) the commencement of the inquiry or trial can also be postponed. This clearly seems to refer to the stage prior to the commencement of the inquiry. The explanation makes it clear beyond doubt that reasonable cause as mentioned in sub-section (1-A) includes the likelihood of obtaining further evidence during investigation by securing a remand. The language of S. 344 is unambiguous and clear and the fact that this section occurs in Chapter 24 which contains general provisions as to inquiries and trials does not justify a strained construction. Indeed, postponement of an inquiry also seems to be within the contemplation of the general provisions as to inquiries and trials. A. Lakshmanarao v. Judicial Magistrate, (1970) 3 SCC 501: 1971 SCC (Cri) 107: AIR 1971 SC 186: 1971 Cri LJ 253.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1970]

[8682] — Ss. 344 and 344(1-A) — Whether remand order ultra vires when made in absence of accused — Whether S. 344(1-A), CrPC is unconstitutional — Whether Explanation to S. 344 extends the substantive provision in S. 344(1-A) — Whether order of remand under S. 344 open to challenge in habeas corpus proceedings — Constitution of India — Art. 14

The personal presence of accused persons before a Magistrate is not a necessary requirement for the purpose of his remand under S. 344, CrPC, at the instance of the police, though as a rule of caution it is highly desirable that the accused should be personally produced before Magistrate, so that he may, if he so chooses, make a representation against his remand for his release on bail.

The challenge to the constitutional validity of S. 344(1-A), CrPC, is untenable. The judicial power thereunder to adjourn the proceedings is to be exercised only if from the absence of witnesses or any other reasonable cause the Court considers it necessary or advisable to do so. It is in no sense arbitrary power. Not only are the guidelines clearly contained in the statute but the discretion has to be used objectively by rules of reason and justice on the facts of each case. The aggrieved party has a right of appeal in case the discretion is arbitrarily exercised.

The contention that the Explanation to S. 344 could not extend the substantive provisions of sub-section (1-A) is baseless. The Explanation merely serves to explain the scope of the expression 'reasonable cause'.

The order of remand under S. 344 is subject to judicial discretion and further subject to review by Superior Courts. The power to remand cannot be said to be ultra vires. Detention pursuant to an order of remand under S. 344 is not open to challenge in habeas corpus. A. Lakshmanarao v. Judicial Magistrate, (1970) 3 SCC 501: 1971 SCC (Cri) 107: AIR 1971 SC 186: 1971 Cri LJ 253.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1970]

— S. 344(1-A) See also Ss. 344 and 344(1-A)

[8683] — S. 344(1-A) — Undertrial prisoner — Production before Magistrate not necessary for every remand. Saptawna v. State of Assam, (1972) 4 SCC (N) 45: 1971 SCC (Cri) 247: AIR 1971 SC 813: 1971 Cri LJ 679.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P.Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-2-1971]

[8684] — S. 345 — Compounding of offence — Offence under Ss. 323/34, IPC, compromised by victim — Injuries not proved and victim not appearing — Held, conviction upheld by High Court to be set aside. Shyam Niranjan Dubey v. State of U.P., (1974) 3 SCC 771: 1974 SCC (Cri) 247: AIR 1974 SC 541: 1974 Cri LJ 475.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-1973]

[8685] — S. 345 — Compounding of offences — Compromise in case of non-compoundable offence — Effect on sentence

Held, the major offence for which the appellants have been convicted is no doubt non-compoundable but the fact of compromise can be taken into account in determining the quantum of sentence. As the parties who belong to one family have settled their dispute, it is not necessary to keep the appellants in jail for a longer period. Ram Pujan v. State of U.P., (1973) 2 SCC 456: 1973 SCC (Cri) 870: AIR 1973 SC 2418: 1973 Cri LJ 1612.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, H.R. Khanna and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1973]

Held, in Surendra Nath Mohanty v. State of Orissa, (1999) 5 SCC 238 in para 8 that that the course adopted in this case was not in accordance with law.

[8686] — S. 345 — Compounding of offences — Permission — When to be refused

Where circumstances in which the offence is committed was not commensurate with the absolute necessity of maintenance of discipline within the university campus compounding of such offences not desirable. Satyabhan Kishore v. State of Bihar, (1972) 3 SCC 350: 1972 SCC (Cri) 540: AIR 1972 SC 1554.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-1972]

[8687] — S. 345 — Compounding of offences — Permission relating to both compoundable and uncompoundable offences — Validity — Whether severable

Where the Court has given one indivisible permission for an offence which can be compounded with the permission of the Court and an offence which cannot be compounded even with the permission of the Court, such permission of the Court is invalid in its entirety. It is not permissible in such an event to sever the permission into two parts and to uphold it so far as the offence under one section is concerned and hold it to be invalid in respect of the offence under other section. Ramesh Chandra J. Thakkar v. Assandas Parmanand Jhaveri, (1973) 3 SCC 884: 1973 SCC (Cri) 566: AIR 1973 SC 84: 1973 Cri LJ 201: 1973 Bom LR 364.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-1972]

[8688] — S. 345 — Distinction between S. 62, Assam Forest Regulation and S. 345 CrPC — Compounding of offences — Offence compounded under S. 345(6), CrPC amounts to acquittal — Offence compounded under S. 62, Regulation 7 of 1891 does not amount to acquittal — Amounts to acceptance by the accused of the truth of the charge — Does not have the effect of clearing his character or vindicating his conduct — Assam Forest Regulation, 1891 (7 of 1891), Ss. 62 & 3(5)

To have the effect the offence compounded must be one specified either under sub-section (1) or sub-section (6) of S. 345, CrPC. The principle behind the scheme seems to be that wrongs of certain classes which affect mainly a person in his individual capacity or character may be sufficiently redressed by composition with or without the leave of the court as the case may be but any such composition would have the effect of an acquittal.

It must be borne in mind that although the marginal note to S. 62 of the Assam Regulation is "power to compound offences" the word "compounding" is not used in sub-section (1), clause (a) of that section. That provision only empowers a forest officer to accept compensation for a forest offence from a person suspected of having committed it. The person so suspected can avoid being proceeded with for the offence by rendering compensation. He may think that he was being unjustly suspected of an offence and he ought to defend himself or he may consider it prudent on his part to pay such compensation in order to avoid the harassment of a prosecution even when he is of the view that he had not committed the offence. By adopting the latter course he does not remove the suspicion of having committed the offence unless he is to have such benefit conferred on him by some provision of law.

Effect of S. 62 of the Assam Regulation was not the same as that of S. 345(6) of the Criminal Procedure Code. Biswabhan Das v. Gopen Chandra Hazarika, AIR 1967 SC 895, 897: (1967) 1 SCR 447: 1967 Cri LJ 828.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, J.M. Shelat and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-9-1966]

[8689] — S. 345(5) — Composition of offence before appellate court — Permitted where the offence of S. 420, IPC, between two traders was compounded and affidavit filed to that effect by the complainant. Mohd. Jamil Khan v. State of W.B., (1975) 3 SCC 305: 1974 SCC (Cri) 913.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1974]

— S. 347 See also Ss. 437, 347, 206 and 207-A

[8690] — S. 347 — Not affected by S. 21 of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954. State of U.P. v. Khushi Ram, AIR 1960 SC 905: (1960) 3 SCR 427: 1960 Cri LJ 1378.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-4-1960]

[8691] — Ss. 347 and 403(1) — Power under S. 347 — Committal can be ordered before the judgment is signed

Where an accused person is being tried before a Magistrate in respect of an offence triable by that Magistrate it appears to the Magistrate that the act of the accused amounts to an offence which is triable either exclusively or concurrently by a Court of Session he has the power to order his committal. This power, however, has to be exercised only before signing the judgment. It cannot obviously be exercised thereafter because of the provisions of S. 403(1) which bar the trial of the person again not only for the same offence but also for any other offence based on the same facts. Thakur Ram v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 911: (1966) 2 SCR 740: 1966 Cri LJ 700, 703.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar, R.S. Bachawat and P. Satyanarayana Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1965]

— S. 347(1) See also Ss. 208, 209, 210 and 347(1)

[8692] — S. 347(1) — Words — "under the provisions hereinbefore contained" — Meaning of — Magistrate deciding at some stage of the trial to commit — He must inform the accused and comply with the provision of Ch. XVIII so far as not complied with up to that stage

The words "under the provisions hereinbefore contained" in S. 347(1) CrPC are quite clear. They lay down that if the Magistrate comes to the conclusion that the accused ought to be committed for trial he shall commit in accordance with the provisions contained in the earlier part of the Code, namely, in Ch. XVIII. This of course does not mean that the Magistrate must begin over from the beginning. All that he has to do when he decides that the case ought to be committed is to inform the accused and see that the provisions of Ch. XVIII are complied with so far as they have not been complied with up to the stage at which he decides that there ought to be a commitment. The procedure under Ch. XVIII is laid down in Ss. 208 to 213 of the Code. Chhadamilal Jain v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 41: (1960) 1 SCR 736: 1960 Cri LJ 145, 149.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1959]

[8693] — Ss. 347(1), 208 and 537 — Commitment after the commencement of trial — Effect of non-compliance of S. 208 before committing the case — Prejudice to the accused must be presumed — Defect is not curable by S. 537

Magistrate started the case as a trial and finally committed the case without affording an opportunity to the accused to produce defence i.e. without complying with the provisions of S. 208. Question came up for consideration as to what was the effect of non-compliance with S. 208 of the CrPC and whether it is curable under S. 537 of the Code.

Held :

What we have to see is whether the breach of S. 208 which has occurred in this case is such that the Court will presume prejudice to the accused by the mere fact of the breach. If such presumption can be made, the breach would obviously be not curable under S. 537 of the Code, even assuming that, that section applies. The question, therefore, which eventually emerges is whether this breach of S. 208 is of such a character that the Court will presume that there has been prejudice to the accused by the mere fact of the breach. Now the accused has a right under S. 208 to produce evidence in defence, if any, before the Magistrate proceeds to decide whether a charge should be framed or not. The Magistrate's decision whether the charge should be framed or not is bound to be affected one way or the other if evidence is produced by the accused, for the Magistrate would then be bound to consider the effect of that evidence on the question of framing the charge. If the accused is denied the opportunity of leading that evidence which he has a right to do under S. 208, it seems that the denial of such right is sufficient to cause prejudice to the accused and S. 537 would have no application to a case of this kind. Chhadamilal Jain v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 41: (1960) 1 SCR 736: 1960 Cri LJ 145, 149.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1959]

— S. 350 See also Ss. 537 and 350

[8694] — S. 350 — Special Judge deciding the case on transfer of his predecessor on the basis of the evidence recorded by the predecessor — S. 350, CrPC did not apply to the trial before the Special Judge — The trial is illegal — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, S. 8(1)(3) (Before amendment making S. 350 CrPC applicable to the proceedings under the Act)

Under the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, as it stood before it amendment expressly making S. 350 CrPC applicable to proceedings before a Special Judge S. 350 of the Code was not available when one Special Judge succeeded another. The successor Judge had no authority under the law to proceed with the trial of the case from the stage at which his predecessor left it. The proceedings before him were clearly incompetent and the conviction of the accused could not be supported on the Judge recording the conviction had not heard the evidence in the case himself. Pyare Lal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 690, 693: (1962) 3 SCR 328, 335-36: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 688, 690: (1962) 1 LLJ 637.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and A.K. Sarkar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1961]

[8695] — S. 350 — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952 — S. 3 (Before Amendment Act 2 of 1956) and S. 3(a) (added by Amendment Act 2 of 1956) — Trial commencing before the Special Judge up to 26-10-1956 — Another Special Judge continuing the part, heard trial from 20-12-1956 and convicted the appellant — S. 3 (before amendment of 1956) did not contemplate that S. 350 CrPC becomes applicable to proceedings before a Special Judge — S. 3(a) (Added by Amendment Act 2 of 1956) was not retrospective in effect. Krishan Lal Dhawan v. Delhi Admn., 1962 Supp (3) SCR 209: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 572-73.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1962]

[8696] — S. 350 — Scope — Not applicable to Court of Session

The general principle of law is that a Judge or Magistrate can decide a case only on evidence taken by him. Section 350 of the Code is a statutory departure from this principle. Section 350 of the Code is applicable only to magistrates and not to a Court of Session and cannot therefore be applied to a Special Judge under sub-section (3) as it makes only those provisions of the Code applicable to him which would apply to a Court of Session. Pyare Lal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 690, 692: (1962) 3 SCR 328: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 688: (1962) 1 LLJ 637.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and A.K. Sarkar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1961]

[8697] — S. 350 — Part-heard trial — Evidence partly recorded by one Magistrate/Judge and partly by other — Magistrate/Judge can re-summon a witness already examined only for further examination — Fresh examination of such witnesses for fresh trial not permissible — Accused has no right to claim de novo trial — Effect of amendment of S. 350 of 1898 Code by amending Act of 1955 — CrPC, 1973, S. 326. Ranbir Yadav v. State of Bihar, (1995) 4 SCC 392: 1995 SCC (Cri) 728: AIR 1995 SC 1219: 1995 Cri LJ 2665.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1995]

Payare Lal v. State of Punjab, (1962) 3 SCR 328: AIR 1962 SC 690, distinguished

[8698] — S. 352 — Power of High Court to hold trial in camera

The power to hold a trial in camera must include the power to hold a part of the trial in camera, or to prohibit excessive publication of a part of the proceedings at such trial. What would meet the ends of justice will always depend upon the facts of each case and the requirements of justice. Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1967 SC 1, 10: (1966) 3 SCR 744.

Bench Strength 9. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J.[1] and A.K. Sarkar[2], K.N. Wanchoo[1], M. Hidayatullah[3], J.C. Shah[4], J.R. Mudholkar[1], S.M. Sikri[1], R.S. Bachawat[5] and V. Ramaswami[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1966]

[8699] — S. 353 — Evidence to be taken before accused or his pleader

In every criminal trial the accused is entitled to have the witnesses examined in his presence and if a departure is made and witnesses cannot be brought to Court for one reason or the other whether due to the action of the accused or the inaction or want of diligence on the part of the prosecution, and they have to be examined on commission beyond the frontiers of this country, it is incumbent upon the prosecution and the Court in ensuring a fair and impartial trial to afford to the accused the same facilities for employment of a lawyer, the payment of his to and fro air fare to the place where the Commission will examine witnesses and his daily expenses while he is engaged in the work of the Commission. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 1 SCC 523: 1971 SCC (Cri) 231: AIR 1971 SC 1630: 1971 Cri LJ 1188.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, J. [Date of decision: 4-2-1971]

[8700] — Ss. 356(1) and 537 — Compliance with — Deposition signed by witness but not signed by Judge — Same deposition read over and opportunity for cross-examination given — Accused declines — Applicability of S. 537, CrPC can be invoked

Whether the deposition taken in the presence of the Special Judge, signed by the witness but not signed by the Judge who had in the meantime passed away, could be read over to the witnesses by the successor Judge who also allowed cross-examination, thereon.

Held :

That this did not vitiate the trial. Section 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure can be invoked as the irregularity did not go to the root of the matter and there was no failure of justice at all. The offer to cross-examine the witness was declined by the accused appellant who also did not object at the time when the depositions were read over to the witness. The rule in S. 356(1) should be considered as directory. L.D. Healy v. State of U.P., (1969) 1 SCC 149.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-11-1968]

[8701] — S. 356(2-A) — Applicability of — Applies to only oral evidence — Does not apply to documentary evidence. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8702] — Ss. 360 and 537 — Statement not read over to the witness — Defect is a curable irregularity in the absence of proof of prejudice — Object of the section is to ensure that the record faithfully and accurately embodies the gist of what the witness actually said — Before prejudice can be substantiated it must be disclosed by affidavit where the accuracy lies. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 214: 1952 SCR 812: 1952 Cri LJ 1131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1952]

— S. 361 See also Ss. 537 and 361

[8703] — Ss. 361 and 537 — Applicability of — Witnesses being examined in English and Tamil — Accused not knowing any of the languages being represented by eminent lawyers conversant with both the languages — Plea not raised when witnesses were being examined — Violation of S. 361 merely an irregularity — No prejudice caused to the accused — Irregularity curable by S. 537 — Trial not vitiated

Even if it is assumed that the appellant did not know English or Tamil the violation of S. 361(1), Criminal Procedure Code, was merely an irregularity and it is not shown in this case that there is any prejudice caused to the appellant on this account. It is pointed out by the Sessions Judge that the appellant did not make any objection at the time the evidence was given and it appears that he was represented by two eminent advocates, in the trial Court who knew both these languages and who would not have allowed the interest of the appellant to be jeopardised even to the smallest extent. The irregularity has not resulted in any injustice and the provisions of S. 537, Criminal Procedure Code, are applicable to cure the defect. Shivanarayan Kabra v. State of Madras, AIR 1967 SC 986: (1967) 1 SCR 138: (1967) 1 MLJ (SC) 159: 1967 Cri LJ 946, 49, 50.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1966]

— S. 362(2-A) See Ss. 243 and 362(2-A)

[8704] — S. 363 — Remarks respecting demeanour of witness — Omission to record remarks by trial Judge during or at close of examination of witness — Recording later in judgment is to be taken into consideration — Appellate Court not obliged to give weight to remarks which directly relate to obliging other persons by witness and how that demeanour obliged them is not obvious. Ganeshbhai Sankarbhai v. State of Gujarat, (1972) 2 SCC 73: 1972 SCC (Cri) 647: AIR 1972 SC 1618: 1972 Cri LJ 1029.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, K.K. Mathew and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1972]

— S. 364 See Ss. 164 and 364

See also Ss. 465, 364 and 365

— S. 364(3) See Ss. 164(2) and 364(3)

See also Ss. 164(2), 364(3) and 533(1)

[8705] — Ss. 364(3) and 164(3) — Scope — Recording of confessions

It is unnecessary to emphasise that the safeguards provided by S. 164(3) and S. 364(3) are valuable safeguards intended to protect the interest of innocent persons. The recording of a confession is a solemn and serious act, and so any Magistrate who records confessions must see to it that a tone of casualness does not enter in the transaction. Babu Singh v. State of Punjab, (1963) 3 SCR 749: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 566.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1962]

[8706] — Ss. 364(3) and 533 — Irregularity in recording confession

If a confession is recorded not by the Magistrate himself as required by S. 364(1) it is necessary that the Magistrate should make a memorandum as the examination proceeds and the memorandum should be signed by him.

Unless it is shown that prejudice has been caused to the accused the irregularity committed by the Magistrate in not complying with S. 364(3) will not vitiate the confessions nor will it make them inadmissible. Babu Singh v. State of Punjab, (1963) 3 SCR 749: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 566.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1962]

— S. 365 See Ss. 465, 364 and 365

[8707] — Ss. 366 and 369 — "Judgment" — Meaning and scope — Form and essence of judgment — Draft judgment — Nature

The final operative act is that which is formally declared in open court with the intention of making it the operative decision of the Court. That is what constitutes the "judgment".

A judgment is the final decision of the Court intimated to the parties and to the world at large by formal "pronouncement" or "delivery" in open court. It is a judicial act which must be performed in a judicial way. Small irregularities in the manner of pronouncement or the mode of delivery do not matter that the substance of the thing must be there: that can neither be blurred nor left to inference and conjecture nor can it be vague. All the rest — the manner in which it is to be recorded, the way in which it is to be authenticated, the signing and the sealing, all the rules designed to secure certainty about its content and matter — can be cured; but not the hard core, namely, the formal intimation of the decision and its contents formally declared in a judicial way in open Court. The exact way in which this is done does not matter.

Now up to the moment the judgment is delivered Judges have the right to change their mind. There is a sort of 'locus poenitentiae' and indeed last minute alterations often do occur. Therefore, however much a draft judgment may have signed beforehand, it is nothing but a draft till formally delivered as the judgment of the Court. Only then does it crystallise into a full fledged judgment and become operative. It follows that the Judge who "delivers" the judgment, or causes it to be delivered by a brother Judge, must be in existence as a member of the Court at the moment of delivery so that he can, if necessary, stop delivery and say that he has changed his mind. There is no need for him to be physically present in court but he must be in existence as a member of the Court and be in a position to stop delivery and effect an alteration should there be any last minute change of mind on his part. If he hands in a draft and signs it and indicates that he intends that to be the final expository of his views it can be assumed that those are still his views at the moment of delivery if he is alive and in a position to change his mind but takes no steps to arrest delivery.

As soon as the judgment is delivered, that becomes the operative pronouncement of the Court. The law then provides for the manner in which it is to be authenticated and made certain. The rules regarding this differ but they do not form the essence of the matter and if there is irregularity in carrying them out it is curable. Thus, if a judgment happens not to be signed and is inadvertently acted on and executed, the proceedings consequent on it would be valid because the judgment, if it can be shown to have been validly delivered, would stand good despite defects in the mode of its subsequent authentication. Surendra Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 194, 196, 19: 1954 SCR 330: 1954 Cri LJ 475.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1953]

[8708] — S. 366(1) — Instead of trial Judge conveying result of the trial, Sheristedar translating to the accused the concluding part of the judgment — Held, procedure introducing no infirmity in the instant case. Iqbal Ismail Sodawala v. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 3 SCC 140: 1974 SCC (Cri) 764: AIR 1974 SC 1880: (1975) 1 SCR 710: 1974 Cri LJ 1291: (1975) 12 ACC 27.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1974]

— S. 367 See also Ss. 368 and 367

[8709] — S. 367 — Contents of judgment — CrPC, 1973, S. 354

Where the High Court dealt with the case in a very superficial manner and statement of reasons was not elaborate enough, held, the judgment did not comply with S. 367 of CrPC, 1898. (Para 19).

Jamuna Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (1974) 3 SCC 774: 1974 SCC (Cri) 250: AIR 1974 SC 1822: (1974) 2 SCR 609: 1974 Cri LJ 890.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1973]

[8710] — S. 367 — Constitutionality of the discretionary power in courts to award death sentence or life imprisonment — Criteria and considerations for the award of death sentence — Regard to latest trends world over in this area — Effect of changes made by new S. 354(3), Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 and the earlier change in S. 367, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 — The "special reasons" necessary for award of death sentence in the light of fundamental rights in Arts. 14, 19 and 21 — Exceptional situations where death sentence may still be justified, pointed out — Procedure for awarding sentence in accordance with S. 235(2), Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 elaborated upon — Stress on the criminal and not his crimes — Fact that the appellants were not a public menace but were activated by overpowering feelings against the victims only, held, relevant — Number of deaths caused, in the totality of facts, held, not decisive — Constitution of India — Art. 136 — Nature and limits of Supreme Court's jurisdiction on question of sentence — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302. Rajendra Prasad v. State of U.P., (1979) 3 SCC 646: 1979 SCC (Cri) 749: AIR 1979 SC 916: 1979 Cri LJ 792.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer[1], D.A. Desai[1] and A.P. Sen[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1979]

See also (1979) 3 SCC 714: 1979 SCC (Cri) 817; (1979) 3 SCC 727: 1979 SCC (Cri) 830 and (1979) 3 SCC 745: 1979 SCC (Cri) 848

See comment at (1980) 2 SCC 684, 749

[8711] — S. 367 — Appreciation of evidence — Court's duty

It is the obvious duty of the Court to give a summary of the evidence of material witnesses and appraise the evidence with a view to arriving at the conclusion whether testimony of the witness should be believed.

The practice of writing judgments having copious quotations verbatim from the evidence of the witnesses without the Judges' full and detailed comment as might be expected, though seems fairly general in Hyderabad was held not to be commended. Aftab Ahmad Khan v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1954 SC 436: (1955) 1 SCR 588: 1954 Cri LJ 1155.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1954]

[8712] — S. 367 — Awarding death sentence not the general rule — There should be some reasons for not awarding life imprisonment. Asgar v. State of U.P., (1977) 3 SCC 283: 1977 SCC (Cri) 489: AIR 1977 SC 2000: 1977 Cri LJ 1604.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-7-1977]

[8713] — S. 367 — Jury trial not different

There is no difference between a trial with the help of the jury and a trial by a Judge in so far as the appraisement of evidence is concerned. The value of the evidence in each case must necessarily be the same. Anant Chintaman Lagu v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 500, 522: (1960) 2 SCR 460: 1960 Cri LJ 682: 62 Bom LR 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar[2] and M. Hidayatullah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1959]

[8714] — S. 367 — Language of judgment — Disapproval of witness no ground for intemperate language

Where the testimony of a defence witness did not impress the courts below, they should have expressed their opinion in temperate language usually associated with and reflecting the impersonal dignity of judicial restraint. The strong language used in condemning him and otherwise aspersions on him which were unnecessary is uncalled for and we cannot approve of those observations. Nageshwar Shri Krishna Ghobe v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 4 SCC 23: 1973 SCC (Cri) 664: AIR 1973 SC 165: 1973 Cri LJ 235: 1973 Bom LR 483: (1973) 2 SCR 377.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1972]

[8715] — S. 367 — Personal views or observations not to be included

It was not quite legitimate for the learned Additional Sessions Judge to do so because it would be substituting his view and observations in the place of evidence which could be tested by cross-examination and in respect of which it would be open also to the accused to furnish an explanation if such an explanation was asked for in his examination under S. 342, CPC. Pritam Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 415, 425: 1956 Cri LJ 805.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1955]

[8716] — S. 367 — Statutory burden of proof on the accused — Nature and extent — Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, S. 4(1)

Where the burden of an issue lies upon the accused he, is not required to discharge that burden by leading evidence to prove his case beyond a reasonable doubt. That is, of course, the test prescribed in deciding whether the prosecution has discharged its onus to prove the guilt of the accused; but the same test cannot be applied to an accused person who seeks to discharge the burden placed upon him under S. 4(1) of the Prevention of Corruption Act. It is sufficient if the accused person succeeds in proving a preponderance of probability in favour of his case. It is not necessary for the accused person to prove his case beyond a reasonable doubt or in default to incur a verdict of guilty. The onus of proof lying upon the accused person is to prove his case by a preponderance of probability. As soon as he succeeds in doing so the burden is shifted to the prosecution which still has to discharge its original onus that never shifts i.e. that of establishing on the whole case the guilt of the accused beyond a reasonable doubt. V.D. Jhingan v. State of U.P., AIR 1966 SC 1762, 1764: (1966) 3 SCR 736: 1966 Cri LJ 1357.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, V. Ramaswami and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1966]

[8717] — Ss. 367(1) and 537 — Non-compliance with procedural requirement in the matter of signing of judgment — Sessions Judge failing to append his signature to the judgment because judgment had not till then been transcribed — Judgment ultimately transcribed and signed by Sessions Judge and copy of judgment thereafter, supplied to accused — Accused filing appeal against judgment of trial court — Appeal dismissed by High Court — Sessions Judge's failure to sign the judgment did not occasion failure to justice. Iqbal Ismail Sodawala v. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 3 SCC 140: 1974 SCC (Cri) 764: AIR 1974 SC 1880: (1975) 1 SCR 710: 1974 Cri LJ 1291: (1975) 12 ACC 27.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1974]

[8718] — S. 367(2) — Award of lesser sentence without stating reasons

The trial Court awarded the sentence of imprisonment for life without giving any reasons at all for adopting that course. It is true that the appellants were not convicted in the present case for the offence of murder simpliciter under S. 302, IPC but that is immaterial. The conviction of the appellants under S. 396, IPC was not based on constructive liability as members of the gang of dacoits. There was clear finding by the Court of Session which has been upheld by the High Court that each of these appellants committed a cold-blooded murder by shooting two inmates of the house simply with the object of facilitating commission of dacoity by them. Those persons were shot and killed even though they had not even tried to put up any resistance. The offence under S. 396, IPC, was therefore, no less heinous than an offence under S. 302, IPC. In these circumstances, when the Court of Session gave no reason at all for not awarding the sentence of death and for sentencing them to imprisonment for life only, it cannot be held that the High Court was not justified in interfering with that order. Iman Ali v. State of Assam, AIR 1968 SC 1464, 1465: (1968) 3 SCR 610: 1969 Cri LJ 23.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1968]

[8719] — S. 367(5) — Award of death sentence — Reasons for, must be given — Change in law effected by the new Code — Occurrence taking place after the coming into force of the new Code — Failure to record special reasons for the award of death sentence in preference to life imprisonment vitiating the award of sentence — Application of rule of absence of extenuating circumstances evolved under the old Code improper — CrPC, 1973, S. 354(3). Balwant Singh v. State of Punjab, (1976) 1 SCC 425: 1976 SCC (Cri) 43: AIR 1976 SC 230: (1976) 2 SCR 684: 1976 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-11-1975]

[8720] — S. 367(5) — Justification for — Held, under the new CrPC normal punishment for murder is imprisonment for life and death penalty is an exception — Only special facts and circumstances will warrant the passing of the death sentence — A just balance has to be struck between the aggravating and the mitigating circumstances before the option is exercised — Historical developments since 1955 traced — CrPC, 1973, S. 354(3) — Criminal Procedure Code (Amendment) Act, 1955 — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302. State of Rajasthan v. Kheraj Ram, (2003) 8 SCC 224: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1979.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-8-2003]

Ediga Anamma v. State of A.P., (1974) 4 SCC 443: 1974 SCC (Cri) 479; Bachan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC 684: 1980 SCC (Cri) 580; Machhi Singh v. State of Punjab, (1983) 3 SCC 470: 1983 SCC (Cri) 681, relied on [8721] — S. 367(5) — Amendment introduced by Act 26 of 1955 — Effect of

After the amendment of S. 367(5), CrPC by Act 26 of 1955 the discretion of the Court in deciding whether to impose the sentence of death or of imprisonment for life has become wider. In view of the peculiar facts and circumstances of this case the sentence of imprisonment for life would seem to meet the ends of justice. Raghubir Singh v. State of U.P., (1972) 3 SCC 79: 1972 SCC (Cri) 399: AIR 1971 SC 2156: 1971 Cri LJ 1468.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and S.C. Roy, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-8-1971]

[8722] — Ss. 368 and 367 — Discretion of Court either to award capital sentence or life imprisonment — If reasonable and in the public interest

The Criminal Procedure Code lays down a detailed procedure for determining whether the sentence of death or something less is appropriate in the case. The accused who is charged for murder knows that he is liable to sentence of death in the committing Court itself. He knows what the evidence is. He further knows that if after trial in the Sessions Court he is found guilty of murder, he is liable to be sentenced to the extreme penalty. Apart from the cross-examination of the witnesses, the Criminal Procedure Code requires that the accused must be questioned with regard to the circumstances appearing against him in the evidence. He is also questioned generally on the case and there is an opportunity for him to say whatever he wants to say. He has a right to examine himself as a witness, thereafter, and give evidence on the material facts. He and his counsel are at liberty to address the Court not merely on the question of guilt but also on the question of sentence, and so on and so forth. After the prosecution and the accused have had their full say, the Court is principally concerned with the facts and circumstances; whether aggravating or mitigating, which are connected with the particular crime under inquiry. Unless it can be shown that all the aforesaid provisions of law are invalid, they must be regarded as valid and death sentence imposed after trial in accordance with the procedure established by law cannot be said to be unconstitutional under Art. 21.

The policy of the law in giving a very wide discretion in the matter of punishment to the Judge has its origin in the impossibility of laying down standards.

The impossibility of laying down standards is at the very core of the criminal law as administered in India which invests the Judges with a very wide discretion in the matter of fixing the degree of punishment. The discretion in the matter of sentence is, as already pointed out, liable to be corrected by superior courts. Laying down of standards to the limited extent possible as was done in the Model Judicial Code would not serve the purpose. The exercise of judicial discretion on well-recognised principles is, in the final analysis, the safest possible safeguard for the accused. Jagmohan Singh v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 20: 1973 SCC (Cri) 169: AIR 1973 SC 947: 1973 Cri LJ 370: (1973) 2 SCR 541.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and A.N. Ray, I.D. Dua, D.G. Palekar and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-1972]

— S. 369 See Ss. 366 and 369
See also Ss. 417 and 369
See also Ss. 424 and 369
See also Ss. 439(6), 369 and 430

[8723] — Ss. 369, 424, 430 and 561-A — No alteration in judgment after signature — Scope — Not affected by provisions of Ss. 424, 430 and 561-A — High Court with its original as well as appellate criminal jurisdiction also comes within the purview of the general prohibition in S. 369 — Hence, High Court has no power to alter or review its own judgment — CrPC, 1973, S. 362

Section 369 is general in its application. The words 'no court' would include all courts and apply in respect of all judgments. Though the section appears in Chap. 26, its application is not limited to trial courts alone. The reference to the High Court in the section would indicate that the High Court is also covered by the provisions of the section subject to the exception provided for. The application of the section cannot be restricted to judgments delivered by the High Court only in criminal trials. The criminal jurisdiction as conferred by the Letters Patent on the High Court covers not only the original criminal jurisdiction but also appellate powers. State of Orissa v. Ram Chander Agarwala, (1979) 2 SCC 305: 1979 SCC (Cri) 462: AIR 1979 SC 87: 1979 Cri LJ 33.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1978]

[8724] — Ss. 369 and 424 — Scope — No alteration in judgment

Section 369, read with S. 424 of the Code, makes it clear that the Appellate Court is not to alter or review the judgment once signed, except for the purpose of correcting a clerical error. Sankatha Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1208, 1209: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 817: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 288.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-1962]

[8725] — Ss. 369 and 439(6) — Finality of judgment — S. 369 prescribes for the finality of judgments of the trial Court and does not apply to judgment of the Appellate Court — S. 439(6) is not controlled by S. 369

Per Das, J.

The finality embodied in S. 369 is only in relation to the Court which pronounces the judgment, for it forbids the Court, after it has signed "its" judgment to alter or review the same. In other words after pronouncing of the judgment the Court that pronounces it becomes "functus officio". These is indication in the Code of Criminal Procedure itself that the purpose of S. 369 is not to prescribe a general rule of finality of all judgments of all criminal courts but is only to prescribe finality for the judgments of the trial Court so far as the trial Court is concerned. Section 369 does not in any manner control S. 439(6). U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[8726] — Ss. 369(6) and 423(2) — Accused is entitled to show cause against his conviction under S. 369(6) subject to the limitations of S. 423(2) in the case of trial by jury

Per Bhagwati, J.

In the case of trials by jury where an accused person has been convicted on the verdict of a jury and is called upon under S. 439(2) of the Criminal Procedure Code to show cause why his sentence should not be enhanced he is entitled under S. 439(6) to show cause against his conviction but only so far as S. 423(2) of the Code allows and has not an unlimited right of impugning the conviction on the evidence. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[8727] — S. 371(1) — Words "without delay" — Meaning of — Delay of nine months unjustified — Consequence of inordinate delay in supply of copy of judgment to accused

The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure contemplate that the judgment should be complete in all other respects by the time it is pronounced and all that need be done is that the presiding officer should insert the date and append his signature to it at the time of the pronouncement. The words "without delay" in S. 37(1) emphasise the fact that there should not be much time-lag between the pronouncement of the judgment and the supply of its copy to the accused. Where a judgment is merely dictated and not transcribed and as such not signed at the time of its pronouncement, a delay of more than nine months in the supply of the copy of judgment is wholly unjustified.

If the supply of the copy of the judgment is inordinately delayed, the consequence would inevitably be that the accused would not be able to file and appeal and obtain an order for his release on bail within a reasonable time even though it be a fit case for his release on bail. Another result of the above would be that a convicted person who is sentenced to undergo imprisonment for a short period would undergo the entire sentence of imprisonment by the time the copy of the judgment is supplied to him. The right of appeal for such a convicted person would be thus rendered illusory even though he may have a good arguable case in appeal. Iqbal Ismail Sodawala v. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 3 SCC 140: 1974 SCC (Cri) 764: AIR 1974 SC 1880: (1975) 1 SCR 710: 1974 Cri LJ 1291: (1975) 12 ACC 27.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1974]

— S. 374 See also Ss. 376, 375, 374 and 423

[8728] — S. 374 — Non-compliance with provisions of S. 374 by High Court — Supreme Court can go into merits of the case — Powers of Supreme Court — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302

In an appeal, the Supreme Court has the same power as the High Court has and it is entitled to go into the merits of the case.

It cannot be said that the High Court was wrong in awarding death sentence and the case is not a fit one for interfering with the order of the High Court. Pal Singh v. State of Punjab, (1969) 3 SCC 196: 1970 SCC (Cri) 53.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1969]

[8729] — S. 374 — Appeal against conviction and sentence of death pending before High Court — Proceedings for confirmation of death sentence also pending — Duty of the High Court to decide the case as appeal or to reassess the evidence independently — Not decided

It was contended that though the appellants had appealed against their conviction and sentence, there was before the Court a proceeding for the confirmation of the death sentence and in such a case, the High Court must reassess the evidence under S. 374 and not merely dispose of the case as an appeal. No opinion as to which is the correct mode of approach be expressed for even on reappreciation of the evidence, the conclusion would have been same. Sultan v. State of Haryana, (1972) 3 SCC 211: 1972 SCC (Cri) 286: AIR 1972 SC 811: 1972 Cri LJ 527.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-1972]

[8730] — S. 374 — Capital sentence — Duty of the High Court while confirming capital sentence

While confirming capital sentence, it is the duty of the High Court to itself consider what sentence should be imposed and not be content with the trial Court's decision on the point. It should come to an independent conclusion of its own on the question of sentence. Neti Sreeramulu v. State of A.P., (1974) 3 SCC 314: 1973 SCC (Cri) 940: AIR 1973 SC 2551: 1973 Cri LJ 1775: (1973) 3 SCR 844.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-4-1973]

[8731] — S. 374 — Confirmation by High Court of death sentence passed by Sessions Court — In such confirmation proceedings the High Court cannot arbitrarily refuse to hear the accused either in person or through counsel or other agent. State of Maharashtra v. Sindhi, (1975) 1 SCC 647: 1975 SCC (Cri) 283: AIR 1975 SC 1665: 1975 Cri LJ 1475: (1975) 12 ACC 179.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1975]

[8732] — S. 374 — Duty of High Court to reappreciate the evidence and come to an independent finding — High Court making only a general reference to the evidence of the eyewitness and observing that all witnesses examined by the prosecution inspire full confidence — Held, improper — Case not remanded — Supreme Court reappreciating evidence in the interest of justice to prevent further delay. Charan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1975) 3 SCC 39: 1974 SCC (Cri) 735: AIR 1975 SC 246: (1975) 1 SCR 561: 1974 Cri LJ 1253.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-7-1974]

[8733] — S. 374 — High Court giving the accused benefit of doubt and acquitting them — Supreme Court finding that High Court entered into speculation and its findings could not be supported by the evidence on record — Case remanded for reconsideration. State of U.P. v. Buddha, (1977) 1 SCC 632: 1977 SCC (Cri) 568: AIR 1977 SC 1799: 1977 Cri LJ 1445.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1976]

[8734] — S. 374 — Reference for confirmation of death sentence — High Court must examine the entire evidence for itself independently of Sessions Court. Balak Ram v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 219: 1974 SCC (Cri) 837: AIR 1974 SC 2165: 1974 Cri LR (SC) 530: 1974 Cri LJ 1486.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-8-1974]

[8735] — S. 374 — Reference for confirmation of death sentence — Duty of High Court — Judicial approach must be cautious, circumspect and careful — Arguments of appellants and infirmities pressed by them must be scrupulously examined — High Court examining the case according to these principles — Acts in accordance with the provisions of the section

In a murder trial when an accused person stands charged with the commission of an offence punishable under S. 302, he stands the risk of being subjected to the highest penalty prescribed by the Indian Penal Code; and naturally judicial approach in dealing with such cases has to be cautious, circumspect and careful. In dealing with such appeals or reference proceedings where the question of confirming a death sentence is involved, the High Court has also to deal with the matter carefully and to examine all relevant and material circumstances before upholding the conviction and confirming the sentence of death. All arguments urged by the appellants and all material infirmities pressed before the High Court on their behalf must be scrupulously examined and considered before a final decision is reached. The fact that ten persons had been ordered to be hanged by the trial Judge necessarily imposed a more serious and onerous responsibility on the High Court in dealing with the present appeals. Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202: (1964) 8 SCR 133: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1964]

[8736] — S. 374 — Reference under — Scope of reference and powers of the High Court — Reference proceedings are a reappraisal and a re-assessment of the entire facts and law in order that the High Court should be satisfied on the materials about the guilt or innocence of the accused persons — It is High Court's duty to consider the proceedings in all their aspects and come to an independent conclusion on the materials apart from the view expressed by the Sessions Judge

On a reference to the High Court under S. 374, CrPC, the entire case is before the High Court and in fact it is a continuation of the trial of the accused on the same evidence and additional evidence and that is why the High Court is given power to take fresh evidence if it so desires. In an appeal under Or. 41, CPC, an Appellate Court has to find whether the decision arrived at by the Court of first instance is correct or not on facts and law; but there is a difference when a reference is made under S. 374, CrPC, and when disposing of an appeal under S. 423, CrPC, and that is that the High Court has to satisfy itself as to whether a case beyond reasonable doubt has been made out against the accused persons for the infliction of the penalty of death. In fact the proceedings before the High Court are a reappraisal and the reassessment of the entire facts and law in order that the High Court should be satisfied on the materials about the guilt or innocence of the accused persons. Such being the case, it is the duty of the High Court to consider the proceedings in all their aspects and come to an independent conclusion on the materials, apart from the view expressed by the Sessions Judge. In so doing, the High Court will be assisted by the opinion expressed by the Sessions Judge, but under the provisions of the law above-mentioned it is for the High Court to come to an independent conclusion of its own. Jumman v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 469: 1957 Cri LJ 586.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-11-1956]

[8737] — S. 374 — View taken by High Court unreasonable and unwarranted by materials on record — Supreme Court not prevented from interfering. State of U.P. v. Samman Dass, (1972) 3 SCC 201: 1972 SCC (Cri) 275: AIR 1972 SC 677: 1972 Cri LJ 487: 1973 ALJ 489.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1972]

[8738] — Ss. 374, 375 and 376 — Confirmation of death sentence — Scope of enquiry by High Court — Obligation to reassess the entire evidence — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 366 to 368. Subhash v. State of U.P., (1976) 3 SCC 629: 1976 SCC (Cri) 483: AIR 1976 SC 1924: 1976 Cri LJ 1521: 1977 MLJ (Cri) 129.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, R.S. Sarkaria and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1976]

[8739] — Ss. 374, 375 and 376 — Duty and powers of High Court

On a reference under S. 374, CrPC the entire case is before the High Court. In hearing such a reference the High Court has to satisfy itself as to whether a case beyond a reasonable doubt has been made out against the accused persons for the infliction of the penalty of death. In other words, in hearing the reference it is the duty of the High Court to reappraise and to re-assess the entire evidence and to come to an independent conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of each of the accused persons mentioned in the reference. Surjit Singh v. State of Punjab, Cri. A. No. 77 of 1968

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Shah and Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-1968]

[8740] — Ss. 374, 375 and 376 — Reference to High Court to confirm death sentence — Held, the High Court had examined the case for itself and found it proved beyond reasonable doubt — Dictum of Bhupendra Singh case was followed. Hari Har Singh v. State of U.P., (1975) 4 SCC 148: 1975 SCC (Cri) 405: AIR 1975 SC 1501: 1975 Cri LJ 1315.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-4-1975]

— S. 375 See Ss. 374, 375 and 376
See also Ss. 376, 375, 374 and 423
— S. 376 See also Ss. 374, 375 and 376

[8741] — S. 376 — Confirmation of death sentence — High Court's power in proceedings of — High Court must consider the evidence carefully and record its conclusions clearly

In dealing with confirmation cases, the High Court should consider the evidence carefully and record its conclusions clearly after dealing with all the points urged before it by the counsel for the defence. Judicial approach both at the trial and in appeal has to be careful and thorough and so it is of utmost importance that no room should be left for any legitimate complaint by the defence that important points were argued before the High Court and were not considered by it. Gurcharan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 340: (1963) 3 SCR 585: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 323, 27.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-1962]

[8742] — S. 376 — Confirmation of death sentence by one Judicial Commissioner as ultimate appellate authority — Fact of there being no

Bench of two judges to deal with death sentences not an adequate ground for converting Supreme Court into an ordinary court of appeal

If in any particular State there is only one Judicial Commissioner as the ultimate appellate authority, and if the confirmation of sentence of death has to made by him, the procedure laid down must be followed. The fact that there is not a Bench of two Judges as in the High Courts to deal which death sentences is not an adequate ground for converting the Supreme Court into an ordinary Court of appeal and confirmation in such matters. Kalawati v. State of Himachal Pradesh, AIR 1953 SC 131: 1953 SCR 546: 1953 Cri LJ 668, 669.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1953]

[8743] — S. 376 — Difference of opinion among the Judges open question of sentence

When appellate Judges, who agree on the question of guilt, differ on that of sentence, it is usual not to impose the death penalty unless there are compelling reasons. Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216, 223: (1955) 1 SCR 1083: 1955 Cri LJ 572.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1954]

[8744] — S. 376 — Practice of High Courts of also hearing appeal of accused with confirmation proceedings approved

It has been the uniform practice of the High Courts in India to hear the reference for confirmation of sentence of death and the appeal preferred by the accused together and to deal with the merits of the case against the accused in the light of all the material questions of law as well as fact and to adjudicate upon the guilt of the accused and the appropriateness of the sentence of death. Rama Shankar Singh v. State of W.B., AIR 1962 SC 1239, 1243: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 49: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 296.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1961]

[8745] — S. 376 — Order can be confirmed by Supreme Court in appeal under Art. 136

All persons are equal before the law is fundamental of every civilised Constitution. Equality before law is a negative concept: equal protection of laws is a positive one. The former declares that every one is equal before law, that no one can claim special privileges and that all classes are equally subjected to the ordinary law of the land; the latter postulates an equal protection of all alike in the same situation and under like circumstances. No discrimination can be made either in the privileges conferred or in the liabilities imposed. But these propositions conceived in the interests of the public, if logically stretched too far, may not achieve the high purpose behind them. In a society of unequal basic structure, it is well nigh impossible to make laws suitable in their application to all the persons alike. So, a reasonable classification is not only permitted but is necessary if society should progress. But such a classification cannot be arbitrary but must be based upon differences pertinent to the subject in respect of and the purpose for which it is made. State of U.P. v. Deoman Upadhyaya, AIR 1960 SC 1125, 1134: (1961) 1 SCR 14: 1960 Cri LJ 1504.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.K. Das[1], J.L. Kapur[1], K. Subba Rao[2], M. Hidayatullah[3] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1960]

[8746] — Ss. 376, 375, 374 and 423 — Duty of High Court while confirming sentence — Defence evidence to be seen in spite of concession on behalf of the appellant

On a reference for confirmation of sentence of death, the High Court is required to proceed in accordance with Ss. 375 and 376 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the provisions of these sections make it clear that the duty of the High Court, in dealing with the reference, is not only to see whether the order passed by the Sessions Judge is correct, but to examine the case for itself and even direct a further enquiry or the taking of additional evidence if the Court considers it desirable in order to ascertain the guilt or the innocence of the convicted person. It is true that, under the proviso to S. 376, no order of confirmation is to be made until the period allowed for preferring the appeal has expired, or, if an appeal is presented within such period, until such appeal is disposed of, so that if an appeal is filed by a condemned prisoner, that appeal has to be disposed of before any order is made in the reference confirming the sentence of death. In disposing of such an appeal, however, it is necessary that the High Court should keep in view its duty under S. 375 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and, consequently, the Court must examine the appeal record for itself, arrive at a view whether a further enquiry or taking of additional evidence is desirable or not, and then come to its own conclusion on the entire material on record whether conviction of the condemned prisoner is justified and the sentence of death should be confirmed.

The High Court did not properly examine the defence evidence on the ground that the counsel for the appellant in that Court admitted that there was no substance in it. Bhupendra Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1968 SC 1438, 1440: (1968) 3 SCR 404: 71 Punj LR 98: 1969 Cri LJ 6.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1968]

[8747] — Ss. 376, 418 and 423 — Relative scope — High Court's power wide — Verdict of jury justiciable. Rama Shankar Singh v. State of W.B., AIR 1962 SC 1239, 1243: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 49: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 296.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1961]

[8748] — Ss. 377 and 4(1)(i) — Confirmation by two Judges under S. 377 — Confirmation of death sentence by the only Judicial Commissioner then functioning in the Union Territory not improper — Goa, Daman and Diu (Judicial Commissioner's Court) Regulation, 1963 will not prevail over the Code — In any case Regulation 8(1) permits JC to confirm death sentence — Referral jurisdiction under S. 377 is akin to appeal and revision — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 369 and 2(e). Joseph Peter v. State of Goa, Daman and Diu, (1977) 3 SCC 280: 1977 SCC (Cri) 486: AIR 1977 SC 1812: 1977 Cri LJ 1449.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and Jaswant Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1977]

[8749] — Ss. 378 and 386 — Acquittal from criminal conviction — Effect of acquittal from date of appellate acquittal or date of conviction by lower court

An appellate order of acquittal takes effect retrospectively and the conviction and sentence are deemed to be set aside with effect from the date they were recorded. It has to be held that the conviction has been wiped out and did not exist at all. Manni Lal v. Parmai Lal, (1970) 2 SCC 462: 1970 SCC (Cri) 487: AIR 1971 SC 330.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1970]

But see K. Prabhakaran v. P. Jayarajan, (2002) 8 SCC 79

[8750] — Ss. 380 and 562 to 564 — Release of offender on probation of good conduct — Applicability of the 1958 Act or S. 360 CrPC, 1973 not considered by High Court — Effect — Hence, matter remitted to High Court for consideration thereof — CrPC, 1973, S. 360 — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4 (Para 9). Daljit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 6 SCC 159: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 20.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and Lokeshwar Singh Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-2006]

[8751] — S. 383 — Life imprisonment is executable in jail — CrPC, 1973, S. 418

Apart from S. 32 of the Prisoners Act, S. 383 of CrPC, 1898 and S. 418 of CrPC, 1973 also contain the necessary legal authority and power under which a criminal court can by issuing a warrant direct the execution or carrying out of a sentence of life imprisonment in local jails. Both the sections appear in a chapter dealing with 'Execution of Sentences' under the respective Codes and are identically worded — It is obvious that the 'confinement' of the convict in the jail pursuant to the court's warrant issued under the sections is for the purpose of executing or carrying out of the sentence. The proviso to sub-section (1) of S. 418 and sub-section (2) of S. 418 make this position abundantly clear that the expression 'confinement' has been used in the sense of execution or carrying out of the sentence. Naib Singh v. State of Punjab, (1983) 2 SCC 454: 1983 SCC (Cri) 536: AIR 1983 SC 855: 1983 Cri LJ 1345.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.D. Tulzapurkar and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1983]

— S. 386 See Ss. 378 and 386

[8752] — S. 386(1)(b) — Issue of warrant not to affect other remedies open to the authorities — Travancore Cochin Sales Tax Act (11 of 1125 M.E.) — Ss. 13 & 19. State of Kerala v. C.M. Francis & Co., AIR 1961 SC 617: (1961) 3 SCR 181: (1961) 12 STC 119.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-1960]

[8753] — Ss. 386(1)(b) proviso and 431 — Issue of warrant for realising fine

An appeal from a sentence of fine is excepted from the all-pervasive rule of abatement of criminal appeals for the reason that the fine constitutes a liability on the estate of the deceased and the legal representatives on whom the estate devolves are entitled to ward off that liability. The fact that the offender has served the sentence in default of payment of fine is not a complete answer to the right of the Government to realize the fine because under the proviso to S. 386(1)(b) of the Code the court can, for special reasons to be recorded in writing, issue a warrant for realizing the fine even if the offender has undergone the whole of the imprisonment in default of payment of fine. Harnam Singh v. State of H.P., (1975) 3 SCC 343: 1974 SCC (Cri) 951: AIR 1975 SC 236: 1975 Cri LJ 276: 1975 MLJ (Cri) 493.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1974]

[8754] — S. 388 — Order of remand — Recording of reasons — When remand order based on remand report, the perusal of the reasons in the remand report satisfies the provisions of S. 344 when the evidence and circumstances are peculiar — Quaere: Whether the report has to be confidential

When the order-sheet speaks of the Magistrate, having perused the police report for remand, the reasons and the circumstances set out in the report would be the reasons for passing the orders of remand. Mowu v. Supdt., Special Jail, (1971) 3 SCC 936: 1972 SCC (Cri) 184: 1971 CAR 66 (SC).

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, G.K. Mitter, C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1970]

[8755] — S. 396 — Witnesses not giving description of the dacoit or part played by him during commission of dacoity — Effect

Where the first information report clearly mentioned that the informant and the witnesses named by him had properly seen the miscreants and would be able to identify them if shown to them and there was evidence that the witnesses had taken up their positions around the house where the dacoity was committed and there was adequate light to enable the witnesses to mark the faces and the features of the miscreants and the miscreants remained at the scene of offence for more than half an hour and the number of miscreants was also not great, failure to give description of the accused or the part played by them was no lacuna in the prosecution case. Chander Singh v. State of U.P., (1973) 3 SCC 55: 1973 SCC (Cri) 133: AIR 1973 SC 1200: 1973 Cri LJ 926.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1972]

[8756] — S. 401 — Effect of pardon and remission — Remission not to affect disqualification under election law — Comparison of remission with the order of an appellate or revisional Court

In England and India the effect of a pardon or what is sometimes called a free pardon is to clear the person form all infamy and from all consequences of the offence of which it is granted and from all statutory or other disqualification following upon conviction. It makes him, as it were, a new man. But the same effect does not follow on a mere remission which stands on a different footing altogether. In the first place, an order of remission does not wipe out the offence; it also does not wipe out the conviction. All that it does is to have an effect on the execution of the sentence; though ordinarily a convicted person would have to serve out the full sentence imposed by a court, he need not do so with respect to that part of the sentence which has been ordered to be remitted.

An order of remission thus does not in any way interfere with the order of the Court; it affects only the execution of the sentence passed by the Court and frees the convicted person from his liability to undergo the full term of imprisonment inflicted by the Court, though the order of conviction and sentence passed by the Court still stands as it was. The power to grant remission is executive power and cannot have the effect which the order of an appellate or revisional Court would have of reducing the sentence passed by the trial Court and substituting in its place the reduced sentence adjudged by the appellate or revisional Court. Sarat Chandra Rabha v. Khagendranath Nath, AIR 1961 SC 334, 336: (1961) 2 SCR 133: 23 ELR 125.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and J.L. Kapur, P.B. Gajendragadkar, K. Subba Rao and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-1960]

[8757] — S. 401 — Mistake in remitting sentence of some convicts — No reason for extending it to others. G.V. Ramanaiah v. Supdt. of Central Jail, (1974) 3 SCC 531: 1974 SCC (Cri) 6: AIR 1974 SC 31: 1974 Cri LJ 150: (1974) MLJ (Cri) 263: (1974) 1 SCR 852: 1973 CrLR (SC) 754.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1973]

[8758] — S. 401 — Remission of sentence of life imprisonment — Matter entirely within the discretion of the appropriate Government — No writ will lie against its order refusing remission. State of M.P. v. Ratan Singh, (1976) 3 SCC 470: 1976 SCC (Cri) 428: AIR 1976 SC 1552: 1976 Cri LJ 1192: (1977) 1 MLJ 19 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.C. Gupta and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1976]

[8759] — Ss. 401 and 402 — Life imprisonment is for indefinite duration — appropriate Government can remit the sentence on a consideration of relevant factors

Before coming into force of S. 53-A a sentence of transportation for life could be undergone by a prisoner by way of rigorous imprisonment for life in a designated prison in India. After the introduction of S. 53-A into the Code such a convict shall be dealt with in the same manner as one sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for the same term. Unless the said sentence is commuted or remitted by appropriate authority under the relevant provisions of the Indian Penal Code or the Code of Criminal Procedure, a prisoner sentenced to life imprisonment is bound in law to serve the life term in prison. The rules framed under the Prisons Act enable such a prisoner to earn remissions — ordinary, special and State and the said remissions will be given credit towards his term of imprisonment. For the purpose of working out of the remissions the sentence of transportation for life is ordinarily equated with a definite period, but it is only for that particular purpose and not for any other purpose. As the sentence of transportation for life or its prison equivalent, the life imprisonment, is one of indefinite duration, the remissions so earned do not in practice help such a convict as it is not possible to predicate the time of his death. That is why the rules provide for a procedure to enable the appropriate Government to remit the sentence under S. 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure on a consideration of the relevant factors, including the period of remissions earned. The question of remission is exclusively within the province of the appropriate Government.

Where the appropriate Government makes certain remissions under S. 401 of CPC, but does not remit the entire sentence the prisoner does not acquire any right to release. Gopal Vinayak Godse v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 600: (1961) 3 SCR 440: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 736, 738.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar, K. Subba Rao, K.N. Wanchoo and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[8760] — Ss. 401 and 402(3) — Appropriate Government is the Government of the State where the prisoner has been convicted and sentenced. State of M.P. v. Ratan Singh, (1976) 3 SCC 470: 1976 SCC (Cri) 428: AIR 1976 SC 1552: 1976 Cri LJ 1192: (1977) 1 MLJ 19 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.C. Gupta and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1976]

[8761] — S. 401(3) — Conditional order of remission — There is no automatic cancellation of remission on breach of a condition

Under S. 401(3) on the breach of any condition of remission there is no automatic revival of sentence. It is open to the Government to cancel the remission but it may not. It is only when Government orders cancellation of the remission that the convict is rearrested to serve the unexpired portion of the sentence. During the interregnum, the accused, who is released, cannot be said to be under a sentence of imprisonment for life. In fact, that period is not even reckoned under S. 401, Criminal Procedure Code for the purpose of calculation of the sentence to be served, in the event of cancellation. Sk. Abdul Azees v. State of Karnataka, (1977) 2 SCC 485: 1977 SCC (Cri) 378: AIR 1977 SC 1485: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 1: (1977) 3 SCR 393: 1977 Cri LJ 1121.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.K. Goswami and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1977]

— S. 402 See also Ss. 401 and 402

[8762] — S. 402 — Commutation of death sentence on ground of delay in its execution — A matter for local Government's consideration — But no rule of law — Court's discretion in the matter — How to be exercised

It is true that in proper cases an inordinate delay in the execution of the death sentence may be regarded as a ground for commuting it, but we desire to point out that this is no rule of law and is a matter primarily for consideration of the local Government. If the Court has to exercise a discretion in such matter, the other facts of each case would have to be taken into consideration.

Held :

On facts that the murder was a cruel and a deliberate one and there were no extenuating circumstances whatsoever which would justify the Supreme Court in ordering a commutation of the death sentence. Nawab Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 278: 1954 Cri LJ 738.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1953]

[8763] — Ss. 402 and 402-A — Commutation of death sentence — These sections repeal the prerogative of the Maharaja in old Cochin Law

By the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1951 (Central Act 1 of 1951), passed by the Union Legislature, the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, has been made applicable to the whole of India by amending S. 1 of the Code and by substitution therein for the words "whole of India except part B State", the words "whole of India except the States of Jammu and Kashmir and Manipur".

The Code of Criminal Procedure and along with it Ss. 401, 402 and 402-A thereof, relating to commutation of sentences having thus been made specifically applicable to all Part B states by Central Act 1 of 1951, the prerogative under the old Cochin law must in any case be deemed to have been repealed or abrogated by competent legislative authority after the coming into force of the Constitution. Thaivalappil Kunjuvaru Vareed v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1956 SC 142: (1955) 2 SCR 1022: 1956 Cri LJ 315.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-12-1955]

— S. 402(3) See Ss. 401 and 402(3)

— S. 402-A See Ss. 402 and 402-A

— S. 403 See Ss. 236, 237 and 403

See also Ss. 253, 254-A & 258 and 439 & 403

[8764] — S. 403 — Issue-estoppel — Principle of — Two separate trials of accused — One for murder and the other for offence under S. 27 of Arms Act — Main case of murder decided first and that under Arms Act subsequently — In both the cases accused admitting that gun in question was recovered from his possession — In the case under Arms Act trial Court erroneously acquitting accused — Appeal filed against the murder case but not against the acquittal in the case under Arms Act — Held — Appellate Court while deciding the murder case not precluded from holding that the accused was in possession of the gun — Principle of issue-estoppel not applicable — CrPC, 1973, S. 300. Bhoor Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 4 SCC 754: 1974 SCC (Cri) 664: AIR 1974 SC 1256: 1974 Cri LJ 929.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-1974]

[8765] — S. 403 — Principle of 'autrefois acquit' and 'autrefois convict' — Principle of 'issue estoppel' if operates in India apart from S. 403 — Conviction of respondents under Ss. 324, 323, set aside by High Court on the plea of 'issue of estoppel' as on some evidence and incidents the respondents had been discharged in S. 107, CrPC

Section 403, CrPC, governs the entire principle of autrefois acquit and autrefois convict. But apart from this the Australian 'principle of issue estoppel' has been followed in India.

Autrefois acquit and autrefois convict are pleas which are concerned with the judicial determination of an alleged criminal liability and in the case of conviction with the substitution of a new liability. 'Issue of estoppel' is concerned with the judicial establishment of a proposition of law or fact between parties. It depends upon well-known doctrines which control the re-litigation of issue which are settled by prior litigation — Per Dixon, J., in King and Wilkes, 77 CLR 511 at 518-519, approved.

A proceeding under S. 107, CrPC, is not a trial. So the rejection of evidence given in the earlier proceeding to sustain an order for binding over the respondents to keep the peace does not preclude the trial of the respondents in respect of specific incident which together with the other incident was sought to be made the basis of the order of binding over the respondents. No principle of issue estoppel arises in this case. State of A.P. v. Kokkiliagada Meerayya, (1969) 1 SCC 161: AIR 1970 SC 771: 1970 Cri LJ 759.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-11-1968]

[8766] — S. 403 — Principle of double jeopardy — Different to that of issue estoppel

The appellant, Piara Singh, along with Nand Lal Sehgal and Mohinder Singh sent by post a hand grenade in a parcel to Mr Ram Sahai to cause his death. On opening the parcel the bomb exploded causing death and injuries to several people.

The appellant and Nand Lal Sehgal were tried under S. 302, IPC and S. 3 of the Explosive Substances Act. Mohinder Singh became approver and the conviction was mostly based on his evidence. On appeal, the High Court acquitted Nand Lal Sehgal.

On appeal to the Supreme Court it was contended by the appellant that as Nand Lal Sehgal was acquitted, evidence against him must be totally rejected and that the remaining evidence against the appellant was insufficient. The principle of issue-estoppel was raised. Rejecting the argument, it was held, that the High Court had acquitted Nand Lal because of insufficient evidence and not due to false implication. That in any case the principle of issue-estoppel was not applicable and that it was different to that of autrefois acquit embodied in S. 403, CrPC. Approving its earlier decisions in Pritam Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 415; Manipur Adm. v. T.B. Singh, (1964) 7 SCR 123 and Sambasivam v. Public Prosecutor, Malaya, 1950 AC 458, the Court explained that for issue-estoppel to arise, there must have been distinctly raised and inevitably decided the same issue in earlier proceedings between the same parties. Piara Singh v. State of Punjab, (1969) 1 SCC 379: AIR 1969 SC 961: 1969 Cri LJ 1435.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-1-1969]

[8767] — S. 403 — Accused discharged — Prosecution on a fresh complaint on the same facts is not barred. S.A. Venkataraman v. State, AIR 1958 SC 107: 1958 SCR 1040: (1958) 2 LLJ 1: 1958 Cri LJ 254, 256.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1957]

[8768] — S. 403 — Accused having been charged with two distinct offences relating to same transaction — Accused acquitted in one trial held without the aid of jury — In the trial held with the aid of jury a verdict of guilty being returned by jury and reference made by the Judge having been rejected by High Court — Conviction in the latter trial not illegal on the ground of acquittal in the former trial

The accused were tried without the aid of jury for offences under Ss. 467, IPC. The two offences related to the same transaction, the case of the prosecution being that a Heba-nama was forged and later presented before the sub-registrar registration. The Judge acquitted the accused in the trial under S. 82(c) of Indian Registration Act. In the trial under Ss. 467 and 109, IPC the jury returned a verdict of guilty, the Judge made a reference under S. 307, CrPC and the High Court rejected the reference. It was contended that the High Court was not competent to convict the accused in the reference till the order of acquittal in the trial under S. 82(c), Registration Act was not set aside.

Held :

Forging a valuable security and presentation of that valuable security for registration are two distinct offences. In support of the case that the appellants were guilty of forging a valuable security the material evidence is that relating to the making dishonestly or fraudulently of a false document of the nature of a valuable security. That evidence consisted of the instructions given at the time of writing of the document, the character of the document, its execution, and the intention of the accused in fabricating the document. The offence of false personation for presenting any document consisted in the presentation of a document before the registering authority by a person claiming to be someone else. An item of evidence may corroborate charges for more offences than one: but acquittal of the accused for one such offence will not render that item of evidence inadmissible in assessing the criminality of the accused for another offence corroborated thereby. The question in such a case is not one of admissibility but of weight to be given to that evidence. The High Court was therefore not debarred from founding the order of conviction for the offences under S. 467, IPC and abetment thereof, of the appellants upon evidence which corroborated the story of the prosecution in support of those charges merely because that evidence was not accepted by the Sessions Court in considering the charge against them of false personation for procuring registration of the Heba-nama. Sekendar Sheikh v. State of W.B., (1964) 1 SCR 852: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 733, 35.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-1963]

[8769] — S. 403 — Accused, in previous trial acquitted on the erroneous belief that the Court had no jurisdiction — No trial on merits — Subsequent trial not barred

The provisions of S. 403, CrPC are based upon the general principle of autrefois acquit recognised by the English Courts. The principle on which the right to plead autrefois acquit depends is that a man may not be put twice in jeopardy for the same offence. This principle has now been incorporated in Art. 20 of the Constitution. The defence of autrefois acquit, however, has no application where the accused person was not liable lawfully to be convicted at the first trial because the Court lacked jurisdiction. From the language used in S. 403(1) of the Code it is clear that what can be successfully pleaded as a bar to a subsequent trial for the same offence or for an offence based on the same facts is that the accused had been (a) tried by a Court, (b) of competent jurisdiction, and (c) acquitted of the offence alleged to have been committed by him or an offence with which he might have been charged under S. 236 or for which he might have been convicted under S. 237 of the Code.

Only a court which is competent to initiate proceedings or to carry them on can properly make an order of acquittal, at any rate, an order of acquittal which will have the effect of barring a subsequent trial upon the same facts and for the same offence.

Where a court comes to the conclusion that it had no jurisdiction, albeit erroneously, it is difficult to appreciate how that Court can absolve the person arraigned before it completely of the offence alleged against him. Where a person had done something which is made punishable by law he is liable to face a trial and this liability cannot come to an end merely because the Court before which he was placed for trial forms on opinion that it has no jurisdiction to try him or that it has no jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence alleged against him. Where, therefore, a court says, though erroneously, that it was not competent to take cognizance of the offence it has no power to acquit that person of the offence. An order of acquittal made by it is in fact a nullity.

The mere fact that a charge had been framed in this case does not help the appellant. Similarly the provisions of S. 494 of the Code cannot be attracted to a case of this kind because that provision itself assumes the withdrawal by a public prosecutor of a charge competently made and before a court competent to entertain the application for withdrawal.

The fact that all the witnesses for the prosecution as well as for the defence had been examined before the magistrate and the further fact that the appellant was also examined under S. 342 cannot in law be deemed to be a trial at all. It would be only repetition to say that for proceedings to amount to a trial they must be held before a court which is in fact competent to hold them and which is not of opinion that it has no jurisdiction to hold them. A fortiori it would also follow that the ultimate order made by it by whatever name it is characterised cannot in law operate as an acquittal. Mohd. Safi v. State of W.B., AIR 1966 SC 69: (1965) 3 SCR 467: 1966 Cri LJ 75, 76-78.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, J.R. Mudholkar and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1965]

[8770] — S. 403 — Acquittal for offences under S. 409 IPC and S. 5 Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 — Held, does not bar trial under S. 135 Customs Act, 1962 and S. 85, Gold (Control) Act, 1968 — Ingredients of offences in the previous and the subsequent trial are distinct — CrPC, 1973, S. 300 — Constitution of India, Art. 20(2) — Double jeopardy — Maxims — 'Nemo debet bis vexari pro eadem causa'. A.A. Mulla v. State of Maharashtra, (1996) 11 SCC 606: AIR 1997 SC 1441.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.B. Pattanaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1996]

V.K. Agarwal, Asstt. Collector of Customs v. Vasantraj Bhagwanji Bhatia, (1988) 3 SCC 467: 1988 SCC (Cri) 679; P.V. Mohd. Barmay Sons v. Director of Enforcement, 1993 Supp (2) SCC 724: 1993 SCC (Cri) 777, applied

[8771] — S. 403 — Acquittal in one and conviction in the other case on same day — Separate prosecution under S. 302/34, IPC and 19(f), Arms Act about the same event — Accused convicted under S. 302/34, Arms Acts — The same day acquitted by the same Judge under S. 19(f), IPC — Not clear which of the two judgments was pronounced prior in time — It is not open to contend that acquittal under S. 19(f), Arms Act was prior to accused's conviction under S. 302/34, IPC — Conviction is not bad on this account — Judge's act in giving two inconsistent findings in two companion cases on the same day disapproved. Gurcharan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 340: (1963) 3 SCR 585: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 323.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-1962]

[8772] — S. 403 — Appeal to Supreme Court after acquittal in one of the two cases arising from same facts — Accused's conviction under S. 302, IPC for murder by pistol confirmed by the High Court — Accused acquitted in case under S. 19(f), Arms Act for the recovery of the same pistol with which murder was committed long after the conviction under S. 302 was confirmed by High Court — Acquitted was result of the resiling of two search witnesses from their earlier statement — On an appeal to Supreme Court by special leave in murder case — Held, later acquittal not to be taken into account in deciding the appeal

The acquittal in the firearms case was recorded long after the conclusion of the trial in the Court of Session and the dismissal of the appeal by the High Court. That acquittal was recorded because the two search witnesses resiled from their earlier statements and the learned Magistrate did not think it necessary to wait for the evidence of the police officer who investigated the murder. From what has happened in this case, it is easy to see that these witnesses who had stood firm before were won over in the interval and deposed contrary to their earlier versions and documents signed by them. The acquittal itself on a parity of reasoning could not be granted by the Magistrate in view of the verdict of conviction by the Sessions Court in the earlier trial without recording evidence fully.

The Supreme Court when hearing an appeal on special leave which merely involved the examination of judgment of the High Court with a view to finding out whether it was legally correct or not would not take a later acquittal into account. Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 79: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 112.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-1963]

[8773] — S. 403 — Application of res judicata in criminal proceedings — Binding effect

The judgment of the High Court in revision is binding in the subsequent proceedings in the case. State of Rajasthan v. Tarachand Jain, (1974) 3 SCC 72: 1973 SCC (Cri) 774: AIR 1973 SC 2131: (1974) 1 SCR 146: 1973 Cri LJ 1396.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-1973]

[8774] — S. 403 — Bar on conviction when the accused once convicted on the same facts — Proceedings under S. 488, Calcutta Municipalities Act, 1923, do not bar subsequent proceedings under S. 363

When the Legislature provides that on the same facts proceedings could be taken under two different sections and the penalties provided in those sections are not the same, it obviously intends to treat them as distinct, and, therefore, where no question under S. 403 of the Code of Criminal Procedure arises, proceedings taken under one section cannot be treated as falling within the other. The penalty prescribed in S. 488 for breach of R. 62 of

Sch. XVII is fine up to the limit of Rs 200, whereas the penalty provided for the same offence under S. 493(a) is fine which may extend to Rs 500.

It will not therefore be in consonance with the intention of the Legislature to hold that proceedings under S. 488 are in substance the same as proceedings under S. 493, so as to be subject to the disability enacted in the proviso to S. 363. If the intention of the Legislature was that proceedings taken under S. 488, read with R. 62 of Sch. XVII should bar proceedings under S. 363, it could have said so expressly as it did with reference to proceedings take under S. 493.

Therefore the proceedings under S. 488, Calcutta Municipalities Act, 1923 do not bar subsequent proceedings under S. 363 of the Act. Corpn. of Calcutta v. Mulchand Agarwala, AIR 1956 SC 110: (1955) 2 SCR 995: 1956 Cri LJ 285, 290.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-11-1955]

[8775] — S. 403 — Principle of res judicata and issue-estoppel in criminal trials — Application of, to the defence of the accused — Defence plea in a criminal trial rejected by Magistrate in a cross case where one of the accused M was informant — Defence plea not barred under S. 403, CrPC. Article 20(2), Constitution of India or principles of res judicata and issue-estoppel applicable to criminal trials — Constitution of India, Art. 20(2)

Three prosecutions were started by the State about the same incident. One prosecution was started against the appellants M and B alleging that M at the instance of B fired at and injured A. The other prosecution was under S. 19(f), Arms Act started against M for being found in possession of revolver. The third prosecution was started against A and his companions on the complaint of M detailing the defence version of the story. M was acquitted in the case under S. 19(f), Arms Act and he and B were convicted in the first case. A and others were acquitted in the case started on the complaint of M. In the case against M and B the trial Court and the High Court refused to examine the defence of the appellant solely on the ground that their defence story was rejected in the case against A.

Held :

In both the prosecutions, in the complaint made by M as well as in the complaint made by A, the prosecutor before the Court was the State. Therefore, the decision in the former case cannot operate as an issue-estoppel against the appellants in the present case, because they were not parties in the former case. In other words the plea taken by the appellants in this case was never before litigated between them and the State, the opposite party in the present case. All that can be said is that the case put forward by the State in the one case is inconsistent with that put forward by it in the other. In those circumstances it was wrong to hold that the appellants were estopped from putting forward their defence. That apart, it is doubtful — though for the purpose of this case it is unnecessary to express any final opinion on this point — whether the rule in question could be pressed against an accused, the reason being that while a prosecution cannot succeed unless it proves its case beyond reasonable doubt, the nature of the proof required of an accused in substantiating the plea taken by him is different — it is sufficient if he proves that plea taken by him is reasonable and probable. In that event he is entitled to the benefit of doubt.

The trial Court as well as the High Court erred in summarily rejecting the defence of the appellants on the sole ground that the version put forward by them having been rejected by the Court in G.R. case 1376/TR/20 of 61/63 in the Court of the Munsif-Magistrate 1st Class, Sasaram, the same cannot be again considered. Mohar Rai v. State of Bihar, AIR 1968 SC 1281: (1968) 3 SCR 525: 1968 ALJ 1094: 1969 MPWR 2: 1968 Cri LJ 1479.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1968]

[8776] — S. 403 — Court of competent jurisdiction — 'G's acquittal by a Special Judge constituted by S. 4(1) of Act 21 of 1949 — S. 4(1) declared ultra vires by High Court whereby special Court ceasing to be a court of competent jurisdiction — 'G' prosecuted again and his revision against this prosecution being dismissed by the High Court and the order not challenged — Supreme Court declaring S. 4(1) intra vires and that the Court passing the order of acquittal is a court of competent jurisdiction — Matter coming before the Supreme Court — The prosecution is barred by S. 403 — The decision of the High Court not challenged was no impediment for the prosecution being barred by S. 403

'G' and 'B' were prosecuted before a Special Judge constituted under S. 4(1) of Act 21 of 1949. On 11-7-51 'G' was acquitted and 'B' was convicted. In another case in the meanwhile the High Court declared S. 4(1) of Act 24 of 1949 ultra vires thereby declaring the Court of the Special Judge as a court not of competent jurisdiction. Therefore in 'B's' appeal the High Court set aside the conviction being by a court not of competent jurisdiction and left it to the Government to try him afresh. The Government filed fresh complaint before another

Special Judge constituted under the amended law against both 'G' and 'B'. 'G' pleaded before the Special Judge bar of S. 403 who overruled it and later 'G' went in revision before the High Court where his petition was dismissed on 19-3-1953. This order was not challenged by 'G'. In the meantime the Supreme Court set aside High Court's order declaring S. 4(1) ultra vires by its decision reported in AIR 1953 SC 404 and declaring section intra vires and thereby declaring the Court of the Special Judge acquitting 'G' as a court of competent jurisdiction. Finally, the case as a result of High Court's order on 'B's' petition came before a Magistrate who overruled 'G's' plea that his prosecution was barred by S. 403 because he had been acquitted by a court of competent jurisdiction. 'G's' revision was dismissed by the High Court on the ground that High Court's order, dated 19-3-1953 was a bar even though S. 4(1) of Act 21 of 1949 had been declared intra vires and the Court acquitting him was a court of competent jurisdiction. 'G' filed an appeal before the Supreme Court.

Per majority

(i) For an order of acquittal to be binding it must be pronounced by a court of competent jurisdiction. In view of Supreme Court's decision in AIR 1953 SC 404 S. 4(1) of Act 21 of 1949 was not ultra vires and the judgment of the Calcutta High Court reported in AIR 1952 Cal 644 declaring it ultra vires was erroneous. The order of acquittal passed in favour of 'G' on 11-7-1951 was, therefore, an order made by a court of competent jurisdiction, as such, it was binding unless set aside in appeal and it was never set aside in appeal.

The plea of 'G' effectively falls within S. 403, CrPC because the trial in which he was acquitted was a trial before a court competent to pass a valid order and the prosecution was bound to accept the correctness of the verdict of acquittal, and is precluded from challenging it. Another trial would place 'G' in jeopardy a second time which would contravene S. 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

(ii) Except where the statute so requires it is not imperative upon a party to appeal against every error, defect or irregularity in any order by which he may conceive himself aggrieved under the penalty, if he does not do so, of forfeiting for ever the benefit of consideration by Supreme Court. Nothing would be more detrimental to the expeditious administration of justice than the establishment of a rule which would impose upon a party the necessity of appealing against every such order. When the matter properly comes to the Supreme Court in appeal it is open to it unless there is any statute which provides differently to review the order passed by the High Court, as much as, it would have been, if the original order passed by the trial Court had not been taken to the High Court in revision. Therefore, the order dated 19-3-1953 of the High Court does not have the effect of debarring the appellant from the benefit to obtain a review by the Supreme Court on that decision.

(iii) The prosecution of 'G' is barred by S. 403 of the CrPC. The High Court's decision, dated 19-3-1953 dismissing the revision of 'G' does not bar the application of S. 403.

Per Sarkar, J. (dissenting)

Any Court before which a plea of autrefois acquit is taken, must decide for itself — and of course in coming to its decision it must follow such precedents as are binding upon it — Whether the Court which had earlier acquitted the accused was a court of competent jurisdiction. Its power to decide that question is not derived from a decision of a higher court pronouncing upon the question of the competence of the Court which earlier acquitted the accused. Therefore, the Supreme Court case AIR 1953 SC 404 does not decide the case.

The judgment of the High Court, dated March 19, 1953 dismissing the revision of 'G' prevented him from raising the question that the Court which had acquitted him was a court of competent jurisdiction. That question was directly raised by 'G' in that revision and the plea was rejected and the High Court held that the Court which acquitted him was not a court of competent jurisdiction. The High Court had full jurisdiction to decide the petition and the question. Its jurisdiction to do so was never questioned. It is no doubt true that AIR 1953 SC 404 shows that the High Court's judgment, dated 19-3-1953 was wrong. That however does not make the decision lose its force as a final judgment. A final judgment does not lose its force as such because a superior court in a different case subsequently takes a view which shows that judgment to be wrong. A final judgment however wrong is still a final judgment. Its binding force does not depend upon its correctness. 'G' could not therefore now be heard to contend that the Court which acquitted him was a court of competent jurisdiction. That result follows from the rule of res judicata which applies to all final judgments. N.R. Ghose v. State of W.B., AIR 1960 SC 239: (1960) 2 SCR 58: 1960 Cri LJ 289.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam[1], J.L. Kapur[1], A.K. Sarkar[2] and K.N. Wanchoo[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-1959]

[8777] — S. 403 — Issue-estoppel — Principle of — Whether both the proceedings should necessarily be criminal proceedings

The principle of issue-estoppel is simply this that where an issue of fact has been tried by a competent court on a former occasion and a finding has been reached in favour of the accused, such a finding would constitute an estoppel or res judicata against the prosecution, not as a bar to the trial and conviction of the accused for a different or distinct offence but as precluding the reception of evidence to disturb that finding of fact when the accused is tried subsequently even for a different offence which might be permitted by law.

However, the plea of issue-estoppel is not the same as the plea of double jeopardy or autrefois acquit. Issue-estoppel arises only if the earlier as well as the subsequent proceedings were criminal prosecutions.

Thus, where while the earlier case was a criminal prosecution, the subsequent one is merely an action taken under the Foreigners (Internment) Order, 1962 for the purpose of deporting the petitioner out of India, the question of applicability of issue-estoppel does not arise because the subsequent case is not a criminal prosecution. Masud Khan v. State of U.P., (1974) 3 SCC 469: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1084: AIR 1974 SC 28.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: H.R. Khanna, A. Alagiriswami and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-1973]

See also (1969) 1 SCC 379

[8778] — S. 403 — Issue-estoppel and res judicata — Application of the principle to criminal trials — Issue of fact tried by a competent court on a former occasion and finding reached in favour of accused — Finding constituting estoppel not to be disturbed in subsequent trial — Principle autrefois contained in S. 403(2), CrPC does not preclude the applicability of the rule of issue-estoppel

Where an issue of fact has been tried by a competent court on a former occasion and a finding has been reached in favour of the accused, such a finding would constitute an estoppel or res judicata against the prosecution, not as a bar to the trial and conviction of the accused for a different offence but as precluding the reception of evidence to disturb that finding of fact when the accused is tried subsequently even for a different offence which might be permitted by the terms of S. 403(2), CrPC.

Section 403, CrPC does not preclude the applicability of this rule of issue-estoppel. Lalta v. State of U.P., AIR 1970 SC 1381: (1969) 2 SCR 526: 1970 Cri LJ 1270.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-1968]

[8779] — S. 403 — Issue-estoppel, rule of — Applicability

"The Crown is as much precluded by an estoppel by judgment in criminal proceedings as is a subject in civil proceedings.... The law which gives effect to issue-estoppels is not concerned with the correctness or incorrectness of the finding which amounts to an estoppel, still less with the process of reasoning by which the finding was reached in fact.... It is enough that an issue or issues have been distinctly raised or found. Once that is done, then, so long as the finding stands, if there be any subsequent litigation between the same parties, no allegations legally inconsistent with the finding may be made by one of them against the other". (Marz v. Queen, 96 CLR 62)

Section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code does not preclude the applicability of this rule of issue-estoppel. The rule being one which is in accord with sound principle and supported by high authority and there being a decision of the Supreme Court which has accepted it as a proper one to be adopted, there is no reason for discarding it. Manipur Admn. v. Thokchom Bira Singh, AIR 1965 SC 87, 92, 93: (1964) 7 SCR 123: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 120.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta, J.C. Shah and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1964]

[8780] — S. 403 — Prohibition of a subsequent trial for the same offence — Offence of criminal misconduct punishable under S. 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 is not identical in essence, import and content with an offence under S. 409, IPC — Therefore acquittal for an offence under S. 5(2), Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 does not bar a trial under S. 409, IPC

The offence of criminal misconduct punishable under S. 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act 2 of 1947 is not identical in essence, import and content with an offence under S. 409 of the Indian Penal Code. The offence of criminal misconduct is a new offence created by that enactment and it does not repeal by implication or abrogate S. 409 of the Indian Penal Code. Therefore there can be no objection to a trial and conviction under S. 409 of the Indian Penal Code even if the respondent has been acquitted of an offence under S. 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act 2 of 1947. State of M.P. v. Veereshwar Rao Agnihotri, AIR 1957 SC 592: 1957 SCR 868: 1957 Cri LJ 892.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and Syed Jafer Imam, S.K. Das, P. Govinda Menon and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1957]

[8781] — S. 403 — Res judicata — Principle — Application to criminal cases — Accused acquitted on a particular charge — The verdict is binding and conclusive in all subsequent proceedings between the parties to the adjudication

The accused was acquitted in trial under S. 19(f), Arms Act for having been found in possession of a revolver belonging to the deceased and looted at the time of murder. The evidence of recovery and the factum of possession were relied upon in the trial about the murder of the two deceased whose revolvers were looted.

Held :

The effect of a verdict of acquittal pronounced by a competent Court on a lawful charge and after a lawful trial is not completely stated by saying that the person acquitted cannot be tried again for the same offence. To that it must be added that the verdict is binding and conclusive in all subsequent proceedings between the parties to the adjudication.

The maxim 'res judicata pro veritate accipitur' is no less applicable to criminal than to civil proceedings.

Having regard, therefore, to the circumstance attendant upon the recovery of the revolver and the acquittal of the accused of the offence under S. 19(f), Arms Act, the High Court was rightly of the opinion that the evidence of recovery of revolver could not be taken into consideration against him.

The acquittal of the accused of the charge under S. 19(f), was tantamount to a finding that the prosecution has failed to establish the possession of the revolver by him. The possession of that revolver was a fact in issue which had to be established by the prosecution before he could be convicted of the offence with which he had been charged. That fact was found against the prosecution and having regard to the observations of Lord MacDermott in Sambasivam v. Public Prosecutor, Federation of Malaya, 1950 AC 458, could not be proved against the accused in any further proceedings between the Crown and him. Pritam Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 415: 1956 Cri LJ 805, 810.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1955]

Affirmed in (1964) 7 SCR 123: AIR 1965 SC 87: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 120: and in (1972) 2 SCC 466: 1972 SCC (Cri) 751

[8782] — S. 403 — Res judicata — Whether applicable to criminal cases

The principle of res judicata is also applicable to criminal proceedings and it is not permissible in the subsequent stage of the same proceedings to convict a person for an offence in respect of which an order for his acquittal has already been recorded. The plea of autrefois acquit as a bar to prosecution embodies in S. 403 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is based upon the same wholesome principle. Bhagat Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (1972) 2 SCC 466: 1972 SCC (Cri) 751: AIR 1972 SC 1502: (1972) 3 SCR 303: 1972 Cri LJ 909: (1972) 9 ACC 67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1972]

[8783] — S. 403 — Retrial after grant of requisite sanction — Not barred

The whole basis of S. 403(1) was not the first trial should have been before a court competent to hear and determine the case and to record a verdict of conviction or acquittal; if the Court was not so competent, as for example where the required sanction for the prosecution was not obtained, it was irrelevant that it was competent to try other cases of the same class or indeed the case against the particular accused in different circumstances, for example if a sanction had been obtained. Baij Nath Prasad Tripathi v. State of Bhopal, AIR 1957 SC 494: 1957 SCR 650: (1958) 2 LLJ 475: 1957 Cri LJ 597, 98.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, B.P. Sinha, S.K. Das and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-2-1957]

[8784] — S. 403 — Scope — Autrefois acquit — Applies when a person is tried again for the same offence — Two offences being distinct and spaced slightly by time and place — Trials for each incident separate — Offence distinct requiring different charges — Prior acquittal in one case cannot bar conviction in the other case

The charges on which acquittal took place had nothing whatever to do with the charges on which there is conviction in the present appeal. A plea of autrefois acquit which statutorily recognised in India under S. 403 of the Code of Criminal Procedure arises when a person is tried again for the same offence or on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under S. 236 of for which he might have been convicted under S. 237. Neither of these provisions is applicable to the present facts because the two offences were distinct and spaced slightly by time and place. The trials were separate as the two incidents were viewed as distinct transactions. Even if the two incidents could be viewed to be connected so as to form parts of one transaction it is obvious that the offences were distinct and required different charges. The assault on T in fulfilment of the common object of the unlawful assembly was over when the unlawful assembly proceeded to the house of T to loot it. The new common object to beat P was formed at a time when the common object in respect of T had been fully worked out and even if the two incidents could be taken to be connected by unity of time and place (which they were not), the offences were distinct and required separate charges. The learned Sessions Judge was right in breaking up the single charge framed by the Magistrate and ordering separate trials. In this view the prior acquittal cannot create a bar in respect of the conviction herein reached. Kharkan v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 83: (1964) 4 SCR 673: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 116, 118.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1963]

[8785] — S. 403 — Separate trials for several misappropriations

The appellant had been prosecuted for the various misappropriations alleged to have been committed by him. Each one of those misappropriations is a distinct offence by itself; therefore it was open to the Court to separately charge him and separately try him for those offences. Jai Dev v. State of Punjab, 1968 SCD 539, 542.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-11-1967]

[8786] — S. 403 — Spirit of the section no real basis

It was contended on behalf of the appellant that his case comes within the spirit of S. 403(1) though it may not come within the letter of the law.

That contention has no legal basis. Either a plea comes within the scope of a provision of law or it does not. If it does not come within the scope of some provision of law, then there is no question of its coming within the spirit of any provision of law. A contention based on the so-called spirit of the law has no place in a Court of law. Jai Dev v. State of Punjab, 1968 SCD 539, 543.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-11-1967]

— S. 403(1) See also Ss. 347 and 403(1)

[8787] — S. 403(1) — Bar under, against trial for the 'same offence' — Applicability — Ingredients of the offences have to be seen to determine whether the offences are same or different — Ingredients of offences under S. 111 r/w S. 135 of Customs Act, 1962 and S. 85 of Gold (Control) Act, 1968 are different — Hence after acquittal under Customs Act subsequent trial under Gold (Control) Act not barred — CrPC, 1973, S. 300(1) — Constitution of India, Art. 20(2). V.K. Agarwal, Asstt. Collector of Customs v. Vasantraj Bhagwanji Bhatia, (1988) 3 SCC 467: 1988 SCC (Cri) 679: AIR 1988 SC 1106: (1988) 16 ECC 164: (1988) 64 Comp Cas 664.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.P. Thakkar and K.N. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-4-1988]

[8788] — S. 403(1) — Prohibition of a subsequent trial for the same offence — One trial for several offences under Ss. 409, 468 and 477-A, IPC and S. 5(2) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 — Accused having been acquitted for offences under Ss. 468 and 477-A, IPC, convicted for the offence under S. 409, IPC and no formal order for conviction or acquittal passed under S. 5(2) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 for lack of jurisdiction — Contention being that since on the same facts the trial Judge found that the accused could not be found guilty under S. 5(2) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, it was tantamount to any acquittal for that offence and therefore conviction under S. 4 of IPC was barred by S. 403(c), CrPC

Held :

S. 403(1) has no application to the facts of the case, where there was only one trial for several offences, of some of which the accused person was acquitted while being convicted of one. State of M.P. v. Veereshwar Rao Agnihotri, AIR 1957 SC 592: 1957 SCR 868: 1957 Cri LJ 892.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and Syed Jafer Imam, S.K. Das, P. Govinda Menon and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1957]

[8789] — S. 403(1) and (2) — Retrial after conviction or acquittal in a previous trial — Accused acquitted in a trial under S. 7, Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act — Subsequent trial under Ss. 332 and 392, IPC — S. 403(2) applies and the trial is not barred. Kunjilal v. State of M.P., AIR 1955 SC 280: (1955) 1 SCR 872: 1955 Cri LJ 730.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, Ghulam Hasan and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1954]

[8790] — Ss. 403(1) and (4) — Res judicata

Section 403(4) provides that a person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constructed by the same acts which he may have committed if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged. In view of this sub-section it is obvious that there can be a fresh charge and trial under S. 307, Penal Code, in spite of the acquittal of the appellant on the minor charges. There is hence no reason why an order for commitment under S. 307, Indian Penal Code cannot be made by the Additional Sessions Judge in spite of the acquittal of the appellant on the charges under Ss. 326 and 338, Indian Penal Code. Ramekbal Tiwary v. Madan Mohan Tiwary, AIR 1967 SC 1156: (1967) 2 SCR 368: 1967 Cri LJ 1076, 1081.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1967]

— S. 403(2) See Ss. 403(1) and (2)

— S. 403(4) See Ss. 403(1) and (4)

[8791] — S. 404 — Appeal — The right of at least one appeal in serious cases is a substantial right

Hence the High Court should not summarily reject the appeal. Babu Rajirao Shinde v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 337: 1971 SCC (Cri) 616: 1972 Punj LR 108: 1972 Cri LJ 1376.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1971]

[8792] — Ss. 404 and 411-A — Question raised before Supreme Court touching credibility of witnesses — Question of fact — No interference by Supreme Court

In appeals before the Supreme Court the usual rule to be followed by it is that it will not interfere on questions of fact. The question touching the credibility of the witnesses who were believed being a question of fact the Supreme court did not interfere on this point. Moti Das v. State of Bihar, AIR 1954 SC 657: 1954 Cri LJ 1708.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1954]

— S. 410 See also Ss. 258, 419, 410 and 423

[8793] — S. 410 — High Court in appeal bound to consider all the circumstances against the accused before confirming the conviction by trial court — Failure to do so meriting reconsideration by the High Court — CrPC, 1973, S. 374. Jagan Nath v. State, (1976) 1 SCC 583: 1976 SCC (Cri) 101: AIR 1976 SC 1132: 1976 Cri LJ 847.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-1975]

[8794] — S. 410 — Maintainability of joint appeal by State against order of acquittal against several persons in joint Trial — Bombay High Court Appellate Side Rules, 1960, Ch. XXVI — R. 6

Section 419 CrPC does not prohibit a joint appeal from an order of acquittal. Nor are Ss. 258, 410 and 423, CrPC, a bar. State of Gujarat v. Ramprakash P. Puri, (1969) 3 SCC 156: 1970 SCC (Cri) 29.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Ramaswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1969]

[8795] — S. 410 — Appeal to High Court under — Raising arguable points — Power of the High Court — Summary dismissal of appeal by High Court — Whether justified

The High Court had dismissed the appeal preferred by the appellant in limine.

The right to prefer an appeal from sentence of Court of Sessions is conferred by S. 410 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The right to appeal is one both on a matter of fact and a matter of law.

The Appellate Court undoubtedly has power of summary dismissal. If the appeal raises arguable and substantial points the High Court should give reasons for rejection of appeal. Rejection of an appeal by using only one word of dismissal causes difficulties and embarrassment in finding out the reasons which weighed with the High Court in dismissal of the appeal in limine. The High Court should not summarily reject criminal appeals if they raise arguable and substantial points. In the present case the High Court dismissed the appeal by a single word and it is not possible to know the reasons which persuaded the High Court to dismiss the appeal. Siddanna Apparao Patil v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 1 SCC 547: 1970 SCC (Cri) 224: AIR 1970 SC 977: 1970 Cri LJ 891.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-1970]

[8796] — S. 410 — High Court — Appeal raising arguable points — Summary rejection of — Necessity to give reasons for such dismissal. Rajnikant v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 2 SCC 866: 1970 SCC (Cri) 575.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-9-1970]

[8797] — S. 410 — Special Court deemed as Court of Session — Ss. 410 & 417 apply — States and Other Areas Reorganisation and Administration — Vindhya Pradesh Ordinance, 1949, S. 5(2)

Once the Special Court is to be deemed a Court of Session the normal right of appeal provided by S. 410 or S. 417, as the case may be, must be taken to have been expressly provided by reference and not as arising by mere implication. Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1953 SC 394, 397: 1953 SCR 1188: 1953 Cri LJ 1480.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, Ghulam Hasan and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-5-1953]

[8798] — S. 410 — Summary dismissal of appeal — Matter involving arguable and substantial points both of fact and law — Rejection of appeal by High Court with only one word — Validity of

In dealing with appeals under S. 410 of CrPC from sentences of Court of Sessions, the High Court should give reasons for rejection of an appeal and if arguable and substantial points are raised, the High Court should not summarily reject the appeal. Dnyanu Hariba Mali v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 3 SCC 7: 1970 SCC (Cri) 357: AIR 1970 SC 979: 1970 Punj LR 992: 1970 Cri LJ 893.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1970]

[8799] — Ss. 410 and 417 — Special court deemed as Court of Session — Ss. 410 and 417 CrPC, 1898 apply — Vindhya Pradesh Criminal Law Amendment (Special Courts) Ordinance, 1949, S. 5(2). Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1953 SC 394: 1953 SCR 1188: 1953 Cri LJ 1480.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, Ghulam Hasan and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-5-1953]

[8800] — S. 411 — Difference in the constitution and jurisdiction of Courts in the mofussil and city of Madras — Held not violative — Constitution of India — Article 14

In view of the geographical and historical considerations, the existence of differences in the constitution and jurisdiction of the Courts in the mofussil and the city of Madras does not violate Art. 14. P. Shankar Lal v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, Madras, 1968 SCD 385.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-1967]

[8801] — S. 411 — Constitutionality — Held, not violative of Art. 14

In view of the geographical and historical considerations, the existence of differences in the constitution and jurisdiction of the Courts in the Mofussil and the City of Madras does not violate Art. 14. P. Shankar Lal v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, 1968 SCD 385.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-1967]

— S. 411-A See also Ss. 404 and 411-A

[8802] — S. 411-A — Appeal from sentence of High Court — Practice

The absence of the name of the accused in the first information report and the absence of marks of injury on his person are only material and relevant for the purpose of appreciation of the evidence. The Courts below having come to a definite finding on the evidence before them that the accused was a member of the unlawful assembly and took some part in inflicting injuries on the deceased in prosecution of their common object, the Supreme Court cannot go behind the concurrent finding. Thakur Prasad v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 30: 1954 Cri LJ 261.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1953]

[8803] — S. 411-A — Appeal from sentence of High Court — Supreme Court not to go behind concurrent finding of fact on appeal by special leave

The plea of alibi involves a question of fact and where both the Courts below concurrently found that fact against the accused, held, that the Supreme Court cannot, on an appeal by special leave, go behind that concurrent finding of fact. Thakur Prasad v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 30: 1954 Cri LJ 261.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1953]

— S. 417 See Ss. 410 and 417

See also Ss. 423(1)(a) and 417

See also Ss. 428, 423 and 417

[8804] — S. 417 — Conviction by High Court in appeal against acquittal — If findings of High Court liable to be set aside — Offences under Ss. 325, 324 and 323, IPC, if made out — Evaluation of evidence

(i) No doubt the FIR was a belated one but on that account alone the whole prosecution case cannot be thrown out.

(ii) It is true that there are some contradictions but on the whole the prosecution story seems clear and substantiated.

(iii) On the facts of the case, it cannot be held that there was a right of private defence of property or of person.

(iv) The High Court was not impressed and quite rightly, by the conclusion of the Sessions Judge that it was the party of the complainant who committed aggression and accordingly the finding of the Trial court must be deemed to have been displaced.

Hegde, J. (dissenting) held,

It is true that it is open to courts to accept portions of evidence of witnesses and reject the rest but the danger inherent in such situations should not be overlooked. Such evidence should not be made the basis of conviction unless the same is corroborated either by an independent testimony or by reliable circumstances. Satwara Chhagan Karsan v. State of Gujarat, (1969) 3 SCC 203: 1970 SCC (Cri) 59.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri[1], G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1969]

[8805] — S. 417 — Compared with S. 378 CrPC, 1973

A comparison of Section 378 with the old Section 417 shows that whilst under the old section no application for leave to appeal had to be made by the State Government or the Central Government, now by virtue of Section 378(3) the State Government or the Central Government have to obtain leave of the High Court before their appeal could be entertained. Sub-section (4) of Section 378 is identical to sub-section (3) of Section 417. Thus a complainant desirous of filing an appeal against acquittal must still obtain special leave. Thus, Section 378 makes a distinction between an appeal filed by the State Government or the Central Government, who only need to obtain "leave", and an appeal by a complainant who needs to obtain "special leave". State (Delhi Admn.) v. Dharampal, (2001) 10 SCC 372: AIR 2001 SC 2924.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-10-2001]

Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033; Basavaraj R. Patil v. State of Karnataka, (2000) 8 SCC 740: 2001 SCC (Cri) 87, relied on

[8806] — S. 417 — In S. 378(1) sub-section (6) should be read in place of sub-section (5), CrPC, 1973 — It is an inadvertent mistake — CrPC, 1973, S. 378

Under Section 417 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 no application for special leave to appeal had to be made by the State Government or the Central Government, if they filed an appeal against acquittal. The period of 60 days provided in Section 417(4) did not apply to an appeal by the State Government or the Central Government. The period of limitation for the State Government or the Central Government was only under Article 114(a) of the Limitation Act. The right of the State Government to file an appeal under Section 417(1) was subject to sub-section (5) which provided that if special leave to appeal had been refused to a complainant then the State Government could not maintain an appeal. A comparison of Section 378 with the old Section 417 shows that whilst under the old section no application for leave to appeal had to be made by the State Government or the Central Government, now by virtue of Section 378(3) the State Government or the Central Government have to obtain leave of the High Court before their appeal could be entertained. Sub-section (4) of Section 378 is identical to sub-section (3) of Section 417. Thus a complainant desirous of filing an appeal against acquittal must still obtain special leave. Section 378 makes a distinction between an appeal filed by the State Government or the Central Government, who only need to obtain "leave", and an appeal by a complainant who needs to obtain "special leave". The limitation provided in sub-section (5) is only in respect of applications under sub-section (4) i.e. application for special leave to appeal by a complainant. A complainant may be either a public servant or a private party. If the complainant is a public servant then the period of limitation for an application for special leave is 6 months. If the complainant is a private party then the period of limitation for an application for special leave is 60 days. The periods of 6 months and/or 60 days do not apply to appeals by the State Government [under sub-section (1)] or the Central Government [under sub-section (2)]. Appeals by the State Government or the Central Government continue to be governed by Article 114(a) of the Limitation Act. (Paras 22, 23 and 25)

However, the reference to sub-section (5) in sub-section (1) of Section 378 is clearly an inadvertent mistake. Sub-section (5) applies only to application for special leave by a complainant. It has no application to an appeal by the State Government or to an application for leave under sub-section (3). What the legislature clearly intended was to continue to provide that an appeal by the State Government would not be maintainable if special leave to appeal had been refused to a complainant. Thus sub-section (1) of Section 378 was to be subject to provisions of sub-section (6) and not sub-section (5) as inadvertently provided therein. Inadvertently the figure (5) in Section 417(1) was continued, without noticing that now under Section 378 the relevant provision was sub-section (6). The figure (5) in Section 378(1) is inadvertently retained. Thus in Section 378(1) the figure (6) will have to be read in place of the figure (5). (Para 26). State (Delhi Admn.) v. Dharampal, (2001) 10 SCC 372: AIR 2001 SC 2924.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-10-2001]

[8807] — S. 417 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court — Principles to be followed restated — Reversal of acquittal upheld — CrPC, 1973, S. 378

The High Court in an appeal under S. 417 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has full power to review at large the evidence on which the order of acquittal was founded and to reach the conclusion that upon the evidence the order of acquittal should be reversed. No limitation should be placed upon that power unless it be found expressly stated in the Code, but in exercising the power conferred by the Code and before reaching its conclusion upon fact the High Court should give proper weight and consideration to such matters as (1) the view of the trial Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses; (2) the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused, a presumption certainly not weakened by the fact that he has been acquitted at his trial; (3) the right of the accused to the benefit of any real and reasonable doubt; and (4) the slowness of an appellate Court in disturbing a finding of fact arrived at by a Judge who had the advantage of seeing the witness. Barati v. State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 258: 1974 SCC (Cri) 420: AIR 1974 SC 839: (1974) 3 SCR 570: 1974 Cri LJ 709.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1974]

[8808] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Appellate Court's powers — Trial Court chasing bare possibilities of doubt and exalting them into sufficiently militating factors justifying acquittal of accused — Reconsideration of circumstantial evidence by High Court — High Court not failing to observe built-in restraints on exercise of power while upsetting the acquittal — Held, High Court's approach correct — CrPC, 1973, S. 386. Khem Karan v. State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 603: 1974 SCC (Cri) 639: AIR 1974 SC 1567: (1974) 3 SCR 863: 1974 Cri LJ 1033: (1974) 2 ACC 307.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg, Y.V. Chandrachud and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1974]

[8809] — S. 417 — S. 12(3), Limitation Act, 1963 — Applicability to an application under S. 417 CrPC — Limitation Act, 1908, S. 12(3)

S. 417(4) itself prescribes a period of limitation for an application to be made under S. 417(3). It was not necessary for the Legislature to have amended the Limitation Act and to have inserted an article dealing with applications under S. 417(3). It was open to it to prescribe a period of limitation in the Code itself. Lala Ram v. Hari Ram, (1969) 3 SCC 173: 1970 SCC (Cri) 25: AIR 1970 SC 1093: 1970 Cri LJ 1014: 1960 Cri LJ 1014: (1970) 2 SCR 898.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1969]

[8810] — Ss. 417 and 423 — "Substantial and compelling reasons" — Rule of "compelling reasons" — Extraneous to S. 417

Per Venkatarama Ayyar, J. (dissenting)

An appeal against acquittal under S. 417 stands as regards the powers of the appellate Court, on the same footing as appeals against conviction. The words compelling reasons were for the first time used in Surajpal Singh v. State, AIR 1952 SC 52 and are not found in S. 417. The words used in this judgment did not import a limitation on the powers of a court hearing an appeal under S. 417. It is probable that these words were intended to express that the Court hearing an appeal under S. 417 should observe the rules which all appellate Courts should, before coming to a conclusion different from that of the trial Court.

If the expression "compelling reason" does not impose a restriction on the powers of a court hearing an appeal under S. 417 and its true scope is to guide it in arriving at a decision, the question whether the appellate Court can interfere with the decision on the ground that it is erroneous presents no difficulty. The decision would then be on questions of fact depending upon the appreciation of evidence and the Supreme Court cannot interfere with it. Aher Raja Khima v. State of Saurashtra, AIR 1956 SC 217: (1955) 2 SCR 1285: 1956 Cri LJ 426: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 135.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose[1], T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[2] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1955]

[8811] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Held, acquittal cannot be set aside by High Court unless Sessions Court in acquitting the accused was palpably wrong or took an erroneous view or committed grave injustice — CrPC, 1973, S. 378. Parichhat v. State of M.P., (1972) 4 SCC 694: AIR 1972 SC 535: 1972 Cri LJ 322.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1971]

[8812] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Appellate court — Power of — Principles to be followed in setting aside order of acquittal

The High Court has full power on appeal from acquittal to appraise the evidence for itself just as it is empowered to do on appeal against conviction. The statute, as has repeatedly been said, creates no distinction between the two kinds of appeals. All that the High Court is expected to do in appeal against the orders of acquittal, is, that it should bear in mind that there is an initial presumption in favour of the innocence of an accused person and that the trial court having acquitted him, this initial presumption should be considered to have been further strengthened to some extent, but certainly not weakened, as a result of the trial court's conclusion. The correctness or otherwise of the conclusions of the trial court, it is true, is the subject of the appeal and is, therefore, open to examination by the High Court. But while appraising the evidence, the High Court should not ignore the importance of the opinion of the trial court which has to be dislodged before reversing the order under appeal. Lekha Yadav v. State of Bihar, (1973) 2 SCC 424: 1973 SCC (Cri) 820: AIR 1973 SC 2241: 1973 Cri LJ 1421.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1973]

[8813] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Appellate Court ought to give reasons before setting aside the acquittal. Ram Kishan Singh v. Harmit Kaur, (1972) 3 SCC 280: 1972 SCC (Cri) 493: AIR 1972 SC 468: 1972 Cri LJ 267.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-12-1971]

[8814] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Appellate Court ought to give reasons before setting aside the acquittal. Gopalsingh v. State of M.P., (1972) 3 SCC 268: 1972 SCC (Cri) 513: AIR 1972 SC 1557: 1972 Cri LJ 1045.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: A.N. Grover, A.N. Ray, D.G. Palekar and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-2-1972]

[8815] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Duty of High Court before interfering — Reasons to be stated

It is true that the High Court when reversing a finding of acquittal has to bear in mind that the accused have been acquitted by the trial court and unless the High Court finds such acquittal unreasonable it would normally not be justified in reversing that finding. The High Court must not only find that the view of the learned Sessions Judge about the evidence was unreasonable but must also give reasons why it does. Bhakla and Ramadhin v. State of M.P., (1973) 3 SCC 672: 1973 SCC (Cri) 478: AIR 1972 SC 2576: 1973 Cri LJ 39.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1972]

[8816] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Power of the Appellate Court — Manner of approach

The power of the Appellate Court in an appeal against acquittal is not different from that it has in appeal against conviction. The difference lies more in the manner of approach and perspective rather than in the content of the power. Gopi Nath Ganga Ram Surve v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 3 SCC 627.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Ramaswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-1969]

[8817] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Power of the High Court — Extent of — Interference with order of acquittal — How far permissible

The powers of the High Court in considering the evidence on record under S. 417, CrPC, are as extensive as its powers in appeals against convictions but that the Court at the same time should bear in mind the presumption of innocence of accused persons which presumption is not weakened by their acquittal. It must also bear in mind the fact the Appellate Judge has found them not guilty. Unless the conclusions reached by him are palpably based on erroneous view of the law or that his decision is likely to result in grave injustice, the High Court should be reluctant to interfere with his conclusion. If two reasonable conclusions can be reached on the basis of the evidence on record then the view in support of the acquittal of the accused should be preferred. The fact that the High Court is inclined to take a different view of the evidence on record is not sufficient to interfere with the order of acquittal. Khedu Mohton v. State of Bihar, (1970) 2 SCC 450: 1970 SCC (Cri) 479: AIR 1971 SC 66: 1971 Cri LJ 20.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-1970]

[8818] — S. 417 — Appeal against acquittal — Powers of the High Court — Presumption of innocence of the accused — Interference with the order of Trial Court only on cogent grounds

It is now well settled that the power of an Appellate Court to review evidence in appeals against acquittal is as extensive as its powers in appeals against convictions. It is also well settled that before an Appellate Court can set aside the order of acquittal, it must carefully consider the reasons given by the trial Court in support of its order and must give its own reasons to reject those reasons. It should bear in mind the presumption of innocence of the accused and the fact that the trial Judge had the advantage of seeing and hearing the witnesses. In brief, the Appellate Court should not disturb an order of acquittal except on very cogent grounds. On an examination of the entire material on record we have come to the conclusion that the High Court was not justified in setting aside the order of the Trial Court. Mathai Methews v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 3 SCC 772.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-7-1969]

[8819] — S. 417 — Appeal to Supreme Court against acquittal by High Court — Accused being convicted by trial Judge — High Court setting aside conviction — Application by State under Art. 134(1)(c) of Constitution of India is competent

If an accused person is convicted by the trial Court and on appeal to the High Court, his conviction is set aside, the State is entitled to apply to the High Court for a certificate under Art. 134(1)(c). Such an application cannot be rejected in limine on the ground that it is incompetent, it has to be entertained and considered and decided on the merits.

Articles 134(1)(a) and (b) confer a right of an appeal to this Court, whereas Art. 134(1)(c) confers a right on the aggrieved party to make an application for a certificate; and it is for the High Court to consider whether the Certificate of fitness should be issued or not. Article 134(1)(c) does not, therefore, give the State a right to move this Court by way of an appeal against the order of acquittal passed by the High Court in appeal. Nevertheless it has a right to move the High Court for a certificate in that behalf.

The words used in Art. 134(1)(c) are wide enough to take in appellate orders of acquittal passed by the High Courts while dealing with appeals brought before them by accused persons who are convicted by the trial courts. State of U.P. v. R.B. Agarwal, AIR 1966 SC 1135, 1137: (1966) 3 SCR 462: 1966 Cri LJ 815, 816, 81.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1966]

Shantiranjan Manjumdar v. A. Brahmachari, Cr. A. No. 21 of 1960, dt. Sept. 14, 1964; State Govt., M.P. v. R.G. Limsey, 1954 Cri LJ 244: AIR 1954 SC 20, overruled

[8820] — S. 417 — Appeal to Supreme Court against acquittal by High Court — Not allowed under Art. 134 — Can be tried under Art. 136 — Constitution of India — Arts. 134 and 136

Article 134 does not provide for an appeal from a judgment, final order or sentence in a criminal proceeding of a High Court if the High Court has on appeal reversed an order of conviction of an accused person and has ordered his acquittal. In other words, there is no provision in the Constitution corresponding to S. 417, CrPC, and such an order is final, subject, however, to the overriding powers vested in this Court by Art. 136 of the Constitution. State of M.P. v. Ramkrishna Ganpatrao Limsey, AIR 1954 SC 20: 1954 Cri LJ 244.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, S.R. Das and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1952]

[Ed.: Explained in AIR 1956 SC 158 thus: that AIR 1954 SC 20 was a decision of a Bench of three Judges and not that of a Constitution Bench. There, the appeal was by special leave granted by this Court. The observation that there was no provision in the Constitution corresponding to S. 417 of the Criminal Procedure Code was obviously made to emphasise that this Court should not, in an appeal by special leave, interfere with an order of acquittal passed by the High Court merely for correcting errors of facts or law. Without hearing further arguments on the scope of Art. 134(1)(c), we would prefer not to express any opinion on a Constitution Bench as to the validity of the certificates given by the High Court in this case

See State of Madras v. A.V. Iyer, AIR 1958 SC 61 and State of Punjab v. S. Lal, AIR 1960 SC 397; see contrary view in State of U.P. v. R.B. Agarwal, (1966) 3 SCR 462: AIR 1966 SC 1135: 1966 Cri LJ 815-16, 17.]

[8821] — S. 417 — Benefit of doubt continues

The presumption of innocence of an accused is not weakened by his acquittal by the trial Court and the Appellate Court should consider every one of the grounds taken into consideration in favour of the accused by the trial Court before setting aside his acquittal and further bear in mind the fact that the trial Judge had the benefit of seeing the witnesses. Asaram Vithalsingh Pardeshi v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 3 SCC 456: 1971 SCC (Cri) 62: AIR 1971 SC 1315: 1971 Cri LJ 1093.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1970]

[8822] — S. 417 — Limitations on the power of High Court in considering an appeal against acquittal — Proper appraisal of evidence by trial Court not to be disturbed

Held, the High Court has failed to realise the limitations within which it had to function and the caution that it had to observe in considering an appeal against acquittal. Since the Sessions Judge had made a proper appraisal of the evidence, there was no justification for the High Court to interfere with the order of acquittal passed by the learned Sessions Judge. Bhubneshwar Mandal v. State of Bihar, (1973) 1 SCC 303: 1973 SCC (Cri) 323: AIR 1973 SC 399: 1973 Cri LJ 337.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ, [Date of decision: 6-12-1972]

[8823] — S. 417 — Person actively participating in offence with accused but witness leaving him out while involving the accused — No appeal made against his acquittal by trial Court — High Court not called upon to appreciate evidence on relative culpability — Whether accused can get benefit of the acquittal of his co-accused

Where one of the members of the accused party, though actively participated in the offence, was not involved in the case, he can only be a witness to speak about the occurrence and perhaps his version about the accused persons cannot be accepted.

Moreover, where there was no appeal against acquittal of such a person by the trial Court and the High Court was not called upon to make an appreciation of evidence on the relative culpability of the two accused the contention that the appellant should also get the benefit of the same evidence on which he was acquitted is untenable. Nanhku Singh v. State of Bihar, (1972) 3 SCC 590: AIR 1973 SC 491: 1972 Cri LJ 1204.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and K.K. Mathew, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-4-1972]

[8824] — S. 417 — Prima facie reasonableness of trial Court judgment not to prevent reassessment by High Court

The legal position regarding the powers of the High Court to allow an appeal against an order of acquittal is well settled.

Only because the judgment of the trial Court prima facie seems reasonable, it cannot be said that there is no scope for reassessment of the evidence by the appellate Court. The Court of appeal has full power under the statute to go into the entire evidence and all the relevant circumstances of the case for coming to its own conclusion about the guilt or innocence of the accused bearing in mind the initial presumption of the innocence of an accused person and the fact that he was acquitted by the trial Court. Pala Singh v. State of Punjab, (1972) 2 SCC 640: 1973 SCC (Cri) 55: AIR 1972 SC 2679: 1973 Cri LJ 59.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1972]

[8825] — S. 417 — Reappraisal of evidence — High Court setting aside acquittal — Sessions Judge erred in exaggerating discrepancies — Fresh assessment of evidence by High Court justified

The approach of the learned trial Judge to the evidence was one of suspicion which led him to give to those discrepancies an exaggerated significance. The High Court was right in arriving at the conclusion which on its own assessment of the evidence the Trial Judge had unjustifiably discarded on the mere ground of discrepancies.

Considering the gruesome nature of the attack on the deceased, the weapon used, the nature of the injuries caused and lastly the reason for that attack, it can hardly be said that the extreme sentence imposed upon the appellant by the High Court was not in the circumstances justified. Kanauji v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 58: 1977 SCC (Cri) 662.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-2-1970]

[8826] — S. 417 — Reappraisal of evidence by High Court

It is true that the High Court is entitled on appeal against acquittal to reappraise the evidence in the same manner in which it does on appeals against conviction with the only difference that in the former case it has to bear in mind the verdict of acquittal by the Trial Court. It is also true that under Art. 136 this Court does not ordinarily reappraise evidence for itself for determining whether or not the High Court has come to a correct conclusion on facts. But where the High Court has completely missed the real point requiring determination and has also on erroneous grounds discredited the medical testimony and has further failed to consider the fact that on account of long-standing enmity between the party of the accused and that of the deceased there is a tendency to involve innocent persons and to exaggerate and lead perjured evidence in regard to the occurrence, the Supreme Court would be justified in going into the evidence for the purpose of satisfying itself that grave injustice has not resulted in the case. Masji Tato Rawool v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 416: 1971 SCC (Cri) 664.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1971]

[8827] — S. 417 — Reappraisal of evidence by High Court

Though the High Court has power on a review of the evidence to reverse the order of acquittal, yet in doing so it should not only consider all matters on record including the reasons given by the Trial Court in respect of the order of acquittal, but should particularly consider those aspects which are in favour of the accused and ought not also to act on conjectures or surmises nor on inferences which do not arise on the evidence in the case.

In view of the infirmities in the evidence and contradictions in the account of the witnesses the reversal of the order of acquittal by the High Court was not warranted. Kanu Ambu Vish v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 1 SCC 503: 1971 SCC (Cri) 211: AIR 1971 SC 2256: 1971 Cri LJ 1547.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-1971]

[8828] — S. 417 — Reason for rejecting defence version to be given when prosecution case unconvincing

Where defence story is that the accused was urinating when he received injuries and that gun went off in struggle causing injuries to the accused, and the Judge rejects it then it is his duty to consider the evidence of prosecution as to how the gun was fired and in case not accepting that story it is his duty to give reasons for not doing this. Sohrab v. State of M.P., (1972) 3 SCC 751: 1972 SCC (Cri) 819: AIR 1972 SC 2020: 1972 Cri LJ 1302.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-5-1972]

[8829] — S. 417 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court upheld — No two views of the evidence possible — Trial court's approach perverse and legally erroneous. Pedda Narayana v. State of A.P., (1975) 4 SCC 153: 1975 SCC (Cri) 427: AIR 1975 SC 1252: 1975 Cri LJ 1062: (1975) 12 ACC 201: 1975 Cr LR (SC) 335.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1975]

[8830] — S. 417 — Rule of substantial and compelling reasons — M.G. Agarwal case [No longer good law. (1963) 2 SCR 405: AIR 1963 SC 200]

Per majority

It is not enough for the High Court to take a different view of the evidence; there must also be substantial and compelling reasons for holding that the trial Court was wrong. If the trial Court takes a reasonable view of the facts of the case, interference under S. 417 is not justifiable unless there are really strong reasons for reversing that view. Aher Raja Khima v. State of Saurashtra, AIR 1956 SC 217, 220: (1955) 2 SCR 1285: 1956 Cri LJ 426: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 135.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose[1], T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[2] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1955]

Following cases also overruled Surjan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1956 SC 425: 1956 Cri LJ 815, 818; Chinna Baliga v. State of Hyderabad, 1954 Cri LJ 1731; Bhagwan Das v. State of Rajasthan, 1957 SCR 854: AIR 1957 SC 589: 1957 Cri LJ 889, 92; Puran v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 459: 1953 Cri LJ 1925, 27, 28; Balbir Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 216: 1957 Cri LJ 481; Wilayat Khan v. State of U.P., AIR 1953 SC 122: 1953 Cri LJ 662, 664; Ajmer Singh v. State of Punjab, 1953 SCR 418: AIR 1953 SC 76: 1953 Cri LJ 521; Surajpal Singh v. State, 1952 SCR 193: AIR 1952 SC 52: 1952 Cri LJ 331, 332

[Ed.: See latest view esp. (1974) 3 SCC 307: 1973 SCC (Cri) 933; (1973) 2 SCC 793; 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033; (1970) 3 SCC 474: 1971 SCC(Cri) 80.]

[8831] — S. 417 — Scope — Appellate powers of superior Courts — Criteria to be followed

The scope of criminal appeal is set at rest by the decision in Sanwat Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1961) 3 SCR 120. According to it —

1. An appellate court has full powers to review the evidence upon which the order of acquittal is founded.

2. The principles laid down in Sheo Swarup case afforded a correct guide for the appellate court's approach to a case disposing of such an appeal.

3. The different phraseology used in the judgments of this Court such as —

(a) "substantial and compelling reasons";

(b) "good and sufficiently cogent reasons";

(c) "strong reasons", are not intended to curtail the undoubted power of an appellate court in an appeal against acquittal to review the entire evidence and to come to its own conclusion, but in doing so it should not only consider every matter on record having a bearing on the questions of fact and the reasons given by the court below in support of its order of acquittal but should express the reasons in its judgment which led it to hold that the acquittal was not justified.

To this it may be added.

4. The appellate court should also bear in mind the fact that the trial Court had the benefit of seeing the witnesses in the witness-box and the presumption of innocence is not weakened by the order of acquittal. If two reasonable conclusions can be reached on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate court should not disturb the findings of the trial Court. Ramaphupala Reddy v. State of A.P., (1970) 3 SCC 474: 1971 SCC (Cri) 80: AIR 1971 SC 460: 1971 Cri LJ 422.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1970]

[8832] — S. 417 — Trial Court's appraisal of testimony based on demeanour of witness not to be brushed aside easily

In dealing with an appeal against an acquittal the High Court can go into the question of law and fact and reach its own conclusion on evidence provided it pays due regard to the fact that matter had been before the Court of Sessions and the Sessions Judge had the chance and opportunity of seeing the witnesses depose to the facts. Damodarprasad Chandrikaprasad v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 1 SCC 107: 1972 SCC (Cri) 110: AIR 1972 SC 622: (1972) 2 SCR 622: 1972 Cri LJ 451.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-11-1971]

[8833] — S. 417 — Two reasonable views possible — Trial Court view to be duly considered

No doubt on appeal against acquittal the High Court is entitled to reappraise the evidence for itself but when the evidence is capable of two reasonable views, then the view taken by the trial Court demands due consideration. Deo Narain v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 347: 1973 SCC (Cri) 330: AIR 1973 SC 473: 1973 Cri LJ 677.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ, [Date of decision: 11-12-1972]

See Khedu Mohton v. State of Bihar, (1970) 2 SCC 450: 1970 SCC (Cri) 479 for the proposition that of the two reasonable views the view favouring the acquittal of the accused should be preferred. High Court's inclination to take a different view, held, not sufficient to interfere with an order of acquittal

[8834] — Ss. 417, 418 and 423 — Principles governing appreciation of evidence in an appeal from a judgment of acquittal

In an appeal from a judgment of acquittal, the High Court should and will always give proper weight and consideration to such matters as (1) the views of the trial Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses; (2) the presumption certainly not weakened by the fact that he has been acquitted at his trial (3) the right of the accused to the benefit of any doubt; and (4) the slowness of an appellate court in disturbing a finding of fact arrived at by a Judge who had the advantage of seeing the witnesses. Dappili Verma Reddy v. State of A.P., (1973) 3 SCC 89: 1973 SCC (Cri) 151: AIR 1973 SC 153: 1973 Cri LJ 223.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, K.K. Mathew and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1972]

[8835] — Ss. 417, 423 and 418 — Appeal against order of acquittal and of conviction not materially different

The Code does not make any difference between the ambit of an appeal from a conviction and that of an appeal from an order of acquittal except that an appeal against a conviction is as of right and lies to courts of different jurisdiction depending on the nature of sentence, the kind of trial and the Court in which it was held, whereas an appeal against an order of acquittal can only be made to the High Court by the State Government or by a complainant (where the case started on a complaint) with the special leave of the High Court. The matters on which an appeal under the Code is admissible are stated in S. 118 and they are the same for the two kinds of appeals. Such appeals lie on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law (except in trials by Jury). The procedure for dealing with the two kinds of appeals is identical and the powers of Appellate Courts in disposing of the appeals, though indicated separately in S. 423 are in essence the same. Rajeswar Prasad Misra v. State of W.B., AIR 1965 SC 1887, 1890: (1966) 1 SCR 178: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 817.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1965]

[8836] — Ss. 417, 423 and 418 — Appeal against order of acquittal and of conviction not materially different

The Code does not make any difference between the ambit of an appeal from a conviction and that of an appeal from an order of acquittal except that an appeal against a conviction is as of right and lies to courts of different jurisdiction depending on the nature of sentence, the kind of trial and the Court in which it was held, whereas an appeal against an order of acquittal can only be made to the High Court by the State Government or by a complainant (where the case started on a complaint) with the special leave of the High Court. The matters on which an appeal under the Code is admissible are stated in S. 118 and they are the same for the two kinds of appeals. Such appeals lie on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law (except in trials by Jury). The procedure for dealing with the two kinds of appeals is identical and the powers of Appellate Courts in disposing of the appeals, though indicated separately in S. 423 are in essence the same. Laxman Kalu Nikalje v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 1390: (1968) 3 SCR 685: 1968 Cri LJ 1647.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1968]

[8837] — Ss. 417 and 369 — Relative scope — Power of High Court to entertain appeal by State after summary dismissal of appeal of convict

The right to appeal against the order of acquittal is expressly conferred upon the State by S. 417 of the Code, and S. 369 does not purport to place any restriction upon the exercise of that right. Section 369 occurs in Ch. XXVI and prima facie applies to judgments of the Courts of first instance. Nirbhay Singh v. State of M.P., (1969) 2 SCR 569, 571.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-10-1968]

[8838] — Ss. 417 and 421 — Reversal of acquittal by the High Court not justified where the view taken by the trial court was reasonably possible and the High Court was inclined to take a different view of the facts. Bahal Singh v. State of Haryana, (1976) 3 SCC 564: 1976 SCC (Cri) 461: AIR 1976 SC 2032: 1976 Cri LJ 1568.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1976]

[8839] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Ambit and scope of High Court's powers in appeal against acquittal under — Principles restated — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. Salim Zia v. State of U.P., (1979) 2 SCC 648: 1979 SCC (Cri) 568: AIR 1979 SC 391: 1979 Cri LJ 323.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1978]

[8840] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Appeal against acquittal — Scope of appellate Court's jurisdiction explained and law laid down in Sanwant Singh case reiterated — That if two reasonable views of the evidence are possible the appellate Court should not interfere, held, is but the old rule of giving accused the benefit of reasonable doubt — What is "reasonable doubt" further explained — On facts, reversal of acquittal by the High Court was justified — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. K. Gopal Reddy v. State of A.P., (1979) 1 SCC 355: 1979 SCC (Cri) 305: AIR 1979 SC 387: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 259: 1979 ALJ 137: 1980 Cri LJ 812.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-11-1978]

[8841] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court, held, not justified when it could not offset all the reasons given by the trial court for recording a verdict of acquittal — High Court's reasoning based on conjectures and conclusion based on the testimony of interested witnesses ignoring that of government officials on duty who were disinterested and independent witnesses — That another reasonable view of the evidence was possible cannot justify the reversal of acquittal — Position in law on this aspect restated — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 302 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. (Para 27). Bhagirath Singh v. State of Bihar, (1976) 1 SCC 614: 1976 SCC (Cri) 112: AIR 1976 SC 924: 1976 Cri LJ 685.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1975]

[8842] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Appeal against acquittal — Powers of appellate Court — Scope and ambit of — Restated — Appellate Court should give reasons why acquittal of trial Court was not justified — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386 and 378

The appellate Court has full powers to review the evidence upon which the order of acquittal is founded. However, in exercising this power the appellate Court, while dealing with an order of acquittal, should not only consider every matter on record having a bearing on the question of facts and the reasons given by the Court below in support of its order of acquittal, but it must express its reasons in its judgment which led it to hold that the acquittal is not justified.

In cases where a large number of persons are involved and in the commotion some persons cause injuries to others and the evidence is of a partisan character, it is often safer for the judge of fact to be guided by the compass of probabilities along the rock-ribbed contours of the case converging on the heart of the matter. Once the Court goes astray from the basic features of the case it is apt to lose itself in the labyrinths of immaterial details, desultory discussion and vacillation arising from unfounded suspicions. Bava Haji Hamsa v. State of Kerala, (1974) 4 SCC 479: 1974 SCC (Cri) 515: AIR 1974 SC 902: 1974 Cri LJ 755.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg, Y.V. Chandrachud and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-2-1974]

(1974) 3 SCC 762: 1974 SCC (Cri) 238, followed

[8843] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Maintainability of joint appeal by State against order of acquittal against several persons in a joint trial — R. 6 in Ch. XXVI of Bombay High Court Appellate Side Rules

The finding of the Full Bench in Lalu Jela case as to R. 6 in Chapter XXVI of the Bombay High Court Appellate Side Rules being not inconsistent with Chapter XXXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure is approved by the Supreme Court. Procedure is a hand-maid and not a mistress of law, intended to subserve and facilitate the cause of justice and not to govern or obstruct it. So construed a joint appeal in compliance with this rule must be sustained.

Section 419, CrPC, does not prohibit a joint appeal from an order of acquittal. Nor are Ss. 258, 410 and 423, CrPC, a bar. State of Gujarat v. Ramprakash P. Puri, (1969) 3 SCC 156: 1970 SCC (Cri) 29.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Ramaswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1969]

[8844] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Appeal against acquittal — Appreciation of evidence — Power of High Court — Sessions Judge adopting inconsistent and unsound standards in appreciating evidence — High Court is not only entitled but bound to give effect to its own independent conclusion on evidence

In view of the highly unsatisfactory appreciation of the oral evidence by the Sessions Judge and the view of his adopting inconsistent and unsound standards without any real effect to assist the credibility of the evidence given by the various alleged eyewitnesses as against each of the accused there is every justification for the correctness of the various acquittals being closely scrutinised and examined by the Appellate Court. In such a situation the Court is not only entitled but bound to give effect to its own independent conclusion on the evidence, giving due weight to all the circumstance which have normally to be kept in view in a case of this kind. There was, therefore, ample justification for interference by the High Court with the acquittals which resulted from the judgment of the Sessions Judge. Surjan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1956 SC 425: 1956 Cri LJ 815, 818.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-11-1955]

[8845] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Appeal against acquittal — High Court's power of review — Points to be considered by High Court before reaching its conclusion upon facts — High Court should not disturb finding of acquittal recorded by trial court merely because a different view was possible. Bishan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 3 SCC 288, 294: AIR 1973 SC 2443: 1973 SCC (Cri) 914; Mohandas Lalwani v. State of M.P., (1974) 3 SCC 361, 367: (1974) 1 SCR 636: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1011: 1973 Cri LJ 1812; Samson Hyam Kemkar v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 3 SCC 494, 498: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1096: 1974 Cri LJ 809; Dappili Verma Reddy v. State of A.P., (1973) 3 SCC 89, 94: 1973 SCC (Cri) 151: 1973 Cri LJ 223; Shivaji Genu Motuite v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 3 SCC 219, 223: (1973) MLJ (Cri) 462: 1973 SCC (Cri) 214; Roop Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 3 SCC 307, 313: (1974) 1 SCR 828: 1973 SCC (Cri) 933; Dargahi v. State of U.P., (1974) 3 SCC 302, 307: 1973 SCC (Cri) 928: 1973 Cri LJ 1828; Sohrab v. State of M.P., (1972) 3 SCC 751, 756, 757: AIR 1972 SC 2020: 1972 SCC (Cri) 819; Ram Kishan Singh v. Harmit Kaur, (1972) 3 SCC 280, 281: 1972 SCC (Cri) 493: 1972 Cri LJ 267; Chandrakant Ganpat Sovitar v. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 3 SCC 16, 26: 1974 SCC (Cri) 712; Khedu Mohton v. State of Bihar, (1970) 2 SCC 450: (1970) SCC (Cri) 479; Lekha Yadav v. State of Bihar, (1973) 2 SCC 424, 427, 428: 1973 SCC (Cri) 820; Pala Singh v. State of Punjab, (1972) 2 SCC 640, 645, 646: 1973 SCC (Cri) 55; Dharam Dass v. State of U.P., (1973) 2 SCC 216, 219; 1973 SCC (Cri) 765; Mehtab Singh v. State of M.P., (1975) 3 SCC 407, 412: 1975 SCC (Cri) 33; Balak Ram v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 219, 227, 228: 1974 SCC (Cri) 837; Deo Narain v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 347, 351: 1973 SCC (Cri) 330; Rajendra Rai v. State of Bihar, (1975) 3 SCC 193, 197, 198: 1974 SCC (Cri) 811; Bhubneshwar Mandal v. State of Bihar, (1973) 1 SCC 303: 1973 SCC (Cri) 323: 1973 Cri LJ 337; Bhakla and Ramadhin v. State of M.P., (1973) 3 SCC 672, 675: AIR 1972 SC 2576: 1973 SCC (Cri) 478: 1973 Cri LJ 39; Ram Jag v. State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 201, 207: (1974) 3 SCR 9: 1974 SCC (Cri) 370: 1974 Cr LR (SC) 116; Keshav Gangaram Navge v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 1 SCC 513: AIR 1971 SC 953; Sethu Madhavan Nair v. State of Kerala, (1975) 3 SCC 150: 1974 SCC (Cri) 774: AIR 1974 SC 1857: (1975) 1 SCR 673: 1974 Cri LJ 1279.

[8846] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Appeal against acquittal not different — Conclusion of compelling reasons not essential in reversing the acquittal

An appeal from acquittal need not be treated differently from an appeal from conviction and if the High Court finds that the acquittal is not justified by the evidence on record it can set aside the acquittal without coming to the conclusion that there were compelling reasons for doing so. Radha Kishan v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 822: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 408: 1963 Cri LJ 809: (1963) 2 LLJ 667.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1962]

[8847] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Appeal against acquittal of one of the several accused — High Court can record finding against the basis of acquittal of all — Sessions Judge acquitting several accused of offences under S. 414, IPC holding that property not proved as "stolen property" — Appeal preferred against only one of the accused — High Court is competent to reverse the finding that property not stolen

The mere fact that the learned Additional Sessions Judge acquitted the other accused on the ground that the property recovered was not proved to be stolen property did not preclude the State from appealing against the acquittal of the appellant against whom there is better evidence for establishing that he was in possession of the stolen property than the evidence was against the other co-accused. The State could challenge the correctness of the findings of the learned Additional Sessions Judge about the property being stolen property and, consequently the High Court can record its own finding on that question. The fact that the State did not appeal against the acquittal of others is not detrimental to this appeal. Ajendranath v. State of M.P., AIR 1964 SC 170: (1964) 3 SCR 289: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 129: 1964 MLJ (Cri) 226.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[8848] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Case based on oral evidence — Trial Court's estimate of such evidence not to be lightly set aside

Where the appeal before the High Court is one against acquittal, the High Court is, no doubt, entitled to go into the facts and arrive at its own estimate of the evidence, it is also settled law that, where the case turns on oral evidence of witnesses, the estimate of such evidence by the trial Court is not to be lightly set aside. General suspicions are not by themselves enough in such an appeal to dispute the credibility of witnesses, whom a trial Magistrate was inclined to accept. S.A.A. Biyabani v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 645: 1954 Cri LJ 1665.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Ghulam Hasan and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-5-1954]

[8849] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Error of Law — Sessions Judge committing error in proceeding on a basis wherein inferences and probabilities resting on assumptions were permitted to do duty for proved facts, which the statute required to be established before exemption under S. 84, Penal Code could be claimed — High Court must interfere with an acquittal — Impelling reasons for interference are present in such a case. State of M.P. v. Ahmadulla, AIR 1961 SC 998: (1961) 3 SCR 583: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 43.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.K. Sarkar and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-1961]

[8850] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Extent of powers to review at large all the evidence

The Supreme Court has consistently taken the view that in an appeal against acquittal the High Court has full power to review at large all the evidence and to reach the conclusion that upon that evidence the order of acquittal should be reversed. Jadunath Singh v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 577: 1971 SCC (Cri) 726: AIR 1972 SC 116: 1972 Cri LJ 29.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-1971]

[8851] — Ss. 417 and 423 — High Court can interfere if the trial Court fails to take note of a very important fact

In exercising its appellate powers in dealing with orders of acquittal the High Court should not interfere unless there is sufficient ground to do so. If the questions decided by the trial Court are pure questions of facts and their decision depends merely on appreciation of oral evidence the High Court would not be justified in interfering with the order of acquittal passed by the trial Court. But, where the trial Court's appreciation of evidence has been vitiated by its failure to take note of a very important fact the position becomes different.

Where the conclusion arrived at by the trial Court is not reasonably possible having regard to the specific case made by the appellant in his written statement and the evidence accepted is inconsistent with the case of the defence set up in the written statement, it is held that the infirmity in the judgment vitiates the conclusions of the trial Court and so the High Court was justified in considering the evidence for itself. Dharamdas Hukamatrai Dorwani v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 734: 1960 Cri LJ 1148: (1960) 2 Ker LR 32.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K. Subba Rao and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1959]

[8852] — Ss. 417 and 423 — High Court taking a different view — High Court not justified in brushing aside the view taken by the Court which is not patently absurd

The High Court was not justified, in an appeal from an order of acquittal in brushing aside the view taken by the trial Court which is by no means patently absurd or unreasonable merely because, as a result of an elaborate and laborious process of reasoning, the High Court came to think that it might be possible to take a different view of the evidence. This approach is utterly contrary to the salutary principles. Bansidhar Mohanty v. State of Orissa, AIR 1955 SC 585: 1955 Cri LJ 1300, 1302.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1954]

[8853] — Ss. 417 and 423 — High Court to set out the evidence succinctly and categorically when reversing judgment

When reversing acquittals their judgment should clearly set out and discuss the evidence of the eyewitnesses as against each of the accused succinctly and categorically, instead of merely cataloguing a summary of the evidence of each prosecution witness and an enumeration of all who spoke against each accused. Surjan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1956 SC 425, 430: 1956 Cri LJ 815.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-11-1955]

[8854] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Interference by High Court with order of acquittal

The appellate Court has full powers to review the evidence upon which the order of acquittal is founded and that the different phrases used in some of the judgments of this Court like "Substantial and compelling reasons", "good and sufficiently cogent reasons", and "strong reasons", were not intended to curtail the undoubted power of the appellate Court to review the entire evidence and to come to its own conclusion in an appeal against acquittal. It was, however, emphasised that in exercising this power the appellate Court, while dealing with an order of acquittal should not only consider every matter on record having a bearing on the questions of fact and the reasons given by the Court below in support of its order of acquittal but it must express its reasons in its judgment which led it to hold that the acquittal is not justified. Also the appellate Court must bear in mind the fact that the trial Court had the benefit of seeing the witness in the witness-box and the presumption of innocence is not weakened by the order of acquittal. Therefore, "if two reasonable conclusions can be reached on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate Court should not disturb the findings of the trial Court". Bhim Singh Rup Singh v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 3 SCC 762: 1974 SCC (Cri) 238: AIR 1974 SC 286.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-11-1973]

Followed in (1974) 4 SCC 479: 1974 SCC (Cri) 515.

[8855] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Nature and scope — Appeal against acquittal — Cardinal rules for High Court laid down

The following are the cardinal rules which have always to be kept in view on appeals against acquittal.

Firstly, there is presumption of innocence in favour of the accused which has to be kept in mind, especially when the accused has been acquitted by the Court below;

Secondly, if two views of the matter are possible, view favourable to the accused should be taken;

Thirdly, in case of acquittal by the trial Judge, the appellate Court should take into account the fact that the trial Judge had the advantage of looking at the demeanour of witnesses; and Fourthly, the accused is entitled to the benefit of doubt. The doubt should, however, be reasonable and as observed in H.P. Admn. v. Om Prakash, (1972) 1 SCC 249: 1972 SCC (Cri) 88, the doubt should be such which rational thinking men will reasonably, honestly and conscientiously entertain and not the doubt of a timid mind which fights shy — though unwittingly it may be or is afraid of the logical consequences, if that benefit was not given. To put it differently, it is "not the doubt of a vacillating mind that has not the moral courage to decide but shelters itself in a vain and ideal scepticism". State of U.P. v. Samman Dass, (1972) 3 SCC 201: 1972 SCC (Cri) 275: AIR 1972 SC 677: 1972 Cri LJ 487: 1973 ALJ 489.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1972]

[8856] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Nature and Scope — Latest view — Appeal against acquittal — Approach to be taken by appellate Court — Matters to be considered as a matter of practice — Balance between the rule of benefit of doubt and public good — Caution in giving the benefit of doubt too freely — Rational application of the consideration that the trial Court had observed the witnesses and assessed their reliability — Trial Court in no better position as regards expert evidence. Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033: AIR 1973 SC 2622: 1973 Cri LJ 1783.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, H.R. Khanna and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1973]

[8857] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Nature and Scope — Latest view — Appeal against acquittal — Consideration before High Court before interfering

The jurisdiction of the High Court in dealing with appeals from judgments and orders of acquittal is wide enough to empower the High Court to assess and appraise the evidence for itself and come to its own conclusion on the question of guilt or innocence of the accused persons. The statute places no limitation on this power, there being no distinction between an appeal from an acquittal and an appeal from a conviction. If the court on examining with care the evidence and the reasons for acquittal feels satisfied that the guilt of the accused is established beyond reasonable doubt then it may be considered as much its duty to convict as it would be its duty to acquit, if it entertains reasonable doubt about the guilt of the accused.

The High Court has, of course, to bear in mind when sifting and appraising the evidence, the initial presumption in favour of innocence of the accused and the fact that he was acquitted by the trial Court. The presumption of innocence has to be considered to be further strengthened to some extent by virtue of the order of acquittal. And then according to the obligation generally imposed on courts of appeal, the High Court should dislodge the reasons on which the trial Court recorded the order of acquittal. Dharam Das v. State of U.P., (1973) 2 SCC 216: 1973 SCC (Cri) 765: AIR 1973 SC 2195: 1973 Cri LJ 1181.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1973]

[8858] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Not necessary that judgment of trial Court should be perverse before being reversed

It is not correct to say that unless the Appellate Court in an appeal under S. 417 came to the conclusion that the judgment of acquittal under appeal was perverse it could not set aside that order. Atley v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 807: 1955 Cri LJ 1653, 1655.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1955]

[8859] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Presumption of innocence to be dislodged — Case under S. 411, IPC

It is settled law that the presumption of the innocence of an accused person is reinforced by an order of acquittal and a heavy onus rests on the prosecution in an appeal from such an order to prove that the order is manifestly erroneous. Where the High Court approached the case as if it was considering an appeal preferred against his conviction by an accused person and took the view that the accused having given no explanation regarding his knowledge of the place from which the ornaments were taken out, it must be presumed that he must have kept the ornaments there and that the fact that the field did not belong to the accused and that the place was accessible to others would not show that the ornaments were not in his possession but were kept by someone else, in the absence of a statement from the accused explaining the circumstances under which he come to know about the ornaments.

Held :

That was not the correct way of approaching the decision of a case under S. 411, IPC. When the field from which the ornaments were recovered was an open one, and accessible to all and sundry, it is difficult to hold positively that the accused was in possession of these articles. The fact of recovery by the accused is compatible with the circumstance of somebody else having placed the articles there and of the accused somehow acquiring knowledge about their whereabouts and that being so, the fact of discovery cannot be regarded as conclusive proof that the accused was in possession of these articles. Trimbak v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 39: 1954 Cri LJ 335.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1953]

[8860] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Reappreciation of oral evidence not ruled out

It is true that in dealing with oral evidence, a Court of Appeal would normally be reluctant to differ from the appreciation of oral evidence by the trial Court because obviously the trial Court has the advantage of watching the demeanour of the witnesses: but that is not to say that even in a proper case, the Appeal Court cannot interfere with such appreciation. Jai Dev v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 612, 619: (1963) 3 SCR 489: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 495.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-1962]

[8861] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Reasonable doubt by trial Court and Jury — Sufficiently cogent reasons necessary to overcome such reasonable doubt

In an appeal against an order of acquittal on a charge of murder, under S. 417, CrPC, while the appeal cou¬t has full powers to review the whole case, the Court must start with the realisation that an experienced judicial officer (with four assessors) had concluded that there was clearly reasonable doubt in respect of the guilt of the accused on the evidence put before the Court. It, therefore, requires good and sufficiently cogent reasons to overcome such reasonable doubt before the appeal court comes to a different conclusion. Tulsiram Kanu v. State, AIR 1954 SC 1: 1954 Cri LJ 225.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Harilal J. Kania, C.J. and Patanjali Sastri and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-1-1951]

Howeve see Sanwat Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1961) 3 SCR 120: AIR 1961 SC 715

[8862] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court upheld — Proper considerations in this regard as enunciated by Supreme Court, held, were observed by the High Court. Sita Ram v. State of M.P., (1975) 4 SCC 171: 1975 SCC (Cri) 464: AIR 1975 SC 77: 1975 Cri LJ 37.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1974]

[8863] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court upheld — Trial court's reasoning absurd and baseless — High Court dealing with every relevant matter forming the basis of the order of acquittal — Approach of High Court cautious and justified. Ram Anjore v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 379: 1975 SCC (Cri) 5: AIR 1975 SC 185: 1975 Cri LJ 249: (1975) 12 ACC 66.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1974]

[8864] — Ss. 417 and 423 — Scope — Court may interfere when satisfied that the view taken by the acquitting Judge is clearly unreasonable — "Compelling reasons" used in earlier Supreme Court decisions in this context explained

Before interfering in appeal with an order of acquittal a court must examine not only questions of law and fact in all their aspects but must also closely and carefully examine the reasons which impelled the lower courts to acquit the accused and should interfere only if satisfied, after such examination that the conclusion reached by the lower court that the guilt of the person has not been proved is unreasonable.

In emphasising in earlier decisions the necessity of "compelling reasons" to justify an interference with an order of acquittal the Supreme Court did not in any way try to curtail the power bestowed on Appellate Courts under S. 423, CrPC when hearing appeals against acquittal. The golden thread running through all these decisions is the rule that in deciding appeals against acquittal the Court of appeal must examine the evidence with particular care, must examine also the reasons on which the order of acquittal was based and should interfere with the order only when satisfied that the view taken by the acquitting Judge is clearly unreasonable. Once the Appellate Court comes to the conclusion that the view taken by the lower Court is clearly an unreasonable one that itself is a "compelling reason" for interference, for it is a court's duty to convict a guilty person when the guilt is established beyond all reasonable doubt, no less than it is its duty to acquit the accused when such guilt is not established. Harbans Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 439: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 104: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 479.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1961]

[8865] — Ss. 417 and 423(1)(a) — Appeal against acquittal — High Court's power extends to review evidence and arrive at its own conclusions — Nevertheless High Court would be slow to disturb findings based on oral evidence

The Code of Criminal Procedure placed no special limitation upon the powers of the High Court in dealing with an appeal against an order of acquittal. The High Court is entrusted with power to review evidence and to arrive at its own conclusion on the evidence. There are certainly restrictions inherent in the exercise of the power, but those restrictions arise from the nature of the jurisdiction which the High Court exercises. In a criminal trial the burden always lies on the prosecution to establish the case against the accused and the accused is presumed to be innocent of the offence charged till the contrary is established. The burden lies upon the prosecution, and the presumption of innocence applies with equal, if not greater, force in an appeal to the High Court against an order of acquittal. In applying the presumption of innocence the High Court is undoubtedly slow to disturb findings based on appreciation of oral evidence for the Court which has the opportunity of seeing the witnesses is always in a better position to evaluate their evidence than the Court which merely peruses the record. Bhagwanbhai Dulabhai Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (1963) 3 SCR 386: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 694: 1963 Mah LJ 134.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1962]

[8866] — Ss. 417 and 423(1)(a) — Appeal against acquittal — High Court's power in no way different from those in an appeal from conviction — Evidence can be considered and probabilities weighed — Due attention must, however, be paid to the grounds on which acquittal is based — Presumption of innocence to remain

The powers of the High Court in an appeal from an acquittal are in no way different from those in an appeal from a conviction. The High Court can consider the evidence and weigh the probabilities. It can accept evidence rejected by the Sessions Judge and reject evidence accepted by him unless the Sessions Judge relied upon his observations of the demeanour of a particular witness. In departing from the conclusions of the Sessions Judge the High Court must pay due attention to the grounds on which the acquittal is based and repeal those grounds satisfactorily, bearing in mind always that an accused starts with a presumption of innocence in his favour and this presumption of innocence in his favour cannot certainly be less strong after the acquittal. If these matters are properly kept in view and the acquittal is reversed, there can be no objection because our Criminal Jurisdiction empowers the High Court to reverse an acquittal. Sher Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1967 SC 1412: (1967) 2 SCR 727: 1967 Cri LJ 1213-14.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, J.M. Shelat and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-1967]

[8867] — Ss. 417 and 423(1)(a) — Earlier rulings limiting power of High Court explained and overruled

In some of the earlier decisions of this Court, however, in emphasising the importance of adopting cautious approach in dealing with appeals against acquittals, it was observed that the presumption of innocence is reinforced by the order of acquittal and so "the findings of the trial Court which had the advantage of seeing the witnesses and hearing their evidence can be reversed only for very substantial and compelling reasons": vide Surajpal Singh v. State, 1952 SCR 193, 201. Similarly in Ajmer Singh v. State of Punjab, 1953 SCR 418, it was observed that the interference of the High Court in an appeal against the order of acquittal would be justified only if there are "very substantial and compelling reasons to do so". In some other decisions, it has been stated that an order of acquittal can be reversed only for "good and sufficiently cogent reasons" or for "strong reasons". In appreciating the effect of these observations, it must be remembered that these observations were not intended to lay down a rigid or inflexible rule which should govern the decision of the High Court in appeals against acquittals. They were not intended, and should not be read to have intended to introduce an additional condition in cl. (a) of S. 423(1) of the code. All that the said observations are intended to emphasise is that the approach of the High Court in dealing with an appeal against acquittal ought to be cautious because as Lord Russell observed in the case of Sheo Swarup, 61 1A 398: AIR 1934 PC 227 the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused "is not certainly weakened by the fact that he has been acquitted at his trial". Therefore the test suggested by the expression "substantial and compelling reasons" should not be construed as a formula which has to be rigidly applied in every case. M.G. Agarwal v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 200, 206: (1963) 2 SCR 405: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 235.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1962]

Affirmed in Durgacharan Naik v. State of Orissa, (1966) 3 SCR 636: AIR 1966 SC 1775: 1966 Cri LJ 1491, 93, 94

[8868] — Ss. 417 and 423(1)(a) — Scope — Extent of High Court's power

The view that the High Court has no power under S. 417, CrPC, to reverse a judgment of acquittal, unless the judgment is perverse or the subordinate Court has in some way or other misdirected itself so as to produce a miscarriage of justice cannot be supported.

The High Court in appeal under S. 417 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has full power to review at large the evidence on which the order of acquittal was founded and to reach the conclusion that upon the evidence the order of acquittal should be reversed. No limitation should be placed upon that power unless it be found expressly stated in the Code, but in exercising the power conferred by the Code and before reaching its conclusions upon fact the High Court should give proper weight and consideration to such maters as: (1) the view of the trial Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses; (2) the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused, a presumption certainly not weakened by the fact that he has been acquitted at his trial; (3) the right of the accused to the benefit of any doubt; and (4) the slowness of an appellate Court is disturbing a finding of fact arrived at by a judge who had the advantage of seeing the witnesses. Sheo Swarup v. Emperor, 61 IA 398: AIR 1934 PC 227: 36 Cri LJ 786.

To state this, however, is only to say that the High Court in its conduct of the appeal should and will act in accordance with rules and principles well known and recognised in the administration of justice. Mohandas Lalwani v. State of M.P., (1974) 3 SCC 361: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1011; Bishan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 3 SCC 288: 1973 SCC (Cri) 914; Dargahi v. State of U.P., (1974) 3 SCC 302: 1973 SCC (Cri) 928; Shivaji Genu Mohite v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 3 SCC 219, 223: 1973 SCC (Cri) 214; Dappili Verma Reddy v. State of A.P., (1973) 3 SCC 89, 93, 94; 1973 SCC (Cri) 151; Lekha Yadav v. State of Bihar, (1973) 2 SCC 424, 427: 1973 SCC (Cri) 820; Ram Kishan Singh v. Harmit Kaur, (1972) 3 SCC 280, 281: AIR 1972 SC 468: 1972 SCC (Cri) 493: 1972 Cri LJ 267; Bhagwanbhai Dulabhai Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (1963) 3 SCR 386, 390: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 694; Noor Khan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1964 SC 286: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 167; Ramjanam Singh v. State of Bihar, AIR 1956 SC 643: 1956 Cri LJ 1254; Aher Raja Khima v. State of Saurashtra, (1955) 2 SCR 1285: AIR 1956 SC 217: 1956 Cri LJ 426; Atley v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 807: 1955 Cri LJ 1653; Bansidhar Mohanty v. State of Orissa, AIR 1955 SC 585: 1955 Cri LJ 1300; Madan Mohan Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 637: 1954 Cri LJ 1656; Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., 1954 SCR 1098: AIR 1954 SC 322: 1954 Cri LJ 910; Prandas v. State, AIR 1954 SC 36: 1954 Cri LJ 331; Zwinglee Ariel v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 15: 1954 Cri LJ 280; Chelloor Mankhal Narayan v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1953 SC 478: 1954 Cri LJ 102; Wilayat Khan v. State of U.P., AIR 1953 SC 122: 1963 Cri LJ 662. Roop Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 3 SCC 307: 1973 SCC (Cri) 933: AIR 1973 SC 2617: 1973 Cri LJ 1778.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1973]

[8869] — S. 417(1) — Applicability — "Acquittal" — Meaning of — Held, even when the trial Court does not entirely acquit the accused of the major offence and convicts him of a minor offence, it is still an "acquittal" — CrPC, 1973, S. 378(1)

Having regard to the language employed in S. 417(1) of the 1898 Code and S. 2*(a)* of the Supreme Court (Enlargement of Criminal Appellate Jurisdiction) Act, 1970, when an accused is acquitted of a major charge but convicted under a minor charge, it is still an acquittal under the major charge which may be challenged by the State before the High Court in an appeal under S. 417(1) of the 1898 Code. Kishore Singh v. State of M.P., (1977) 4 SCC 524: 1977 SCC (Cri) 656: AIR 1977 SC 2267: 1977 Cri LJ 1937.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1977]

[8870] — S. 417(2) — Appeal filed by State Government in a case instituted on a complaint by the Delhi Special Police Establishment if proper — Delhi Special Police Establishment Act, 1946 — Purpose of amendment to S. 417 by Act 26 of 1955

The Central Government is concerned with the investigation of the cases by the Establishment and its ultimate result. So in view of the provisions of the Delhi Act it was necessary to introduce sub-section (3) in S. 417 so that this Central agency which is solely and intimately connected with the investigation of the specified offences may also approach the Central Government for direction to appeal in appropriate cases. This, however, does not bar the jurisdiction of the State Government also to direct presentation of appeals when it is moved by the Establishment. The Establishment can move either the Central Government or the State Government. It will be purely a matter of procedure whether it moves the State Government directly or through the Central Government or in a given case moves the Central Government alone. It will again be a matter of procedure when the Central Government decides to appeal it requests the State Government to do the needful through the Public Prosecutor appointed under the Code. The word 'also' in sub-section (2) of S. 417 is very significant. This word seems not to bar the jurisdiction of the State Government to direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal even in cases investigated by the Establishment. Sub-section (1) of S. 417 is in general terms and would take in its purview all types of cases since the expression used in that sub-section is "in any case". There is no limitation on the power of the State Government to direct institution of appeal with regard to any particular type of cases. Sub-section (1) of S. 417 being in general terms is as such of wider amplitude. Sub-section (2) advisedly used the word 'also' when power is given to the Central Government in addition to direct the Public Prosecutor to appeal.

In the present case the move was made by the Superintendent, Delhi Special Police Establishment, by requesting the Secretary, Law Department of the Government of Madhya Pradesh and the appeal was thereafter filed in the name of the State of Madhya Pradesh. No objection, therefore, can be taken about the competency of the appeal being filed by the State of Madhya Pradesh. Khemraj v. State of M.P., (1976) 1 SCC 385: 1976 SCC (Cri) 3: AIR 1976 SC 173: (1976) 2 SCR 753: 1976 Cri LJ 192.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1975]

— S. 417(3) See Ss. 210, 417(3) and 423(1)
See also Ss. 439(4), 417(3) and 423(1)(a)

[8871] — S. 417(3) — Appeal against acquittal signed and filed by an advocate holding power of attorney and not by the officer who filed the complaint originally — Appeal, held, properly filed

Under S. 419 (CrPC) an appeal is made in the form of a petition in writing presented by the appellant or his pleader. We think that the expression 'other applications in any criminal proceedings' in the order of Commissioner, dated June 11, 1963, is broad enough to cover an application for special leave to appeal under S. 417(3) and an appeal in the form of a petition under S. 419.

Shri Manohar Lal (Asstt. Commissioner) was competent to engage counsel and the High Court was in error in upholding the preliminary objections. Municipal Corpn. of Delhi v. Shiv Prasad, (1969) 3 SCC 783.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-4-1969]

[8872] — S. 417(3) — Charge-sheet by police against two accused — Complaint against third accused in Court by — Cases consolidated and heard together — Acquittal of all the accused by Sessions Court — Petition by complainant in the High Court for special leave to appeal under S. 417(3) — Maintainability — Dismissal of revision against acquittal by High Court — Effect — "Cases", "Instituted", "Complaint" — Meaning of

There can be no manner of doubt that one of the cases was instituted on the report of a police officer and the other on the complaint of the complainant. There can be no question of merger because the identity of the two cases is maintained right up to the end of Sessions trial. The case of the complainant, here appellant, proceeded on its own number and although evidence was led in both the cases together, the acquittal was recorded in each of the two cases. The police did not present a charge-sheet against Respondent 3 and his trial can be said to be in the other case and not in the case filed by the police. In this view of the matter it is quite plain that the complainant was entitled to move the High Court for special leave in his own case. The order saying that he had no standing cannot, therefore, be sustained.

The word 'case' is not defined by the Code but its meaning is well understood in legal circles. In criminal jurisdiction it means ordinarily a proceeding for the prosecution of a person alleged to have committed an offence. In other contexts the word may represent other kinds of proceedings but in the context of the sub-section it must mean a proceeding which at the end results either in discharge, conviction, or acquittal of an accused person.

What is meant by 'instituted' may next be explained. There are three different ways in which cognizance is taken by Magistrate of offences. This is stated in S. 190 of the Code.

The word 'complaint' has a wide meaning since it includes even an oral allegation it may, therefore, be assumed that no form is prescribed which the complaint must take. It may only be said that there must be an allegation which prima facie discloses the commission of an offence with the necessary facts for the Magistrate to take action. Section 190(1)(a) makes it necessary that the alleged facts must disclose the commission of an offence. Bhimappa Basappa Bhu Sannavar v. Laxman Shivarayappa Samagouda, (1970) 1 SCC 665: 1970 SCC (Cri) 263: AIR 1970 SC 1153: 1970 Cri LJ 1132.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1970]

[8873] — S. 417(3) — Complainant's appeal against the order of acquittal — Competency in G.R. case even though clubbed with complaint case — Held, incompetent

That the appeal to the High Court was incompetent. There were two separate cases of which cognisance was taken separately. As the accused in both the cases were said to have committed the offences in the course of the same transaction, the cases were clubbed together for the purpose of trial and such a course was clearly permissible under S. 239, CrPC. That did not however alter the nature of the cases so as to affect their appealability under S. 417. The two cases retained their individuality except for the convenience of the trial. If the cases had ended in conviction they would have had to be separately recorded. The first ten accused would have had to appeal from their conviction and sentence in the G.R. case and similarly the remaining accused from the complaint case. If the State did not think it proper to direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the High Court from the order of acquittal in the G.R. case it might have been open to the complainant to invoke the powers of the High Court under S. 439, CrPC, if proper grounds for revision were present. Khetrabasi Samual v. State of Orissa, (1969) 2 SCC 571: AIR 1970 SC 272: 36 Cut LT 85: 1970 Cri LJ 369.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-8-1969]

[8874] — S. 417(3) — Complaint instituted by Food Inspector — Appeal by Municipal Board — Maintainability — Point raised after disposal of appeal held not permissible — Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954

Held, that the complaint purports to have been filed by the Municipal Board. Neither in the trial court nor in the High Court at the stage of hearing of the appeal, any objection was taken by the accused as to the maintainability either of the complaint or of the appeal. It is only after the disposal of the appeal, the accused for the first time took up the contention that the Municipal Board was not the real complainant. It is true that the complaint was signed by the Food Inspector. It was competent for the Municipal Board to authorise him to file the complaint. If the accused had challenged the authority of the Food Inspector to file the complaint, the trial Court would have gone into that question. The accused cannot be permitted to take up that contention for the first time after the disposal of the appeal. Dhian Singh v. Municipal Board, (1969) 2 SCC 371: AIR 1970 SC 318: 1970 Cri LJ 492.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-1969]

[8875] — S. 417(3) — Appeal against acquittal

It is clear that an appeal under S. 417 can only abate on the death of the accused and not otherwise. Once an appeal against an acquittal is entertained by the High Court it becomes the duty of the High Court to decide the same irrespective of the fact that the appellant either does not choose to prosecute or is unable to prosecute it for one reason or the other. Khedu Mohton v. State of Bihar, (1970) 2 SCC 450: 1970 SCC (Cri) 479: AIR 1971 SC 66: 1971 Cri LJ 20.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-1970]

[8876] — Ss. 417(3), 200, 202, 156(3) and 173 — "Institution of a case" — Taking cognizance of a case — Principles explained — Magistrate on receipt of a complaint examining the complaint under S. 200 CrPC — Then ordering the police to institute a case and report — Police submitting a charge-sheet — Held, cognizance taken on complaint — Application for special leave to appeal against acquittal under S. 417(3) is maintainable

The Code does not contain any definition of the words "institution of a case". It is clear however and indeed not disputed that a case can be said to be instituted in a court only when the Court takes cognizance of the offence alleged therein. An examination of the provisions of Ss. 193 and 194 makes it clear that when a Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence upon receiving a complaint of facts which constituted such offence a case is instituted in the Magistrate's Court and such a case is one instituted on a complaint. Again, when a Magistrate takes cognizance of any offence upon a report in writing of such facts made by any police officer it is a case instituted in the Magistrate's Court on a police report.

The Magistrate after receipt of a complaint proceeded to examine the complainant under S. 200 CrPC. After completing the examination the Magistrate ordered the police to institute a case and submit a report.

Held :

The examination by the Magistrate under S. 200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure puts it beyond doubt that the Magistrate did take cognizance of the offence mentioned in the complaint. If the Magistrate had ordered the police for investigation instead of for instituting the case the order would clearly be under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The fact that the case was sent for instituting the case makes no difference. The Magistrate was not bound to take cognizance of the offence on receipt of the complaint. He could have, without taking cognizance, directed an investigation of the case by the police under S. 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Once however he took cognizance he could order investigation by the police only under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and not under S. 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. As it is clear here from the very fact that he took action under S. 200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that he had taken cognizance of the offences mentioned in the complaint, it was open to him to order investigation only under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and not under S. 156(3) of the Code. It would be proper in these circumstances to hold that though the Magistrate used the words "for instituting a case" in this order of November 22, 1956 he was actually taking action under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that being the only section under which he was in law entitled to act. The fact that the Sub-Inspector of Police treated the copy of the petition of complaint as a first information report and submitted "charge-sheet" against the accused persons cannot make any difference. The report made by the police officer though purporting to be a report under S. 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure should be treated in law to be a report only under S. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Cognizance having already been taken by the Magistrate before he made the order there was no scope of cognizance being taken afresh of the same offence after the police officer's report was received. The case was therefore instituted on complaint and not on police report. The contention that the appeal did not lie under S. 417(3) of the Code Criminal Procedure must therefore be rejected. Jamuna Singh v. Bhadai Shah, AIR 1964 SC 1541: (1964) 5 SCR 37: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 468, 71.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-10-1963]

[8877] — Ss. 417(3) and (4) — Scope — Appeal against acquittal in respect of offence under Companies Act after sixty days without obtaining special leave — Limitation Act, 1963, Art. 114

Section 417(4) of the Code of Criminal Procedure states that no application under sub-section (3) for the grant of special leave to appeal from an order of acquittal shall be entertained by the High Court after the expiry of sixty days from the date of the order of acquittal.

Section 624-B of the Companies Act does not confer any right of appeal from any order passed by a Criminal Court in respect of any offence under the provisions of the Companies Act. The right to appeal to the High Court in the present cases of acquittal is governed by S. 147 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

No application for the grant of special leave to appeal from an order of acquittal was made within sixty days from that order of acquittal. The orders of acquittal were passed on April 4, 1968. The petitions of appeal were presented on July 1, 1968. The appeals were rightly not entertained by the High Court because first there was no application for grant of special leave under S. 417(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, secondly, the appeals were incompetent without grant of special leave, and thirdly, these were barred by limitation. An appeal under S. 417(3) against acquittal is competent only when there is special leave granted by the High Court. On obtaining special leave the appeal has thereafter to be filed within thirty days of the grant of leave to escape the mischief of the period of limitation under Art. 114 of the Limitation Act, 1963. Asstt. Registrar of Companies v. Standard Paint Works (P) Ltd., (1971) 2 SCC 85: 1971 SCC (Cri) 388: AIR 1971 SC 1115: (1971) 41 Comp Cas 474: 1971 Cri LJ 827: 1973 MLJ (Cri) 744.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1971]

[8878] — Ss. 417(3) and (4) — Application for special leave to appeal from order of acquittal by private person after expiry of limitation prescribed under S. 417(4), CrPC, 1898 — S. 5, Limitation Act, held, inapplicable — Bar of time prescribed by S. 417(4) is 'special law' within the meaning of S. 29(2) — Limitation Act, 1908, Ss. 29(2) and 5 — Limitation Act, 1963, Ss. 29(2) and 5

So far as appeal by the State Government is concerned, the law of limitation is the general law laid down in the Limitation Act (Art. 157) to which S. 5 would apply by its own force. But in so far as appeal by a private prosecutor is concerned, the legislature was astute to specifically lay down that the foundation for such an appeal should be laid within 60 days from the date of the order of acquittal. In that sense, this rule of 60 days' bar is a special law, that is to say, a rule of limitation which is specially provided for in the Code itself, which does not ordinarily provide for a period of limitation for appeals or applications. It is the general law of limitation, as laid down in the Limitation Act, which governs appeals ordinarily preferable under the Code, vide Arts. 150, 154, 155 and 157. To such appeals the provision of S. 5 would apply.

The Code is a general law regulating the procedure for the trial of criminal cases, generally; but if it lays down any bar of time in respect of special cases in special circumstances like those contemplated by S. 417(3) and (4), read together, it will be special law contained within the general law.

Once it is held that the special rule of limitation laid down in sub-section (4) of S. 417 of the Code is a 'special law' of limitation, governing appeals by private prosecutors, there is no difficulty in coming to the conclusion that S. 5 of the Limitation Act is wholly out of the way, in view of S. 29(2)(b) of the Limitation Act.

The Limitation Act, Art. 157, has prescribed the rule of limitation in respect of appeals against acquittal at the instance of the State. Hence, it may be said that there is no limitation prescribed by the Limitation Act for an appeal against an order of acquittal at the instance of a private prosecutor. Thus, there is a difference between the Limitation Act and the rule laid down in S. 417(4) of the Code in respect of limitation affecting such an application. Section 29(2) is supplemental in its character in so far as it provides for the application of S. 3 to such cases as would not come within its purview but for this provision. And for the purpose of determining any period of limitation prescribed by any special law, it has made the provisions of the Limitation Act, referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (2) of S. 29 applicable to such cases to the extent to which they are not expressly excluded by such special or local law, and clause (b) of that sub-section expressly lays it down that the remaining provisions of the Limitation Act shall not apply to cases governed by any special or local law. In our opinion, therefore, the provisions of the Code supplemented by the provisions of S. 29(2) of the Limitation Act, make it clear that S. 5 of the Limitation Act would not apply to an application for special leave to appeal under S. 417(3) of the Code. Kaushalya Rani v. Gopal Singh, AIR 1964 SC 260, 262, 263: (1964) 4 SCR 982: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 152.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and J.C. Shah and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-9-1963]

[Ed.: There is an important departure made by 1963 Act in so far as provision contained in S. 29(2) is concerned — Under new Act only if the special or local law expressly excludes applicability of S. 5 would it stand displaced.]

[8879] — Ss. 417(3) and 431 — Appeal to High Court after obtaining special leave under S. 417(3) — Death of appellant during pendency of appeal — Appeal whether abates

It is clear that an appeal under S. 417 can only abate on the death of the accused and not otherwise. Once an appeal against an acquittal is entertained by the High Court it becomes the duty of the High Court to decide the same irrespective of the fact that the appellant either does not choose to prosecute or is unable to prosecute it for one reason or the other. Khedu Mohton v. State of Bihar, (1970) 2 SCC 450: 1970 SCC (Cri) 479: AIR 1971 SC 66: 1971 Cri LJ 20.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-1970]

— S. 417(4) See also Ss. 417(3) and (4)

[8880] — S. 417(4) — "Entertain" — Meaning of

"Entertain" means "file or received by the High Court" and it has no reference to the actual hearing of the application for leave to appeal, otherwise the result would be that in many cases applications for leave to appeal would be barred because the applications have not been put up for hearing before the High Court within 60 days of the order of acquittal. Lala Ram v. Hari Ram, (1969) 3 SCC 173: 1970 SCC (Cri) 25: AIR 1970 SC 1093: 1970 Cri LJ 1014: 1960 Cri LJ 1014: (1970) 2 SCR 898.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1969]

— S. 418 See Ss. 307(3), 418 and 423
See also Ss. 376, 418 and 423
See also Ss. 417, 418 and 423
See also Ss. 417, 423 and 418
See also Ss. 421 and 418

[8881] — Ss. 418 and 307(3) — Relative power of High Court under

The Legislature designedly conferred a larger power on the High Court under S. 307(3) of the Code than that conferred under S. 418 thereof, as in the former case the Sessions Judge differs from the jury while in the latter he agrees with the jury. K.M. Nanavati v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 605, 614: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 567: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1961]

— S. 419 See also Ss. 258, 419, 410 and 423

[8882] — S. 419 — Joint appeal against order of acquittal

Section 419, CrPC, does not prohibit a joint appeal from an order of acquittal. Nor are Ss. 258, 410 and 423, CrPC, a bar. State of Gujarat v. Ramprakash P. Puri, (1969) 3 SCC 156: 1970 SCC (Cri) 29.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Ramaswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1969]

[8883] — S. 419 — Contents of petition of appeal — Is meant to be succinct statement of the grounds upon which the appeal is proposed to be supported — Should contain detailed grounds — Bald statement — Effect

A memorandum of appeal is meant to be a succinct statement of the grounds upon which the appellant proposes to support the appeal. It is a notice to the Court that such and such specific grounds are proposed to be urged on behalf of the appellant, as also a notice to the respondent that he should be ready to meet these specific grounds.

A memorandum of appeal with a bald ground that "the order of acquittal is against the weight of evidence on record and contrary to law" is of no help to any of the parties or to the Court. Such a bald statement of the grounds leaves the door wide open for all kinds of submissions, thus tending to waste the time of the Court and taking the respondents by surprise. Such a practice deems to be discontinued and a more efficient way of drawing up grounds of appeal has to be developed. Kapil Deo Shukla v. State of U.P., AIR 1958 SC 121: 1958 SCR 640: 1958 Cri LJ 262, 265.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1957]

[8884] — S. 419 — "Copy" — Expression used in the section — Means certified copy and not plain copy

So far as S. 419 is concerned having regard to the context and the purpose of that section, the copy to be filed along with the petition of appeal must be a certified copy.

The word "copy" in S. 419 means a "certified copy". State of U.P. v. C. Tobit, AIR 1958 SC 414: 1958 SCR 1275: 1958 Cri LJ 809, 813.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, A.K. Sarkar and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1958]

[8885] — S. 420 — Appeal against conviction — Accused in jail — Application for certified copy made after expiry of limitation period — Held, fit case for condonation of delay — Limitation Act, 1963, S. 5. Krishna Daji Kalab v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 ACC 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-11-1968]

[8886] — Ss. 420, 421 and 430 — Appeal dismissed without hearing the appellant under S. 420 — Another appeal from the same judgment through the counsel is not maintainable

If the order dismissing the appellant's appeal under S. 420 was lawful, a second appeal from the same judgment of conviction presented through a pleader was not maintainable because the previous order dismissing the appeal was final under S. 430, CrPC. Pratap Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1961 SC 586: (1961) 2 SCR 509: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 733.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta, Raghubar Dayal and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-11-1960]

— S. 421 See Ss. 417 and 421
See also Ss. 420, 421 and 430

[8887] — S. 421 — Appeal — Conviction of accused by trial Court relying on evidence of relation of deceased — Appeal to High Court — Summary dismissal by High Court — Propriety — Necessity of recording a speaking order

The trial court relied in support of its order on two eyewitnesses — one of whom is stated to be the uncle of the deceased. That Court also noticed that in the dying declaration by the deceased made to his uncle the name of the accused as his assailant was not mentioned. In a case like this, it was incumbent on the High Court to issue notice to the State and hear the appeal with the record before it and after evaluating the evidence record a speaking order so that this Court could also have before it the reasoning of the High Court for upholding the appellant's conviction. The dismissal of appeal by the High Court with the one word "dismissed" has left the Supreme Court guessing about the line of reasoning which the High Court would have adopted after appropriate scrutiny of the material on the record. Challappa Ramaswami v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 2 SCC 426: 1970 SCC (Cri) 472: AIR 1971 SC 64: 1971 Cri LJ 19.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1970]

[8888] — S. 421 — Appeal an arguable one involving substantial and important question of law — Summary dismissal of appeal not justified

The appeal before the High Court was an arguable one and raised substantial and important questions. The High Court was not justified in dismissing the appeal summarily. A. Vishwanathan v. State of Maharashtra, (1969) 3 SCC 889.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Ramaswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1969]

[8889] — S. 421 — Constitutionality — Art. 14 of the Constitution — Court competent to dismiss a jail appeal where petition for appeal sent by a convicted person through jail authorities without hearing him — Court bound to hear a convict person if the petition for appeal presented in person or through a Counsel — There is no discrimination and the classification is rational — Section does not offend Art. 14 of the Constitution

Section 421 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which enabled a court to dismiss an appeal filed by a convicted person, while he was in jail, without hearing did not offend Art. 14 of the Constitution on the ground that it discriminated between him and a convicted person who presented his appeal either in person or through a pleader. There is a rational basis for making the classification which has a reasonable connection with the object of the legislation providing for appeals under Ch. XXXI of the CrPC. Pratap Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1961 SC 586: (1961) 2 SCR 509: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 733.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta, Raghubar Dayal and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-11-1960]

[8890] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of appeal by High Court under — Appeal to Supreme Court by special leave — Interference by Supreme Court — Remand of appeal to High Court — Proper remedy — Constitution of India — Art. 136

It was undoubtedly open to this Court to go into the evidence led in this case and consider the appellant's conviction on the merits, notwithstanding that the present appeal is by special leave. But it would be more appropriate and would serve the ends of justice better, if the High Court hears and decides the appeal in the light of the aforesaid decisions. The order of summary dismissal is set aside and the case remitted back to the High Court for hearing and deciding the appeals in accordance with law. Challappa Ramaswami v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 2 SCC 426: 1970 SCC (Cri) 472: AIR 1971 SC 64: 1971 Cri LJ 19.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1970]

[8891] — S. 421 — Criminal appeal — Evidence worth reconsideration — Summary dismissal of appeal — Validity of orders of the appellate court — Held, not valid

The record of the case demanded reconsideration of evidence. The High Court was not justified in summarily dismissing the appeal. Vishwanath Shankar Beldar v. State of Maharashtra, (1969) 3 SCC 883: 1970 SCC (Cri) 138.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-9-1969]

[8892] — S. 421 — Reasons for summary dismissal should be recorded at least in brief — CrPC, 1973, S. 384

It is very necessary for High Courts to at least record their reasons briefly even when they dismiss criminal appeals summarily on facts found. It is often difficult in criminal cases to say whether any material error was committed by trial Court in arriving at its findings of fact without at least some examination and consideration of the main feature of the evidence which only a reasoned order could disclose. Rajendra Kumar Chaturvedi v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 4 SCC 586: 1974 SCC (Cri) 622: AIR 1974 SC 852: (1974) 3 SCR 847: 1974 Cri LJ 737.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-4-1974]

[8893] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal by High Court when arguable point raised — CrPC, 1973, S. 384

Though the High Courts possess the power to dismiss criminal appeals summarily, appeals involving serious or substantial questions which are prima facie arguable should not be dismissed summarily without recording brief reasons in support of the order of dismissal. (Para 2). Dattu Genu Gaikwad v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 3 SCC 678: 1974 SCC (Cri) 208: AIR 1974 SC 387: 1974 Cri LJ 446: 1975 MLJ (Cri) 619.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1973]

[8894] — S. 421 — Summary disposal of appeal — Propriety — CrPC, 1973, S. 384

An appeal which raises arguable questions, either factual or legal, should not be summarily dismissed without recording a reasoned order. Sampat Tatyada Shinde v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 4 SCC 213: 1974 SCC (Cri) 382: AIR 1974 SC 791.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1974]

[8895] — S. 421 — Impugned order worth consideration — Summary dismissal of the appeal by the High Court — Propriety of

On the face of it, the judgment of the Special Judge, contains matters which in our opinion required serious consideration by the High Court. The order of summary dismissal by the High Court was clearly unjustified. Bhanwar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1969) 3 SCC 763.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-1969]

[8896] — S. 421 — Scope of conviction of five accused by trial Court — Joint appeal by all accused — High Court admitting appeal on behalf of one accused and summarily rejecting appeal on behalf of other accused — Propriety — Necessity of giving reasons for dismissal

The power, under S. 421, CrPC, has to be exercised after perusing the petition of appeal and the copy of the order appealed against and after affording to the appellant or his pleader a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of the appeal. The summary decision is accordingly a judicial decision which vitally affects the convicted appellant and in a fit case it is also open to challenge on appeal in this Court. An order summarily dismissing an appeal by the word "rejected", as is the case before us, though not violative of any statutory provision removes nearly every opportunity for detention of errors in the order. Such an order does not speak and is inscrutable giving no indication of the reasoning underlying it. It may at times embarrass this Court when the order appealed against prima facie gives rise to arguable points which this Court is required to consider without having the benefit of the views of the High Court on these points. When an appeal in the High Court raises a serious and substantial point which is prima facie arguable it is improper for that Court to dismiss it summarily without giving some indication of its view on the points raised. The interest of justice and fairplay require the High Court in such cases to give an indication of its views on the points argued so that this Court, in the event of an appeal from that order being presented here, has the benefit of the High Court's opinion on those points. Govinda Kadtuji Kadam v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 1 SCC 469: 1970 SCC (Cri) 204: AIR 1970 SC 1033: 1970 Cri LJ 995.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1970]

[8897] — S. 421 — Admission of an appeal — Arguable and substantial question raised — Appeal must be admitted — View taken by trial Court substantially correct — Appeal to be summarily dismissed — Not necessary to record reasons for summary dismissal

When a criminal appeal is brought before the High Court, the High Court has to be satisfied that it raises an arguable or substantial question; if it is so satisfied, the appeal should be admitted; if, on the other hand, the High Court is satisfied that there is no substance in the appeal and that the view taken by the trial Court is substantially correct, it can summarily dismiss the appeal. It is necessary to emphasise that the summary dismissal of the appeal does not mean that before summarily dismissing the appeal, the High Court has not applied its mind to all the points raised by the appellant. Summary dismissal only means that having considered the merits of the appeal, the High Court does not think it advisable to admit the appeal because in its opinion, the decision appealed against is right.

If the High Court in dealing with criminal appeals takes the view that there is no substance in the appeal, it is not necessary that it should record reasons for its conclusion in summarily dismissing it. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696: (1964) 3 SCR 237: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534, 537.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

[8898] — S. 421 — Appeal by State after appeal by accused summarily dismissed — Held admissible

When an appeal preferred by a person convicted of an offence is dismissed summarily by the High Court under S. 421 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the judgment of the trial Court gets merged in the judgment of the High Court and it cannot thereafter be modified even at the instance of any other party affected thereby, and in respect of matters which were not and could not be dealt with by the High Court when summarily dismissing the appeal. When the High Court dismisses an appeal of the person accused summarily and without notice to the State, the High Court declines thereby to entertain the grounds set up for setting aside the conviction of the accused. That judgment undoubtedly binds the accused and he cannot prefer another appeal to the High Court against the same matter in respect of which he had earlier preferred an appeal. When an appeal of a convicted person is summarily dismissed by the High Court the State has no opportunity of being heard. The judgment summarily dismissing the appeal of the accused is a judgment given against the accused and not against the State or the complainant. If after the appeal of the accused is summarily dismissed, the State or the complainant seeks to prefer an appeal against the order of acquittal, the High Court is not prohibited by any express provision or implication arising from the scheme of the Code from entertaining the appeal. Where, however, the High Court issues notice to the State in an appeal by the accused against the order of conviction, and the appeal is heard and decided on the merits, all questions determined by the High Court either expressly or by necessary implication must be deemed to be finally determined, and there is no scope for reviewing those orders in any other proceeding.

Similarly if the State files an appeal and it is summarily dismissed, the accused is not prevented from filing an appeal against his conviction. Summary dismissal of the appeal filed by the accused does not bar any proceeding which the State may be competent to initiate against he order passed in favour of accused, but another appeal by the accused after summary dismissal of his earlier appeal is barred. Nirbhay Singh v. State of M.P., (1969) 2 SCR 569, 572, 57.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-10-1968]

[8899] — S. 421 — Appeal raising arguable issues — Summary dismissal by High Court — Legality

Held, the appellant had raised arguable issues which ought not to have been disposed of in a summary manner when the case depended largely on the identification made at an identification parade and the testimony of handwriting experts. The order of dismissal of the High Court is set aside and remanded for fresh disposal in accordance with law. Jeewan Prakash v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 3 SCC 266: 1972 SCC (Cri) 491: AIR 1973 SC 278: 1973 Cri LJ 307.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-1972]

[8900] — S. 421 — Appeal raising arguable points — Summary rejection by High Court — Propriety — Importance of giving reasons for dismissal of appeal in limine

Held, although it is open to the High Court to dismiss an appeal in limine if that Court is satisfied that it would not be necessary to issue notice to the State to meet the point raised by the appellant but the High Court would not be justified in dismissing summarily and without a speaking order an appeal which raises arguable questions, either factual or legal. It is both proper and desirable that the High Court should indicate its reasons for dismissing an appeal in limine because such a course would help the Supreme Court in better appreciating the grievance of the appellant seeking special leave to appeal from the decision of the High Court. Apart from that it serves to eliminate avoidable delay which must necessarily result in the final disposal of criminal cases. Kapurchand Kesrimal Jain v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 3 SCC 299: 1973 SCC (Cri) 253: AIR 1973 SC 243: 1973 Cri LJ 284.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, A. Alagiriswami and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-1972]

[8901] — S. 421 — Appellant raising plea of grave and sudden provocation, self-defence, etc. — Summary dismissal by High Court set aside. Gulab Sonba v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 931(1): 1972 SCC (Cri) 179(1).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1970]

[8902] — S. 421 — Difference in the effect of verdict, if any, between full hearing and summary dismissal

Per S.R. Das, J.

When an appeal or revision is disposed of after a full hearing on notice to the respondent and allowed wholly or in part it becomes 'ex facie' obvious that the judgment appealed against or sought to be revised has been altered by the judgment or decision of the High Court on appeal or revision and a note is made in the record of this alteration.

But when an appeal or revision is dismissed after full hearing and the sentence is maintained there is outwardly no change in the record when the certificate is sent by the High Court but nevertheless there is an adjudication by the High Court. In the first case it is judgment of acquittal or reduction of sentence and in the second case it is a judgment of conviction.

Likewise, when an appeal or revision is summarily dismissed, such dismissal maintains the judgment or order of the lower Court and a note is made of such dismissal in the record and in the eye of the law it is the judgment of the High Court that prevails. To the uninstructed mind the change may be more easily noticeable in the first case than in the other two cases but on principle there is no difference. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633, 643: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[8903] — S. 421 — High Court's power of summary dismissal — Held, can only be exercised after a perusal of the petition and the copy of the judgment — High Court must give some reasons why no arguable case is made out on a perusal of those documents — Case remanded to High Court — Practice of summary dismissal by one word disapproved — CrPC, 1973, S. 384. Dhondiba Gundu Pomaje v. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 1 SCC 162: 1975 SCC (Cri) 793: AIR 1976 SC 1151: 1976 Cri LJ 856.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-1974]

[8904] — S. 421 — High Court's power to dismiss an appeal in limine — Limitations on the power, if any — Eyewitnesses deposing that they saw accused 'J' and 'K' giving knife blows in the abdomen and in the back of the deceased respectively — Trial Court finding that eyewitnesses only saw the infliction of blow by 'J' in abdomen — Possibility also existing that injury on the back of deceased could also have been caused with the same weapon with which 'J' gave the blow in the abdomen — Trial Court accepting prosecution allegation and sentencing both the accused under S. 302, IPC — High Court dismissing appeal in limine — High Court was not justified under the circumstances in dismissing the appeal in limine

Held, it is true that under S. 421, CrPC the High Court can dismiss an appeal in limine if on a perusal of the petition of appeal and the judgment appealed from it were to form the view that there was no sufficient reason for its interference. At the same time, it is now settled law that the High Court would not be justified in dismissing summarily and without a speaking order an appeal which raises arguable questions either on points of law or on points of fact. Krishna Vithu Suroshe v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 3 SCC 404: 1973 SCC (Cri) 969: AIR 1974 SC 274: (1974) 1 SCR 567: 1974 Cri LJ 330.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1973]

[8905] — S. 421 — Non-speaking order of summary dismissal by High Court — Not liable to be set aside for that reason alone

The appellate Court has got power to dismiss summarily a criminal appeal. If, however, the appeal raises an arguable and substantial point, the High Court should give reasons for rejecting the appeal. In appropriate cases this Court may examine the evidence for itself and dispose of the appeal on merits even though the High Court has dismissed the appeal by a single word order "dismissed" and has given no reasons in support of the order. So the impugned order cannot be set aside for the solitary reason that it is not a speaking order. (Para 5) . Rajpal Bhiraram v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 3 SCC 633: 1974 SCC (Cri) 123: AIR 1974 SC 1150: 1974 Cri LJ 806.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.N. Dwivedi and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1973]

[8906] — S. 421 — Power of appellate court — Matter involving arguable and substantial points — Summary rejection of appeal — Propriety

A summary rejection by an Appellate Court under S. 421 may not be violative of the section, nevertheless when an arguable or substantial question arises for consideration, it is improper for an Appellate Court to dismiss the appeal summarily without giving some indication of its view on the point. Shyam Deo Pandey v. State of Bihar, (1971) 1 SCC 855: 1971 SCC (Cri) 353: AIR 1971 SC 1606: 1971 Cri LJ 1177.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-3-1971]

[8907] — S. 421 — Powers of High Court to dismiss appeal in limine

Held, under S. 421 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the High Court can dismiss an appeal in limine if on a perusal of the petition of appeal and the judgment appealed from it were to be of the view that there was no sufficient reason for its interference. But where an appeal raises questions of fact and law, the High Court would not be justified in dismissing the petition of appeal summarily. Sk. Mohd. Ali v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 2 SCC 784: 1973 SCC (Cri) 111: AIR 1973 SC 43: 1973 Cri LJ 166.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-8-1972]

[8908] — S. 421 — Practice of summary dismissal of appeal prevails in all the High Courts in India and is permissible under CrPC

The observations of the Divisional Bench of the High Court while disposing of application under Art. 134(1)(c) of the Constitution that the summary dismissal has not given satisfaction to the appellant and seemed unjust almost amounts to a condemnation of the practice of summary dismissal of appeal, especially against orders passed in a case tried by a jury when the appellant has to make a clear ground of law. Such a practice prevails in almost all the High Courts in India and has the sanction of the statute law as contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure. Sidheswar Ganguly v. State of W.B., AIR 1958 SC 143: 1958 SCR 749: 1958 Cri LJ 273, 76, 78.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-10-1957]

[8909] — S. 421 — Scope of — Power of summary dismissal when to be exercised — Where there are arguable points the High Court must give reasons — Practice of High Court in dismissing criminal appeals without giving reasons disapproved — CrPC, 1973, S. 384

The power of a summary rejection of a criminal first appeal, even though it is exercisable under the provisions of S. 421, Criminal Procedure Code, should be only exercised when the court is satisfied, from a perusal of the judgment as well as the record, that there is absolutely no reasonable possibility of its success for the reasons mentioned in the order. (Para 3)

At least, in such cases, where there are arguable points, the High Court should give its grounds and reasons in support of its decision to reject summarily on some absolutely clinching ground. Munir Sayed Ibna Hussain v. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 3 SCC 548: 1976 SCC (Cri) 459: AIR 1976 SC 1992: 1976 Cri LJ 1546.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-11-1975]

[8910] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of appeal — In a judgment of conviction under Ss. 195 and 34, IPC started on a complaint under S. 379-A CrPC, Sessions Court relying on the evidence of one of the accused as a witness in another Sessions trial which gave rise to the conviction — Also relying on the statement of a co-accused in the case under S. 342 CrPC — Contention that this evidence could not be under law taken into account well founded — Plea that the appellant not given an opportunity of being heard under S. 479-A CrPC an arguable, substantial and important point — Held, High Court not justified in summarily dismissing the appeal — Appeal remanded

The appeal, filed by the appellant, before the High Court of Bombay, was an arguable one, and it also raised substantial and important questions, for consideration at the hands of the High Court. We are therefore satisfied that the High Court was not justified in dismissing the appeal, filed by the appellant, summarily. Narayan Swami v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 609: (1968) 2 SCR 88: 1968 Cri LJ 657, 59: (1968) 68 ITR 221, 225.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1967]

[8911] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of appeal — Power of appellate court — Principles governing — Summary dismissal justified when no arguable points raised — When case is arguable summary rejection order must give view of appellate court

In a case which, prima facie, raises no arguable issue, a summary dismissal of the appeal may be justified, but in arguable case, a summary rejection order must give some indication of the views of the High Court, on the points raised. Summary rejection of appeals, which raise issues of substance and importance, was not justified. Narayan Swami v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 609: (1968) 2 SCR 88: 1968 Cri LJ 657, 59: (1968) 68 ITR 221, 225.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1967]

[8912] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of appeal by High Court — Not justified when the appeal raises some arguable points requiring consideration — High Court must give indication for its summary dismissal

Where the appeal raised some arguable points which required consideration it was not right for the High Court to have dismissed it summarily. In cases which prima facie raise no arguable issue that course is, of course, justified, but the Supreme Court would appreciate it if in arguable cases the summary rejection order gives some indication of the views of the High Court on the points raised. Without the opinion of the High Court on such points in special leave petitions under Art. 136 of the Constitution the Supreme Court sometimes feels embarrassed if it has to deal with those matters without the benefit of that opinion. Mushtak Hussein v. State of Bombay, AIR 1953 SC 282: 1953 SCR 809: 1953 Cri LJ 1127, 1130.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1953]

[8913] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of appeal by High Court without recording any reasons — Subsequently appeal by co-accused who were ear- lier absconding admitted — Held, since the evidence in both the cases was the same, the present appeal should also be admitted — CrPC, 1973, S. 384. Vithal Kandiba Kamble v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 1 SCC 493: 1977 SCC (Cri) 127: AIR 1977 SC 1615: 1977 Cri LJ 1119.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-1976]

[8914] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of appeal justified when no question requiring closer and more detailed consideration presented. Darasing Dhyansing v. State of Gujarat, (1972) 4 SCC 648: AIR 1972 SC 505: 1972 Cri LJ 311.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1971]

[8915] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of criminal appeal — Arguable points — Evidence worth reconsideration — Validity of order of summary dismissal of appellate Court

Held, the right of appeal conferred by S. 410, read with S. 418, CrPC entitles the appellants to question the conclusions of the trial Courts both on matters of fact and of law. They have a right to ask for a review of the entire evidence and to challenge the appraisal of the evidence by the trial Court and its conclusions based on such appraisal. Section 421, CrPC no doubt empowers the appellate Court to dismiss the appeal summarily but before doing so it is bound to peruse with care and attention the petition of appeal and the copy of the judgment or order appealed against. The order of summary dismissal can be passed only if the Court considers that there is no sufficient ground for interference. Before exercising such right the High Court ought to record reasons for summary dismissal, however concise, so that the Supreme Court may, when approached by the aggrieved party to exercise its power under Art. 136 of the Constitution, have the benefit of the views of the High Court. Mustaq Ahmed Mohd. Hussain v. State of Gujarat, (1973) 1 SCC 702: 1973 SCC (Cri) 590: AIR 1973 SC 1222: 1973 Cri LJ 993.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1973]

[8916] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of criminal appeal — Arguable points — Evidence worth reconsideration — Validity of order of summary dismissal of appellate Court

Appellate Court ought not to dispose of a case in a summary manner when the appellant raises arguable issues. In arguable cases not only would the reasons recorded by the High Court be helpful to the Supreme Court in better understanding and appreciating the High Court's line of approach, but it would also serve to assure the accused that the arguable points in his appeal were properly argued and duly considered by the High Court. This assurance cannot be considered to be without importance and value. Shudhakar Bhanaji Chavan v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 200: 1973 SCC (Cri) 793: AIR 1973 SC 2187: 1973 Cri LJ 1174.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1973]

[8917] — S. 421 — Summary dismissal of criminal appeal — Arguable points — Evidence worth reconsideration — Validity of order of summary dismissal of appellate Court

Appellate Court ought not to dispose of a case in a summary manner when the appellant raises arguable issues. In arguable cases not only would the reasons recorded by the High Court be helpful to the Supreme Court in better understanding and appreciating the High Court's line of approach, but it would also serve to assure the accused that the arguable points in his appeal were properly argued and duly considered by the High Court. This assurance cannot be considered to be without importance and value. Mahendra Singh v. State of W.B., (1974) 3 SCC 409: 1973 SCC (Cri) 974: AIR 1973 SC 2288: (1974) 1 SCR 62: 1973 Cri LJ 1450.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1973]

[8918] — S. 421 — Two appeals arising out of the same trial — One summarily dismissed while the other admitted by another Bench — Held improper

The three accused found guilty in a Sessions trial on a number of charges all centering around S. 409 IPC were convicted and sentenced to different terms of imprisonment and fine. The appeal of one of these accused was dismissed summarily with one word "dismissed". The remaining two accused appealed separately. Their appeals were admitted and a reasoned judgment followed.

Held :

The position, to say the least, was in the circumstance of the case anomalous. The appeals arise out of the same trial and are from one judgment and relate to the same charge to the jury. The Supreme Court is constrained to express its disapproval of the summary rejections of appeals which raise issues of substance and importance. Shreekantiah Ramayya Munipalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 287: (1955) 1 SCR 1177: 1955 Cri LJ 857, 860.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1954]

[8919] — S. 421 — Where arguable issues of fact or law arise, it is desirable that the High Court give reason for summary dismissal of appeal — Case remanded for disposal on merits — CrPC, 1973, S. 384. Gulab v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 1 SCC 495: 1977 SCC (Cri) 129: AIR 1977 SC 1913: 1977 Cri LJ 1556.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-1976]

[8920] — Ss. 421, 422 and 423 — Admission of appeal — Appellate Court has no power to admit an appeal on question of sentence only

It seems to us, however, having regard to the provisions of the Code, that while an Appellate Court has power to dismiss an appeal summarily, if it considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering, it has no power to direct that the appeal shall be heard only on the point of sentence. Such an order is not an order of summary dismissal under S. 421 and neither is it an order in terms of S. 422 of the Code. When an appeal is filed it is an appeal against conviction and sentence and it is not permissible for an Appellate Court to direct that it shall be heard only on the question of sentence.

The order of the High Court admitting the appeal only on the point of sentence is invalid. Rabari Ghela Jadav v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 748: (1960) 3 SCR 130: 1960 Cri LJ 1156, 1157.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and Syed Jafer Imam and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-2-1960]

[8921] — Ss. 421, 435 and 439 — Summary dismissal of appeal or revision involves an adjudication by the High Court

When the Court summarily dismissed an appeal without hearing the accused or his pleader as in the case of a jail appeal or after hearing the accused or his pleader but before issuing any notice to the respondent as in an appeal presented by the accused or his pleader, the Court does decide an appeal.

It is incorrect to say that Ss. 421, 435 or 439 give the Court a discretion not to decide an appeal or revision brought before it. A summary dismissal of appeal or revision does involve an adjudication by the High Court just as a dismissal after a full hearing does. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[8922] — Ss. 421 and 418 — Grounds of appeal should be clearly specified — Practice of taking only few general grounds should be discouraged

Normally it has to be presumed that all the arguments actually pressed at the hearing in the High Court were noticed and appropriately dealt with and if the judgment of the High Court does not contain discussion on a point, then that point should be assumed prima facie not to have been argued at the Bar, unless the contrary is satisfactorily shown.

It is, therefore expected that the various grounds in support of the appeal should be clearly specified in the petition of appeal and general grounds, howsoever convenient to those drafting them, do not serve the intended statutory purpose. The matter indeed is not res integra.

The practice of challenging the conclusion of the criminal court in a memorandum of appeal by taking only one or two general omnipotent grounds, should be given up as early as possible for the "speedy and consequently cheap administration of justice". Amanullah v. State of U.P., (1973) 2 SCC 81: 1973 SCC (Cri) 747: AIR 1973 SC 1370: 1973 Cri LJ 1140.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-4-1973]

[8923] — Ss. 421 and 423 — Appeal before High Court raising points not only arguable but also substantial requiring critical scrutiny and serious appraisal and evaluation of the prosecution evidence and circumstances of the case — Dismissal of appeal in limine with the one word "dismissed" — Propriety

Held, where in an appeal before the High Court, the appeal was dismissed in limine with one word "dismissed" without making a speaking order indicating the reasons for the dismissal and the facts show that the appeal in the High Court did raise points which were not only arguable but were also substantial requiring critical scrutiny and serious appraisal and evaluation of the prosecution evidence and the circumstances of the case, it is highly desirable that the High Courts give an indication of their views on the points raised in arguable cases in accordance with the legal position enunciated by the Supreme Court. In such cases the Supreme Court would have no option but to remand the case back to the High Court for rehearing and deciding the appeal after considering the points raised and recording its reasons in accordance with law. Rajendrapaul Ramasaran Dass Sharma v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 4 SCC 31: 1973 SCC (Cri) 672: AIR 1973 SC 1180: 1973 Cri LJ 1171.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-1973]

— S. 422 See also Ss. 421, 422 and 423

[8924] — S. 422 — Notice of appeal — High Court intimated that the accused has entered appearance — Court requested that no summon need be issued — Accused knew the time and place of hearing of appeal — There is compliance of S. 422

Section 422 does not speak of the notice of the appeal being served on the appellant. It states that the notice is to be given to the accused. In a case where the High Court is intimated that the accused has entered appearance and has notice of the appeal filed against him and the Court is requested not to issue any summons to him, it can hardly be said that the notice of the appeal had not been given to the accused. The accused was fully apprised of the time and place at which the appeal would be heard. It is therefore held in the circumstances that there was notice to the accused and S. 422 was complied with. Mohd. Dastagir v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 756: (1960) 3 SCR 116: 1960 Cri LJ 1159, 64.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and Syed Jafer Imam, A.K. Sarkar, K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-2-1960]

[8925] — Ss. 422 and 423 — Reduction of sentence possible in final disposal of appeal admitted under S. 422

The Appellate Court, after hearing the appeal, certainly has the power in finally disposing of the appeal to reduce the sentence but that does not entitle it to direct that an appeal is admitted only on the question of sentence. Rabari Ghela Jadav v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 748, 750: (1960) 3 SCR 130: 1960 Cri LJ 1156.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and Syed Jafer Imam and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-2-1960]

— S. 423 See Ss. 236, 237 and 423
See also Ss. 258, 419, 410 and 423
See also Ss. 297, 423 and 537
See also Ss. 307(3), 418 and 423
See also Ss. 376, 375, 374 and 423
See also Ss. 376, 418 and 423
See also Ss. 417, 418 and 423
See also Ss. 417 and 423
See also Ss. 417, 423 and 418
See also Ss. 421, 422 and 423
See also Ss. 421 and 423
See also Ss. 422 and 423
See also Ss. 428, 423 and 417
See also Ss. 439, 435 and 423

[8926] — S. 423 — Criminal appeal — Concurrent finding of guilty by courts below — High Court merely brushing aside entire defence version in one sentence — Supreme Court to weigh the evidence for itself — Constitution of India — Art. 136

That ordinarily the Supreme Court does not consider a case after the High Court and the court below have concurrently found the accused guilty on facts. But when the defence version merited close consideration and had been brushed aside by the High Court, the Supreme Court would reconsider the entire case.

On facts the Court found that there was considerable room for doubt in the prosecution case. The statement of the complainant, which alone was the foundation of the charge against the appellant, could not be accepted without corroboration. The order of conviction and sentence be set aside. Lachman Dass v. State of Punjab, (1970) 2 SCC 563: 1970 SCC (Cri) 505: AIR 1970 SC 450: 1970 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Grover, J. [Date of decision: 10-10-1969]

[8927] — S. 423 — On an appreciation of the facts and circumstances of the case, held, reversal of acquittal by High Court justified — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 & 386. Barot Ram Vishram v. State of Gujarat, (1977) 1 SCC 194: 1977 SCC (Cri) 92: AIR 1976 SC 2597: 1976 Cri LJ 2001.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1976]

[8928] — S. 423 — Powers of appellate court to pass consequential or incidental order

The power of the appellate court under S. 423, CrPC, was wide and empowered it even to make any amendment or any consequential or incidental order that may be just or proper. Kantilal Chandulal Mehta v. State of Maharashtra, (1969) 3 SCC 166: 1970 SCC (Cri) 19: AIR 1970 SC 359: 1970 Cri LJ 510: (1970) 2 SCR 742.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1969]

[8929] — S. 423 — Acquittal of co-accused by the High Court on the same evidence

Benefit of acquittal must go to the other accused also. Court cannot accept same evidence against one when not accepting it against the other — Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, 1954 SCR 145: 1953 Cri LJ 1465 — Distinguished and limited to its facts. Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1955 SC 762: 1955 Cri LJ 1542.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-9-1955]

[8930] — S. 423 — Appeal by accused convicted in a case where some accused were acquitted — High Court is not competent to set aside the order of acquittal — It can, incidentally, consider the evidence against accused who were acquitted and can arrive at a finding contrary to the finding of the trial Court

The Appellate Court cannot set aside the order of acquittal passed against the accused in case an appeal against acquittal was not duly preferred. There is, however, no legal bar for the High Court to deal indirectly or incidentally with the case of the accused who has been acquitted if it becomes necessary for it to so do while considering the appeal of the accused who had been convicted. After examining the evidence the High Court may well have come to the conclusion, that the evidence against the accused who was acquitted by the trial Court is also good and need not have been discarded. If in appreciating the points made by the appellant before it the High Court had to consider whole of the evidence in respect of the accused persons, it was free to come to one conclusion or the other in respect of the said evidence, so far as it related to the accused who had been acquitted by the trial court. Sunder Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 1211: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 654: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 290, 93.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1962]

[8931] — S. 423 — Hearing — Presence — Cause list not showing either the name of the appellants or their Advocate — Effect

The very idea behind publishing a cause list is to give notice to Advocates and the parties that the case in which they were concerned was going to be heard on or after a particular date. If the name of the Advocate who appears in the case is not shown, there would be good reason to think that he had no notice of the case being posted for hearing. It would be an exercise of sound discretion if an opportunity is given to the party who is not heard. Swarth Mahto v. Dharmdeo Narain Singh, (1972) 2 SCC 273: 1972 SCC (Cri) 676: AIR 1972 SC 1300: 1972 Cri LJ 879.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and D.G. Palekar and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1972]

[8932] — S. 423 — Interference by High Court — Extent of power to interfere — Order of acquittal by Trial Court after considering entire evidence — Interference by High Court on ground of failure on the part of Trial Court to consider evidence — Order of Trial Court restored by Supreme Court. Gopal Sarkar v. Pashupati Ghosh, (1971) 3 SCC 231: 1971 SCC (Cri) 431.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1971]

[8933] — S. 423 — New Plea — Not allowed — Pleas involving finding of fact not taken in trial Court — High Court justified in not allowing the appellant to raise that plea in appeal. Afzal Ullah v. State of U.P., AIR 1964 SC 264: (1964) 4 SCR 991: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 156, 60: ILR (1964) 1 All 385.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K. Subba Rao, K.N. Wanchoo, J.C. Shah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-9-1963]

[8934] — S. 423 — Non-appearance by parties — Powers of Appellate Court — Not necessary for the Appellate Court to dispose of the appeal, only after hearing the appellant or his pleader and the Public Prosecutor — Can dispose of the appeal without hearing them if they do not appear

Section 423, CrPC does not enjoin the Appellate Court to dispose of the appeal after hearing the appellant or his pleader and the Public Prosecutor. The words "if he appears" after the expression "and hearing the pleader and the public prosecutor" indicate that if none of these appears at the hearing, the Appellate Court can proceed with the disposal of the appeal on merits. Sankatha Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1208: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 817: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 288.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-1962]

[8935] — S. 423 — Obligatory for High Court to give a considered opinion

The judgment of the High Court in this case does not contain an appraisal of the whole evidence in the case nor does it show that the learned Judge has applied his mind to all the facts and circumstances of the case in all aspects. It is not enough for the High Court to summarise mechanically all the arguments advanced by the appellant and those advanced on behalf of the prosecution and to state in one short paragraph that it accepts the prosecution case with regard to the guilt of the appellant. It is necessary that the judgment of the Appellate Court must contain a critical appraisal of the whole evidence in the case and must give clear reasons for the conclusions arrived at. This is specially important in a case where the facts are complicated and intricate and the evidence is contradictory. The judgment must show that Appellate Court has applied its mind to all the facts and circumstances of the case from all aspects. It is not enough to set out the arguments of both the sides without setting out the reasons why any particular argument has been accepted or rejected.

For these reasons we hold that the judgment of the High Court is not in accordance with law. K.C. Aggarwal v. Delhi Admn., Cri. A. No. 100 of 1966

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Shah, Sikri and Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-5-1969]

[8936] — S. 423 — Power of High Court in appeal against acquittal

The High Court's power in appeal against acquittal is not different from its power in ordinary appeals against conviction. The High Court has to consider all the matters which weighed with the Trial Court and reasons given by it for disbelieving the witnesses, whose demeanour it had opportunity of observing. Keshav Gangaram Navge v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 1 SCC 513: 1971 SCC (Cri) 221: AIR 1971 SC 953: 1971 Cri LJ 798.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, J. [Date of decision: 3-2-1971]

[8937] — S. 423 — Summary rejection of appeal for default of appearance of the appellant or counsel — Manner of disposal of appeal — Expression "After perusing such record" is condition precedent for proper disposal of appeal

There is no emphasis on the perusal of the record in S. 421 whereas under S. 423 one of the essential requirements is that the Appellate Court should peruse the record. The limitation provided under S. 423 is that the Appellate Court before disposing of the appeal must peruse the record. The expression "after perusing such record" in the section is a condition precedent to a proper disposal of an appeal either by dismissing the same or in other manner contemplated in the said section. There must be a clear indication in the judgment or order of the Appellate Court that it has applied its judicial mind to the particular appeal with which it was dealing. Such an indication will be available when the Appellate Court has considered the material on record, which means not only the judgment and petition of appeal but also the other relevant materials. Shyam Deo Pandey v. State of Bihar, (1971) 1 SCC 855: 1971 SCC (Cri) 353: AIR 1971 SC 1606: 1971 Cri LJ 1177.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-3-1971]

[8938] — S. 423 — Trial Judge making an illegal reference under S. 307 — High Court passing an order of conviction against same accused — In appeal Supreme Court finding that the reference was illegal and the order of High Court was consequently bad — Reference made 3 years before the order of Supreme Court and incident occurred 4 years before the order of Supreme Court — In the meantime trial Judge retired from service — Not a fit case for remitting the case back to the Court making the reference — Proper order is to reject the reference under S. 307, Penal Code. Sashi Mohan Debnath v. State of W.B., AIR 1958 SC 194: 1958 SCR 962: 1958 Cri LJ 303, 306, 30.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1957]

[8939] — Ss. 423 and 439 — Reference to S. 423 in S. 439 — Scope and effect

It is fallacious to read all the words of S. 423 into S. 439, which the latter section does not contemplate. Section 439 only authorises the High Court in revision to exercise any of the powers conferred under S. 423. It does not further make reference to the cases in which such powers have to be exercised. The latter question does not arise because S. 439 itself makes the sweeping provision that "in the case of any proceeding", the High Court may exercise the powers enumerated in S. 423. We have, therefore, to look into S. 423 to find out not the cases in which the High Court can interfere but only the nature of the power that it can exercise in a case, in its revisional jurisdiction, that is to say, we have to incorporate only the several powers contained in S. 423, into S. 439, except the power to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97, 104: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

— S. 423(1) See Ss. 210, 417(3) and 423(1)

— S. 423(1)(a) See Ss. 417 and 423(1)(a)

See also Ss. 423(1)(b) and (a)

See also Ss. 439(4), 417(3) and 423(1)(a)

[8940] — S. 423(1)(a) — Remand — Not to be given to prosecution to improve its case — Retrial — Prosecution of a practising lawyer by a client under S. 409 IPC — An important document alleged to be in accused's handwriting alleged to be forged by the accused — Complainant not producing expert evidence — Trial court holding the document not proved and acquitting the accused — High Court ordering retrial in the appeal against acquittal and directing the Magistrate to afford an opportunity to the complainant to produce expert evidence — Order against well established rules of criminal jurisprudence is erroneous — Penal Code, 1860 — S. 409

The accused, a practising lawyer, was prosecuted by the complaint, his client, under S. 409, IPC for misappropriating a sum of Rs 5000. The prosecution case was based on a letter alleged to have been written by the accused. The accused challenged the document as a forgery in material parts, but the complainant did not take any steps to get an expert on handwriting examined. The trial Court acquitted the accused. In appeal by the complainant against the order of acquittal the High Court ordered a retrial and directed the Magistrate to give an opportunity to the complainant to adduce the evidence of a handwriting expert, in order to establish the genuineness of the questioned document. The accused appealed to the Supreme Court.

Held :

An accused person should not be placed on trial for the same offence more than once, except in very exceptional circumstances. Though the complainant had the fullest opportunity of adducing all the evidence that would be necessary to prove the charge against the accused person, but he did not adduce expert evidence and also did not pray for examination of an expert. The prosecution took its chance of having a decision in its favour on the evidence adduced by it before the trial Court. That Court was not satisfied that evidence was adequately reliable to bring the charge home to the accused and acquitted him. On appeal the High Court could take a different view of the evidence, reverse the judgment and convert the order of acquittal into an order of conviction. It was however not justified to have put the accused to the botheration and expense of a second trial simply because the prosecution did not adduce all the evidence which should and could have been brought before the Court of first instance. Simply because the accused happened to be a lawyer would not be a ground for subjecting him to harassment a second time. Therefore, the order of retrial passed by the High Court was entirely erroneous. Abinash Chandra Bose v. Bimal Krishna Sen, AIR 1963 SC 316: (1963) 3 SCR 564: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 261.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-8-1962]

Explained in AIR 1965 SC 1887: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 817

[8941] — S. 423(1)(a) — Sentence — Appeal against acquittal — Power of the Appellate Court to impose punishment — Extent of — Absence of show-cause notice against enhancement to the accused — Principles of natural justice — Violation of

An appeal is a creature of a statute and the powers and the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court must be circumscribed by the words of the statute. At the same time a court of appeal is a "court of error" and its normal function is to correct the decision appealed from and its jurisdiction should be coextensive with that of the trial Court. It cannot and ought not to do something which the trial Court was not competent to do. There does not seem to be any fetter to its power to do what the trial Court could do.

In this case, the Trial Magistrate was competent to pass a sentence of imprisonment up to two years and the High Court's jurisdiction hearing an appeal would therefore be limited to a sentence up to that period and no more. When the order of the Magistrate was set aside by the Sessions Judge the matter became one at large and the High Court hearing an appeal was empowered under S. 423(1)(a) CrPC, to pass a sentence according to law. It could therefore pass any sentence which the Magistrate trying the case was empowered to pass and the High Court in this case did not exceed that limit. In disposing of an appeal, from an order of acquittal, the High Court is competent to pass a sentence which the trial Court was empowered to pass.

If the appeal is from an order of acquittal with no prior order or sentence, the punishment must be commensurate with the gravity of the offence. But if the order of acquittal is preceded by an order of conviction, the court hearing the appeal from acquittal should not impose a sentence greater than what the court of first instance could have imposed inasmuch as if the trial Court had given him the maximum sentence which it was competent to give and no appeal was preferred by the accused, the State could not have approached the High Court under any provision of the Code for enhancement of the sentence. The interposition of the order of an intermediate court of appeal and acquittal of the accused by it should not put the accused in a predicament worse than that before the trial Court.

Where the accused is given notice of appeal and actually takes part in the hearing before the High Court it would be superfluous to give him notice to show cause why a sentence within the competence of the Trial Magistrate should not be passed. The accused knows or ought to know that the High Court was bound to form its own conclusions on the material before it and award a sentence which the merits of the case demanded within the limit of the trial Court's jurisdiction. The absence of a show-cause notice does not violate any known principle of natural justice. Shankar Kerba Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (1969) 2 SCC 793: AIR 1971 SC 840: 1971 Cri LJ 693.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-9-1969]

[8942] — S. 423(1)(a) — Appellate Court ordering retrial of one of the appellant — Connected appeal by another appellant against his conviction in the same case — His retrial must also be ordered by the Appellate Court. Darshan Singh Balwant Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 83: 1953 SCR 319: 19 Cut LT 419: ILR 1953 Punj 639: 1953 Cri LJ 525.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-12-1952]

[8943] — S. 423(1)(a) — Power to be exercised by High Court only

The powers conferred on the Appellate Court by S. 423(1)(a) can be exercised only by the High Court and not by any other Appellate Court.

All appeals against acquittal whether passed by the trial Court or the Appellate Court lie only to the High Court, and so the powers prescribed by S. 423(1)(a) can be exercised only by the High Court. State of A.P. v. Thadi Narayana, AIR 1962 SC 240, 242: (1962) 2 SCR 904: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 207: (1963) 1 MLJ (SC) 77.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1961]

[8944] — S. 423(1)(a) — Retrial — Appellants remaining in jail for a little less than 3 years — Retrial for an offence under S. 392, IPC will not be a proper order. Ram Shankar Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 441: 1956 Cri LJ 822.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[2], N.H. Bhagwati and B.P. Sinha[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1955]

[8945] — S. 423(1)(a) — Retrial — Courts should not shut their eyes to the circumstance of a particular case before ordering a retrial. Suraj Pal v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 419: (1955) 1 SCR 1332: 1955 Cri LJ 1004.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1955]

[8946] — S. 423(1)(a) — Retrial — Generally proper where trial held not proper and fair — Exception in cases of unfairness and injustice. Mohinder Singh v. State, AIR 1953 SC 415: 1950 SCR 821: 1953 Cri LJ 1761.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, B.K. Mukherjea and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1950]

[8947] — S. 423(1)(a) — Retrial — No hard and fast rule — Wide discretion in this regard

A retrial may be ordered for a variety of reasons which it is hardly necessary or desirable to state in a set formula and the observations of the Supreme Court are illustrative but not exhaustive. The Code gives a wide discretion and deliberately does not specify the circumstances for the exercise of the discretion because the facts of cases that come before the Courts are extremely dissimilar. It would not be right to read the observations of the Supreme Court (intended to illustrate the meaning of the Code) as indicating in advance the rigid limits of a discretion which the Code obviously intended should be developed in answer to problems as they arise. Rajeswar Prasad Misra v. State of W.B., AIR 1965 SC 1887: (1966) 1 SCR 178: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 817.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1965]

Affirmed in (1966) 1 SCR 255: AIR 1966 SC 356: 1966 Cri LJ 307

[8948] — S. 423(1)(a) — Retrial — Not to be ordered where case covered by Ss. 236 & 237, CrPC. G.D. Sharma v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 400: 1960 Cri LJ 541.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1959]

[8949] — S. 423(1)(a) — Retrial — Supreme Court setting aside conviction of two accused — The appeal of the 3rd accused not before the Supreme Court — Direction of a retrial not proper as the trial cannot proceed against all the accused who are said to have acted in concert each playing an appointed part in a common plan. Shreekantiah Ramayya Munipalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 287: (1955) 1 SCR 1177: 1955 Cri LJ 857, 860.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1954]

[8950] — S. 423(1)(a) — Retrial — Supreme Court setting aside conviction on the ground of misdirection or non-direction — Direction of retrial is the normal course. Shreekantiah Ramayya Munipalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 287: (1955) 1 SCR 1177: 1955 Cri LJ 857, 860.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1954]

[8951] — S. 423(1)(a) — Scope and meaning — "Find guilty" meaning of — High Court under S. 423(1)(a) is competent to find the accused guilty of the offence disclosed by the evidence and convict him for that offence — Power under Ss. 236 and 238, CrPC can be exercised

In S. 423(1)(a) of the Criminal Procedure Code the High Court has been given the power to find the accused guilty and pass sentence on him according to law, besides other powers enumerated in cl. (a). The words "find him guilty", used in cl. (a) means "guilty of the offence disclosed by the evidence" and not merely "guilty of the offence with which he stood charged in the Court below and of which he was acquitted". Therefore, the High Court while disposing of an appeal against acquittal is competent under S. 423(1)(a), Criminal Procedure Code to alter the finding or the charge or the nature of the offence as contemplated in Ss. 236, 237 and 238, CrPC and find the accused guilty of any offence other than that with which he has been charged. Ramaswamy Nadar v. State of Madras, AIR 1958 SC 56: 1958 SCR 739: 1958 Cri LJ 228, 231.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-10-1957]

[8952] — S. 423(1)(a) — Sentence — High Court can pass a sentence up to maximum sentence that the trial Court could legally pass. Jagat Bahadur v. State of M.P., AIR 1966 SC 945: (1966) 2 SCR 822: 1966 Cri LJ 709.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, J.R. Mudholkar and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-1965]

[8953] — S. 423(1)(a) — Sentence — Is in the discretion of trial Court — Appellate Court not to interfere if discretion judicially exercised. Mathri v. State of Punjab, AIR 1964 SC 986: (1964) 5 SCR 916: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 57, 59.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-1963]

[8954] — Ss. 423(1)(a) and 417 — Conviction by High Court in appeal against acquittal

The observations in various decisions prescribing a cautious approach on the part of High Courts in dealing with appeals against acquittals do not cut down, limit or qualify its statutory power under S. 423(1)(a), CrPC which is coextensive with that under cl. (b). The High Court is free to reach its own conclusions upon the evidence. It is not necessary that the High Court must hold that the trial Court's finding was perverse before reversing it. The passages quoted in Bhubaneshwar Mondal case, (1973) 1 SCC 303: 1973 SCC (Cri) 323, clearly illustrate the basic line of approach the High Court is expected to adopt while dealing with the State appeals from the judgments of acquittal. M.G. Agarwal case, (1963) 2 SCR 405: AIR 1963 SC 200: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 235, laid down the correct principle. Bajwa v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 714: 1973 SCC (Cri) 596: AIR 1973 SC 1204: 1973 Cri LJ 769: (1973) 3 SCR 571.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-1973]

[8955] — Ss. 423(1)(a) and 428 — Retrial — Power of Appellate Court to order — Scope of — Retrial to be ordered in exceptional cases like lack of jurisdiction or serious illegalities or irregularities when trial is vitiated — Where evidence is insufficient or deficient S. 438 should be applied and additional evidence admitted and retrial not ordered

Per majority

An order for retrial of a criminal case is made in exceptional cases, and not unless the Appellate Court is satisfied that the Court trying the proceeding had no jurisdiction to try it or that the trial was vitiated by serious illegalities or irregularities or on account of misconception of the nature of the proceedings and on that account in substance there had been no real trial or that the Prosecutor or an accused was, for reasons over which he had no control, prevented from leading or tendering evidence material to the charge, and in the interest of justice the Appellate Court deems it appropriate, having regard to the circumstances of the case, that the accused should be put on his trial again.

An order of retrial wipes out from the record the earlier proceeding, and exposes the person accused to another trial which affords the prosecutor an opportunity to rectify the infirmities disclosed in the earlier trial, and will not ordinarily be countenanced when it is made merely to enable the prosecutor to lead evidence which he could but has not cared to lead either on account of insufficient appreciation of the nature of the case or for other reasons.

Where the trial suffered from irregularities and evidence led was deficient in important respects an order of retrial was not justified. If the Appellate Court thought in the interest of justice and for a just and proper decision of the case it was necessary that additional evidence should be brought on the record it should instead of directing a retrial and reopening the entire proceedings, resort to the procedure prescribed by S. 428(1) CrPC. Ukha Kolhe v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 1531: (1964) 1 SCR 926: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 418: 1964 Mah LJ 246: 65 Bom LR 793.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1], K.C. Das Gupta[2] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1963]

Explained in AIR 1965 SC 1887: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 817

[8956] — Ss. 423(1)(a) and 537 — Retrial — Supreme Court — Plea necessitating a retrial not taken at the earliest stage and in appeal before the High Court — Supreme Court not to entertain such a plea

An argument, which would, if accepted, necessitate a retrial, is one that ought to be put forward at the earliest stage and at any rate at the time of regular appeal in the High Court. This cannot be entertained for the first time in an appeal on special leave. Moseb Kaka Chowdhry v. State of W.B., AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 SCR 372: 1956 Cri LJ 940, 43, 44.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1956]

[8957] — Ss. 423(1)(a) and (b) — Nature and scope of High Court's powers in an appeal against acquittal — Powers are equally wide while dealing with appeal against acquittal or conviction — In practice High Court while dealing with an appeal against acquittal has to keep in mind the principle of accused's presumption of innocence — High Court is, nevertheless entitled to reach its own conclusion — Not necessary that High Court must find trial Court findings perverse. M.G. Agarwal v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 200: (1963) 2 SCR 405: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 235, 41.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1962]

— S. 423(1)(b) See also Ss. 423(1)(a) and (b)

[8958] — S. 423(1)(b) — "Alter the finding"

The words "alter the finding" in Section 423(1)(b) of the Code has only one meaning, and that is alter the finding of conviction and not the finding of acquittal. The expression "alter the finding" does not apply to the order of acquittal. State of A.P. v. Thadi Narayana, AIR 1962 SC 240: (1962) 2 SCR 904: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 207, 213: (1963) 1 MLJ (SC) 77.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1961]

Applied in Lakhan Mahto v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 1742: 1966 Cri LJ 1349, 1352

[8959] — S. 423(1)(b) — "Acquit or discharge the accused" — Retrial not ordered by Supreme Court as the accused had been in suspense over his death sentence for more than a year. Mohinder Singh v. State, AIR 1953 SC 415: 1950 SCR 821: 1953 Cri LJ 1761.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, B.K. Mukherjea and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1950]

[8960] — S. 423(1)(b) — "Alter the finding" — Appellate Court can alter the conviction to a different offence which the lower Court could also do — Conviction under Ss. 302/149 IPC altered to that under Ss. 302/34, IPC. Lachhman Singh v. State, AIR 1952 SC 167: 1952 SCR 839: 1952 Cri LJ 863.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1952]

[8961] — S. 423(1)(b) — "Alter the finding" — High Court can substitute S. 149, IPC for S. 34, IPC. Tilkeshwar Singh v. State of Bihar, AIR 1956 SC 238: (1955) 2 SCR 1043: 1956 Cri LJ 441.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-1955]

See also 1954 SCR 904: AIR 1954 SC 204: 1954 Cri LJ 580 and (1955) 2 SCR 1140: AIR 1956 SC 116: 1956 Cri LJ 291

[8962] — S. 423(1)(b) — "Alter the finding" — Not applicable to acquittal part of the case — Accused charged of several offences, acquitted of some while convicted of others — Appeal against conviction — The whole case cannot be considered by the Appellate Court — Order of acquittal is not under the purview of the Appellate Court — Expression "alter the finding" does not apply to the order of acquittal. State of A.P. v. Thadi Narayana, AIR 1962 SC 240: (1962) 2 SCR 904: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 207, 213: (1963) 1 MLJ (SC) 77.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1961]

[8963] — S. 423(1)(b) — Power to commit for trial — Appellate Court can commit a case — Power not circumscribed to cases exclusively triable by Sessions Court

Section 423(1)(b) CrPC expressly gives the power to the Appellate Court to commit a case for trial to the Court of Session. The power is not circumscribed to cases exclusively triable by a Court of Session. State of U.P. v. Shankar, AIR 1962 SC 1154: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 213: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 261.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1962]

[8964] — S. 423(1)(b) — Retrial — Accused acquitted under Ss. 302 & 392, IPC and convicted under S. 411, Penal Code — In appeal High Court remanding the whole case and ordering retrial under Ss. 302, 392 and 411, Penal Code — Order of retrial for offences under Ss. 302 and 392, Penal Code is illegal

The accused tried for offences under Ss. 302, 392 and 411, IPC. Sessions Judge acquitted him under Ss. 302 and 392, IPC and convicted under S. 411, IPC. In appeal the High Court remanded the case and ordered a retrial under all the offences. During the retrial the accused moved an application that he could not be tried under Ss. 302 and 392, IPC which was rejected. A revision against this order was filed which was decided in accused's favour by a Full Bench. The State of Andhra Pradesh filed an appeal before the Supreme Court.

Held :

The High Court acted without jurisdiction in altering the finding and order of acquittal passed in favour of the accused in respect of the offences under Ss. 302 and 392, IPC when he was dealing with the appeal preferred by the accused against her conviction under S. 411. State of A.P. v. Thadi Narayana, AIR 1962 SC 240: (1962) 2 SCR 904: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 207, 213: (1963) 1 MLJ (SC) 77.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1961]

[8965] — S. 423(1)(b) — Scope — Provision is confined to an appeal against the order of conviction and sentence — Powers conferred by the clause cannot be exercised for reversing an order of acquittal

Section 423(1)(b)(1) is confined to cases of appeals preferred against orders of conviction and sentence. The powers conferred by the clause cannot be exercised for the purpose of reversing an order of acquittal passed in favour of a party in respect of an offence charged in dealing with an appeal preferred by him against the order of conviction in respect of another offence charged and found proved.

In exercising the powers conferred on it by S. 423(1)(b) the High Court cannot convert acquittal into conviction; that can be done only by adopting the procedure prescribed in S. 439, CrPC. State of A.P. v. Thadi Narayana, AIR 1962 SC 240: (1962) 2 SCR 904: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 207, 213: (1963) 1 MLJ (SC) 77.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1961]

[8966] — Ss. 423(1)(b) and (a) — "Alter the finding" — Not to include order of acquittal — High Court's power to convict of an offence for which appellant acquitted by trial Judge — Appellant and others convicted under Ss. 302/149 and 326/149, IPC — Acquitted under S. 302, IPC for causing death of the deceased — State Government preferring no appeal against acquittal — High Court on appeal by altering the conviction under Ss. 302/149, IPC to 326, IPC for causing fatal injury to the deceased — High Court not competent to convict under S. 302 or 320, IPC when the appellant was acquitted under S. 302, IPC by the trial Judge. Lakhan Mahto v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 1742: (1966) 3 SCR 643: 1966 Cri LJ 1349, 1352.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1966]

[8967] — Ss. 423(1)(b) and (a) — Appellant and others convicted under Ss. 302/149 and 326/149 — Acquitted under S. 302 for causing death of the deceased — State Government preferring no appeal against acquittal — High Court on appeal by accused altering the conviction under S. 302/149 to 326 for causing fatal injury to the deceased — Held, High Court not competent to convict under S. 302 or 326 when the appellant was acquitted under S. 302 by the trial Judge — Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 302/149 & 326/149. Lakhan Mahto v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 1742: (1966) 3 SCR 643: 1966 Cri LJ 1349.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1966]

[8968] — Ss. 423(1)(b) and (d) — Altering the conviction — Scope — Disposal of appeal — Magistrate convicting an accused under Ss. 4(a) and 5 of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act, 1887 and sentencing him under S. 4(a) alone — In revision High Court setting aside conviction under S. 4(a) and maintaining conviction under S. 5 and awarding sentence under this section — High Court's order is justified under S. 423(d) and not under S. 423(1)(b) — It is also justified from the law enacting that on conviction a sentence shall be imposed

When there is a conviction for more offences than one, there are distinct findings in respect of each of them, and when S. 423(1)(b) speaks of a finding being reserved or altered by the Court of appeal, it has reference to the finding in respect of each of the offences. When, therefore, the High Court set aside the conviction under S. 4(a) and affirmed that under S. 5, there are two distinct findings, one of reversal and another of affirmance, and there is no question of alteration.

The power to pass a sentence under those circumstances is derived from the law which enacts that on conviction a sentence shall be imposed on the accused, and that is a power which can and ought to be exercised by all the Courts which, having jurisdiction to decide whether the accused is guilty or not, find that he is. We are of opinion that this power is preserved to the Appellate Court expressly by S. 423(1)(d), which enacts that it can make any amendment or any consequential or incidental order that may be just or proper. Jayaram Vithoba v. State of Bombay, AIR 1956 SC 146: (1955) 2 SCR 1049: 1956 Cri LJ 318, 20, 21: 1956 ALJ 153: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 92.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1955]

— S. 423(1)(d) See also Ss. 423(1)(b) and (d)

[8969] — S. 423(1)(d) — Power of passing consequential orders — High Court can order eviction under S. 18 of the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956 while convicting under S. 3 of that Act. Kamalabai Jethamal v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 1189: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 632: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 273: 64 Bom LR 517.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.L. Kapur and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-1962]

[8970] — S. 423(1)(d) — Sentence — Court's duty to impose sentence on accused — Need for fixation of separate period of sentence even if sentences are made concurrent — Appellate court awarding sentence on failure of trial court to do so — Held, covered by S. 423(1)(d)

When a person is tried for an offence and convicted, it is the duty of the Court to impose on him such sentence, as is prescribed therefor. This power is preserved to the appellate court expressly by S. 423(1)(d) of the Code of Criminal Procedure which enacts that it can "make any amendment or any consequential or incident order that may be just or proper". When a conviction is affirmed in appeal but no sentence had been awarded by the trial Magistrate, the award of a sentence is consequential on and incidental to the affirmance of the conviction, and it is a just and proper order to be passed under the law.

According to law, a separate sentence ought to be passed for each offence even if sentences are made concurrent because a court may set aside a conviction so that the need for a separate sentence must necessarily arise in such an event.

Sentence for offence under S. 201, IPC, cannot be concurrent for the whole period of sentence for life imprisonment for offence under S. 302, IPC. If sentence under S. 302 is set aside by the High Court on appeal, the period of sentence under S. 201 has to be fixed as a necessary consequence. Contention of the accused that as no particular sentence was imposed on him, he must be deemed not to have been sentenced at all, is incorrect. Sawal Das v. State of Bihar, (1975) 3 SCC 156: 1974 SCC (Cri) 780: AIR 1974 SC 2276: (1975) 1 SCR 607: 1974 Cri LJ 1306.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-8-1974]

— S. 423(1-A) See also Ss. 439 and 423(1-A)

[8971] — S. 423(1-A) — Enhancement of sentence

The High Court was justified in enhancing the sentence of 3 years R.I. under Ss. 325/149, IPC to 7 years R.I. when a brutal attack was made by several persons in a fit of superstition relating to suspected sorcery. The circumstances in which the attack was made calls for a deterrent sentence. Dasrath Gond v. State of Orissa, AIR 1955 SC 583: 1955 Cri LJ 1297.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1955]

[8972] — S. 423(1-A) — Enhancement of sentence by the High Court — No hard and fast rules on the subject can be laid — Whether the judicial discretion about sentence was properly exercised by the trial Judge depends upon the circumstances of each case

It is impossible to lay down a hard and fast rule, for each case must depend upon its own facts. Whether in a given case there was proper exercise of judicial discretion by the trial Judge depends upon the circumstances of that case. Kapur Chand Pokhraj v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 993: 1958 Cri LJ 1558, 1564: (1958) 9 STC 455: 1959 SCR 250.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1958]

[8973] — S. 423(1-A) — Enhancement of sentence in a case under S. 396, IPC by High Court — Each of two appellants committing one cold blooded murder each by shooting with the object of facilitating commission of dacoity — Deceased did not put up any resistance — Held, High Court justified in enhancing the sentence of life imprisonment awarded by the trial Judge to death sentence by hanging. Iman Ali v. State of Assam, AIR 1968 SC 1464: (1968) 3 SCR 610: 1969 Cri LJ 23, 25.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1968]

[8974] — Ss. 423(1-A) and 439 — "Alter the nature of sentence" — High Court's power to enhance sentence — Must be exercised along well known judicial lines

Though no limitation has been placed on the High Court's power to enhance sentence it is nevertheless a judicial act and like all judicial acts involving an exercise of discretion must be exercised along well known judicial lines.

A question of sentence is a matter of discretion and when discretion has been properly exercised along accepted judicial lines an Appellate Court should not interfere to the detriment of an accused person except for very strong reasons which must be disclosed on the face of the judgment.

In a matter of enhancement there should not be interference when the sentence passed imposes substantial punishment. Interference is only called for when it is manifestly inadequate. Bed Raj v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 778: (1955) 2 SCR 583: 1955 Cri LJ 1642, 1644.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1955]

— S. 423(2) See also Ss. 369(6) and 423(2)

[8975] — S. 423(2) — Appeal against verdict of Jury — Appellate Court has extensive powers of overruling or modifying the verdict of jury — Appellate Court not to exercise the powers lightly

The statute law in India in certain circumstances permits an appeal against a jury's verdict and authorises the Appellate Court to substitute its own verdict on its own consideration of the evidence. It has conferred on the Appellate Court extensive powers of overruling or modifying the verdict of a jury in the interests of due administration of justice confident that the Appellate Judges who have not themselves seen and heard the witnesses, will not exercise lightly the responsible power entrusted to them. Mushtak Hussein v. State of Bombay, AIR 1953 SC 282: 1953 SCR 809: 1953 Cri LJ 1127.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1953]

[8976] — S. 423(2) — Jury trial — Alteration or reversal of verdict of jury — No misdirection or non-direction amounting to misdirection in the charge to jury — Jury's verdict cannot be interfered with

Unless there was a misdirection or non-direction amounting to a misdirection in the charge to the jury which, in fact, had occasioned a failure of justice the jury's verdict must prevail and it cannot be interfered with. Jnanendra Nath Ghose v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1199: (1960) 1 SCR 126: 1959 Cri LJ 1492, 94, 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1959]

[8977] — S. 423(2) — Jury trial — High Court's power in appeal — Verdict held erroneous — High Court has power to appraise the evidence and reverse the order of conviction or acquittal

In appeal against orders of acquittal as well as conviction the High Court is conferred under S. 423(2), CrPC with powers to direct retrial or to consider the case on the merits. This power can be effectively exercised only if the High Court is competent apart from the verdict to appraise the evidence on which the order of the trial Court is founded. The High Court is not bound when it arrives at the opinion that the verdict of the jury is vitiated to interfere with the verdict. The High Court is, therefore, competent in appeals against orders of conviction and sentence or against orders of acquittal even in cases tried with jury to order a retrial or to maintain the conviction and sentence on a reconsideration of the evidence.

Section 423 applies to all appeals before the High Court whether from a trial by jury or otherwise and when the High Court finds that the verdict of the jury is vitiated on account of some defect of law or misdirection it has full power to deal with the appeal in the manner specified in S. 423 and for that purpose it may appraise the evidence to decide what course it will follow. Rama Shankar Singh v. State of W.B., AIR 1962 SC 1239: 1962 Supp (1) SCR 49: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 296, 299.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1961]

[8978] — S. 423(2) — Jury trial — Interference limited

Since the appeals before the High Court and before the Supreme Court are against the convictions and sentences based on the acceptance of the verdict of the jury against each of the accused, scope for interference on appeal either by the High Court or by the Supreme Court is very limited. Sardul Singh v. State of Bombay, AIR 1957 SC 747, 759: 1958 SCR 161: 60 Bom LR 691: 1957 Cri LJ 1325.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-5-1957]

[8979] — S. 423(2) — Jury trial — Powers of High Court to interfere in appeal

It is for the Court of Appeal to take the whole case into consideration and determine for itself whether the verdict pronounced by the jury was justified or whether there had been in fact a failure of justice, where a jury has been misdirected and has based its verdict on assumptions and conjectures, the Supreme Court may order a retrial or remit the case to the High Court with a direction that it should consider the merits of the case in the light of the decision of the Supreme Court and say whether there has been a failure of justice as a result of the misdirections, or it may examine the merits of the case and decide for itself whether there has been a failure of justice in the case and that in deciding whether there has been in fact a failure of justice in consequence of a misdirection the Court would be entitled to take the whole case into consideration.

Unless it was established in a case that there had been a serious misdirection by the Judge in charging the jury which had occasioned a failure of justice and had misled the jury in giving its verdict, the verdict of the jury could not be set aside.

The Court of Appeal is thus entitled to substitute its own verdict for the verdict of the jury if on examining the record for itself it comes to the conclusion that the verdict of the jury was erroneous or that there has been a failure of justice in the sense that a guilty man has been acquitted or an innocent man has been convicted. Ramkishan Mithanlal Sharma v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 104, 120, 12: (1955) 1 SCR 903: 1955 Cri LJ 196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2] and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1954]

See also 1953 SCR 809: AIR 1953 SC 282: 1953 Cri LJ 1127

— S. 424 See Ss. 369 and 424

See also Ss. 369, 424, 430 and 561-A

[8980] — Ss. 424 and 369 — Appellate Court dismissing an appeal — High Court not competent to restore the appeal or rehear it — Inherent powers of the Court cannot be invoked in view of specific prohibition by the Sections

The Sessions Judge dismissed a criminal appeal in the absence of the appellant or his Counsel. Later, he set aside his order and restored the appeal on an application of the appellant. On his transfer, his successor, did not hear the appeal on the ground that since the Appellate Court had no power to review or restore an appeal, the order of his predecessor was ultra vires. The High Court upheld this order. Held, that the Sessions Judge could not set aside his order dismissing the appeal when neither the appellant nor his Counsel appeared and could not order the rehearing of the appeal, because S. 369, read with S. 424 of CrPC makes it clear that the Appellate Court is not to alter or review the judgment once signed, except for the purpose of correcting a clerical error.

Assuming that the Sessions Judge could exercise inherent powers, he could not pass the order of rehearing of the appeal in the exercise of such powers when S. 369, read with S. 424, specifically prohibits the altering or reviewing of its orders by a court. Inherent powers cannot be exercised to do what the Code specifically prohibits the Court from doing. Sankatha Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1208: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 817: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 288.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-1962]

— S. 426 See Ss. 561-A and 426

[8981] — S. 427 — Grant of special leave against order of acquittal on capital charge — Held, the Supreme Court can exercise the same powers which the High Court has under S. 427, CrPC, 1898 and issue a non-bailable warrant for the arrest and committal to prison of the accused-respondent — CrPC, 1973, S. 390 — Such exercise of power does not offend Art. 21

As soon as the High Court on perusing a petition of appeal against an order of acquittal, considers that there is sufficient ground for interfering and issuing process to the respondent, his status as an accused person and the proceedings against him, revive. The question of judging his guilt or innocence in respect of the charge against him, once more becomes sub judice.

Similar is the position when the Supreme Court, in its discretion, grants special leave to appeal under Art. 136 of the Constitution, against an order of acquittal passed by the High Court.

Whether in the circumstances of the case, the attendance of accused-respondent can be best secured by issuing a bailable warrant or non-bailable warrant, is a matter which rests entirely in the discretion of the Court. Although the discretion is exercised judicially, it is not possible to computerise and reduce into immutable formulae the diverse considerations on the basis of which this discretion is exercised. Broadly speaking, the Court would take into account the various factors, such as the nature and seriousness of the offence, the character of the evidence, circumstances peculiar to the accused, possibility of his absconding, larger interest of the public and State. In addition, the Court may also take into consideration the period during which the proceedings against the accused were pending in the courts below and the period which is likely to elapse before the appeal comes up for final hearing in the Supreme Court. State of U.P. v. Poosu, (1976) 3 SCC 1: 1976 SCC (Cri) 368: AIR 1976 SC 1750: (1976) 3 SCR 1005: 1976 Cri LJ 1373.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: A.N. Ray, C.J. and M.H. Beg, R.S. Sarkaria, P.N. Shinghal and Jaswant Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-4-1976]

— S. 428 See Ss. 423(1)(a) and 428
See also Ss. 540 and 428

[8982] — S. 428 — First appellant firing at the victim while the second appellant firing at a police constable but missing the shot — Conviction under, upheld — But in the peculiar circumstances of the case and especially having regard to the nature of injury received by the victim, sentence reduced from 10 years' RI to 5 years' RI in case of the first appellant and from 7 years' RI to 4 years' RI in case of the second appellant — Appellants would be entitled to the benefit of S. 428, Criminal Procedure Code — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 307/34. Prabhu Rashu Machhi v. State of Gujarat, 1980 Supp SCC 11: 1980 SCC (Cri) 439: AIR 1980 SC 1758.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1980]

[8983] — S. 428 — Additional evidence in High Court

Criminal Courts and the High Courts have ample power and jurisdiction even in a case of conviction to direct additional evidence in the interest of justice and fair-play rather than take a different view of the oral evidence. Much more so can the High Court in a case of discharge direct even before setting aside the order of discharge to take further evidence or additional evidence if it considers that it is necessary in the interest of justice to do so. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 1 SCC 523: 1971 SCC (Cri) 231: AIR 1971 SC 1630: 1971 Cri LJ 1188.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, J. [Date of decision: 4-2-1971]

[8984] — S. 428 — Permitting additional evidence instead of retrial

If the Sessions Judge thought that in the interests of justice and for a just and proper decision of the case it was necessary that additional evidence should be brought on the record he should have, instead of directing a retrial and reopening the entire proceeding, resorted to the procedure prescribed by S. 428(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. There is no doubt that if the ends of justice require, the Appellate Court should exercise its power under the said section. Ukha Kolhe v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 1531, 1537: (1964) 1 SCR 926: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 418: 1964 Mah LJ 246: 65 Bom LR 793.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1], K.C. Das Gupta[2] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1963]

[8985] — Ss. 428, 423 and 417 — Additional evidence in appeal — Power of Appellate Court to admit — Appellate Court has the power to admit additional evidence in appeal against acquittal also

The Criminal Procedure Code does not make any difference between the ambit of an appeal from a conviction and that of an appeal from an order of acquittal except that an appeal against a conviction is as of right and lies to Courts of different jurisdiction depending on the nature of sentence, the kind of trial and the Court in which it was held, whereas an appeal against an order of acquittal can only be made to the High Court by the State Government or by a complainant (where the case started on a complaint) with the special leave of the High Court. The matters on which an appeal under the Code is admissible are stated in S. 418 and they are the same of the two kinds of appeals. Such appeals lie on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law (except in trials by Jury). The procedure for dealing with the two kinds of appeals is identical and the powers of Appellate Courts in disposing of the appeals, though indicated separately in S. 423 are in essence the same. The Code contemplates that a retrial may be ordered after setting aside the conviction or acquittal (as the case may be) if the trial already held is found to be unsatisfactory or leads to a failure of justice. In the same way, the Code gives a proper to the Appellate Court to take additional evidence, which, for reasons to be recorded, it considers necessary. The Code thus gives power to the Appellate Court to order one or the other as the circumstances may require leaving a wide discretion to it to deal appropriately with different cases. Since a wide discretion is conferred on Appellate Courts, the limits of that Court's jurisdiction must obviously be dictated by the exigency of the situation, and fair play and good sense appear to be the only safe guides. There is, no doubt, some analogy between the power to order a retrial and the power to take additional evidence. The former is an extreme step appropriately taken if additional evidence will not suffice. Both actions subsume failure of justice as a condition precedent.

The appellant had received three sums from the agents and the allegation was that he had misappropriated the amount. During his trial he asked for certain documents but for some reason they were not brought. There was oral evidence tending to show that the money was not credited with the cashier of the Company. The Magistrate did not accept oral evidence and basing himself on this failure, ordered an acquittal. In appeal against acquittal the High Court took additional evidence, allowed the appeal and recorded a conviction.

Held :

The High Court acted within the powers conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure. Rajeswar Prasad Misra v. State of W.B., AIR 1965 SC 1887: (1966) 1 SCR 178: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 817, 819.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1965]

[8986] — S. 429 — Judges of appeal equally divided — Reference to third Judge — Third Judge is free to decide the appeal in the manner he thinks fit — He is not obliged, either as a rule of prudence or on the score of judicial etiquette, to accept the view of one of the Judges holding in favour of acquittal of the accused — CrPC, 1973, S. 392

The plain reading of Section 392 clearly indicates that it is for the third Judge to decide on what points he shall hear arguments, if any, and it necessarily postulates that the third Judge is free to decide the appeal by resolving the difference in the manner, he thinks proper.

Where a case is referred to a third Judge under Section 392 CrPC, such Judge is not only entitled to decide on what points he shall hear the arguments, if any, but his decision will be final and the judgment in the appeal will follow his decision.

In the scheme of Section 392 CrPC, the view that the third Judge, as a rule of prudence or on the question of judicial etiquette, will lean in favour of the view of one of the Judges in favour of acquittal of the accused, cannot be sustained. There is no manner of doubt that the third Judge has a statutory duty under Section 392 CrPC to consider the opinions of the two Judges whose opinions are to be laid before the third Judge for giving his own opinion on consideration of the facts and circumstances of the case. Tanviben Pankajkumar Divetia v. State of Gujarat, (1997) 7 SCC 156: 1997 SCC (Cri) 1004: AIR 1997 SC 2193: 1997 Cri LJ 2535: (1997) 1 Guj LH 851: (1997) 2 Guj LR 1346.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.T. Nanavati, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1997]

Babu v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 1467: (1965) 2 SCR 771; Hethubha v. State of Gujarat, (1970) 1 SCC 720: 1970 SCC (Cri) 280; Union of India v. B.N. Ananti Padmanabiah, (1971) 3 SCC 278: 1971 SCC (Cri) 535; State of A.P. v. P.T. Appaiah, (1980) 4 SCC 316 ; 1980 SCC (Cri) 960, followed

Empress v. Debi Singh, 1886 All WN 275; Narsiah, In re, AIR 1959 AP 313: 1959 Cri LJ 689: 1959 An LT 139, overruled

Balku v. Emperor, AIR 1948 All 237: 1948 All LJ 102: 49 Cri LJ 264; Nemai Mondal v. State of W.B., AIR 1966 Cal 194: 1966 Cri LJ 522; Dharam Singh v. State of U.P., (1964) 1 Cri LJ 78: 1962 All LJ 748 (SC), approved

[8987] — S. 429 — Judges of appeal equally divided — Reference to third judge — Course open to — Held, the third judge is not obliged, either as a rule of prudence or on the score of judicial etiquette, to accept the view of one of the Judges holding in favour of acquittal

The criminal appeal filed by the appellants in the present case was heard by a Division Bench of High Court consisting of judges S and K. There was a difference of opinion between the two learned Judges. One of the judges i.e. S was of the opinion that the appeal should be allowed and the conviction of the appellants and the sentences imposed thereunder were liable to be set aside. In view of the said difference of opinion, the appeal was placed for hearing before a third judge U, who came to the conclusion that the appeal deserved to be dismissed. Before the Supreme Court, it was contended by the appellants that the third judge should have leaned in favour of the view taken by S as a rule of prudence and should not have differed from the findings recorded by Judge S unless the same were perverse or there were strong and weighty reasons for doing so.

Held :

Section 392 CrPC lays down that when an appeal under Chapter XXIX is heard by a High Court before a Bench of Judges and they are divided in opinion, the appeal with their opinions, shall be laid before another Judge of that Court, and that Judge, after such hearing as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion and the judgment and order shall follow that opinion. The settled position being that the third judge is under no obligation to accept the view of one of the Judges holding in favour of acquittal of the accused either as a rule of prudence or on the score of judicial etiquette, it is not possible to accept the contention raised by the appellant. (Paras 8 and 10). Radha Mohan Singh v. State of U.P., (2006) 2 SCC 450: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 661: AIR 2006 SC 951: (2006) 1 KLJ 535: (2006) 2 All LJ 242: 2006 Cri LJ 1121.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan, Arun Kumar and G.P. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2006]

Tanviben Pankajkumar Divetia v. State of Gujarat, (1997) 7 SCC 156: 1997 SCC (Cri) 1004; Dharam Singh v. State of U.P., (1964) 1 Cri LJ 78: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 769, followed

Babu v. State of U.P., (1965) 2 SCR 771: AIR 1965 SC 1467: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 539; Hethubha v. State of Gujarat, (1970) 1 SCC 720: 1970 SCC (Cri) 280; State of A.P. v. P.T. Appaiah, (1980) 4 SCC 316: 1980 SCC (Cri) 960, relied on

[8988] — S. 429 — Scope of, compared with S. 392, CrPC, 1973

In the present Code a proviso has been added to Section 392. But for this proviso effect of Section 429 of the old Code and Section 392 of the present

Code would appear to be the same. Sajjan Singh v. State of M.P., (1999) 1 SCC 315: 1999 SCC (Cri) 44: AIR 1998 SC 2756.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1998]

[8989] — S. 429 — Third Judge to whom the case is referred to — Jurisdiction, powers and duty of — Held, he is required to examine independently the entire case including the points on which the two Judges of the Division Bench had concurred — His position is not that of a Judge sitting in a three-Judge Bench where majority opinion prevails — His opinion is rather the material one and it is against the judgment that follows therefrom that an appeal lies under Art. 136 or 134 of the Constitution or under S. 379, CrPC, 1973 — On facts, therefore, the third Judge was bound to examine appeal of the three accused whose conviction had been upheld by both the Judges — However, despite the third Judge having not followed the correct procedure, in the peculiar circumstances of the case, matter decided by Supreme Court itself on merits and not remanded — Constitution of India — Arts. 136, 142 and 134 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 392 and 379. Sajjan Singh v. State of M.P., (1999) 1 SCC 315: 1999 SCC (Cri) 44: AIR 1998 SC 2756.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1998]

Babu v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 1467: (1965) 2 SCR 771; State of U.P. v. Dan Singh, (1997) 3 SCC 747: 1997 SCC (Cri) 469; Tanviben Pankajkumar Divetia v. State of Gujarat, (1997) 7 SCC 156: 1997 SCC (Cri) 1004, followed

[8990] — S. 429 — Difference of opinion — Case laid before third Judge — Third Judge if can deal with the whole case

Two things are noticeable in S. 429, CrPC. First, that the case shall be laid before another Judge, and, secondly the judgment and order will follow the opinion of third learned Judge. So the third Judge can or will deal with the whole case. Hethubha v. State of Gujarat, (1970) 1 SCC 720: 1970 SCC (Cri) 280: AIR 1970 SC 1266: 1970 Cri LJ 1138.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1970]

[8991] — S. 429 — Single Judge to whom a reference is made, held, cannot reopen the entire matter — Unanimous decision of the Division Bench binding on him — Precedents — High Court vis-à-vis Itself and other H.C. Precedents. Bhagat Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (1972) 2 SCC 466: 1972 SCC (Cri) 751: AIR 1972 SC 1502: (1972) 3 SCR 303: 1972 Cri LJ 909: (1972) 9 ACC 67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1972]

See also (1974) 3 SCC 72

[8992] — S. 429 — Judges of appeal equally divided — Opinion of the Judge acquitting the accused — Not to be treated as judgment of acquittal — Third judge not bound to discuss opinion of acquitting Judge and indicate reasons for disagreement

Per Kapur, J. (majority)

All that S. 429 says is that the opinion of the two judges who disagree shall be laid before another judge who, after giving such hearing, if any, as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion and the judgment or order should be in accordance with such opinion. Now it is obvious that when the opinions of the two judges are placed before a third judge he would consider those two opinions and give his own opinion and the judgment has to follow the opinion of the third judge. Consequently on that opinion is based the judgment of the Court. For all practical purposes the third judge must consider the opinions of his two colleagues and then give his own opinion but to equate the requirements with appeals against acquittals is not justified by provisions of S. 429 or by principle or precedent.

The contention that under S. 429, Criminal Procedure Code, where there is difference of opinion between the Judges constituting a Division Bench and the matter is referred to a third judge the opinion of the Judge acquitting the accused has to be treated in the same manner as the judgment of acquittal by the trial Court and, even though it may not be necessary to find compelling reasons for disagreeing with the opinion of the acquitting judge it is necessary that the judgment should show that all the findings and the reasons given in the opinion of the acquitting judge are mentioned in the opinion of the third judge and the judgment should indicate the reasons for disagreeing with the opinion of the acquitting judge is without substance. Dharam Singh v. State of U.P., 1962 Supp (3) SCR 769: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 78, 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur[1], K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-1962]

[8993] — S. 429 — Power of third judge in case of difference of opinion

The language of S. 429 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is explicit that the case with the opinion of the judges comprising the Court of Appeal shall be laid before another judge of the same Court. The other noticeable feature in S. 429 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is that the judgment or order shall follow the opinion of the third learned judge. Union of India v. B.N. Ananti Padmanabiah, (1971) 3 SCC 278: 1971 SCC (Cri) 535: AIR 1971 SC 1836: 1971 Cri LJ 1287.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1971]

[8994] — S. 429 — Procedure when Judges of Court of Appeal equally divided — Case laid before the third Judge — He is completely free in resolving the difference as he thinks fit

Section 429 contemplates that it is for the third judge to decide on what points he shall hear arguments, if any, and that postulates that he is completely free in resolving the difference as he thinks fit.

Where there was a difference of opinion between the two Judges of the High Court hearing an appeal against a conviction in a murder case and the case was laid before a third judge under S. 429, CrPC, it was sufficient for the third judge to have said on the question of the First Information Report, about which there was a difference of opinion between the two Judges of appeal, that he did not consider it necessary to decide the point but if it was necessary he was in agreement with one of the judges specified by him. That was a proper decision by the third judge. Babu v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 1467: (1965) 2 SCR 771: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 539, 541.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah, J.C. Shah, J.R. Mudholkar and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1965]

[8995] — S. 429 — Reference to third Judge of one aspect of matter — Whether third judge competent to reopen the entire matter — Whether on other matters the findings of the Division Bench is binding on him

It is not permissible for the third Judge to reopen the matter and pass a conviction order for offences under Ss. 347, 389 and 120-B, IPC. The matter referred to the third Judge was only for offences under S. 161, IPC and S. 5(1)(a) of Prevention of Corruption Act, and the third Judge could go only into that aspect of the matter and come to a conclusion.

Where an express order has been made by the Division Bench upholding the acquittal for offences under Ss. 120-B, 218, 347 and 389, IPC and the State appeal to that extent has been dismissed, the decision of the Division Bench was binding on the third Judge and it was not within his competence to reopen the matter and pass a conviction order.

The order of acquittal passed by the Division Bench, unless set aside in appeal to the Supreme Court was binding and conclusive in all subsequent proceedings between the parties. Bhagat Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (1972) 2 SCC 466: 1972 SCC (Cri) 751: AIR 1972 SC 1502: (1972) 3 SCR 303: 1972 Cri LJ 909: (1972) 9 ACC 67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1972]

[8996] — S. 429 — Third Judge, before whom the case is laid for opinion under, held, is competent to deal with the whole case and is not bound to confine his judgment only to the matter concerning difference of opinion between the other two Judges — On facts, view taken by the third Judge not being unreasonable and perverse, held, is not open to challenge — CrPC, 1973, S. 392. State of A.P. v. P.T. Appaiah, (1980) 4 SCC 316: 1980 SCC (Cri) 960: AIR 1981 SC 365: 1980 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1980]

— S. 430 See Ss. 369, 424, 430 and 561-A

See also Ss. 420, 421 and 430

See also Ss. 439(6), 369 and 430

[8997] — S. 430 — Finality of appellate judgments even if decided wrongly

The Appellate Court in a case which properly comes before it on appeal, is fully competent to decide whether the trial was with or without jurisdiction, and it has jurisdiction to decide the matter rightly as well as wrongly. If it affirms the conviction and thereby decides wrongly that the trial Court had the jurisdiction to try and convict, it cannot be said to have acted without jurisdiction and its order cannot be treated as a nullity. Janardhan Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1951 SC 217, 225: 1951 SCR 344: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 736.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1951]

[8998] — S. 430 — Rejection of jail appeal — Second appeal through pleader cannot be entertained. Pratap Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1961 SC 586: (1961) 2 SCR 509: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 733.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta, Raghubar Dayal and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-11-1960]

[8999] — Ss. 430 and 439(6) — Finality of the orders in appeal — S. 439(6) is not controlled by S. 430

Per Das, J.

The scope of Ch. 32 of the Criminal Procedure Code having been enlarged by the addition of sub-section (6) of S. 439, the scope of Exception to S. 430 must also stand enlarged so as to include within its exception whatever, after the amendment of S. 439, may come within Ch. 32 and therefore cases now coming within the Chapter must stand free from the rule of finality embodied in S. 430.

In therefore follows that S. 439(6) is not in terms controlled by S. 369 or S. 430. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410, 1414.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

— S. 431 See Ss. 386(1)(b) proviso and 431
See also Ss. 417(3) and 431

[9000] — S. 431 — Death — Abatement — Special leave appeal against sentence of life imprisonment — Appellant dying during pendency of the appeal — Appeal abates — In appeal against sentence of fine principles of S. 431 to apply and the appeal to be permitted to continue — Constitution of India — Art. 136

Per Sarkar, J.

Appeals from sentences of fine may be permitted to be continued by the legal representative of the deceased appellant, because there is no provision making such appeals abate and also because if they can be continued when arising under CrPC there is no reason why they should not be continued when arising under the Constitution.

The principle on which the hearing of a proceeding may be continued after the death of an accused would appear to be the effect of the sentence on his property in the hands of his legal representatives. If the sentence affects that property, the legal representatives can be said to be interested in the proceeding and allowed to continue it. A sentence of fine no doubt affects the property.

Per Hidayatullah, J.

An appeal is not a heritable asset and does not devolve as a matter of course upon an executor or heir. Even under the civil law an express provision is required for substitution of another person in the place of the person deceased before the appeal can be continued and this is again subject to whether the cause of action survives or not. The same principle is again to the forefront in S. 431 when it allows an appeal in respect of fine to be continued but not appeals involving imprisonment. The intention there too appears to be to afford only to those persons a right whose interests are directly jeopardized by the judgment. In so far as personal punishment (other than a fine) is concerned that stands dissolved by the death of the offender and an appeal to get that punishment set aside becomes infructuous and abates.

Per Madholkar, J.

The Legislature has, by limiting in S. 431 of the Code the survival of appeals to appeals against sentences of fine has chosen to recognise only one kind of interest and no other. Bondada Gajapathi Rao v. State of A.P., AIR 1964 SC 1645, 1647: (1964) 7 SCR 251, 254: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 598, 600.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar[1], M. Hidayatullah[2] and J.R. Mudholkar[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1964]

Applied in State of A.P. v. S. Narasimha Kumar, (2006) 5 SCC 683

[9001] — S. 431 — Applicability — Abatement of State appeal under Art. 136 pending in Supreme Court on death of accused — Appeal filed by State against order of High Court which set aside conviction and sentence of accused — Held, said appeal abated on death of accused — Bondada Gajapathy Rao, AIR 1964 SC 1645 and Harnam Singh, (1975) 3 SCC 343 followed — CrPC, 1973, S. 394 (Para 8). State of A.P. v. S. Narasimha Kumar, (2006) 5 SCC 683: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 54: AIR 2006 SC 2924: (2006) 3 KLT 505.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-7-2006]

Bondada Gajapathy Rao v. State of A.P., (1964) 7 SCR 251: AIR 1964 SC 1645: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 598; Harnam Singh v. State of H.P., (1975) 3 SCC 343: 1974 SCC (Cri) 951, applied

Applied in Shankar Prasad Ghosh v. State of Bihar, (2008) 11 SCC 373

[9002] — S. 431 — Permission to continue appeal subsequent to death of accused-appellant — Sought by widow of appellant after "delay of 149 days" — Condoning the delay, Supreme Court granting the said permission — CrPC, 1973, S. 394(2) proviso (Para 11) . Girja Prasad v. State of M.P., (2007) 7 SCC 625: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 475: (2007) 4 KLT 99: (2007) 58 AIC 230 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-2007]

[9003] — S. 431 — Abatement of criminal appeal on death of accused — Whether S. 431 applicable to an appeal by special leave under Art. 136 against a composite sentence of imprisonment and fine — CrPC, 1973, S. 394

Though strictly speaking S. 431, CrPC, 1898 does not apply to appeals by special leave, yet, in the interests of uniformity there is no valid reason for applying to appeals under Art. 136 a set of rules different from those which govern appeals under the Code in the matter of abatement.

Now every appeal against conviction abates on the death of accused except an appeal from a sentence of fine. An appeal from a sentence of fine is excepted from the all-pervasive rule of abatement of criminal appeals for the reason that the fine constitutes a liability on the estate of the deceased and the legal representatives on whom the estate devolves are entitled to ward off that liability. The sentence of fine remains outstanding though the right to recover the fine is circumscribed by a sort of a period of limitation prescribed by S. 70, IPC.

Though an appeal from a composite order of sentence is ordinarily directed against both the substantive imprisonment and the fine, it does not cease to be an appeal from a sentence of fine. The plain meaning of S. 431 is that every criminal appeal abates on the death of the accused "except an appeal from a sentence of fine". The section for its application requires that the appeal must be directed to the sentence of fine and not that it must be directed to that sentence only. If by the judgment under appeal a sentence of fine is imposed either singularly or in conjunction with a sentence of imprisonment the appeal against conviction would be an appeal from a sentence of fine within the meaning of S. 431. All that is necessary is that a sentence of fine should have been imposed on the accused and the appeal filed by him should involve the consideration of the validity of that sentence.

In this regard it is incorrect to state that even after finding that the conviction is illegal, the Court must only set aside the sentence of fine permitting the illegal conviction and the substantive sentence founded upon it to remain. Harnam Singh v. State of H.P., (1975) 3 SCC 343: 1974 SCC (Cri) 951: AIR 1975 SC 236: 1975 Cri LJ 276: 1975 MLJ (Cri) 493.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1974]

Applied in State of A.P. v. S. Narasimha Kumar, (2006) 5 SCC 683; Shankar Prasad Ghosh v. State of Bihar, (2008) 11 SCC 373*

[9004] — Ss. 431 and 439 — Revision — Effect of the death of the revisionist — Abatement — Revision does not abate — High Court continues to have power to examine the whole question including the order of conviction

In the absence of statutory provisions, in terms applying to an application in revision, as there are those in S. 431 in respect of criminal appeals, the High Court has the power to pass such orders as to it may seem fit and proper, in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction vested in it by S. 439 of the Code. Indeed, it is a discretionary power which has to be exercised in aid of justice. Whether or not the High Court will exercise its revisional jurisdiction in a given case, must depend upon the facts and circumstances of that case. The revisional powers of the High Court vested in it by S. 439 of the Code, read with S. 435, do not create any right in the litigant, but only conserve the power of the High Court to see that justice is done in accordance with the recognised rules of Criminal Jurisprudence, and that subordinate criminal Courts do not exceed their jurisdiction, or abuse their powers vested in them by the Code. On the other hand a right of appeal is a statutory right which has got to be recognised by the Courts, and the right to appeal, where one exists, cannot be denied in exercise of the discretionary power even of the High Court. The Legislature has, therefore, specifically provided, by S. 431 of the Code, the rules governing the right of substitution in case of death of an appellant, but there is no corresponding provision in Ch. XXXII, dealing with the question of abatement and the right of substitution in a criminal revision. The High Court is not bound to entertain an application in revision, or having entertained one, to order substitution in every case. It is not bound the other way, namely, to treat a pending application in revision as having abated by reason of the fact that there was a composite sentence of imprisonment and fine, as some of the Single Judge decisions referred to would seem to indicate. The High Court has been left with complete discretion to deal with a pending matter on the death of the petitioner in accordance with the requirements of justice. The petitioner in the High Court may have been an accused person who has been convicted and sentenced, or he may have been a complainant who may have been directed under S. 250 of the Code to pay compensation to an accused person upon his discharge or acquittal. Whether it was an accused person or it was a complainant who has moved the High Court in its revisional jurisdiction, if the High Court has issued a rule that rule has to be heard and determined in accordance with law, whether or not the petitioner in the High Court is alive or dead, or whether he is represented in Court by a legal practitioner. In hearing and determining cases under S. 439 of the Code, the High Court discharges its statutory function of supervising the administration of justice on the criminal side. Hence, the considerations applying to abatement of an appeal, may not apply to the case of revisional applications. Pranab Kumar Mitra v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 144: 1959 Supp (1) SCR 63: 1959 Cri LJ 256, 57, 59.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha, K. Subba Rao and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-1958]

See also AIR 1964 SC 1645: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 598*

[9005] — S. 432 — Question as to the validity of an Act — Must be taken under S. 432 and not Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution

The Legislature has provided a special procedure for bringing a matter before the High Court when a party to a criminal prosecution pleads that the case involves a question as to the validity of an Act, Ordinance or Regulation and determination of that question is necessary for the disposal of the case.

The appellants did not apply to the trial Magistrate and approached the High Court. The High Court declined to entertain the petition under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution, because in their view the matter could be brought before them according to the procedure prescribed by S. 432. We do not think that the order of the High Court was in any manner erroneous. Sitaram Chhawehharia v. State of Bihar, 1969 SCD 260, 262.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1968]

[9006] — S. 432 — Revision — High Court acted improperly in finding that the respondents had no dishonest intention from the beginning and the case was of a civil nature — It was the function of the magistrate who has to determine if there is a prima facie charge and so case remanded to him. Rattan Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (1981) 4 SCC 430: 1981 SCC (Cri) 850.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: O. Chinnappa Reddy, A.P. Sen and Baharul Islam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-8-1981]

[9007] — Ss. 432 and 540 — Revisional power of High Court — It is a discretionary power which has to be exercised to correct miscarriage of justice — Justification for exercise of the power would depend upon facts and circumstances of each particular case — Where trial court acquitted the appellant of offence under S. 307 IPC in absence of any evidence and order of acquittal was not suffering from any perversity or unreasonableness, held on facts and in the circumstances of the case, there was no justification for the High Court to interfere with the trial court's order in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under S. 401 and order a retrial for the purpose of examining the victims under S. 311 who had not been examined either under S. 161 CrPC or in the trial — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 401 and 311. (Paras 11 and 12). T.N. Dhakkal v. James Basnett, (2001) 10 SCC 419.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand, C.J. and N. Santosh Hegde and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-9-2000]

Janata Dal v. H.S. Chowdhary, (1992) 4 SCC 305: 1993 SCC (Cri) 36, relied on

— S. 435 See Ss. 146(1-B) and (1-D), 435 and 439

See also Ss. 198 and 435

See also Ss. 421, 435 and 439

See also Ss. 439, 435 and 423

See also Ss. 476 and 435/439

[9008] — S. 435 — Supreme Court can, when the matter is before it in appeal, exercise the powers of the High Court to correct wrong decisions of the inferior Courts. Abdul Rehman Mahomed Yusuf v. Mahomed Haji Ahmad Agbotwala, AIR 1960 SC 82: (1960) 1 SCR 749: 1960 Cri LJ 158.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1959]

[9009] — Ss. 435, 337 and 338 — Revision of tender of pardon

Tender of pardon is a proceeding of a criminal court. The revising authority can call for the records to satisfy itself as to the regularity of any proceedings of an inferior criminal court. State of U.P. v. Kailash Nath Agarwal, (1973) 1 SCC 751: 1973 SCC (Cri) 698: AIR 1973 SC 2210: 1973 Cri LJ 1196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1973]

[9010] — Ss. 435, 436 and 439 — Applicability to order of discharge under S. 494

Held, that the resultant order, on the granting of the consent, being an order of 'discharge' or 'acquittal' would attract the applicability of correction by the High Court under Ss. 435, 436 and 439 or 417, CrPC. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389, 392: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[9011] — Ss. 435, 439 and 526 — Summoning record while appeal pending — Accused's appeal against conviction pending in Sessions Judge's Court — During pendency the High Court, not knowing that appeal was pending summoning the record suo moto under S. 435 — Later transferring the appeal to its file — Confirming conviction and enhancing sentence — Held, there is no illegality

The appellant filed an appeal against his conviction. The High Court, not knowing that the appeal was pending summoned the record and issued notice to the appellant to show cause why the sentence be not enhanced. Later the High Court on learning that an appeal against the conviction was pending transferred the appeal to itself and decided the whole case. It is contended that the High Court could not issue a notice of enhancement when an appeal against the conviction was pending in Sessions Court.

Held :

If the High Court was not aware of the filing of an appeal, it was open to it to call for the record of the proceeding before the Magistrate in order to satisfy itself whether the sentence passed was a proper one or not. When, however, it was brought to the notice of the High Court that an appeal was pending before the Sessions Judge, it could order that the appeal be withdrawn to the High Court so that the appeal and the rule could be heard together. The High Court did not commit any illegality in adopting the course which it did.

Provided the appeal was validly transferred for hearing to the High Court, it was open to the High Court to enhance the sentence in exercise of its revisional power under S. 439, Criminal Procedure Code, when it dismissed the appeal on merits after hearing the appellant. There can be no doubt in the present case that the appellant has had an opportunity of being heard both as to the correctness of his conviction and the propriety of the sentence. Romesh Chandra Arora v. State, AIR 1960 SC 154: (1960) 1 SCR 924: 1960 Cri LJ 177, 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1959]

[9012] — Ss. 435 and 438 — Both parties must be heard in proceedings before High Court — On failure to give party or his counsel notice, order of High Court set aside and matter remanded — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 397, 399 and 401. Makkapati Nagaswara Sastri v. S.S. Satyanarayan, (1981) 1 SCC 62: 1981 SCC (Cri) 111: AIR 1981 SC 1156: 1981 Cri LJ 617.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-9-1980]

[9013] — Ss. 435 and 439 — Powers of the High Court in revision while dealing with the cases of acquittal

The ambit of the powers of the High Court under Ss. 435 and 439, CrPC, in dealing with the cases of acquittal has been explained by this Court in more than one decision. Ibrahim Haji Moidee v. Food Inspector, (1969) 3 SCC 901: 1970 SCC (Cri) 167: 1969 KLT 62.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-1969]

[9014] — Ss. 435 and 439 — S. 259(1), Cantonment Act, 1924 — Magistrate acting under, not amenable to revision

The Magistrate acting under S. 259 of the Act, acts as a persona designata and, therefore, his order under that section is not revisable under Ss. 435/439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the Sessions Judge and the High Court had no jurisdiction under those provisions to interfere with such an order. Cantonment Board v. Pyare Lal, AIR 1966 SC 108: (1965) 3 SCR 341: 1966 Cri LJ 93.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo[1], J.R. Mudholkar[2] and S.M. Sikri[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 12-3-1965]

[9015] — Ss. 435 & 439 and 209 — High Court's power to interfere with the order of the Presidency Magistrate discharging an accused under S. 209

The contention that only that order is revisable under S. 439 of Criminal Procedure Code which is appealable under the Code is not correct because S. 439 is worded in very wide terms. Section 435 authorises the High Court besides other Courts mentioned therein to "call for and examine the record of proceeding before any inferior criminal Court". A Presidency Magistrate is also such an inferior criminal Court. If the High Court is empowered to call for the record of any proceeding before a Presidency Magistrate, it follows that it may examine the correctness, legality or propriety of any order passed by him and if it finds that the order is not correct or is illegal or improper, it may, acting under S. 439 exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal under S. 423. Section 439 provides that on examining the record of any proceedings the High Court may in its discretion exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal under S. 423.

The contention that unless there is an appeal against an order of acquittal, the High Court's power to order that the accused be committed to trial cannot be exercised under S. 439, because cl. (a) of S. 423(1) which contains the power to order committal begins with the words "in an appeal from an order of acquittal", is not correct. The fallacy of this line of argument lies in reading all the words of S. 423 into S. 439, which the latter section does not contemplate. Section 439 only authorises the High Court in revision to exercise any of the powers conferred under S. 423. It does not further make reference to the cases in which such powers have to be exercised. The latter question does not arise because S. 439 itself makes sweeping provision that "in the case of any proceeding" the High Court may exercise the powers enumerated in S. 423. Therefore the several powers contained in S. 423 have to be incorporated into S. 439 except the power to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

The High Court has jurisdiction to revise the order of discharge passed by a Presidency Magistrate. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244, 251-53.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

[9016] — Ss. 435 and 439 — Magistrate acting under S. 20 of Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women & Girls Act, 1956 subject to revision. State of U.P. v. Kaushailiya, AIR 1964 SC 416: (1964) 4 SCR 1002: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 304.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K. Subba Rao, K.N. Wanchoo, J.C. Shah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-10-1963]

[9017] — Ss. 435 and 439 — Nature and extent of revisional jurisdiction — When may be exercised — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 397 and 401

The High Court in exercising its revisional powers should not lightly interfere with the order of the Sessions Judge. The revisional jurisdiction can be exercised only in exceptional cases where the interest of public justice requires interference for the correction of a manifest illegality or the prevention of gross miscarriage of justice. The jurisdiction is not ordinarily invoked or used merely because the lower court has taken a wrong view of the law or misappreciated the evidence on record. Thakur Das v. State of M.P., (1978) 1 SCC 27: 1978 SCC (Cri) 21: AIR 1978 SC 1: 1978 Cri LJ 1: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 255: (1977) 3 ALR 720: (1978) 1 ALT 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.K. Goswami, N.L. Untwalia and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1977]

[9018] — Ss. 435 and 439 — Revisional power of High Court — Sessions Judge appointed as appellate authority under S. 6-C of Essential Commodities Act, 1955 — Sessions Court held subordinate to High Court not persona designata

The Sessions Judge gets his designation as such since he presides over the Sessions Court and thereby enjoys the powers and discharges the functions conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure. Therefore, even if the judicial authority appointed under S. 6-C is the Sessions Judge, it would mean the Judge presiding over the Sessions Court and discharging the functions of that Court. The Sessions Court is constituted under the Code of Criminal Procedure and is indisputably an inferior court in relation to the High Court. Therefore, against the order made in exercise of the powers conferred by S. 6-C a revision application would lie to the High Court and the High Court would be entitled to entertain such revision application. If by the Sessions Judge is meant the Judge presiding over the Sessions Court and he is the appointed appellate authority, the conclusion is inescapable that he was not persona designata. That expression is understood to mean a person appointed or described as an individual as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class or as filling a particular character. Thakur Das v. State of M.P., (1978) 1 SCC 27: 1978 SCC (Cri) 21: AIR 1978 SC 1: 1978 Cri LJ 1: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 255: (1977) 3 ALR 720: (1978) 1 ALT 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.K. Goswami, N.L. Untwalia and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1977]

[9019] — Ss. 435 & 439 and 144 — Order under S. 144 CrPC — Can be reviewed

Though no appeal has been provided in the Code against the Magistrate's order under S. 144, the High Court has power under S. 435 read with S. 439 of the Code to entertain an application for the revision of such an order. Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 884, 890: (1961) 3 SCR 423: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 16, 22.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1961]

[9020] — Ss. 435 and 561-A — Revisional power and inherent power — Inherent power may be invoked for quashing interlocutory order even though revision is prohibited — "Interlocutory order" — Meaning of — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 397(2) & 482. Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551: 1978 SCC (Cri) 10: AIR 1978 SC 47: 1978 Cri LJ 165.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.K. Goswami, N.L. Untwalia and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1977]

Amar Nath v. State of Haryana, (1977) 4 SCC 137: 1977 SCC (Cri) 585, explained

— S. 436 See Ss. 435, 436 and 439

— S. 437 See Ss. 207, 207-A and 437

See also Ss. 213(2), 437 and 439

[9021] — S. 437 — High Court setting aside order of discharge and directing commitment for trial under S. 409 IPC (Criminal breach of trust) — Held, order of the High Court did not revive the committal proceedings and therefore did not attract the 1973 Code by virtue of proviso to S. 484 — The High Court did not order any fresh enquiry in terms of S. 437, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 but straightaway committed him to Sessions — CrPC, 1973, S. 484, proviso. M.R. Dhawan v. Delhi Admn., (1978) 2 SCC 184: 1978 SCC (Cri) 186: AIR 1978 SC 1011: 1978 Cri LJ 769.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1978]

[9022] — S. 437 — Commitment can be made against an implied order of discharge

It is true that in the present case there is no express order of the Magistrate discharging the appellant of the charge under S. 307, IPC, but in his order, the Magistrate has given reasons for holding that no case is made out under S. 307, IPC, in order to justify an order of commitment. It is manifest that the order of the Magistrate is tantamount to an implied order of discharge and the Additional Sessions Judge had, therefore, jurisdiction under S. 437, CrPC, to set aside the order of the Magistrate and to order that the accused should be committed to trial in the Court of Session on the major charge under S. 437, IPC. There is nothing in the language of S. 437, CrPC, from which it could be said that the power of the Sessions Court under that section can be exercised only when the Magistrate has made an express order of discharge.

The language used in S. 437, CrPC is wide and there is nothing in that section from which it could be gathered that the power can be exercised only when the Magistrate has made an express order of discharge. Ramekbal Tiwary v. Madan Mohan Tiwary, AIR 1967 SC 1156, 1159: (1967) 2 SCR 368: 1967 Cri LJ 1076.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1967]

[9023] — S. 437 — Object of — Retrial for graver offence

Section 437 has been enacted to cover cases where a magistrate thinking the facts relate to a minor offence tries the case without sending it to the Court of Session, and to prevent inferior Courts from exercising a jurisdiction which they do not possess. Where under S. 209(1) a Magistrate finds there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial and directs such person to be tried before himself or some other Magistrate, the revisional powers under S. 437, Criminal Procedure Code, can be exercised by the Sessions Court. Ramekbal Tiwary v. Madan Mohan Tiwary, AIR 1967 SC 1156, 1159: (1967) 2 SCR 368: 1967 Cri LJ 1076.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1967]

[9024] — S. 437 — Power to commit — Prosecution making successive applications to the Magistrate to commit a case to Sessions — All applications having been rejected — Finally informant filing a revision application — Case having proceeded on police report — Held, informant had no locus standi — Session Judge not justified in ordering committal of the case to Court of Sessions. Thakur Ram v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 911: (1966) 2 SCR 740: 1966 Cri LJ 700, 703.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar, R.S. Bachawat and P. Satyanarayana Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1965]

[9025] — S. 437 — Power to commit — Discretionary — Has to be exercised judicially

The provisions of S. 437, however, do not make it obligatory upon a Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate to order commitment in every case where an offence is exclusively triable by a Court of Session. The law gives a discretion to the revising authority and that discretion has to be exercised judicially. Thakur Ram v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 911: (1966) 2 SCR 740: 1966 Cri LJ 700, 703.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar, R.S. Bachawat and P. Satyanarayana Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1965]

[9026] — Ss. 437, 347, 206 and 207-A — Power under S. 437 — Can be exercised during the pendency of trial before the Magistrate as well — Not necessary for the exercise of power that order of discharge be passed by the Magistrate

There is nothing in the language of S. 437 from which it could be said that this power is not exercisable during the pendency of a trial before a Magistrate or that this power can be exercised only where the Magistrate has made an express order of discharge.

Express orders of discharge are not required to be passed by the Court in cases where, upon the same facts, it is possible to say that though no offence exclusively or appropriately triable by a Court of Sessions Judge is made out, an offence triable by a Magistrate is nevertheless made out. Even if an express order of discharge is made by a Magistrate in respect of an offence exclusively triable by a Court of Session but a trial on the same facts for a minor offence is proceeded with, the Magistrate has undoubtedly power to order his commitment in respect of the very offence regarding which he has passed an order of discharge provided, of course, the material before him justifies such a course. There is nothing in S. 347 which precludes him from doing this. It will, therefore, be not right to say that the power conferred by S. 437 is exercisable only in respect of express orders of discharge.

The facts may disclose really a very grave offence such as say, one under S. 302, IPC but the Magistrate thinks that the offence falls under S. 304-A, which he can try and after trying the accused either convicts or acquits him. In either case the result would be that the appropriate Court will be prevented from trying the accused for the grave offence which those very facts disclose. It is to obviate such a consequence and to prevent inferior Courts from clutching at jurisdiction that the provisions of S. 437, CrPC have been enacted. To say that they can be availed of only where an express order of discharge is made by a Magistrate despite the wide language used in S. 437 would have the result of rendering those provisions inapplicable to the very class of cases for which they were intended. Thakur Ram v. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 911: (1966) 2 SCR 740: 1966 Cri LJ 700, 703.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.R. Mudholkar, R.S. Bachawat and P. Satyanarayana Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1965]

— S. 438 See Ss. 254, 438 and 439
See also Ss. 435 and 438
— S. 439 See Ss. 94 and 439
See also Ss. 145(1) and 439
See also Ss. 146(1-B) and (1-D), 435 and 439
See also Ss. 154, 156, 439 and 561-A
See also Ss. 156, 439 and 561-A
See also Ss. 213(2), 437 and 439
See also Ss. 227 and 439
See also Ss. 253, 254-A & 258 and 439 & 403
See also Ss. 254, 438 and 439
See also Ss. 421, 435 and 439
See also Ss. 423 and 439
See also Ss. 423(1-A) and 439
See also Ss. 431 and 439
See also Ss. 435, 436 and 439
See also Ss. 435 and 439
See also Ss. 435 & 439 and 144
See also Ss. 435 & 439 and 209
See also Ss. 435, 439 and 526
See also Ss. 476 and 435/439

[9027] — S. 439 — Scope

Where the High Court thinks it fit and proper to entertain an application in revision or calls for the record suo motu, it has the power to examine the whole question of the correctness, propriety or legality of the sentence of fine, which necessarily involves examining the order of conviction itself from that point of view. Pranab Kumar Mitra v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 144: 1959 Supp (1) SCR 63: 1959 Cri LJ 256.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and N.H. Bhagwati, B.P. Sinha, K. Subba Rao and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-1958]

[9028] — S. 439 — Scope — Power of High Court to order retrial in order against revision

The High Court when approached by a private party for exercising its power of revision from an order of acquittal, should appropriately refrain from interfering except when there is a glaring legal defect of a serious nature which has resulted in grave failure of justice. The power being discretionary, it has to be exercised judiciously and not arbitrarily. It is only in glaring cases of injustice resulting from some violation of fundamental principles of law by the trial Court in the course of trial, that the High Court is empowered to set aside the order of acquittal and direct the retrial of the acquitted accused person. Akalu Ahir v. Ramdeo Ram, (1973) 2 SCC 583: 1973 SCC (Cri) 903: AIR 1973 SC 2145: 1973 Cri LJ 1404.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-1973]

[9029] — S. 439 — Scope of revisional jurisdiction under — Unless view of the trial court is illegal or perverse, High Court cannot interfere with that view merely because it prefers a different view — On facts held, High Court exceeded its revisional jurisdiction in re-examining the evidence and reversing order of acquittal passed by trial court — Penal Code, 1860 — Ss. 302 and 34 — CrPC, 1973, S. 401

The trial court, finding that there were serious discrepancies and glaring inconsistencies between the versions of the eyewitnesses and that the medical evidence also did not support their version of the incident, considered it unsafe to rely upon the testimony of those eyewitnesses and accordingly held that the prosecution had failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. From the record of the case it appears that the view of the trial court was a possible view and it cannot be characterised as illegal or perverse. It may be that the High Court was not inclined to agree with the said view on the basis of his independent scrutiny and appreciation of the evidence adduced in the case but that would not furnish any justification for interference in revision with the order of acquittal passed by the trial court. Even in an appeal the appellate court would not have been justified in interfering with an acquittal merely because it was inclined to differ from the findings of fact reached by the trial court on the appreciation of the evidence. The revisional power of the High Court is much more restricted in its scope. Thus the High Court transgressed the limits of its revisional jurisdiction to setting aside the order of acquittal passed by the trial court. Bansi Lal v. Laxman Singh, (1986) 3 SCC 444: 1986 SCC (Cri) 342: AIR 1986 SC 1721: 1986 Cri LJ 1603.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Balakrishna Eradi and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-7-1986]

[9030] — S. 439 — Charges against a person appearing on the scene subsequently and unlikely to be a party to the conspiracy — Held, charges rightly quashed under S. 439, CrPC, 1898 — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 420, 468 and 471 r/w S. 120-B. State of W.B. v. Raj Kumar Agarwalla, (1976) 2 SCC 204: 1976 SCC (Cri) 259: AIR 1977 SC 301: 1977 Cri LJ 206.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1975]

[9031] — S. 439 — Discharge of accused by Magistrate — Revision to High Court — Maintainability

That the order of the Magistrate was an order of discharge and not of acquittal. It is true that it is a summons case and no formal charge is necessary to be framed under S. 242, CrPC, but even so here when the accused appeared before anything was done the accused filed preliminary objections and no particulars of the offence of which the accused was charged were even stated to him. (Revision maintainable.) Municipal Council, Raipur v. State of M.P., (1969) 2 SCC 582: AIR 1970 SC 1923: 1970 Cri LJ 1656: (1970) 2 LLJ 40.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-1969]

[9032] — S. 439 — High Court's power — Reversal on facts — Propriety

The powers of the High Court under S. 439, CrPC, although wide are subject to certain limitations. Section 439(4) expressly provides that the section shall not be deemed to authorise the High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction. The High Court judgment does not show that the trial Court shut out any evidence which the prosecution wanted to produce or admitted any inadmissible evidence or overlooked any material evidence. The High Court proceeded to reappraise the evidence of the witnesses and upset the finding of the Magistrate thereon on the ground that he "had not taken the trouble of sifting the grain from the chaff". Clearly such a course is not permissible under S. 439, CrPC. The facts and circumstances of this case do not warrant the ordering of a retrial by the High Court if it felt disposed to exercise powers under S. 423, CrPC, expressly included in S. 439. Khetrabasi Samual v. State of Orissa, (1969) 2 SCC 571: AIR 1970 SC 272: 36 Cut LT 85: 1970 Cri LJ 369.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-8-1969]

[9033] — S. 439 — Recovery of expenses incurred by municipality in carrying out repairs to building under S. 222(4) of Ajmer-Merwara Municipalities Regulation — Magistrate who entertains such application does not function under CrPC and hence is not an inferior criminal court to High Court within the meaning of S. 439, CrPC, 1898 — Ajmer-Merwara Municipalities Regulations, 1925 (6 of 1925), Ss. 234 and 222(4)

The nature of the enquiry contemplated by S. 234 is very limited and it prima facie partakes of the character of a ministerial enquiry rather than judicial enquiry. In any event it is difficult to hold that the Magistrate who entertains the application is an inferior criminal court. The claim made before him is for the recovery of a tax and the order prayed for is for the recovery of the tax by distress and sale of the moveable property of the defaulter. If at all, this would at best be a proceeding of a civil nature and not criminal. That is why, we think, whatever may be the character of the proceeding, whether it is purely ministerial or judicial or quasi-judicial, the Magistrate who entertains the application and holds the enquiry does so because he is designated in that behalf and so he must be treated as a persona designata and not as a Magistrate functioning and exercising his authority under the Code of Criminal Procedure. He cannot therefore be regarded as an inferior criminal court. Dargah Committee, Ajmer v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1962 SC 574: (1962) 2 SCR 265: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 507.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1961]

[9034] — S. 439 — After issuing notice case must be decided or reasons given therefor

In this case, after hearing the petitioner the learned Judge of the High Court has merely said that "he did not wish to exercise the jurisdiction". It was urged that what was intended to be meant thereby was that no case was made out for exercise of the jurisdiction conferred upon the High Court under S. 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. But the High Court had issued rule in this case and the matter was placed for hearing after the parties were served. The Judge should have given some reasons if he intended to say that so case was made out for the exercise of the jurisdiction of the High Court in support of that conclusion, but no reasons have been given. But this is not a satisfactory way of disposing of a case after rule has been issued to the respondents and the parties are ready for hearing. Mohanlal H. Dayalani v. State of Gujarat, 1969 SCD 98, 100: 1969 ALJ 8.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1968]

[9035] — S. 439 — Appeals to High Court against the order of acquittal — Power of High Court to interfere with the orders of acquittal — When justified

The revisional jurisdiction conferred on the High Court under S. 439, CrPC, is not to be lightly exercised, when it is invoked by a private complainant against an order of acquittal, against which the Govt. has a right of appeal under S. 417. It could be exercised only in exceptional cases where the interests of public justice require interference for the correction of a manifest illegality, or the prevention of a gross miscarriage of justice. This jurisdiction is not ordinarily invoked or used merely because the lower Court has taken a wrong view of the law or misappreciated the evidence on record. D. Stephens v. Nosibolla, AIR 1951 SC 196: 1951 SCR 284: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 510.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-1951]

Followed in Johar v. Mangal Prasad, (2008) 3 SCC 423

[9036] — S. 439 — Belated objection to defect not occasioning failure of justice — Not entertained by High Court — Upheld. State of W.B. v. Motilal Kanoria, AIR 1966 SC 1586: (1966) 3 SCR 933: 1966 Cri LJ 1210.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah, J.C. Shah and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1966]

[9037] — S. 439 — Committal order — Revision against — Grounds of interference by High Court — High Court normally not to enter upon reappraisal of evidence — Interference justified where substantial question of law arises — Failure to comply with law etc., complete want of evidence, and ignoring of substantive law which constitutes the offence are some of the good grounds for interference. Alamohan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1970 SC 863: (1969) 2 SCR 520: (1970) All Cri Cas 114: (1970) 40 Comp Cas 643: 1970 Cri LJ 860.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.C. Shah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1968]

[9038] — S. 439 — Driving car in rash and negligent manner causing accident resulting in death of two — High Court on reappraisal of evidence acquitting the accused — It exceeded its revisional power

The main criterion for deciding whether the driving which led to the accident was rash and negligent is not only the speed but the width of the road, the density of the traffic, and the attempt as in the case, to overtake the other vehicles resulting in going to the wrong side of the road and being responsible for the accident. Even if the accident took place in the twinkling of an eye it is not difficult for an eyewitness to notice a car overtaking other vehicles and going to the wrong side of the road and hitting a vehicle travelling on that side of the road.

There is only one conclusion possible on the facts of this case and that is that the accused came over to the wrong side of the road and was responsible for the accident and that is clearly a rash and negligent act in the condition of the road and the condition of the traffic.

The High Court not only exceeded the scope of its revisional powers but also completely misdirected itself in regard to the appreciation of evidence. Shakila Khader v. Nausheer Cama, (1975) 4 SCC 122: 1975 SCC (Cri) 379: AIR 1975 SC 1324: 1975 Cri LJ 1105.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A. Alagiriswami and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1975]

[9039] — S. 439 — Enhancement of sentence — Enhancement to death — Whether possible in revision by the complainant

Where the complainant moved the High Court in revision, the High Court was competent and well within its power to enhance the sentence of transportation for life to a sentence of death. Bissu Mahgoo v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 714: 1954 Cri LJ 1796.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1954]

[9040] — S. 439 — Enhancement of sentence — High Court, on facts and circumstances, held, justified in substituting death sentence for life imprisonment even though the State had not filed any application for enhancement of sentence

It is undoubtedly true that it was primarily for the Sessions Court to decide whether the extreme penalty of death was called for in the circumstances of the case. But, unfortunately, the Sessions Judge did not take into consideration various relevant aspects of the matter while awarding the lesser sentence to the appellant. The conduct of the appellant shows that he was determined at all events to murder the deceased and if possible, some of the other members of the family, including his father. (Para 4).

Hence the High Court was not in error in enhancing the sentence from imprisonment for life to death. The circumstance that the State Government did not apply for enhancement of the sentence has no relevance. Suna v. State of Orissa, (1976) 4 SCC 307: 1976 SCC (Cri) 601.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-1975]

[9041] — S. 439 — Enhancement of sentence — Practice when an appeal is pending before an inferior Court — High Court to exercise its revisional powers when the appeal is disposed of — In exceptional cases a departure from the practice is permissible

The Supreme Court does not commend or encourage a departure from the usual practice which is that when an appeal is pending before an inferior Court, the High Court exercises, if necessary, its powers of revision after the appeal has been disposed of.

In exceptional cases when the ends of justice require that the appeal itself be heard by the High Court it is open to the High Court to exercise its powers of revision under S. 439, CrPC of enhancing the sentence after having heard and dismissed the appeal. Romesh Chandra Arora v. State, AIR 1960 SC 154: (1960) 1 SCR 924: 1960 Cri LJ 177, 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1959]

[9042] — S. 439 — Enhancement of sentence in revision — Revision proceedings brought by whom immaterial

Whether the State filed a revision or the complainant moved the High Court in revision, it was competent to the High Court to go into the question of sentence and it was well within the power of the High Court to enhance the sentence. Bissu Mahgoo v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 714, 715: 1954 Cri LJ 1796.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1954]

[9043] — S. 439 — Finding of fact — Non-interference with, by High Court in revision — Whether justified

Accused was tried for an offence under S. 406, IPC. The point for determination in the trial was one of fact which depended largely on appreciation of oral evidence. The trial Court had dealt with the matter fully and was satisfied on the evidence that the case of the prosecution had been established.

Held:

That the High Court quite rightly declined to interfere in revision with that finding. Held, further that in such a case the contention that the High Court had not given any reasons for dismissing the revision application and had not recorded any findings, had no force. Where in such a case, in an appeal by special leave against the order of the High Court, the argument of the accused turned on essentially a matter of appreciation of oral evidence the order of the High Court, held, could not be said to be erroneous. Narayan Tewary v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 726: 1954 Cri LJ 1808.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-1-1954]

[9044] — S. 439 — Finding of fact — Revision of — Magistrate fixing maintenance allowance under S. 488, CrPC — Sessions Judge accepted the finding and concurred with the quantum of compensation fixed — The finding is a concurrent finding of fact — Cannot be questioned in revision proceedings in High Court. Jagir Kaur v. Jaswant Singh, AIR 1963 SC 1521: (1964) 2 SCR 73: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 413.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-2-1963]

[9045] — S. 439 — High Court's power to enhance sentence — Sentence imposed by the trial Court should not be lightly interfered with by the High Court

The question of sentence is a matter of discretion which has to be exercised in a judicial way, that is to say, the sentence imposed by the trial Court should not be lightly interfered with and should not be enhanced unless the Appellate Court comes to the conclusion, on a consideration of the entire circumstances disclosed in the evidence, that the sentence imposed is inadequate. Sarjug Rai v. State of Bihar, AIR 1958 SC 127: 1958 SCR 768: 1958 Cri LJ 268, 269.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1957]

[9046] — S. 439 — High Court's power to set order of acquittal at private party's instance — Can be exercised in exceptional cases — Principle detailed

The power of the High Court to set aside an order of acquittal at the instance of a private party can be exercised only in exceptional cases as for example where the trial Court has wrongly shut out the evidence which the prosecution wished to produce, or where the Appellate Court has wrongly held evidence which was admitted by the trial Court to be inadmissible, or where material evidence has been overlooked either by the trial Court or by the Appellate Court, or where the acquittal is based on a compounding of the offence, which is invalid under the law. It is only in these circumstances that an order of acquittal challenged before the High Court under S. 439, CrPC, can be set aside.

Where the order passed by the High Court under S. 439 is based merely and solely on the conclusion which it reached on reappreciating evidence itself and the conclusion of the Appellate Court which led to the acquittal of the appellant does not suffer from any legal infirmity the High Court's jurisdiction under S. 439, CrPC to set aside order of acquittal cannot be legitimately invoked. Fakir Chand v. Komal Prasad, (1964) 2 Cri LJ 74, 75.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-11-1963]

See also (1973) 2 SCC 583: 1973 SCC (Cri) 903

[9047] — S. 439 — High Court's powers of revision — Complainant's application for revision against acquittal — High Court should use its revisional powers very sparingly

It is not enough to justify interference in revision when there is an application by a private party to set aside an order of acquittal only because a different view of the evidence could have been taken. No right of appeal is conferred in such cases though there is provision for appeal against acquittals. Courts must therefore use their revisional powers very sparingly. Dhirendra Nath Mitra v. Mukanda Lal Sen, AIR 1955 SC 584: 1955 Cri LJ 1299, 1300.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-1955]

[9048] — S. 439 — High Court's revisional power in a revision against acquittal — High Court not competent to re-weigh evidence from their point of view and reach inference contrary to Sessions Judge's on almost all points — Acquittal can be set aside only when judgment is illegal and there is gross miscarriage of justice

In a revision the High Court can set aside acquittal and order retrial when there exists a manifest illegality in the judgment of the Court of Session ordering the acquittal or there is a gross miscarriage of justice. The High Court is not entitled to interfere even if a wrong view of law is taken by the Court of Session or if even there is misappreciation of evidence. The High Court is entitled in revision to set aside an acquittal if there is an error on a point of law or no appraisal of the evidence at all.

It is not the duty of the High Court in dealing in revision with an acquittal, when Government has not chosen to file an appeal against it, to re-weigh the evidence from its own point of view and reach inference contrary to those of the Sessions Judge on almost every point. Mahendra Pratap Singh v. Sarju Singh, AIR 1968 SC 707: (1968) 2 SCR 287: 1968 Cri LJ 865, 866-67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1967]

Followed in Johar v. Mangal Prasad, (2008) 3 SCC 423

[9049] — S. 439 — Interference with sentence — Enhancement of

A question of a sentence is a matter of discretion and it is well settled that when discretion has been properly exercised along accepted judicial lines, an Appellate Court should not interfere to the detriment of an accused person except for very strong reasons which must be disclosed on the face of the judgment.

In a matter of enhancement there should not be interference when the sentence passed imposes substantial punishment. Interference is only called for when it is manifestly inadequate. Bed Raj v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 778, 781: (1955) 2 SCR 583: 1955 Cri LJ 1642.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1955]

[9050] — S. 439 — Jurisdiction under — When to be exercised

The jurisdiction of the High Court is to be exercised normally under S. 439, Criminal Procedure Code, only in exceptional cases, when there is a glaring defect in the procedure or there is a manifest error or point of law and consequently there has been a flagrant miscarriage of justice. Amar Chand Agarwalla v. Shanti Bose, (1973) 4 SCC 10: 1973 SCC (Cri) 651: AIR 1973 SC 799: 1973 Cri LJ 577.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1972]

[9051] — S. 439 — Plea against forfeiture — Plea that the court had no jurisdiction to forfeit the bond not taken either in the Court of the Magistrate who forfeited the bond or in revision — The plea cannot be taken in revision before the High Court

On behalf of the appellant it was contended in revision before the High Court that the order forfeiting the bond is illegal because the bond was executed in the Court of one Magistrate while the order of forfeiture of the surety bond was passed by another Magistrate. This plea was not taken either before the Magistrate who passed the order of forfeiture of the surety bond or in appeal before the Sessions Judge. The High Court rightly refused the appellant to urge this ground as to want of jurisdiction of the Court which passed the said order of forfeiture. Such a plea of jurisdiction is interplaced with question of fact. It may be that the case was transferred from the Court of one Magistrate to the Court of another. It may be that a particular court is abolished and the jurisdiction of the abolished court is transferred to the other court. It may be that the allocation of business is charged or redistributed among Magistrates' Court from time to time. If this particular ground had been urged at the proper time these facts could have been elucidated. Ramesh Chandra v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 689: 1972 SCC (Cri) 30: AIR 1972 SC 16: 1972 Cri LJ 5: 1972 ALJ 971.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1971]

[9052] — S. 439 — Power of appellate Court to alter sentence

It is true that the question of a sentence is a matter of discretion of the trial Court and when that discretion has been properly exercised along accepted judicial lines, the appellate Court should not interfere to the detriment of an accused person except for very strong reasons which must be disclosed on the face of the judgment. Interference will be justified when the sentence is manifestly inadequate or unduly lenient in the particular circumstances of a case. The interference will also be justified when the failure to impose a proper sentence may result in miscarriage of justice. Kodavandi Moidean v. State of Kerala, (1973) 3 SCC 469: 1973 SCC (Cri) 369: AIR 1973 SC 467: 1973 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-12-1972]

[9053] — S. 439 — Power of High Court to act suo motu in setting aside an order of acquittal

Revisional jurisdiction can be exercised by the High Court by being moved either by the convicted person himself or by any other person or suo motu on the basis of its own knowledge derived from any source whatsoever without being moved by any person at all. All that is necessary to bring the High Court's powers of revision into operation is such information as makes the High Court think that an order made by a subordinate court is fit for the exercise of its powers of revision. Ramesh Chandra J. Thakkar v. Assandas Parmanand Jhaveri, (1973) 3 SCC 884: 1973 SCC (Cri) 566: AIR 1973 SC 84: 1973 Cri LJ 201: 1973 Bom LR 364.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-1972]

[9054] — S. 439 — Power of High Court to take action suo motu against the orders passed by subordinate courts

In proper cases the High Court can take action suo motu against the orders passed by the subordinate Courts without being moved by any party. Cricket Assn. of Bengal v. State of W.B., (1971) 3 SCC 239: 1971 SCC (Cri) 446: AIR 1971 SC 1925: 1971 Cri LJ 1432.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1971]

[9055] — S. 439 — Power of the High Court to enhance sentence — Principles to be followed by the High Court — Interference to be made only when the sentence passed by the trial Judge is unduly lenient or relevant facts are not considered by it

The question of sentence is normally in the discretion of the trial Judge. It is for the trial Judge to take into account all relevant circumstances and decide what sentence would meet the ends of justice in a given case. The High Court undoubtedly has jurisdiction to enhance such sentence under S. 439, CrPC, but this jurisdiction can be properly exercised only if the High Court is satisfied that the sentence imposed by the trial Judge is unduly lenient, or, that, in passing the order of sentence, the trial Judge had manifestly failed to consider the relevant facts. Alamgir v. State of Bihar, AIR 1959 SC 436: 1959 Supp (1) SCR 464: 1959 Cri LJ 527, 31, 32.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-11-1958]

[9056] — S. 439 — Revision — High Court in revision should not disturb concurrent finding on similarity between the two labels — Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958. S.P.S. Jayam & Co. v. Nehrusadan, (1977) 3 SCC 512: AIR 1977 SC 1621: 1977 Cri LJ 1101.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.K. Goswami, P.N. Shinghal and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-4-1977]

[9057] — S. 439 — Revision by a complainant against acquittal — Scope of High Court's power of interference — High Court can set aside order of acquittal in exceptional cases — Appellate Court wrongly ruling out admissible evidence — High Court would be justified in interfering with the order of acquittal

It is true that it is open to a High Court in revision to set aside an order of acquittal even at the instance of private parties though the State may not have thought fit to appeal; but this jurisdiction should be exercised by the High Court only in exceptional cases, when there is some glaring defect in the procedure or there is a manifest error on a point of law and consequently there has been a flagrant miscarriage of justice. Sub-section (4) of S. 439 forbids a High Court from converting a finding of acquittal into one of conviction and that makes it all the more incumbent on the High Court to see that it does not convert the finding of acquittal into one of conviction by the indirect method of ordering retrial when it cannot itself directly convert a finding of acquittal into a finding of conviction. This places limitations on the power of the High Court to set aside a finding of acquittal in revision and it is only in exceptional cases that this power should be exercised. It is not possible to lay down the criteria for determining such exceptional cases which would cover all contingencies. We may however indicate some cases of this kind, which would justify the High Court in interfering with a finding of acquittal in revision. These cases may be: where the trial Court has no jurisdiction to try the case but has still acquitted the accused, or where the trial Court has wrongly shut out evidence which the prosecution wished to produce, or where the appeal Court has wrongly held evidence which was admitted by the trial Court to be inadmissible, or where material evidence has been overlooked either by the trial Court or by the appeal Court, or where the acquittal is based on a compounding of the offence, which is invalid under the law. These and other cases of similar nature can properly be held to be cases of exceptional nature, where the High Court can justifiably interfere with an order of acquittal; and in such a case it is obvious that it cannot be said that the High Court was doing indirectly what it could not do directly in view of the provisions of S. 439.

Where the Appellate Court ruled out relevant evidence as inadmissible the High Court would be justified in interfering with the order of acquittal so that the evidence may be reappraised after taking into account the evidence which was wrongly ruled out as inadmissible. The High Court is competent to confirm itself to the admissibility of that part of evidence, and is not competent to appraise the other evidence as well. K. Chinnaswamy Reddy v. State of A.P., AIR 1962 SC 1788: (1963) 3 SCR 412: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 8, 11.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1962]

Followed in Johar v. Mangal Prasad, (2008) 3 SCC 423

[9058] — S. 439 — Revision by a complainant against acquittal — Scope of High Court's power of interference — Nature of order by High Court when interfering — Trial Court acquitting the accused — High Court can on setting aside the order of acquittal send the case back for retrial — Trial Court convicting the accused and Appellate Court acquitting him — In such a case High Court can order rehearing of appeal or retrial but without disclosing its mind on the whole evidence

In a case where High Court decides to interfere with an order of acquittal on a revision by a complainant two contingencies arise. In the first place there may be an acquittal by the trial Court. In such a case if the High Court is justified to interfere with the order of acquittal in revision, the only course open to it is to set aside the acquittal and send the case back to the trial Court for retrial. But there may be another type of case, namely, where the trial Court has convicted the accused while the appeal Court has acquitted him. In such a case if the conclusion of the High Court is that the order of the appeal court must be set aside, the question is whether the appeal Court should be ordered to re-hear the appeal after admitting the statement it had ruled out or whether there should necessarily be a retrial. So far as this is concerned, it is open to the High Court to take either of the two courses. It may order a retrial or it may order the appeal Court to re-hear the appeal. It will depend upon the facts of each case whether the High Court would order the appeal Court to re-hear the appeal or would order a retrial by the trial Court. Where the entire evidence is there and it was the appeal Court which ruled out the evidence that had been admitted by the trial Court, the proper course is to send back the appeal for re-hearing to the appeal Court, without disclosing its own mind on the whole evidence. K. Chinnaswamy Reddy v. State of A.P., AIR 1962 SC 1788: (1963) 3 SCR 412: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 8, 11.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1962]

[9059] — S. 439 — Revision by High Court — Enhancement of sentence — Propriety — Interference by Supreme Court

When the High Court interferes at the instance of a private complainant the Supreme Court would be fully justified in considering for itself the propriety of the sentence as enhanced by the High Court. The High Court was in error in enhancing the sentence of the three appellants from life imprisonment to that of death.

Merely because the Appellate Court feels that left to itself it would have preferred to impose the sentence of death is by itself and without more not a sufficient ground to justify enhancement. It is only when the sentence appears on the facts and circumstances of the case to be so manifestly inadequate as to have resulted in failure of justice that enhancement of the sentence may be justified by the appellate court. Ram Narain v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 493: 1971 SCC (Cri) 99: AIR 1971 SC 757: 1971 Cri LJ 649.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-1970]

[9060] — S. 439 — Revisional jurisdiction of High Court at the instance of private complainant against acquittal — When to be exercised

The revisional jurisdiction conferred on the High Court under S. 439, CrPC, is not to be lightly exercised, when it is invoked by a private complainant against an order of acquittal, against which the Government has a right of appeal under S. 417. It could be exercised only in exceptional cases where the interests of public justice require interference for the correction of a manifest illegality, or the prevention of a gross miscarriage of justice. This jurisdiction is not ordinarily invoked or used merely because the lower Court has taken a wrong view of the law or misappreciated the evidence on record. Harihar Chakravarty v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 266: 1954 Cri LJ 724.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-1953]

[9061] — S. 439 — Revisional Power of High Court — Extent and scope

It is true that the Additional Sessions Judge has no authority to set aside the acquittal of the accused appellant under the provisions of S. 437, CPC. But the order of the Additional Sessions Judge has been affirmed by the High Court in its order under appeal and under S. 439, CrPC, the High Court has jurisdiction to interfere with an order of acquittal in revision and to direct that the accused may be retried on the graver offence. Ramekbal Tiwary v. Madan Mohan Tiwary, AIR 1967 SC 1156: (1967) 2 SCR 368: 1967 Cri LJ 1076, 1080.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1967]

[9062] — S. 439 — Revisional powers after death of accused — High Court can exercise in respect of an order of conviction even after the death of the accused

So far as revisional jurisdiction of High Court is concerned there is no provision similar to S. 431, CrPC providing for the abatement of an appeal on the death of an accused. Nor is there any provision whether a revisional application can be or cannot be made in respect of an order of conviction when the convicted person is dead. The distinction that while the appellate jurisdiction can be exercised only after an appeal is filed by the convicted person or against an order of acquittal under S. 411 or S. 417, no such limitation on the Court's revisional jurisdiction is noticeable. Revisional jurisdiction can be exercised by the High Court by being moved either by the convicted person himself or by any other person or suo motu, on the basis of its own knowledge derived from any source whatsoever without being moved by any person at all.

Therefore, in a proper case the High Court can exercise its power of revision of an order made against an accused person even after his death. State of Kerala v. Narayani Amma Kamala Devi, AIR 1962 SC 1530: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 943: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 506.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1962]

[9063] — S. 439 — Sentence — Enhancement of — Interference by appellate Court — When justified

A question of a sentence is a matter of discretion and it is well settled that when discretion has been properly exercised along accepted judicial lines, an appellate Court should not interfere, to the detriment of an accused person except for very strong reasons which must be disclosed on the face of the judgment.

In a matter of enhancement, there should not be interference when the sentence passed imposes substantial punishment. Interference is only called for when it is manifestly inadequate. Shiv Govind v. State of M.P., (1972) 3 SCC 399: 1972 SCC (Cri) 549: AIR 1972 SC 1823: 1972 Cri LJ 1181: (1972) 3 SCR 835.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-3-1972]

[9064] — S. 439 — Setting aside an order made without jurisdiction

High Court is entitled to set aside an order of a court subordinate to it which has assumed a jurisdiction that it does not possess. Kuldip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 391, 399: 1956 SCR 125: 58 Punj LR 595: 1956 Cri LJ 781.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1956]

[9065] — S. 439 — Whether on facts, the High Court acting in exercise of its revisional powers was justified in interfering with the order of acquittal and in ordering a retrial — Murder case — Case not instituted upon a complaint — Revision application by private party — High Court upsetting the acquittal on ground of wrongful appreciation of evidence — CrPC, 1973, S. 401

Revisional power under S. 439(1) has to be exercised subject to S. 439(4). It is settled law that the revisional jurisdiction, when invoked by a private complainant against an order of acquittal, ought not to be exercised lightly and that it can be exercised only in exceptional cases where the interests of public justice require interference for the correction of a manifest illegality or the prevention of a gross miscarriage of justice. Pakalapati Narayana Gajapathi Raju v. Bonapalli Peda Appadu, (1975) 4 SCC 477: 1975 SCC (Cri) 543: AIR 1975 SC 1854: 1975 Cri LJ 1646.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1975]

[9066] — Ss. 439, 435 and 423 — Scope of revisional power of High Court restated — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 401 and 397. State of Orissa v. Nakula Sahu, (1979) 1 SCC 328: 1979 SCC (Cri) 283: AIR 1979 SC 663: 1979 Cri LJ 594: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 456: (1979) 47 CLT 624.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-1978]

[9067] — Ss. 439, 561-A, 526 & 267 — Interlocutory orders or pending proceedings — High Court's inherent powers — Quashing of charges before conclusion of trial — When justified — High Court ordering discharge of some accused and retrial of others and withdrawing the case before itself for trial without Jury — Prejudice to accused — Validity of High Court's order

In a trial 28 persons were accused of conspiracy to commit criminal breach of trust under S. 409, IPC and falsification of accounts of a bank under S. 477-A, IPC. The trial went on for two years in course of which over 6, 000 exhibits were filed and 203 witnesses examined. As many as 67 charges were framed against them by the Magistrate. The accused, then, applied to the High Court to quash them. The High Court found that it was impracticable to try all the charges, which were vague and unintelligible, at a single trial and quashed the charges but directed retrial of some of the accused on the charge of conspiracy between October 1946 and April 1947 to falsify bank accounts and to bring into existence a false balance-sheet. It also decided to withdraw the case under S. 526(1)(e), CrPC, to itself and added a direction under S. 526(2) that the case be tried by warrant procedure but without Jury. It also made a strong recommendation to the Government for the appointment of a Director of Prosecutions on a fixed salary not much below that of a High Court Judge for handling this and other complicated cases. Appeal against High Court's order was filed before the Supreme Court by special leave whereon the Supreme Court

Held :

(1) That in the peculiar circumstances of the case the High Court was justified in quashing in the exercise of its inherent powers even before the conclusion of the trial. But there was no justification in its judgment for ordering a 'de novo' trial in the situation that had arisen for all these persons had stood a protracted trial for two and a half years.

(2) That the High Court in making a strong recommendation to Government to appoint a Director of Prosecutions for the case on a salary of Rs 4000 and also transferring the case to its own records, it ignored altogether the prejudice that such a procedure was sure to cause to the accused persons. The procedure adopted by the High Court had a tendency to divert the due and orderly administration of law into a new course and was likely to serve as an unwholesome precedent.

(3) That the grounds given by the High Court for absolving these accused during the pendency of a prosecution in the exercise of the powers under S. 561-A, CrPC, were absolutely untenable.

(4) That there being no necessity to transfer the case to the High Court and to deny the accused persons the right of trial by Jury under S. 267, CrPC, the High Court overstepped the limits of its jurisdiction inasmuch as it exercised it in an arbitrary manner without keeping in mind the prejudice it would cause to the accused.

(5) That in the circumstances further trial of the accused would not in any way advance the course of justice. Therefore the order of the High Court directing a 'de novo' trial of the accused before itself was set aside and the order quashing the charges was upheld. K.V. Krishnamurthy Iyer v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 406: 1954 Cri LJ 1024.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1952]

[9068] — Ss. 439 and 423(1-A) — State not filing an appeal for enhancement — Revision by private party

Per majority

Under S. 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the High Court has got ample powers to issue notice to show cause why his sentence should not be enhanced on the basis of a revision petition filed by a private party and the power of the High Court under this section is one which the High Court can impose suo motu and all that a person filing a revision petition under that section does is to draw the Court's attention to an illegal, improper or incorrect finding, sentence or order of a subordinate court. The fact that the Government did not do so does not affect the powers of the High Court under that section.

Per Dua, J.

The High Court is ordinarily disinclined to interfere with the orders of the subordinate criminal courts in which the State is the prosecutor at the instance of private parties except where for some exceptional reason it considers proper to do so in the larger interests of justice. Pratap v. State of U.P., (1973) 3 SCC 690: 1973 SCC (Cri) 496: AIR 1973 SC 786: 1973 Cri LJ 565.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami[1], C.A. Vaidialingam[1] and I.D. Dua[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1972]

[9069] — Ss. 439 and 441 — Orders of the Presidency Magistrate — Power of the High Court to revise — High Court has the power to revise any order of a Presidency Magistrate in a proper case

Section 441 specifically provides for the record "of any proceeding of any Presidency Magistrate" being called for by the High Court under S. 435. In such a case, such a Magistrate is empowered to submit, along with the record, a statement setting forth the grounds of his decision or order, and the High Court shall then "consider such statement before overruling or setting aside the said decision or order". Section 441 is so widely worded as to include the decision or order of a Presidency Magistrate in any proceeding, which the High Court may set aside in a proper case. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244, 251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

[9070] — Ss. 439 and 561-A — Simultaneous civil and criminal proceedings — Which should be stayed — Consideration in giving precedence as between

No hard and fast rule can be laid down but the possibility of conflicting decisions in the civil and criminal Courts is not a relevant consideration. The law envisages such an eventuality when it expressly refrains from making the decision of one Court binding on the other, or even relevant, except for certain limited purposes, such as, sentence or damages. The only relevant consideration here is the likelihood of embarrassment. Another factor is that a civil suit often drags on for years and it is undesirable that a criminal prosecution should wait till everybody concerned has forgotten all about the crime. The public interests demand that criminal justice should be swift and sure; that the guilty should be punished while the events are still fresh in the public mind and that the innocent should be absolved as early as is consistent with a fair and impartial trial. Another reason is that it is undesirable to let things slide till memories have grown too dim to trust. Therefore as between the civil and the criminal proceedings the criminal matters should be given precedence.

This, however, is not a hard and fast rule. Special considerations obtaining in any particular case might make some other course more expedient and just. For example, the civil case or the other criminal proceeding may be so near its end as to make it inexpedient to stay it in order to give precedence to a prosecution ordered under S. 476.

That the simultaneous prosecution of the present criminal proceedings and the civil suits will embarrass the accused and therefore the civil suits should be stayed till the criminal proceedings have finished. M.S. Sheriff v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 397: 1954 SCR 1144: 1954 Cri LJ 1019.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

Affirmed in K.G. Premshanker v. Inspector of Police, (2002) 8 SCC 87

[9071] — S. 439(1) — High Court's power to enhance the sentence — Assistant Sessions Judge having power to impose a maximum sentence of 7 years R. I. imposing a sentence of 5 years R. I — High Court has power to enhance the sentence to 10 years R. I — There is no limitation that the High Court cannot impose a sentence exceeding the maximum that can be imposed by the trial Court. Sarjug Rai v. State of Bihar, AIR 1958 SC 127: 1958 SCR 768: 1958 Cri LJ 268, 269.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1957]

[9072] — Ss. 439(1) and (4) — Finding of acquittal cannot be altered in revision — Revisional power of High Court — High Court cannot change the findings of facts arrived at by the trial Court — Effect of

Though sub-section (1) of S. 439 authorises the High Court to exercise, in its discretion, any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by S. 423, sub-section (4) specifically excludes the power to "convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction". This does not mean that in dealing with a revision petition by a private party against an order of acquittal, the High Court could in the absence of any error on a point of law, re-appraise the evidence and reverse the findings of facts on which the acquittal was based, provided only it stopped short of finding the accused guilty and passing sentence on him. By merely characterising the judgment of the trial Court as "perverse" and "lacking in perspective", the High Court cannot reverse pure findings of fact based on the trial Court's appreciation of the evidence in the case. Logendranath Jha v. Polai Lal Biswas, AIR 1951 SC 316: 1951 SCR 676: (1951) 52 Cri LJ 1248.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Harilal J. Kania, C.J. and Patanjali Sastri, S.R. Das and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-5-1951]

Followed in Johar v. Mangal Prasad, (2008) 3 SCC 423

[9073] — S. 439(2) — Notice for enhancement of sentence — Notice for enhancement of sentence cannot be issued after the appeal or the application for criminal revision is disposed of by the High Court and judgment pronounced (per Bhagwati, J). U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[9074] — S. 439(2) — Revision — Alteration of sentence without giving to accused opportunity to show cause — Validity of

Where the High Court in revision substituted the sentence of whipping into one of imprisonment without giving the accused an opportunity to show cause against such substitution, held, that the High Court should not have done so without giving the said opportunity. Jangal Prasad v. State, AIR 1953 SC 467: 1954 Cri LJ 67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-12-1951]

[9075] — Ss. 439(2) and (6) — Enhancement of sentence — Notice — Absence of — No particular formality — Magistrate convicting an accused under Ss. 4(a) and 5 of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act, 1887, but awarding the sentence under S. 4(a) only — In revision High Court setting aside conviction under S. 4(a) and maintaining conviction under S. 5 and awarding sentence — The order is not bad for want of notice under S. 439(2). Jayaram Vithoba v. State of Bombay, AIR 1956 SC 146: (1955) 2 SCR 1049: 1956 Cri LJ 318, 20, 21: 1956 ALJ 153: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 92.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-1955]

[9076] — Ss. 439(2) and (6) — Notice for enhancement of sentence — Petition for appeal or application of criminal revision admitted, notice issued and conviction maintained — Notice under S. 439(2) cannot be issued

Per Bhagwati, J.

In cases where the petition of appeal or the application for criminal revision is admitted by the High Court and a notice is issued to the opposite party and the High Court maintains the conviction with or without reducing the sentence passed upon the accused the judgment of the High Court in the exercise of its appellate or revisional jurisdiction would replace the judgment of the lower Court and there would be no occasion at all for the exercise by the High Court of its revisional power under S. 439(1) which can only be exercised qua the judgment of the lower Court.

There would therefore be no question of giving the accused an opportunity of being heard either personally or through a pleader in his defence under S. 439(2) and the provision of S. 439(6) would certainly not come into operation at all. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[9077] — Ss. 439(2) and 6 — Notice of enhancement of sentence — Trial Court awarding sentence of fine only — Sessions Court making reference to High Court for passing appropriate sentence — High Court issuing show-cause notice against enhancement of sentence and imposing sentence of imprisonment — Held, view that notice was only to show cause why the sentence should not be regularised by enhancement of fine and not to a term of imprisonment not borne out by the record — CrPC, 1973, S. 401. State of Orissa v. Ram Chander Agarwala, (1979) 2 SCC 305: 1979 SCC (Cri) 462: AIR 1979 SC 87: 1979 Cri LJ 33.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1978]

— S. 439(4) See also Ss. 439(1) and (4)

[9078] — S. 439(4) — Consideration of evidence

High Court should not consider the evidence in detail if it really goes to order a retrial. Such a detailed consideration of evidence and an expression of opinion about the guilt of the accused loads the dice against the accused when the case goes back for retrial. Chaganti Kotaiah v. Gogineni Venkateshwara Rao, (1973) 2 SCC 249: 1973 SCC (Cri) 801: AIR 1973 SC 1274: 1973 Cri LJ 978.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-4-1973]

[9079] — S. 439(4) — High Court's power of revision

Sub-section (4) of S. 439, CrPC, forbids a High Court from converting a finding of acquittal into one of conviction by an indirect method of ordering retrial when the High Court itself cannot directly convert a finding of acquittal into a finding of conviction. Chaganti Kotaiah v. Gogineni Venkateshwara Rao, (1973) 2 SCC 249: 1973 SCC (Cri) 801: AIR 1973 SC 1274: 1973 Cri LJ 978.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-4-1973]

See also (1973) 2 SCC 583: 1973 SCC (Cri) 903

[9080] — S. 439(4) — High Court's power of revision — Whether High Court should accept a dying declaration rejected by trial Court

Whether the dying declaration of the deceased can be taken into account is a matter which the trial Court is entitled to decide one way or the other. If its view is wrong, the High Court can go into that aspect and differ from the opinion of the Sessions Court if the State had filed an appeal against acquittal. Chaganti Kotaiah v. Gogineni Venkateshwara Rao, (1973) 2 SCC 249: 1973 SCC (Cri) 801: AIR 1973 SC 1274: 1973 Cri LJ 978.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-4-1973]

[9081] — Ss. 439(4), 417(3) and 423(1)(a) — Reversal of acquittal and order for retrial by High Court acting under its revisional jurisdiction — Held, that the High Court misdirected itself in exercising its revisional power. Satyendra Nath Dutta v. Ram Narain, (1975) 3 SCC 398: 1975 SCC (Cri) 24: AIR 1975 SC 580: 1975 Cri LJ 577.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-11-1974]

— S. 439(5) See Ss. 439(6) and (5)
— S. 439(6) See Ss. 369 and 439(6)
See also Ss. 430 and 439(6)
See also Ss. 439(2) and (6)

[9082] — S. 439(6) — Application of S. 439(6) is not barred by the theory of the inherent capacity of one judge of the High Court to reconsider the decision of another judge of the High Court

The theory of inherent capacity of one Judge of the High Court to reconsider the decision of another Judge must give way to the statutory capacity conferred by S. 439(6). If on a true construction a statute states, expressly or by necessary intendment, that one Judge or one Bench shall have jurisdiction and power to decide something, the theory of inherent incapacity of such Judge or Bench cannot be invoked to prevent the exercise of such jurisdiction and power merely on the ground that the decision which may be arrived at in exercise of this new jurisdiction or power may run counter to the previous decision arrived at by another Judge or Bench in exercise of another jurisdiction. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[9083] — S. 439(6) — Right of a convicted person to show cause against his conviction on a notice for enhancement of sentence — Scope and application — The right is unfettered

Per Das, J.

Sub-section (6) of S. 439, CPC, confers a very valuable right on the subject which is designed to be a safeguard against the State or other interested person making frivolous revision application for enhancement of sentence. The State or person interested must, if they ask for an enhancement of sentences, be prepared to face the risk of the accused being altogether acquitted. It is the price or "quid pro quo" which the State or other interested person must be prepared to pay for the right or privilege of making an application for enhancement of sentence. The language used in sub-section (6) does not, in terms, place any fetter on the right conferred by it on the accused. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[9084] — S. 439(6) — Right of a convicted person to show cause against his conviction on a notice of enhancement of sentence — Appeal against conviction having been summarily dismissed — Accused subsequently called upon to show cause why sentence be not enhanced — S. 439(6) applies and the accused has a right to show cause against his conviction as well

Per Das, J.

The summary dismissal of the appeal filed by the accused in the High Court was a judgment of conviction by the High Court and was final so far as the appellant was concerned and he could not initiate any further revision application either against his conviction or per reduction of sentence after that dismissal but that it was not final so far as the State was concerned and the State was entitled to apply in revision for enhancement of sentence. As soon as the State applied for enhancement and a notice was issued on the appellant he became entitled under S. 439(6) to again challenge his conviction. This sub-section gives a new and valuable weapon of defence to an accused person who is placed in fresh jeopardy by reason of an enhancement application having been filed against him and a notice to show cause having been issued to him.

There is nothing in Ss. 369 and 430, CrPC, to cut down that right. The previous dismissal of his appeal had no bearing on the new situation created by the enhancement application which the Legislature in enacting S. 439(6) may well and properly have thought to be sufficiently serious to deserve and require a thorough re-examination by the High Court of the conviction itself in this new context.

Per Bhagwati, J.

In the case of a summary dismissal or a dismissal in limine of petitions of appeal or applications for criminal revision even if the convicted person or his pleader has been heard by the High Court with a view to determine if there is a prima facie case for its interference, the convicted person to whom an opportunity has been given under S. 439(2) of showing cause why his sentence should not be enhanced would in showing cause be entitled to show cause against his conviction. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[9085] — Ss. 439(6), 369 and 430 — Scope and applicability of S. 439(6) — Right under S. 439(6) accrues to the accused irrespective of what has happened in the past unless and until there is a judgment of the High Court against his conviction after hearing both the parties — Right not curtailed by Ss. 369 and 430

Per Bhagwati, J.

The right which is conferred on the accused of showing cause against his conviction under S. 439(6) of the CrPC is a right which accrues to him on a notice for enhancement of sentence being served upon him and he is entitled to exercise the same irrespective of what has happened in the past unless and until there is a judgment of the High Court already pronounced against his conviction after a full hearing in the presence of both the parties on notice being issued by the High Court in that behalf.

This right of the accused is not curtailed by anything contained in the earlier provisions of S. 439 nor by anything contained in either S. 369 or S. 430 of the CrPC. U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

[9086] — Ss. 439(6) and (5) — "Non obstante" clause (6) does not refer only to clause (5)

Sub-section (5) of S. 439 only says that where an appeal lies and no appeal is brought, no proceedings by way of revision shall be entertained at the instance of the party who could have appealed. When the accused person under sub-section (6) shows cause against his conviction he himself initiates no proceedings but only exercises right to show cause against his conviction which is given to him because somebody else has taken proceedings against him, for enhancement and a notice has been issued against him under sub-section (2). In such a situation the accused person is on the defensive and the act of showing cause against proceedings initiated against him cannot properly be said to be proceedings 'at his instance' which the High Court under sub-section (5) is enjoined not to entertain. Sub-section (6), strictly speaking, needs no exemption from sub-section (5). U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 633: (1955) 2 SCR 94: 1955 Cri LJ 1410.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das[1], N.H. Bhagwati[2] and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1955]

— S. 441 See Ss. 213(1) and 441

See also Ss. 439 and 441

[9087] — S. 441 — Scope

Section 441 is so widely-worded as to include the decision or order of a Presidency Magistrate in any proceedings, which the High Court may set aside in a proper case. Ramgopal Ganpatrai Ruia v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 97, 104: 1958 SCR 618: 1958 Cri LJ 244.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1957]

[9088] — S. 452(1) — Illegal importation of foreign currency into India — Conviction under S. 135 of Customs Act, 1962 — Currency seized by the customs authorities, however, neither produced before the Magistrate nor put in the custody or control of the Court — Held, in such circumstances, no order or direction by the Magistrate under S. 452(1), Criminal Procedure Code was called for and hence direction for confiscation set aside — Matter left to customs authorities to proceed according to law — Plea for restoration of seized currency to the appellant not acceded to — FERA, 1973, S. 13(1). Remo Paul Altoe v. Union of India, (1977) 4 SCC 437: 1977 SCC (Cri) 629: AIR 1977 SC 2255: 1977 Cri LJ 1933: (1978) 48 Comp Cas 522.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.C. Gupta and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-1977]

[9089] — S. 464 — Incapacity in making defence — Mental infirmity — Duty of Magistrate

The unsoundness of mind dealt with in S. 464 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is the one which an accused person alleged to be suffering from at the time of the inquiry before the Magistrate and not one at the time of the incident during which he is said to have committed the offence in question. The words "reason to believe" indicate that when an accused person is presented before a Magistrate for inquiry, who, it is alleged, is suffering from unsoundness of mind, the Magistrate has, on such materials, as are brought before him to inquire before he proceeds with the inquiry whether there are reasons to believe that the accused before him is suffering from any such infirmity. The next step is that if he has such reasons to believe, he is to institute an inquiry into the fact of unsoundness of mind and cause him to be examined by the civil surgeon or such other medical officer as the State Government directs. Therefore, when a question is raised as to the unsoundness of mind of an accused person, the Magistrate is bound to inquire before he proceeds with the inquiry before him whether the accused is or not incapacitated by the unsoundness of mind from making his defence.

The Magistrate failed to make such an inquiry which it was incumbent upon him to make at the very threshold, and that having not been done, the committal proceedings, as also his order committing the appellant to the Sessions Court for trial were both vitiated. Jai Shanker v. State of H.P., (1973) 3 SCC 83: 1973 SCC (Cri) 145: AIR 1972 SC 2267: 1972 Cri LJ 1526: (1973) 2 SCR 1: (1973) 10 ACC 109.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, Acting C.J. and I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1972]

[9090] — S. 465 — Accused appellant of unsound mind but not on the date of commencement of trial — Duty of Court — Application of provisions of S. 465, CrPC — How far

To adopt the procedure indicated in S. 465, CrPC, it is necessary that the person committed for trial must appear to the court to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence. There must be something in the demeanour of the accused who is brought up for the trial which would raise a doubt in the mind of the court that he is of unsound mind consequently incapable of making his defence and a doubt may arise in the mind of the court because of the manner in which an accused behaves or answers questions.

In the present case, the record shows that on the date when trial commenced, the accused was able to understand the charge read out to him and he pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried. It is not the duty of the court or of the jury to proceed to try the fact of unsoundness of mind of an accused whenever one is brought for trial unless it appears that the accused is of unsound mind. Accordingly, there was no obligation on the part of the court to investigate whether the accused was of unsound mind or not and as such the trial proceedings cannot be considered to be illegal or void. Vivian Rodrick v. State of W.B., (1969) 3 SCC 176: 1970 SCC (Cri) 33.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1969]

[9091] — S. 465 — Section, if, applicable to appeals

It is not necessary to express any opinion on the applicability or otherwise of S. 465, CrPC, to appeals but it would have been proper in view of the medical reports if the Division Bench which heard the appeal had postponed the hearing of appeal till such time as the appellant was declared fit to contest his appeal. The learned Judge's proposition that there is no bar to the hearing and disposing of an appeal, even if the accused appellant is of unsound mind or even insane, cannot be accepted. The High Court under S. 374, CrPC, has to hear on law as well as on facts. The appellant should be enabled to instruct his counsel on fact.

Held :

The hearing of the appeal in which sentence of death is challenged, when admittedly the accused appellant was of unsound mind, must be considered to have caused serious prejudice to the accused resulting in failure of justice and in the circumstances of the case it was not proper for the Division Bench to have heard and disposed of the appeal. Vivian Rodrick v. State of W.B., (1969) 3 SCC 176: 1970 SCC (Cri) 33.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1969]

[9092] — Ss. 465, 364 and 365 — Statement under S. 364 showing the appellant to be of sane mind — Sessions Judge satisfied about soundness of mind — Whether not holding regular enquiry under S. 465, CrPC, does not vitiate the trial

Section 465, CrPC, requires that there should be an enquiry within the second limb of the section if it appears to the Sessions Judge that the accused was insane, but if it does not appear to him so it is not necessary that he should conduct a regular enquiry under the second limb of the section. It is true that the word "appears" in S. 465 imports a lesser degree of probability than "proof", but this does not mean that whenever a counsel raises a point before a Sessions Judge he has to straightaway hold an elaborate enquiry into the matter. If on examining the accused it does not appear to him that the accused is insane it is not necessary that he should go further and send for and examine medical witnesses and other relevant evidence. Of course if he has any serious doubt in the matter the Sessions Judge should hold a proper enquiry. I.V. Shivaswamy v. State of Mysore, (1971) 3 SCC 220: 1971 SCC (Cri) 434: AIR 1971 SC 1638: 1971 Cri LJ 1193.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-1971]

— S. 476 See also Ss. 195, 476 and 476-B
See also Ss. 195(1)(b), (c) and 476
See also Ss. 195(1)(c) and 476
See also Ss. 195(1)(c), 476, 476-A and 476-B
See also Ss. 195(3), 476, 476-A and 476-B
See also Ss. 476-B, 195 and 476
See also Ss. 479, 479-A and 476
See also Ss. 479-A and 476
See also Ss. 479-A and 476 to 479
See also Ss. 479-A, 476 and 479

[9093] — S. 476 — Scope

Section 476, CrPC, quite clearly postulates formation of judicial opinion that it is expedient to hold an inquiry into an offence referred to in cl. (b) or cl. (c) of S. 195(1) which appears to the court to have been committed either in or in relation to a proceeding in that court. Offences mentioned in cl. (b) would be covered by that clause even if they are alleged to have been committed in relation to a proceeding in a court, whereas those mentioned in cl. (c) should be alleged to have been committed by a party to a proceeding in a court in respect of a document produced or given in evidence in that proceeding. Section 476 empowers the Court even suo motu to take up the question of expediency of making a complaint. As a general rule, the courts consider it expedient in the interest of justice to start prosecutions as contemplated by S. 476 only if there is a reasonable foundation for the charge and there is a reasonable likelihood of conviction. The requirement of a finding as to the expediency is understandable in case of an offence alleged to have been committed either in or in relation to a proceeding in that court in case of offences specified in cl. (b) because of the close nexus between the offence and the proceeding. In case of offences specified in cl. (c) they are required to be committed by a party to a proceeding in that court with respect to a document produced or given in evidence in that court. Patel Laljibhai Somabhai v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 2 SCC 376: 1971 SCC (Cri) 548: AIR 1971 SC 1935: 1971 Cri LJ 1437.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1971]

[9094] — S. 476 — Scope — Complaint by Presiding Officer

It has no doubt been held that S. 476 must be taken to be exhaustive of all the powers of a court as such to lay a complaint, and that a complaint filed by it otherwise than under that section should not be entertained. But there is abundant authority that S. 476 does not preclude the officer presiding over a court from himself preferring a complaint, and that the jurisdiction of the Magistrate before whom the complaint is laid to try it like any other complaint, is not taken away by that section. Virindar Kumar Satyawadi v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 153, 158: (1955) 2 SCR 1013: 58 Punj LR 583: 1956 Cri LJ 326.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1955]

[9095] — S. 476 — Scope — Court not to express opinion regarding guilt of accused

While passing an order under S. 476, CrPC, the Court should not express any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused. M.S. Sheriff v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 397: 1954 SCR 1144: 1954 Cri LJ 1019.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

[9096] — S. 476 — Certifying question of fact — Complaint under S. 476, CrPC — High Court before certifying must be satisfied that some substantial question of law or principle is involved — High Court deciding whether Magistrate's conclusion that a complaint under S. 476, CrPC, 1898 was justified was correct or not — Is a question of fact and High Court not justified in certifying — Constitution of India — Art. 134(1)(c). Mohanlal Maganlal Thakkar v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1968 SC 733, 738-39: (1968) 2 SCR 685, 693-94: 1968 Cri LJ 876.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, C.J.[1] and R.S. Bachawat[2], J.M. Shelat[1], G.K. Mitter[2] and C.A. Vaidialingam[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 15-12-1967]

[9097] — S. 476 — After about 10 years of the alleged incident State succeeding in restoring its application which had been dismissed for default — Held, continuance of proceedings of such lapse of time not justified — State free to file suits to recover any amounts wrongly paid on the basis of the false statement — Penal Code, 1860, S. 193 read with S. 340, CrPC, 1973

It is not the function of the court hearing an application under S. 476 to cater to the acrimonious and vengeful attitudes taken up by the parties and to advance their interests elsewhere. K.N. Mishra v. Jiwaji University, 1980 Supp SCC 415: 1981 SCC (Cri) 356: AIR 1981 SC 174(5).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-9-1980]

[9098] — Ss. 476, 476-A and 476-B — Nature of proceedings under

Per Fazal Ali and Sen, JJ.

These three provisions provide a separate and self-contained procedure which starts with an inquiry and terminates with an order of filing a complaint or refusing to do so. Chapter XXV is, therefore, restricted only to offences mentioned in S. 195(1)(b) and (c) of the Code. Thus, in view of the independent nature of the procedure contained in these sections, it is manifest that any order under S. 476 either filing a complaint or refusing to file a complaint becomes a final order in any event as such an order completely terminates the proceedings and brings the matter to an end so far as the first court is concerned. The same power is given to a superior court under S. 476-A which also ends with the filing or refusal to file a complaint. Section 476-B provides for appeal as indicated above. It is true that separate proceedings are taken when a complaint is filed but these proceedings are fresh proceedings starting with the complaint and ending with the conviction or acquittal of the accused. In other words, once the court decides to file a complaint forming an opinion whether or not it is expedient in the interest of justice to do so, the procedure spends itself out. V.C. Shukla v. State through CBI, 1980 Supp SCC 92: 1980 SCC (Cri) 695: AIR 1980 SC 962: 1980 Cri LJ 690: 1980 MLJ (Cri) 664.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali[1], P.N. Shinghal[2], D.A. Desai[3] and A.P. Sen[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1979]

[9099] — Ss. 476, 476-B and 195(3) — Single Judge of the High Court dismissing an application under S. 476 — Appeal lies to the Appellate Bench of the High Court and not to the Supreme Court

A right of appeal against the order of the Single Judge of a High Court is given by provisions of S. 476-B. The form of appeal is also determined by the provisions of S. 476-B, read with S. 195(3) as a court to which the former Court is subordinate within the meaning of S. 195(3), which provides that for the purposes of the section a court shall be deemed to be subordinate to the Court to which appeals ordinarily lie from the appealable decrees or sentences of such former Court, etc. etc. An appeal against the order of a Single Judge ordinarily under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent Bench of the Allahabad High Court lie to High Court and therefore this appeal lies to the High Court.

It cannot be said that an appeal ordinarily lies to the Supreme Court from the judgment of a Single Judge of a High Court because such an appeal lies with a certificate granted under Art. 132 of the Constitution. Narain Das v. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 181: (1961) 1 SCR 676: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 317, 318.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, A.K. Sarkar and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1960]

[9100] — Ss. 476, 479(1) and (6) — Scope and applicability

Section 479-A applies when the Court, before or at the time the judgment is delivered, forms an opinion about the falsity of evidence. There being no material on the record for the Court for coming to the conclusion that a witness gave false evidence — S. 479-A(1) will not apply — Bar under sub-section (6) cannot be invoked — Proceedings under S. 476 are maintainable.

The scheme of S. 479-A is to enact a special procedure for the more expeditious and effective manner of dealing with certain cases of perjury and fabrication of false evidence by witnesses in the course of judicial proceedings. There is, however, a necessary condition for the application of S. 479-A, CrPC. The condition is that the Court before it delivers its judgment or at any rate at the time of delivering the judgment must form an opinion that a particular witness or witnesses is or are giving false evidence; if the Court could not form any opinion about the falsity of the evidence of the witness appearing before it, then certainly the Court cannot at the time of delivering its judgment, record any finding about the same.

Where at the time when the judgment is delivered the Magistrate had no material before him to form an opinion that the petitioner had given false evidence S. 479-A will not be applicable. In that case the bar contemplated by cl. (6) of that section cannot be invoked. Kuppa Goundan v. M.S.P. Rajesh, AIR 1966 SC 1863: 1966 Supp SCR 373: 1966 Cri LJ 1503, 1504-0.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Ramaswami and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1966]

[9101] — Ss. 476 and 435/439 — Complaint by High Court in revision proceedings — Proper course is to quash proceedings, if improper, and remit the case to trial Court — Original petition for prosecution for offences under Ss. 193 & 211, IPC, under S. 476, CrPC

Two courts below having in their judicial discretion declined to direct the prosecution of the appellant on revision the High Court was not at all justified in itself directing the filing of the complaint. At best, if it considered the orders of the two courts below tainted with a serious legal infirmity or manifest error resulting in grave miscarriage of justice, it could have, after quashing those orders, sent the case back to the trial Court for reconsideration of the matter in accordance with law. Santokh Singh v. Izhar Hussain, (1973) 2 SCC 406: 1973 SCC (Cri) 828: AIR 1973 SC 2190: (1974) 1 SCR 78: 1973 Cri LJ 1176.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1973]

[9102] — Ss. 476 and 476-B — Scope of — Departure in the new Code in the matter of appeal — CrPC, 1973, S. 340(1)

Section 340, Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, corresponds to old S. 476, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898. Significant change has been made in respect of right of appeal under old S. 476-B. Now an order of the High Court made under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of S. 340 is specifically excluded for the purpose of appeal to the superior Court under S. 341(1), Criminal Procedure Code, (new). This is, therefore, a new restriction in the way of the appellant when he approaches the Supreme Court under Art. 136 of the Constitution. K. Karunakaran v. T.V. Eachara Warrier, (1978) 1 SCC 18: 1978 SCC (Cri) 32: AIR 1978 SC 290: 1978 Cri LJ 339: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 237.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and V.D. Tulzapurkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1977]

[9103] — Ss. 476 and 476-B — Enquiry and complaint — Whether "expedient in the interests of justice" — No interference by Appellate Court

While considering the matter on merits the only relevant consideration is whether "it is expedient in the interests of justice" that an enquiry should be made and a complaint filed. That involves a careful balancing of many factors. Where the High Court has scrutinised the evidence minutely and has disclosed ample material on which a judicial mind could reasonably reach the conclusion that there is matter here which requires investigation in a criminal Court and that it is expedient in the interests of justice to have it enquired into, there can be no reason for interfering with the High Court's discretion on that score. M.S. Sheriff v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 397: 1954 SCR 1144: 1954 Cri LJ 1019.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

[9104] — Ss. 476 and 479-A — Nature of proceedings before Income Tax Officer — Whether before a Court — Cognizance of offence of submitting forged documents and making false statements if can be taken — IT Act, 1922, S. 26-A — IT Act, 1961, S. 184 — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 193 and 196

M/s Balwant Singh Santok Singh were registered as a firm under S. 26-A of Income Tax Act, 1922, for the assessment year 1960-61. The Income Tax Officer refused to renew registration for 1961-62, because no application for renewal of registration was received. The assessee produced a certificate of posting dated 21-6-1961, in proof of having posted the application for renewal of registration. The Income Tax Officer discovered that the form of certificate of posting purporting to have been issued on 21-6-1961 was actually printed in 1962. A complaint was, therefore, lodged with the Magistrate for prosecuting the partners for fabricating and giving false evidence under Ss. 193 and 196-A, IPC. It was argued that the Income Tax Officer is a "court" and it was incumbent on him to follow the procedure laid down in Ss. 476 and 479-A CrPC.

Held :

Whereas S. 195 uses the expression "Court", Ss. 476 and 479-A use the expression "any civil, revenue or criminal court". It is, therefore, manifest that the procedure provided in these two sections applies to a court, which is either a civil or a revenue or a criminal court and not to a court which does not fall in any one of these categories of courts. The proceedings under S. 26-A before Income Tax Officer must be treated as proceedings in a court for the purpose of S. 195(1)(b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The Income Tax Officer, however, cannot be treated as a revenue court. Though, therefore, proceedings before the Income Tax Officer are judicial proceedings in a court and S. 195(1)(b) applies, neither S. 476 nor S. 479-A of the Code would be applicable. It was, therefore, not incumbent upon the Income Tax Officer to follow the procedure laid down in either of those two sections before he can validly file a complaint for offences under Ss. 193 and 196 of Penal Code, where forged documents are produced and false statement, are made on oath in proceedings under S. 26-A. Balwant Singh v. L.C. Bharupal, (1968) 70 ITR 89, 93, 94.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-11-1967]

[9105] — Ss. 476 and 479-A — Scope and applicability — S. 479-A applies to prosecution under S. 193, IPC and cognate sections of Ch. XI — Ss. 476 to 479 continue to apply to other offences

The special procedure of S. 479-A is prescribed only for the prosecution of a witness for the act of giving false evidence in any stage of judicial proceedings or for fabrication of false evidence for the purpose of being used in any stage of a judicial proceeding. There is nothing in the section which precludes the application of any other procedure prescribed by the Code in respect of other offences. In applying the principle that a special provision prevails over a general provision, the scope of the special provision must be strictly construed in order to find out how much of the field covered by the general provision is also covered by the special provision. Examining the special procedure prescribed by S. 479-A in that light, in it is important to notice that the act of intentionally giving false evidence in any stage of a judicial proceeding and the act of fabricating false evidence for the purpose of being used in any stage of a judicial proceeding mentioned in S. 479 of the CrPC are the acts which are made punishable under S. 193 of the IPC and cognate sections in Chapter XI. It will be unreasonable to read into S. 479-A the meaning that where a person who appears to have committed an offence under S. 193 of the IPC by giving false evidence or fabricating false evidence, appears to have committed some other offence also, say, forgery, for the very purpose of fabricating false evidence, complaint for such other offence also can be made under S. 479-A of the CrPC. Section 479-A has no application to prosecution for offences other than an offence under S. 193 and cognate sections in Chapter XI and that as regards other offences Ss. 476, 477 and 479 continue to apply even after the enactment of S. 479-A. Raghubir Prosad Dudhewalla v. Chamanlal Mehra, (1964) 3 SCR 980: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 489.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-5-1963]

[9106] — Ss. 476 and 559 — Complaint under S. 476, CrPC, for offences under S. 195, IPC — Can be filed by successor in office of a Magistrates deciding the case giving rise to the complaint

A successor in office of a Magistrate can file a complaint under S. 476, CrPC, in respect of an offence under S. 195, IPC, committed before his predecessor, in view of the provisions of S. 559, CrPC. Ajaib Singh v. Joginder Singh, AIR 1968 SC 1422: (1969) 1 SCR 145: 1969 Cri LJ 4, 5, 6.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1968]

Subramanian Chettiar,. In re, AIR 1957 Mad 442: 1957 Cri LJ 765; Ram Ajodhya Singh v. Emperor, AIR 1927 Pat 327; Behram v. Emperor, AIR 1926 Lah 305: 27 Cri LJ 776, approved.

AIR 1963 SC 816: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 803, relied on

[9107] — S. 476(1) — Transfer application against the appellant when acting as a Magistrate — Also an application of the accused for filing a complaint against him taken together by a superior Court — Transfer application allowed, and suitable criminal and administrative proceedings recommended to the District Magistrate — The proceedings do not amount to an enquiry under S. 476(1)

A perusal of the order passed by the Additional District Magistrate, however, shows that all the findings recorded against the appellant were only reasons for transferring the case from the appellant's file. He himself has not taken any action as contemplated under S. 476 of the Code. He was merely dealing with the transfer application and incidentally also with the applications for initiating criminal proceedings. From the nature of the enquiry conducted by the Additional District Magistrate on the complaint filed by the counsel for the accused it follows that S. 476 of the Code has no application and the proceedings did not amount to an enquiry under S. 476(1). Govind Mehta v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 329: 1971 SCC (Cri) 608: AIR 1971 SC 1708: 1971 Cri LJ 1266.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1971]

[9108] — S. 476(2) — Examination of complaint — Magistrate need not examine complaint or follow procedure under Ss. 200 & 202. Ranjit Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1959 SC 843: 1959 Supp (2) SCR 727: 1959 Cri LJ 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-4-1959]

— S. 476-A See Ss. 195(1)(c), 476, 476-A and 476-B

See also Ss. 195(3), 476, 476-A and 476-B

See also Ss. 476, 476-A and 476-B

— S. 476-B See Ss. 195, 476 and 476-B

See also Ss. 195(1)(c), 476, 476-A and 476-B

See also Ss. 195(3), 476, 476-A and 476-B

See also Ss. 195(3) and 476-B

See also Ss. 476, 476-A and 476-B

See also Ss. 476 and 476-B

See also Ss. 476, 476-B and 195(3)

[9109] — Ss. 476-B and 195(3) — High Court by a notification authorising Senior Subordinate Judge to hear appeals against orders and decrees passed by Subordinate Judge — Senior Subordinate Judge does not become appellate tribunal within the meaning of S. 195(3), CrPC, 1898 — District Court must be regarded as appellate authority for purposes of S. 476-B CrPC, 1898 — Punjab Courts Act, 1918 (6 of 1918), S. 39. Kuldip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 391: 1956 SCR 125: 58 Punj LR 595: 1956 Cri LJ 781.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1956]

[9110] — Ss. 476-B, 195 and 476 — Appeal under S. 476-B — Lies if the offence under S. 193, IPC, is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in "Court" — Does not lie if the offence under S. 193, IPC, is committed before a Returning Officer in proceedings under S. 36, Representation of the People Act

Section 476-B provides for an appeal from an order passed under S. 476 to the appropriate court. The result then is that if the complaint relates to offences mentioned in S. 195(1)(b) and 195(1)(c), an appeal would be competent, but not if it relates to offences mentioned in S. 195(1)(a). Now, the order of the Magistrate dated 17-9-1952 directs that the appellant should be prosecuted for offences under Ss. 181, 182 and 193. There is no dispute that the order in so far as it relates to offences under Ss. 181 and 182 is not appealable, as they fall directly under S. 195(1)(a).

Section 193 makes it an offence to give false evidence whether it be in a judicial proceeding or not, and it likewise makes it an offence to fabricate false evidence for use in a judicial proceeding or elsewhere. If the offence is not committed in a judicial proceeding then it will fall outside S. 195(1)(b), which applies only when it is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in Court, and there is in consequence no bar to a complaint being made in respect thereof unaffected by the restrictions contained in S. 195(1)(b).

But if the offence under S. 193 is committed in or in relation to a proceeding in court, then it will fall under S. 195(1)(b), and the order directing prosecution under S. 476 will be appealable under S. 476-B.

The Returning Officer deciding on the validity of a nomination paper is not a court for the purpose of S. 195(1)(b) of the CrPC, and the result is that even as regards the charge under S. 193, the order of the Magistrate was not appealable, as the offence was not committed in or in relation to any proceeding in a court. Virindar Kumar Satyawadi v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 153: (1955) 2 SCR 1013: 58 Punj LR 583: 1956 Cri LJ 326, 330.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, C.J. and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1955]

— Ss. 477 to 479 See Ss. 479-A and 476 to 479

[9111] — Ss. 479, 479-A and 476 — Scope — Witnesses filing false affidavits — Offence of filing of false affidavit by a witness is under Ss. 191 and 192, IPC and not under S. 199, IPC — Prosecution possible according to the procedure detailed in S. 479-A — Proceedings under S. 476 barred under cl.(6) of the section — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 191, 192 & 199

Section 199 deals with a declaration and does not state that the declaration must be on oath. The only condition necessary is that the declaration must be capable of being used as evidence and which any court of justice or any public servant or other person, is bound or authorised by law to receive as evidence. Section 191 deals with evidence on oath and S. 192 with fabricating false evidence. When B and K made declarations in their affidavits which were tendered in the High Court to be taken into consideration, they intended the statements to appear in evidence in a judicial proceeding, and so appearing, to cause the Court to entertain an erroneous opinion regarding the compromise. In this way their offence came within the words of Ss. 191, 192 rather than S. 199 of the IPC. They were thus prima facie guilty of an offence of giving false evidence or of fabricating false evidence for the purpose of being used in a judicial proceeding. Section 479-A lays down a special procedure which applies to persons who appear as witnesses before civil, revenue or criminal Courts and do one of two things: (i) intentionally give false evidence in any stage of the judicial proceeding, or (ii) intentionally fabricate false evidence for the purpose of being used in any stage of the judicial proceeding. The first refers to an offence under S. 191/293 and the second to that under S. 192/193 of the IPC. In respect of such offences when committed by a witness, action under S. 479-A alone can be taken. The appellants were witnesses in the inquiry in the High Court and they had fabricated false evidence. If any prosecution was to be started against them the High Court ought to have followed the procedure under S. 479-A of the CrPC. Not having done so, the action under S. 476 of the CrPC was not open because of sub-section (6) of S. 479-A. Baban Singh v. Jagdish Singh, AIR 1967 SC 68: (1966) 3 SCR 552: 1967 Cri LJ 6.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, M. Hidayatullah and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-1966]

Followed in AIR 1968 SC 1422: 1969 Cri LJ 4

— S. 479-A See Ss. 476 and 479-A

See also Ss. 479, 479-A and 476

[9112] — S. 479-A — Applicability — Recording of opinion of false evidence by trial Court necessary. Santokh Singh v. Izhar Hussain, (1973) 2 SCC 406: 1973 SCC (Cri) 828: AIR 1973 SC 2190: (1974) 1 SCR 78: 1973 Cri LJ 1176.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1973]

[9113] — S. 479-A — Requirement of giving opportunity to a witness before filing complaint against him not mandatory — Failure to give such opportunity — Does not vitiate trial. Narayanswami v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 2 SCC 182: 1971 SCC (Cri) 507: AIR 1971 SC 1789: 1971 Cri LJ 1301.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1971]

Followed in Mahila Vinod Kumari v. State of M.P., (2008) 8 SCC 34

[9114] — S. 479-A — Scope — Not intended for cases of flagrant offences

Where the offence consists of intentionally giving false evidence "in any stage of judicial proceeding" it is no doubt true that as under S. 476 it is the Court which disposes of such judicial proceeding which primarily has to act under S. 479-A. There does not appear to be any real distinction between S. 476 and S. 479-A as to the Court which can take action. Under S. 476 the action may proceed suo motu or on application while under S. 479-A, no application seems to be contemplated. But there is nothing in this provision which makes a distinction between flagrant offences and offences which are not flagrant or between serious offences and offences which are not serious. Shabir Hussain Bholu v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 816, 820: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 501: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 803.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1962]

[9115] — S. 479-A — Scope and applicability of — Mere falsity of statements made not enough — They should have been made "intentionally" — Official in the department swearing on the instructions of his superiors, held, cannot be said to have made the statements intentionally — CrPC, 1973, S. 344

That the facts stated are not true is not enough for sanctioning the prosecution. An essential prerequisite of S. 479-A is that the court must form the opinion that the witnesses had made the statement complained of "intentionally".

Again under S. 479-A, CrPC, not only is it necessary that the court must form the opinion that the witness had intentionally given false evidence, but it is further necessary that the court must come to the conclusion that for the eradication of the evils of perjury and in the interests of justice it is expedient that the witness should be prosecuted for the offence which appears to have been committed by him. Mohd. Ibrahim v. B. Rama Rao, (1976) 2 SCC 33: 1976 SCC (Cri) 233: AIR 1976 SC 1822: 1976 Cri LJ 1385.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-11-1975]

[9116] — S. 479-A — Scope and applicability to a case where trial held with the aid of Jury — Section applies to such a trial

Though it is for the jury to give its verdict regarding the guilt or the innocence of the accused it is open to the Judge to accept or reject the verdict and therefore, it is necessary for him to record a short judgment either accepting or rejecting the verdict. Where he rejects the verdict the law requires him to refer the case to the High Court under S. 307, CrPC. In either case he gets an opportunity of recording the kind of finding which is required by S. 479-A(1). Shabir Hussain Bholu v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 816: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 501: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 803.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1962]

[9117] — S. 479-A — Application of special procedure prescribed under S. 479-A, CrPC, 1898 to prosecution under S. 195, IPC and cognate sections of Chap. XI, IPC — Penal Code, 1860, S. 193

The act of intentionally giving false evidence in any stage of a judicial proceeding and the act of fabricating false evidence for the purpose of being used in any stage of a judicial proceeding mentioned in S. 479-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure are the acts which are made punishable under S. 193 of the Indian Penal Code and cognate sections in Chap. XI. It will be unreasonable to read into S. 479-A the meaning that where a person who appears to have committed an offence under S. 193 of the Indian Penal Code — by giving false evidence or fabricating false evidence — appears to have committed some other offence also, say, forgery, for the very purpose of fabricating false evidence, complaint for such other offence also can be made under S. 479-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Section 479-A has no application to prosecution for offences other than an offence under S. 193 and cognate sections in Chap. XI and that as regards other offences Ss. 476, 477, 478 and 479 continue to apply even after the enactment of S. 479-A. Raghubir Prosad Dudhewalla v. Chamanlal Mehra, (1964) 3 SCR 980: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 489, 490.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-5-1963]

See also AIR 1964 SC 725: 1964 (1) Cri LJ 555 and AIR 1964 SC 816: 1963 (1) Cri LJ 803

[9118] — Ss. 479-A, 476 and 479 — Prosecution for false evidence — Cases covered by S. 479-A — Ss. 476 & 479 are wholly inapplicable

Bearing in mind the non-obstante clause at the commencement of S. 479-A and the provisions of sub-section (6) it would follow that only the provisions of sub-section (1) of S. 479-A must be resorted to by the Court for the purpose of making a complaint against a person for intentionally giving false evidence or for intentionally fabricating false evidence at any stage of the proceeding before it. The provisions of Ss. 476 to 479 are totally excluded where an offence is of the kind specified in S. 479-A(1).

So having failed to act under S. 479-A the court cannot resort to S. 476. Shabir Hussain Bholu v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 816: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 501: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 803.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1962]

[9119] — Ss. 479-A and 476 — Prosecution for false evidence — Complaint under S. 479-A stating that the witness made contradictory statements before the committing Magistrate and Sessions Court — Judge not able to form an opinion which of the two statements was false — Committal proceedings are part of the judicial proceedings culminating in the decision of Sessions Court — Complaint under S. 479-A is valid

No doubt, the evidence recorded before the committing Magistrate can be transferred in certain circumstances to the record of the trial and taken into consideration in the same way in which evidence tendered at the trial can be taken into consideration. In view of these features which characterise the commitment proceedings Supreme Court is of opinion that those proceedings can be regarded as part of the same judicial proceeding which culminated in the decision of the Court of Session. Upon that view it would follow that even when the Sessions Judge is unable to say which of the two contradictory statements is false or even where he is of opinion that the statement before the committing Magistrate is false it is for him and him alone to act under S. 479-A(1). Shabir Hussain Bholu v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 816: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 501: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 803.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1962]

[9120] — Ss. 479-A and 476 to 479 — Perjury — Object and effect of S. 479-A — Not applicable to one not a witness — Operates as bar to proceedings under S. 476 — Prosecution for perjury — Prima facie deliberate falsehood essential — Long lapse of time — Effect on proceedings. Chajoo Ram v. Radhey Shyam, (1971) 1 SCC 774: 1971 SCC (Cri) 331: AIR 1971 SC 1367: 1971 Cri LJ 1096.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-3-1971]

— S. 479-A(1) See Ss. 476, 479-A(1) and (6)

[9121] — S. 479-A(1) — Complaint by Court against witness giving false evidence — "Opportunity of being heard" occurring in the sub-section — Question whether opportunity given or not — Opportunity given before judgment in the case was delivered — Contended that it did not amount to compliance of S. 479-A about giving of an opportunity of being heard — Supreme Court not deciding whether or not there was sufficient compliance — Held, point is not only arguable but also a substantial and important one. Narayan Swami v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 609: (1968) 2 SCR 88: 1968 Cri LJ 657, 659: (1968) 68 ITR 221, 225.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1967]

[9122] — S. 479-A(1) — Offence falling under S. 471 IPC — Not covered by S. 479-A(1) CrPC 1898 — S. 479-A(1) CrPC may be resorted to only in case which falls within first para of S. 193 IPC — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 471, 463 and 193

Section 479-A(1) has a limited operation: it applies only to the prosecution of a witness appearing before the Court, who has intentionally given false evidence in any stage of the judicial proceeding or has intentionally fabricated false evidence for the purpose of being used in any stage of the judicial proceeding. The sub-section may be resorted to only in a case which falls within the first paragraph of S. 193 of the Indian Penal Code and allied Ss. 194 and 195 — when it is committed by a witness appearing before the Court. An offence punishable under S. 471 Indian Penal Code being one of fraudulently or dishonestly using as genuine any document which the accused knows or has reason to believe to be a forged document, does not fall within the category contemplated by S. 479(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure and therefore the authority of the Court to act under S. 476 of the Code is not impaired by sub-section (6) of S. 479-A.

It is true that some of the ingredients of the act of fabricating false evidence which is penalised under S. 193 Indian Penal Code and of making a false document and thereby committing forgery within the meaning of Ss. 463 and 464 Indian Penal Code are common. A person by making a false entry in any book or record or by making any document containing a false statement may, if the prescribed conditions of S. 463 are fulfilled, commit an offence of forgery. But the important ingredient which constitutes fabrication of false evidence within the meaning of S. 192 Indian Penal Code beside causing a circumstance to exist or making a false document — to use a compendious expression — is the intention that the circumstance so caused to exist or the false document made may appear in evidence in a judicial proceeding, or before a public servant or before an arbitrator, and lead to the forming of an erroneous opinion touching any point material to the result of the proceeding. The offences of forgery and of fabricating false evidence for the purpose of using it in a judicial proceeding are therefore distinct, and within the description of fabricating false evidence for the purpose specified in S. 479-A, Criminal Procedure Code, the offence of forgery is not included. In any event the offence penalised under S. 471, Indian Penal Code can never be covered by sub-section (1) of S. 479-A. Therefore for taking proceeding against a person who is found to have used a false document dishonestly or fraudulently in any judicial proceeding resort may only be had to S. 476, CrPC. Babu Lal v. State of U.P., AIR 1964 SC 725: (1964) 4 SCR 957: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 555, 557.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K. Subba Rao, K.N. Wanchoo, J.C. Shah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-9-1963]

See also 1964 (1) Cri LJ 489: (1964) 3 SCR 980 and AIR 1963 SC 816: 1963 (1) Cri LJ 803

[9123] — S. 479-A(1) — Only provision for making complaint for intentionally giving false evidence

Bearing in mind the non-obstante clause at the commencement of S. 479-A and the provisions of sub-section (6) it would follow that only the provisions of sub-section (1) of S. 479-A must be resorted to by the Court for the purpose of making a complaint against a person for intentionally giving false evidence or for intentionally fabricating false evidence at any stage of the proceeding before it. Shabir Hussain Bholu v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 816, 819: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 501: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 803.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1962]

[9124] — Ss. 479-A(1) and (5) — Complaint against a witness for perjury — Opportunity for hearing — No finding recorded by Appellate Court making an order under sub-section (5) that the witness has intentionally given a false statement etc., etc, — No opportunity given to the witness to be heard — Order is illegal

The High Court, when it ordered a complaint to be made did not record a finding that the appellant had intentionally given any false evidence or that it was expedient to proceed against him for the eradication of perjury and in the interest of justice. The appellant was also not given a proper hearing as referred by S. 479-A (5).

Held :

The order appealed against having been made in breach of the express provisions of sub-sections (1) and (5) of S. 479-A is illegal. B.K. Pal Chaudhry v. State of Assam, AIR 1960 SC 133: (1960) 1 SCR 945: 1960 Cri LJ 174.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1959]

[9125] — Ss. 479-A(1) and (5) — Complaint against a witness for perjury — Order by Appellate Court under sub-section (5) — No opportunity of being heard given to the witness as required by sub-section (5) — Order is illegal

In a case where complaint is made under sub-section (5) of S. 479-A by Appellate Court, the terms of both sub-sections (1) and (5) have to be complied with. The combined effect of these sub-sections is to require the Court intending to make a complaint, to record a finding that in its opinion a person appearing as a witness has intentionally given false evidence and that for the eradication of the evils of perjury and in the interests of justice, it is expedient that such witness should be prosecuted for the offence and to give the witness proposed to be proceeded against, an opportunity of being heard as to whether a complaint should be made or not. B.K. Pal Chaudhry v. State of Assam, AIR 1960 SC 133: (1960) 1 SCR 945: 1960 Cri LJ 174.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1959]

[9126] — S. 479-A(1) — Finding to determine prima facie case not binding

The finding required to be made by S. 479-A (1) is only of a prima facie nature; it cannot be a finding which would have any force at the trial upon the complaint made pursuant to that finding. Further, this notion of avoiding prejudice would not justify a clear breach of the terms of the section. B.K. Pal Chaudhry v. State of Assam, AIR 1960 SC 133, 136: (1960) 1 SCR 945: 1960 Cri LJ 174.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1959]

— S. 479-A(5) See also Ss. 479-A(1) and (5)

[9127] — S. 479-A(5) — Court can decide not to make complaint after hearing

The statute by providing in sub-section (5) of S. 479-A that no order directing a complaint shall be lodged without giving the person affected thereby an opportunity of being heard, intended that after giving that hearing it would be open to the Court to decide not to make a complaint. Otherwise there would be no sense in directing that a hearing should be given. Now, the Court may, after giving that hearing, decide not to make a complaint either for the reason that the Court was satisfied that no false evidence was given by the witness concerned or that such evidence was not intentionally false, or lastly, that it was not expedient in the interests of justice or to eradicate the evils of perjury, to make the complaint. B.K. Pal Chaudhry v. State of Assam, AIR 1960 SC 133, 136: (1960) 1 SCR 945: 1960 Cri LJ 174.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1959]

— S. 479-A(6) See Ss. 476, 479-A(1) and (6)

[9128] — S. 479-A(6) — Bar of — To offences under Ss. 193 and 195, IPC — Case under S. 325, IPC, investigated by appellant A ending in acquittal — Magistrate holding that B was falsely implicated and filing a complaint against A and others under Ss. 193, 195, 211 and 120-B, IPC — Held, complaint barred by S. 479-A(6), IPC. Ajaib Singh v. Joginder Singh, AIR 1968 SC 1422: (1969) 1 SCR 145: 1969 Cri LJ 4, 5, 6.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1968]

[9129] — Ss. 480, 482 and 484 — Powers under

The Court is competent under S. 482, CrPC, to forward any case offending its dignity to a Magistrate having jurisdiction to try it, if it considers that the offender deserves a higher punishment than what can be inflicted under S. 480. Again the Court is entitled under S. 484, to discharge the offender on his submitting an apology, although it has already adjudged him to punishment under S. 480 or forward his case for trial under S. 482. Bathina Ramakrishna Reddy v. State of Madras, AIR 1952 SC 149: 1952 SCR 425: 1952 Cri LJ 832.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1952]

— S. 482 See Ss. 480, 482 and 484

— S. 484 See Ss. 480, 482 and 484

— S. 488 See also Ss. 490 and 488

[9130] — S. 488 — Expression 'unable to maintain itself' — CrPC, 1973, S. 125

A comparative study of the old and new provisions would show that while in S. 488 the condition "unable to maintain itself" apparently attached only to the child and not to the wife, in S. 125, this condition has been expressly made applicable to the case of wife. Bhagwan Dutt v. Kamla Devi, (1975) 2 SCC 386: 1975 SCC (Cri) 563: AIR 1975 SC 83: (1975) 2 SCR 483: (1975) MLJ (Cri) 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, R.S. Sarkaria and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1974]

[9131] — S. 488 — Scope of — "Corresponding provisions of the new Code", and S. 484(2)(b), CrPC, 1973 held, does not mean identical provisions — S. 125, Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, corresponds to Section 488, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, despite the disentitlement of maintenance under the new provision to a major child who does not suffer from any infirmity — General Clauses Act, 1897, S. 24, distinguished — Judicial orders and sentences, as against statutory instru- ments, which have attained finality, held, do not have to answer the test of being consistent with the provisions of the new Code — Order under S. 488, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 would therefore continue after the coming into force of CrPC, 1973 subject however to change or cancellation under S. 127, Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 because of change in the circumstances — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 484(2)(b), 125 and 127. Jagir Singh v. Ranbir Singh, (1979) 1 SCC 560: 1979 SCC (Cri) 348: AIR 1979 SC 381: 1979 Cri LJ 318: (1979) 16 ACC 74.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-11-1978]

[9132] — S. 488 — Limited/restricted estate given to female Hindu towards her maintenance under a compromise entered in proceedings under S. 488 CrPC, 1898 after commencement of the Act — Held, as soon as the property came in her possession, the limited estate was transformed into absolute estate by operation of sub-section (1) of S. 14 notwithstanding the fact the property was acquired under an instrument of compromise containing limitations or restrictions — Sub-section (2) of S. 14 is not attracted when property is acquired in lieu of right of maintenance — Hindu Succession Act, 1956, S. 14 — CrPC, 1973, S. 125. Nazar Singh v. Jagjit Kaur, (1996) 1 SCC 35: AIR 1996 SC 855.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Jeevan Reddy and S.B. Majmudar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1995]

[9133] — S. 488 — Not repealed by Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 — Scope of the provisions

There is no inconsistency between the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act and S. 488, CrPC. Both can stand together and the scope of the two laws is different. Section 488 is only a summary remedy available to persons of all religions and has no relation to the personal law of the parties. Section 4(b) of the Maintenance Act does not repeal or affect the provision contained in S. 488, CrPC. Nanak Chand v. Chandra Kishore Aggarwal, (1969) 3 SCC 802: 1970 SCC (Cri) 127: AIR 1970 SC 446: 1970 Cri LJ 522.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-5-1969]

[9134] — S. 488 — "Child", meaning of — Whether Includes major child as well

The word 'child' in S. 488, CrPC does not mean a minor son or daughter and the real limitation is contained in the expression "unable to maintain itself". Nanak Chand v. Chandra Kishore Aggarwal, (1969) 3 SCC 802: 1970 SCC (Cri) 127: AIR 1970 SC 446: 1970 Cri LJ 522.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-5-1969]

[9135] — S. 488 — Claim of maintenance — Procedure — Preliminary enquiry not contemplated — Enquiry to be held after notice to the respondent

Section 488 of the Code does not contemplate a preliminary enquiry before issuing a notice, but lays down that all evidence under that Chapter should be taken in the presence of the respondent or his pleader, indicating thereby that one enquiry only should be held after notice. Nand Lal Misra v. Kanhaiya Lal Misra, AIR 1960 SC 882: (1960) 3 SCR 431: 1960 Cri LJ 1246.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-4-1960]

[9136] — S. 488 — Maintenance of wives, children and parents — Purpose — Measure of social justice to prevent vagrancy and destitution — CrPC, 1973, S. 125 (Paras 18 to 25). Chanmuniya v. Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha, (2011) 1 SCC 141.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.S. Singhvi and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-2010]

Jagir Kaur v. Jaswant Singh, AIR 1963 SC 1521: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 413; Nanak Chand v. Chandra Kishore Aggarwal, (1969) 3 SCC 802: 1970 SCC (Cri) 127; Capt. Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Veena Kaushal, (1978) 4 SCC 70: 1978 SCC (Cri) 508; Vimala v. Veeraswamy, (1991) 2 SCC 375: 1991 SCC (Cri) 442; Mohd. Ahmed Khan v. Shah Bano Begum, (1985) 2 SCC 556: 1985 SCC (Cri) 245, relied on [9137] — S. 488 — Does not confer an absolute right on a neglected wife — Exercise of Magistrate's discretion under. Bhagwan Dutt v. Kamla Devi, (1975) 2 SCC 386: 1975 SCC (Cri) 563: AIR 1975 SC 83: (1975) 2 SCR 483: (1975) MLJ (Cri) 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, R.S. Sarkaria and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1974]

[9138] — S. 488 — "Wife" — Interpretation — Long cohabitation without valid marriage — Entitlement of such woman to maintenance — Considering that there was divergence of judicial opinion on interpretation of word "wife" in S. 125 CrPC, 1973, matter referred to larger Bench in light of Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, which gave wide interpretation to terms like "domestic abuse" and "domestic relationship" which included live-in relationship and entitles such women to reliefs under 2005 Act — Opinion expressed that a broad and expansive interpretation should be given to term "wife" to include even those cases where a man and woman have been living together as husband and wife for a reasonably long period of time, and strict proof of marriage should not be a precondition for maintenance under S. 125 CrPC, so as to fulfil true spirit and essence of the beneficial provision of maintenance under

S. 125 — Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, S. 3 Expln. 1 cl. (iv), Ss. 21, 22 and 26 — Constitution of India, Art. 141 — Words and Phrases — "Wife" — CrPC, 1973, S. 125 (Paras 26 to 42). Chanmuniya v. Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha, (2011) 1 SCC 141.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.S. Singhvi and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-2010]

Dwarika Prasad Satpathy v. Bidyut Prava Dixit, (1999) 7 SCC 675: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1345; Yamunabai Anantrao Adhav v. Anantrao Shivram Adhav, (1988) 1 SCC 530: 1988 SCC (Cri) 182; Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat, (2005) 3 SCC 636: 2005 SCC (Cri) 787; Marvin v. Marvin, (1976) 18 Cal 3d 660, considered

[9139] — S. 488 — Maintenance petition — Procedure — Magistrate holding preliminary enquiry before issuing notice to the respondent — Rejecting the petition on the ground that there was no prima facie case — Procedure is illegal — Enquiry must have been held after notice

The appellant, a minor, through his mother filed a petition for maintenance against the respondent. The Magistrate without issuing a notice to the respondent held an enquiry and after holding that there was no prima facie case rejected the petition.

Held :

The procedure adopted being against the provisions of S. 488(6) that all evidence should be taken in the presence of the respondent or his pleader was illegal. The appellant was not given full opportunity to establish his case in the manner prescribed by law. Nand Lal Misra v. Kanhaiya Lal Misra, AIR 1960 SC 882: (1960) 3 SCR 431: 1960 Cri LJ 1246.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-4-1960]

[9140] — S. 488 — Nature — Not inconsistent with S. 23 of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956. Bhagwan Dutt v. Kamla Devi, (1975) 2 SCC 386: 1975 SCC (Cri) 563: AIR 1975 SC 83: (1975) 2 SCR 483: (1975) MLJ (Cri) 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, R.S. Sarkaria and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1974]

See also (1969) 3 SCC 802.

[9141] — S. 488 — Nature of order passed under — Effect on civil proceedings

The order passed in an application filed under S. 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is a summary order which does not finally determine the rights and obligations of the parties thereto. It is an order made in a proceeding under a provision enacted with a view to provide a summary remedy for providing maintenance, and for preventing vagrancy. The decision of the Criminal Court that there was a marriage between Barbara and Sethurathinam and that it was a valid marriage will not operate as decisive in any civil proceeding between the parties for determining those questions. The Civil Court in hearing the proceeding initiated by the husband will decide it on the evidence which may be produced before the Court uninfluenced by the decision of the High Court as to the factum of the ceremony of marriage or as to the alleged conversion of the wife to Hinduism before her marriage or as to the validity of a marriage between a Hindu male and a Christian female. S. Sethurathinam Pillai v. Barbara, (1971) 3 SCC 923: 1972 SCC (Cri) 171.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.C. Shah, K.S. Hegde, A.N. Grover, A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1970]

[9142] — Ss. 488 and 489(1) — Determination of amount of maintenance payable to wife — Wife's income — Discretion of Magistrate

The mere fact that the language of S. 488(1) does not expressly make the inability of a wife to maintain herself a condition precedent not the maintainability of her petition, does not imply that while determining her claim and fixing the amount of maintenance, the Magistrate is debarred from taking into consideration the wife's own separate income or means of support. There is a clear distinction between a wife's locus standi to file a petition under S. 488 and her being entitled, on merits, to a particular amount of maintenance thereunder.

Proof of preliminary condition attached to a neglected child will establish only his competence to file the petition but his entitlement to maintenance, particularly the fixation of its amount, will still depend upon the discretion of the Magistrate. As the Magistrate is required to exercise that discretion in a just manner, the income of the wife, also, must be put in the scales of justice as against the means of the husband.

The object of these provisions being to prevent vagrancy and destitution, the Magistrate has to find out as to what is required by the wife to maintain a standard of living which is neither luxurious nor penurious, but is modestly consistent with the status of the family. The needs and requirements of the wife for such moderate living can be fairly determined, only if her separate income also is taken into account together with the earnings of the husband and his commitments. Besides there is a definite indication in the language of the associate

S. 489(1), that the financial resources of the wife are also a relevant consideration in making such a determination.

The "circumstances" contemplated by S. 489(1) must include financial circumstances and in that view, the inquiry as to the change in the circumstances must extend to a change in the financial circumstances of the wife.

Hence in determining the amount of maintenance under S. 488(1), the Magistrate is competent to take into consideration the separate income and means of the wife. Bhagwan Dutt v. Kamla Devi, (1975) 2 SCC 386: 1975 SCC (Cri) 563: AIR 1975 SC 83: (1975) 2 SCR 483: (1975) MLJ (Cri) 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, R.S. Sarkaria and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1974]

— S. 488(1) See Ss. 531 and 488(1)

[9143] — S. 488(3) — Wife filing application for maintenance on ground that her husband contracted a second marriage — Cl. (3) of S. 488 justifies wife's refusal to live with her husband in such a case — Held — Husband is under legal obligation to maintain her — CrPC, 1973, S. 125(3) Expl. Deochand v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 4 SCC 610: 1974 SCC (Cri) 646: AIR 1974 SC 1488.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.N. Ray, C.J. and Y.V. Chandrachud and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-4-1974]

[9144] — S. 488(8) — Jurisdiction — Interpretation of — Meaning of "resides", "is" and "last resided" — Proceedings under the section to be taken at a place where the husband or father resides, permanently or temporarily, or where he last resided in any district in India or where he happens to be at the time the proceedings are initiated. Jagir Kaur v. Jaswant Singh, AIR 1963 SC 1521: (1964) 2 SCR 73: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 413.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-2-1963]

[9145] — S. 488(8) — Wife and daughter's petition — Jurisdiction — Respondent born in India — Married the petitioner in India — Later migrated to Africa — Owned property in Ludhiana District, Punjab — When petition filed, resided in District Ludhiana — The respondent last resided in Ludhiana and the petition was maintainable in the Court of a Magistrate in Ludhiana District

Where the respondent husband was born in India, married the petitioner wife in India, migrated to Africa, later took the petitioner wife to Africa where the daughter petitioner was born, sent back both the petitioners, to Ludhiana District in India, acquired property in Ludhiana District and when the petition was filed he was in Ludhiana District, the petition under S. 488 was maintainable in Ludhiana District. Jagir Kaur v. Jaswant Singh, AIR 1963 SC 1521: (1964) 2 SCR 73: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 413.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-2-1963]

— S. 489(1) See also Ss. 488 and 489(1)

[9146] — S. 489(1) — Word 'circumstances' — Meaning of

The 'circumstances' contemplated by S. 489(1) must include financial circumstances and in that view, the inquiry as to the change in the circumstances must extend to a change in the financial circumstances of the wife. Bhagwan Dutt v. Kamla Devi, (1975) 2 SCC 386: 1975 SCC (Cri) 563: AIR 1975 SC 83: (1975) 2 SCR 483: (1975) MLJ (Cri) 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, R.S. Sarkaria and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-1974]

[9147] — Ss. 490 and 488 — Order under the section obtained before partition from a place that came to lie within Pakistan after partition — The order is enforceable and executable in India after the partition

Where the order was a competent order of a domestic tribunal when it was made and could then have been enforced in the Courts within India, in the absence of any specific bar the order cannot lose its Indian nationality simply because the place in which it was born was later made foreign territory.

Where there is specific legislation, effect must be given to it. But where, as here, there is nothing, then in the absence of a specific bar an order which was good and competent when it was made and which was passed by a Tribunal which was domestic at the date of its making and which could, at that date, have been enforced in an Indian Court, does not lose its efficacy by reason of the partition. Kishore Lal v. Shanti Devi, AIR 1953 SC 441: 1953 Cri LJ 1923, 1924.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-9-1951]

[9148] — S. 491 — Challenge on grounds in S. 491, CrPC, 1898 other than in cl. (1)(b) not barred — Constitution of India, Art. 359

Per majority

It is only in regard to that class of cases falling under S. 491(1)(b) where the legality of the detention is challenged on grounds which fell under Art. 359(1) and the Presidential Order that the bar would operate. In all other cases falling under S. 491(1) the bar would be inapplicable and proceedings taken on behalf of the detenu will have to be tried in accordance with law. These categories of pleas have been mentioned by way of illustration, and so they should not be read as exhausting all the pleas which do not fall within the purview of the Presidential Order. Makhan Singh Tarsikka v. State of Punjab, AIR 1964 SC 381, 400: (1964) 4 SCR 797: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 269.

Bench Strength 7. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[2], K.N. Wanchoo[1], M. Hidayatullah[1], K.C. Das Gupta[1] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1963]

[9149] — S. 491 — Constitution of India, Art. 372

Per Ray, C.J.

There was no statutory right to enforce the right to personal liberty other than that in S. 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code before the commencement of the Constitution which could be carried over after its commencement under Art. 372. ADM v. Shivakant Shukla, (1976) 2 SCC 521: AIR 1976 SC 1207: 1976 Cri LJ 945.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: A.N. Ray, C.J.[1] and H.R. Khanna[5], M.H. Beg[2], Y.V. Chandrachud[3] and P.N. Bhagwati[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1976]

[9150] — S. 491 (after amendment in 1923) — Enforcement of right to personal liberty — Right to obtain a direction in the nature of habeas corpus

Per Ray, C.J.

After the amendment of S. 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in 1923 the right to obtain a direction in the nature of a habeas corpus became a statutory right to a remedy in India. After 1923 it was not open to any party to ask for a writ of habeas corpus as a matter of common law. Also Art. 21 is not a common law right. There was no pre-existing common law remedy to habeas corpus. Further, no common law right which corresponds to a fundamental right can exist as a distinct right apart from the fundamental right.

The provisions of S. 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code have been repealed recently as being superfluous in view of Art. 226. Even if the section existed today it could not be exercised as a separate right distinct from the fundamental right, the enforcement of which is suspended by the Presidential Order. There was no statutory right to enforce the right to personal liberty other than that in S. 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code before the commencement of the Constitution which could be carried over after its commencement under Art. 372.

Per Khanna, J.

Constitutional recognition of the remedy of writ of habeas corpus did not obliterate or abrogate the statutory remedy of writ of habeas corpus under S. 491, CrPC, 1898. Although the remedy of writ of habeas corpus is not now available under the new Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, the same remedy is still available under Art. 226 of the Constitution. ADM v. Shivakant Shukla, (1976) 2 SCC 521: AIR 1976 SC 1207: 1976 Cri LJ 945.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: A.N. Ray, C.J.[1] and H.R. Khanna[5], M.H. Beg[2], Y.V. Chandrachud[3] and P.N. Bhagwati[4], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1976]

[9151] — S. 491 — A woman who has attained majority is free to stay in any place she likes without constraint by her parents or alleged husband — Constitution of India — Article 32 — Particular writs — Habeas corpus, Arts. 32 and 226 — Habeas corpus — Constitution of India, Art. 21. Gian Devi v. Supdt., Nari Niketan, Delhi, (1976) 3 SCC 234: 1976 SCC (Cri) 387.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: H.R. Khanna, Y.V. Chandrachud and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1974]

[9152] — S. 491 — Habeas corpus — Rejection of application under S. 491, CrPC does not operate as res judicata to a petition under Art. 32 — Constitution of India — Article 32. Ajit Kumar Kaviraj v. Distt. Magistrate, (1975) 3 SCC 264: 1974 SCC (Cri) 872: AIR 1974 SC 1917: (1975) 2 SCR 21: 1974 Cri LJ 1304.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1974]

[9153] — S. 491 — Habeas corpus application under — T.N. Revenue Recovery Act, 1864 (2 of 1864), S. 48 — Constitution of India, Arts. 14, 19, 31 and 22 — IT Act, 1961, S. 46(2)

A sum of Rs 70,000 was due from the petitioner for arrears of income tax for assessment years 1943-44, 1945-46 to 1948-49 some amount was realised by the Collector in pursuance of a certificate issued by the Income Tax Officer under S. 46(2) of he Income Tax Act, and by the Income Tax Officer himself under S. 46(5-A) of the Act. Still Rs 61,668 remained outstanding. The petitioner sold certain properties of his between 18-11-1947 and 25-3-1948 for Rs 23,100, soon after the notice of demand was served on him on 6-11-1947. He had closed his old business at Cannanore in August 1947 and set up a new firm in 1948 at Telichery. The Collector had reason to believe that the petitioner "was wilfully withholding payment of arrears of tax and had been guilty of fraudulent conduct in order to evade payment o tax". The Collector, accordingly, issued a warrant of arrest under S. 48 of the Madras Revenue Recovery Act, 1864, and lodged the petitioner in Central Jail, Cannanore. The petitioner moved a writ of habeas corpus under S. 491 CrPC. It was contended that S. 46(2) of the Income Tax Act merely authorised the Collector to recover the amount of arrears of Income Tax, but it did not give him any authority to arrest the defaulter. The act of arrest was not a mode of recovery of the arrears of tax, but it was a punishment for failure to pay.

Held :

The authority given to the Collector by S. 46(2) of the Income Tax Act is to recover the arrears of tax as if it were an arrears of land revenue. The preamble of the Madras Revenue Recovery Act, 1864 states that the laws relating to the collection of the public revenue should be consolidated and simplified and S. 5 provides for the manner in which the arrears of revenue may recovered. It reads, "whenever revenue may be in arrear it shall be lawful for the Collector, or other officer empowered by the Collector in that behalf, to proceed to recover the arrear, together with interest and costs of process, by the sale of the defaulter's movable and immovable property, or by execution against the person of the defaulter in manner hereinafter provided." This section clearly sets out the mode of recovery of arrears of revenue, that is to say, either by the sale of the movable or immovable property of the defaulter, or by execution against his person in the manner provided by the Act. Section 48 provides that when arrears of revenue cannot be liquidated by the sale of the property of the defaulter then the Collector, if he has reason to believe that the defaulter is wilfully withholding payment of the arrears or has been guilty of fraudulent conduct in order to evade payment of tax, can lawfully cause the arrest and imprisonment of the defaulter. This section read with S. 5 makes it abundantly clear that the arrest of the defaulter is one of the modes by which the arrears of revenue can be recovered, to be resorted to if the said arrears cannot be liquidated by the sale of the defaulter's property. There is not a suggestion in the entire section that the arrest is by way of punishment for mere default. Where an arrest is made under S. 48 after complying with its provisions, the arrest is not for any offence committed or a punishment for defaulting in any payment. The mode of arrest is no more than a mode for recovery of the amount due.

There is nothing in S. 48 of the Act which requires the Collector to give the defaulter an opportunity to be heard before arresting him. It is true that the Collector must have reason to believe that the defaulter is wilfully withholding payment or has been guilty or fraudulent conduct in order to evade payment. The Collector, therefore, must have some material upon which he bases his belief — a belief which must be rational belief — and a Court may look into that material in appropriate cases in order to find out if the conditions laid down in the section have been fulfilled or not. From the affidavits filed in the High Court by the Collector and the Income Tax Officer it is quite clear that there was material upon which the Collector could base his belief that the respondent was wilfully withholding payment of the arrears of tax and had been guilty of fraudulent conduct in order to evade payment. The Collector was, therefore, justified in arresting the respondent.

Having regard to the previous decisions of the Supreme Court in A.K. Gopalan v. State of Madras, 1950 SCR 88; State of Punjab v. Ajaib Singh, 1953 SCR 254; and Purushottam Govindji Hallai v. B.M. Desai, Additional Collector of Bombay, 1955 28 ITR 891 (SC), neither S. 48 of the Madras Revenue Recovery Act, 1864 nor S. 46(2) of the Income Tax Act violates Arts. 14, 19, 21 and 22 of the Constitution. Collector of Malabar v. Erimmal Ebrahim Hajee, AIR 1957 SC 688: 1957 SCR 970: (1957) 2 MLJ (SC) 115: (1957) 32 ITR 124: 1957 Cri LJ 1030.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and Syed Jafer Imam, S.K. Das, P. Govinda Menon and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-4-1957]

(1954) 26 ITR 509, reversed

[9154] — S. 491 — Habeas Corpus — Custody of infants — Practice of Courts has always been to exercise the power to deliver the custody of infants to mothers

Section 491 is expressly concerned with directions of the nature of a habeas corpus. The English principles applicable to the issue of a writ of habeas corpus, therefore, apply here. In fact the Courts in this country have always exercised the power to direct under S. 491 in a fit case that the custody of an infant be delivered to the applicant i.e. mother. Gohar Begum v. Suggi, AIR 1960 SC 93: (1960) 1 SCR 597: 1960 Cri LJ 164, 167, 168.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1959]

[9155] — S. 491 — Habeas Corpus — Illegal or improper detention — Mohammedan mother's application for custody of her illegitimate daughter — Respondent entitled in law to detain the custody of the child — Illegitimate father undertaking to bring up the child as his own in case custody restored to mother appellant — Application under the section is maintainable

Under the Mohammedan law which applies to the case the appellant is entitled to the custody of the child who is her illegitimate daughter no matter who the father of the child is. The respondent has no legal right whatsoever to the custody of the child. Her refusal to make over the child to the appellant therefore resulted in an illegal detention of the child within the meaning of S. 491. The terms of S. 491 would clearly be applicable to the case and the appellant entitled to the order she asked.

'A' the illegitimate father of the child has acknowledged the paternity of the child. So in law the child can claim to be maintained by him. She has no such right with the respondent. There is no single reason how the interest of the child would be better served if she was left in the custody of the respondent and not with the appellant. Gohar Begum v. Suggi, AIR 1960 SC 93: (1960) 1 SCR 597: 1960 Cri LJ 164, 167, 168.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1959]

[9156] — S. 491 — Habeas Corpus — Mohammedan can proceed under Guardians and Wards Act for getting custody of her minor daughter — The provisions of the Act do not bar an application under S. 491

The Mohammedan appellant has a right to proceed under the Guardians and Wards Act for recovering the custody of her daughter. But she had also a clear right to an order for the custody of the child under S. 491 of the CrPC. The fact that she had a right under the Guardians and Wards Act is no justification for denying her the right under S. 491. Gohar Begum v. Suggi, AIR 1960 SC 93: (1960) 1 SCR 597: 1960 Cri LJ 164, 167, 168.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-1959]

[9157] — S. 491 — Habeas Corpus — Writ by the High Court — Disobedience will amount to contempt of Court even if the order was illegal — Only defence open is inability to comply

Even if the direction was inexpedient, an order had been made for bringing before the Court and it had to be complied with unless the appellant could plead and prove his inability to comply with it. The question whether the Court ought, on the materials present before it, to have called upon the appellant to bring 'K' in Court is something which does not enter into the obedience of the order made. A direction given by the High Court in a proceeding for a writ of habeas corpus for the production of the body of a person has to be carried out and if disobeyed the contemner is punishable by attachment and imprisonment. A valid excuse will, however, be that it is impossible to obey the order. When the Court did make an order for the production of 'K' even if another Court would have taken some other steps it had to be carried out unless it was impossible for the appellant to comply with it. High Court's commitment for contempt was justified because the High Court rightly reached the conclusion that the appellant having the knowledge of the whereabouts of 'K' and having the custody of her through another was wilfully and deliberately disobeying the direction of the Court. In so far as the offence of contempt is concerned there was a manifest disobedience of the order and the High Court could punish it brevi manu by ordering the appellant to be detained in prison. The High Court's powers for punishment of contempt have been preserved by the Constitution and they are also inherent in a Court of Record. The learned Judges were perhaps in error in describing it as contempt in facie curiae. That is contempt of a different sort. This was contempt by disobedience of an order of the High Court which is sometimes a civil contempt punishable under the CPC and sometimes a criminal contempt punishable by imprisonment. Mohd. Ikram Hussain v. State of U.P., AIR 1964 SC 1625: (1964) 5 SCR 86: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 590, 598: (1964) All Cri R 252.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1963]

[9158] — S. 491 — Writ of Habeas Corpus — Husband's writ for regaining custody of his wife is maintainable — Writ not ordinarily demanded when facts have first to be established

The writ of habeas corpus issues not only for release from detention by the State but also for release from private detention. At Common Law a writ of habeas corpus was available to the husband for regaining the custody of his wife if she was wrongfully detained by anyone from him without her consent. What amounts to wrongful detention of the wife is, of course, a question for the Court to decide in each case and different circumstances may exist either entitling or disentitling a husband to this remedy. There was also no material irregularity vitiating the order for inexpediency is not the same thing as irregularity and all that has been pointed out is that the High Court acted without sufficient enquiry and deliberation. We shall say something about this because this criticism is perhaps justified.

Exigence of the writ at the instance of a husband is very rare in English Law, and in India the writ of habeas corpus is probably never used by a husband to regain his wife and the alternative remedy under S. 100 of the CrPC is always used. Then there is the remedy of a civil suit for restitution of conjugal rights. Husbands take recourse to the latter when the detention does not amount to an offence and to the former if it does. In both these remedies all the issues of fact can be tried and the writ of habeas corpus is probably not demanded in similar cases if issues of fact have first to be established. This is because the writ of habeas corpus is festinum remedium and the power can only be exercised in a clear case. It is of course singularly inappropriate in cases where the petitioner is himself charged with a criminal offence in respect of the very person for whose custody he demands the writ.

A writ of habeas corpus at the instance of a man to obtain possession of a woman alleged to be his wife does not issue as a matter of course. Though a writ of right, it is not a writ of course especially when a man seeks the assistance of the Court to regain the custody of a woman. Before a court accedes to this request it must satisfy itself at least prima facie that the person claiming the writ is in fact the husband and further whether valid marriage between him and the woman could at all have taken place. Mohd. Ikram Hussain v. State of U.P., AIR 1964 SC 1625: (1964) 5 SCR 86: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 590, 598: (1964) All Cri R 252.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1963]

[9159] — S. 491 — Writ of Habeas Corpus — By a husband for custody of wife — Some circumstances remaining undetermined before the writ was filed — In habeas corpus proceedings Court can order inquiry into facts

The writ nisi in this case for the production of 'K' should have been preceded by some more enquiry. It is wrong to think that in habeas corpus proceedings the Court is prohibited from ordering an inquiry into a fact. All procedure is always open to a court which is not expressly prohibited and no rule of the Court has laid down that evidence shall not be received, if the court requires it. No such absolute rule was brought to our notice. It may be that further evidence would have borne out what 'M' stated and then the order could always be passed for the production of 'K' but if the evidence did not bear out what 'M' alleged then the order which the appellant disobeyed and for which he has to suffer imprisonment would never have been passed. Mohd. Ikram Hussain v. State of U.P., AIR 1964 SC 1625: (1964) 5 SCR 86: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 590, 598: (1964) All Cri R 252.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1963]

[9160] — S. 491(1)(b) — Bar under Art. 359, Constitution of India applies to proceedings under S. 491(1)(b), CrPC, 1898 for habeas corpus — Constitution of India, Art. 359

Per majority

The argument that Art. 359(1) and the Presidential Order issued under it do not apply to the proceedings under S. 491(1)(b) cannot be sustained. The prohibition contained in the said article and the Presidential Order will apply as much to proceedings under S. 491(1)(b) as to those under Art. 226(1) and Art. 32(1).

So the proceedings taken on behalf of the appellants before the respective High Courts challenging their detention on the ground that the impugned Act and the Rules are void because they contravene Arts. 14, 21 and 22 are incompetent for the reason that the fundamental rights which are alleged to have been contravened are specified in the Presidential Order and all citizens are precluded from moving any Court for the enforcement of the said specified rights.

Per Subba Rao, J. (dissenting)

The rights, substantive as well as procedural, conferred under Part III and Art. 226 on the one hand and under S. 491 of the Code on the other, are different. Under Arts. 32 and 226, and affected party can approach the Supreme Court or the Court, as the case may be, only in the manner prescribed under Art. 32(2) or Art. 226 i.e. by way of writs and orders mentioned therein; he must ask the court for the enforcement of his fundamental rights. The relief implies that he must establish that he has a fundamental right that his fundamental right has been infringed by the State and, therefore, the Court should give the appropriate relief for the enforcement of that right. Both the right as well as the procedure are the creatures of the Constitution. Whereas S. 491 of the Code assumes the existence of the "rule of law" and confers a power on the High Court to direct persons in illegal detention to be set at liberty. It is not bound by any technical procedures envisaged by the Constitution. If a person approaches the High Court alleging that he or some other person has been illegally detained, the Court calls upon the detaining authority to sustain the validity of the action. The onus of proof lies on the custodian to establish that the person is detained under a legal process; but if it fails to establish that the person is detained under law, the said person may be released. It is true that the detaining authority will have to satisfy the court that the law under which the detention is made is a valid one. It may also be true that in scrutinising the validity of that law the court has to go into the question whether the law offends any of the fundamental rights mentioned in Part III of the Constitution. But that circumstance does not by any process of involved reasoning make the said proceeding one initiated in exercise of the right to move the High Court for the enforcement of the petitioner's fundamental right. The distinction between the two lies in the fact that one is an enforcement of a petitioner's fundamental right and the other, a decision on the unconstitutionality of a law because of its infringement of fundamental rights generally.

The absolute discretionary jurisdiction conferred under S. 491 of the Code cannot be put on a par with the jurisdiction conferred under Art. 226 of the Constitution hedged in by constitutional limitations. Section 491 of the Code does not contemplate any right to move a court by any affected party, but the court can exercise the statutory power whenever it thinks fit, if the fact of illegal detention of a person is brought to its notice.

The expression "right to move any Court for the endorsement of such of the rights conferred by Part III" could legitimately refer only to the right to move under Art. 32 or Art. 226 of the Constitution for the said specific relief and could not be applied without doing violence to the language used to the exercise of the statutory power conferred on the High Courts under S. 491 of the Code. If that be so, the expression "all proceedings pending in any Court for the enforcement of the rights" used in the second limb of Art. 359 must also necessarily refer to proceedings initiated in exercise of the right to move envisaged in the first limb of the article. Makhan Singh Tarsikka v. State of Punjab, AIR 1964 SC 381, 397, 39: (1964) 4 SCR 797: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 269.

Bench Strength 7. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], A.K. Sarkar[1], K. Subba Rao[2], K.N. Wanchoo[1], M. Hidayatullah[1], K.C. Das Gupta[1] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1963]

— S. 492 See Ss. 4(1)(t) and 492

[9161] — S. 493 — Scope

Section 493 dispenses with the necessity of the Public Prosecutor having to file any written authority, when he is in charge of a particular case. That section clearly deals with a particular case and refers to the Public Prosecutor being in charge of that particular case. Under those circumstances, he is not required to file any written authority. That S. 493 deals with a single specified case and that it applies only to the Public Prosecutor, who is actually in charge of that case is also made clear by the later part of S. 493. That is to the effect that if the Public Prosecutor is in charge of a particular case and, in that particular case, a private person, instructs a pleader to prosecute any person, the Public Prosecutor alone is entitled to conduct the prosecution and the pleader appearing in that case for the private person is only to act under his instructions. The expression 'any person in any such case', occurring in the later part of S. 493, clearly leads to the conclusion that both the Public Prosecutor and the private person, through a pleader, are prosecuting the same case. Hence, that S. 493 deals with a particular case. State of Punjab v. Surjit Singh, AIR 1967 SC 1214, 1217: (1967) 2 SCR 347: 1967 Cri LJ 1084.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-1-1967]

— S. 494 See also Ss. 337 and 494

[9162] — S. 494 — Scope

Section 494 itself assumes the withdrawal by a Public Prosecutor of a charge competently made and before a court competent to entertain the application for withdrawal. Mohd. Safi v. State of W.B., AIR 1966 SC 69, 73: (1965) 3 SCR 467: 1966 Cri LJ 75.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, J.R. Mudholkar and R.S. Bachawat, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1965]

[9163] — S. 494 — Scope — Reasons for seeking permission — Duty of the Court when granting permission — Considerations to apply — Consent of State Government to withdraw from prosecution — Whether proper

A reading of S. 494 would show that it is the Public Prosecutor who is incharge of the case that must ask for permission of the Court to withdraw from the prosecution of any person either generally or in respect of one or more of the offences for which he is tried. This permission can be sought by him at any stage either during the enquiry or after committal or even before the judgment is pronounced. The section does not, however, indicate the reasons which should weigh with the public prosecutor to move the Court for permission nor the grounds on which the Court will grant or refuse permission. Though the section is in general terms and does not circumscribe the power of the Public Prosecutor to seek permission to withdraw from the prosecution the essential consideration which is implicit in the grant of the power is that it should be in the interest of administration of justice which may be either that it will not be able to produce sufficient evidence to sustain the charge or that subsequent information before prosecuting agency would falsify the prosecution evidence or any other similar circumstance which it is difficult to predicate as they are dependent entirely on the facts and circumstances of each case.

Nonetheless it is the duty of the Court also to see in furtherance of justice that the permission is not sought on grounds extraneous to the interest of justice or that offences which are offences against the State go unpunished merely because the Government as a matter of general policy or expediency unconnected with its duty to prosecute offenders under the law, directs the Public Prosecutor to withdraw from the prosecution and the Public Prosecutor merely does so at its behest.

It appears to us that the wide and general powers which are conferred under S. 494 on the Public Prosecutor to withdraw from the prosecution though they are subject to the permission of the Court have to be exercised by him in relation to the facts and circumstances of that case in furtherance of, rather than as a hindrance to the object of law and justified on the material in the case which substantiate the grounds alleged, not necessary from those gathered by the judicial method but on other materials which may not be strictly on legal or admissible evidence. The Court also while considering the request to grant permission under the said section should not do so as a necessary formality — the grant of it for the mere asking. It may do so only if it is satisfied on the materials placed before it that the grant of it subserves the administration of justice and that permission was not being sought covertly with an ulterior purpose unconnected with the vindication of the law which the executive organs are in duty bound to further and maintain. M.N. Sankarayarayanan Nair v. P. V. Balakrishnan, (1972) 1 SCC 318: 1972 SCC (Cri) 55: AIR 1972 SC 496: 1972 Cri LJ 301.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy D.G. Palekar, J. [Date of decision: 26-11-1971]

[9164] — S. 494 — Scope — Applicability to committal proceedings — Application by Public Prosecutor for withdrawal under the section lies in the committal stage also

The phrase "in other cases before the judgment is pronounced" in S. 494, CrPC, would, in the context, clearly apply to all cases other than those tried by jury. Now, there can be no doubt that at least as regards these other cases, when the consent for withdrawal is given by the Court, the result is either a discharge or an acquittal, according to the stage to which that case has reached, having regard to the two alternatives (a) and (b) of S. 494, CrPC. It follows that at least in every class of cases other than those tried by jury, the withdrawal can be at any stage of the entire proceedings. This would include also the stage of preliminary inquiry in a sessions case triable without a jury. The wording is perfectly wide and general and would apply to all classes of cases which are capable of terminating either in a discharge or in acquittal, according to the stage at which the section is invoked.

Various legislative changes from time to time with reference to S. 494 of the CrPC and the definition of the word 'inquiry' confirm the view that S. 494 of the CrPC is wide enough to cover every kind of inquiry and trial and that the word 'trial' in the section has not been used in any limited sense. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567, 71, 74.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[9165] — S. 494 — Withdrawal from the prosecution on political reasons, if otherwise proper, held, valid — Ultimate discretion on Public Prosecutor though Government may give its suggestions, advice or guidance to him — Court's jurisdiction under, is supervisory and it has only to see if the PP has applied his independent mind in the broader interest of public justice and for that purpose can ascertain the reasons for the withdrawal move but cannot reappreciate the grounds of the same — CrPC, 1973, S. 321. Rajender Kumar Jain v. State, (1980) 3 SCC 435: 1980 SCC (Cri) 757: AIR 1980 SC 1510: 1980 Cri LJ 1084: (1980) 17 ACC 201.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-5-1980]

[9166] — S. 494 — Foreign practice — Analogy of the English practice would be misleading as an aid to the construction of S. 494 — Foreign decisions and foreign laws. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389, 394: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[9167] — S. 494 — Enabling provision — Interpretation of Statutes — Particular statutes or provisions — Enabling provision

Section 494, CrPC is an enabling one and vests in the Public Prosecutor the discretion to apply to the Court for its consent to withdraw from the prosecution of any person. The consent, if granted, has to be followed up by his discharge or acquittal, as the case may be. The section gives no indication as to grounds on which the Public Prosecutor may make the application, or the considerations on which the Court is to grant its consent. There can be no doubt, however, that the resultant order, on the granting of the consent, being an order of 'discharge' or 'acquittal' would attract the applicability of correction by the High Court under Ss. 435, 436 and 439 or 417, CrPC. The function of the Court therefore, in granting its consent may well be taken to be a judicial function. It follows that in granting the consent the Court must exercise a judicial discretion. But it does not follow that the discretion is to be exercised only with reference to material gathered by the judicial method. Otherwise the apparently wide language of S. 494, CrPC would become considerably narrowed down in its application. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389, 392: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[9168] — S. 494 — "In the cases before judgment is pronounced"

The phrase "in other cases before the judgment is pronounced" in S. 494, Criminal Procedure Code, would, in the context, clearly apply to all cases other than those tried by jury. Now, there can be no doubt that at least as regards these other cases, when the consent for withdrawal is given by the Court, the result is either a discharge or an acquittal, according to the stage to which that case has reached, having regard to the two alternatives (a) and (b) of S. 494, Criminal Procedure Code. It follows that at least in every class of cases other than those tried by jury, the withdrawal can be at any stage of the entire proceedings. This would include also the stage of preliminary inquiry in a sessions case triable without a jury. The wording is perfectly wide and general and would apply to all classes of cases which are capable of terminating either in a discharge or in acquittal, according to the stage at which the Section is invoked. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[9169] — S. 494 — Interpretation — Withdrawal from prosecution of a case started on a private complaint — Effect and competence — Complaint filed by a private party and prosecuted by him — Public Prosecutor, who is in charge of a particular case and is actually conducting the prosecution can file an application under the section — Public Prosecutor's application in a case started on private complaint and prosecuted by the complainant not maintainable

The reasonable interpretation of S. 494 is that it is only the Public Prosecutor, who is in charge of a particular case and is actually conducting the prosecution, that can file an application under that section, seeking permission to withdraw from the prosecution. If a Public Prosecutor is not in charge of a particular case and is not conducting the prosecution, he will not be entitled to ask for withdrawal from prosecution, under S. 494 of the Code.

The expression withdrawn from the prosecution of any person, occurring in S. 494, contemplates that the Public Prosecutor, who files the application for withdrawal under that section, must be the Public Prosecutor, who is already incharge of that particular case, in which the application is filed.

Section 494 indicates the stage at which the Public Prosecutor can file an application for withdrawal; and it also deals with the effect of such withdrawal. In cases tried by jury the application must be filed before the return of the verdict and, in all other cases, before the judgment is pronounced. The effect of such withdrawal is also indicated in cls. (a) and (b) of S. 494. State of Punjab v. Surjit Singh, AIR 1967 SC 1214: (1967) 2 SCR 347: 1967 Cri LJ 1084, 89, 91.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K. Subba Rao, C.J. and J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri, V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-1-1967]

[9170] — S. 494 — "Judgment" — Whether a committal order is "judgment" for the purposes of the section — Committal order is a judgment

"Judgment" is a word of general import and means only "judicial determination or decision of a Court". There is no reason to think in the context of this section that it is not applicable to an order of committal which terminates the proceeding so far as the inquiring Court is concerned. It may be, that in the context of Chap. XXVI of the Code 'judgment' may have a limited meaning. In any view, even if 'judgment' in this context is to be understood in a limited sense, it does not follow that an application during preliminary inquiry, which is necessarily prior to judgment in the trial, is excluded. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567, 71, 74.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[9171] — S. 494 — Nature of power — Whether the Section is in pari materia with S. 333, CrPC

The power contained in the section gives a general executive direction to withdraw from the prosecution subject to the consent of the Court which may be determined on many possible grounds and is therefore wide and uncontrolled by any other provision in the Code nor is it in pari materia with S. 333 which enables the Advocate General at any stage in a trial by the High Court and before the return of the verdict to inform the Court if he thinks fit on behalf of the Government that he will not further prosecute the defendant upon the charge and on such information being given the case against the accused comes to an end. This power of entering a nolle prosequi under S. 333, Criminal Procedure Code, is not dependent upon any permission of the Court. M.N. Sankarayarayanan Nair v. P. V. Balakrishnan, (1972) 1 SCC 318: 1972 SCC (Cri) 55: AIR 1972 SC 496: 1972 Cri LJ 301.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy D.G. Palekar, J. [Date of decision: 26-11-1971]

[9172] — S. 494 — Occurrence leading to the prosecution case arising out of labour union trouble — Industrial peace and harmony subsequently prevailing — Held, prosecution justified in withdrawing the cases

Ultimately every offence has a social or economic cause behind it and if the State feels that the elimination or eradication of the social or economic cause of the crime would be better served by not proceeding with the prosecution, the State should clearly be at liberty to withdraw from the prosecution. State of Orissa v. Chandrika Mohapatra, (1976) 4 SCC 250: 1976 SCC (Cri) 584: AIR 1977 SC 903: 1977 Cri LJ 773.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1976]

[9173] — S. 494 — Permission to withdraw from prosecution — When should not be refused — CrPC, 1973, S. 321

It would certainly not subserve the interests of justice to direct retrial of the respondents despite the settlement arrived at, after a lapse of nearly 18 years. Such a course would give rise to unnecessary industrial unrest for no reason whatever.

The Public Prosecutor may withdraw from the prosecution of a case not merely on the ground of paucity of evidence but also in order to further the broad ends of public justice which may include appropriate social, economic and political purposes. The ultimate guiding consideration while granting a permission to withdraw from the prosecution must always be the interest of administration of justice. The court must satisfy itself that the executive function of the Public Prosecutor has not been improperly exercised or that it is not an attempt to interfere with the normal course of justice for illegitimate reasons or purposes. State of Punjab v. Union of India, (1986) 4 SCC 335: 1986 SCC (Cri) 441: AIR 1987 SC 188.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1986]

[9174] — S. 494 — Scope — Withdrawal from prosecution — Application of the Public Prosecutor — Powers and duty of the court — Before passing an order and discharging or acquitting the accused the Court must satisfy itself that the executive function of the Public Prosecutor has not been improperly exercised — Application on the ground of inadequacy of evidence — Not necessary for the Court to record evidence before allowing the application — Evidence already on record may be taken into consideration — In the absence of any evidence, whatsoever, it is not an improper exercise of discretion for the Court to grant consent before evidence is taken — Court's function in deciding such an application is a judicial function

Section 494, CrPC gives no indication as to the grounds on which the Public Prosecutor may make the application, or the considerations on which the Court is to grant its consent. There can be no doubt, however, that the resultant order, on the granting of the consent, being an order of 'discharge' or 'acquittal' would attract the applicability of correction by the High Court under Ss. 435, 436 and 439 or 417, CrPC. The function of the Court, therefore, in granting its consent may well be taken to be a judicial function. It follows that in granting the consent the Court must exercise a judicial discretion. But it does not follow that the discretion is to be exercised only with reference to material gathered by the judicial method. Otherwise the apparently wide language of S. 494, CrPC would become considerably narrowed down in its application. The judicial function, implicit in the exercise of the judicial discretion for granting the consent would normally mean that the Court has to satisfy itself that the executive function of the Public Prosecutor has not been improperly exercised, or that it is not an attempt to interfere with the normal course of justice for illegitimate reasons or purposes. Section 494 cannot be taken to place on the Court the responsibility for a prima facie determination of a triable issue. For instance the discharge that results therefrom need not always conform to the standard of "no prima facie case" under Ss. 209(1) and 253(1), CrPC, or of "groundlessness" under Ss. 209(2) and 253(2), CrPC. This is not to say that a consent is to be lightly given on the application for the Public Prosecutor, without a careful and proper scrutiny of the grounds on which the application for consent is made. The application for consent may legitimately be made by the Public Prosecutor for reasons not confined to the judicial prospects of the prosecution. If so, it is clear that, what the Court has to determine, for the exercise of its discretion in granting or withholding consent, is not a triable issue on judicial evidence. It is not correct that where the application is on the ground of inadequacy of evidence requiring judicial consideration, it would be manifestly improper for the Court to consent withdrawal before recording the evidence and taking it into consideration. This does not, however, mean that such evidence as may already have been recorded by the time the application is made is not to be looked into and considered in such cases, in order to determine the impropriety of the withdrawal as amounting to abuse or an improper interference with the normal course of justice. State of Bihar v. Ram Naresh Pandey, AIR 1957 SC 389: 1957 SCR 279: 1957 Cri LJ 567, 71, 74.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1957]

[9175] — S. 494 — Taking accomplice evidence

Section 337 of the CrPC has already been held not to offend Art. 14 and the matter of taking accomplice evidence outside S. 337 by using S. 494 or otherwise is not very different. Laxmipat Choraria v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 938, 947: (1968) 2 SCR 624: 1968 Cri LJ 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1967]

[9176] — S. 494 — Withdrawal from prosecution after case committed to Sessions, held, results in acquittal — Hence accused not liable to be prosecuted again in view of S. 300 of the new Code of 1973 — By virtue of S. 484 of the new Code the pending trial even after April 1, 1974 governed by the old Code. State of Karnataka v. K.H. Annegowda, (1977) 1 SCC 417: 1977 SCC (Cri) 106: AIR 1977 SC 357: 1977 Cri LJ 220: (1977) 2 SCR 350.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-1976]

[9177] — S. 494 — Withdrawal of the prosecution — Rule for according permission restated — Held, expediency cannot, but lack of evidence can be, good ground for withdrawal — High Court not justified in suo motu interfering with accord of consent by magistrate based on his examination of the case-diary. State of Orissa v. Chandrika Mohapatra, (1976) 4 SCC 250: 1976 SCC (Cri) 584: AIR 1977 SC 903: 1977 Cri LJ 773.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1976]

— S. 495 See also Ss. 198 and 495

[9178] — S. 495 — Permission to continue prosecution after complainant's death — Right of legal heirs of deceased complainant — Held, they can file petition under S. 302 CrPC, 1973 seeking the said permission — If any such permission is sought for by the said heirs, the same has to be considered in its perspective by the court dealing with the matter — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 256 and 302 (Para 7). Balasaheb K. Thackeray v. Venkat, (2006) 5 SCC 530: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 630: (2006) 102 Cut LT 323: (2006) 3 KLT 509.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-7-2006]

Ashwin Nanubhai Vyas v. State of Maharashtra, (1967) 1 SCR 807: AIR 1967 SC 983: 1967 Cri LJ 943; Jimmy Jahangir Madan v. Bolly Cariyappa Hindley, (2004) 12 SCC 509: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 317, followed

— S. 496 See Ss. 4(1)(f) and 496

See also Ss. 561-A and 496

See also Ss. 561-A, 498 and 496

[9179] — Ss. 496, 497 and 498 — Scope

Sections 496, 497 and 498 of the CrPC are not exhaustive of powers of the Court in regard to terms and conditions of bail particularly when the High Court under S. 561-A of the CrPC deals with cases of the type. Hazari Lal Gupta v. Rameshwar Prasad, (1972) 1 SCC 452: 1972 SCC (Cri) 208: AIR 1972 SC 484: (1972) 2 SCR 666: 1972 Cri LJ 298.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1971]

[9180] — Ss. 496 and 497 — Grant of bail in case of bailable and non-bailable offences

In the matter of admission to bail, the CrPC makes a distinction between bailable and non-bailable offences. The grant of bail to a person accused of a non-bailable offence is discretionary under S. 497 of the Code and the person released on bail may again be arrested and committed to custody by an order of the High Court, the Court of Session and the Court granting the bail. Under S. 498 of the Code, the High Court and the Court of Session may release any person on bail and by a subsequent order cause any person so admitted to bail to be arrested and committed to custody. A person accused of a bailable offence is treated differently; at any time while under detention without a warrant and at any stage of the proceedings before the Court before which he is brought, he has the right under S. 496 of the Code to be released on bail. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, AIR 1967 SC 1639, 1640: (1967) 3 SCR 926: 1967 Cri LJ 1576.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, C.J. and R.S. Bachawat, J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1967]

[9181] — Ss. 496 and 561-A — Bailable offence — Cancellation of bail — Bail cancelled by the High Court under S. 561-A in a bailable offence — S. 496 ceases to apply and the accused cannot under S. 496 claim to be released on bail

The effect of the order passed under S. 561-A, just like effect of an order passed under S. 497(5) and S. 498(2), would not be only that the bail is cancelled but that the accused is ordered to be arrested and committed to custody. The order committing the accused to custody is a special order passed by a criminal Court of competent jurisdiction. His commitment to custody thereafter is not by reason of the fact that he is alleged to have committed a bailable offence at all; his commitment to custody is the result of a judicial order passed on the ground that he has forfeited his bail and that his subsequent conduct showed that, pending the trial, he cannot be allowed to be at large. Now where a person is committed to custody under such an order, it would not be open to him to fall back upon his rights under S. 496, for S. 496 would in such circumstances be inapplicable to his case. It may be that there is no specific provision for the cancellation of the bond and the re-arrest of a person accused of a bailable offence; but that does not mean that S. 496 entitles such an accused person to be released on bail, even though it may be shown that he is guilty of conduct entirely subversive of a fair trial in the Court. Talab Haji Hussain v. Madhukar Purshottam Mondkar, AIR 1958 SC 376: 1958 SCR 1226: 1958 Cri LJ 701, 705, 70.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1958]

[9182] — Ss. 496 and 561-A — Bailable offence — Cancellation of bail — High Court has inherent power to cancel bail even in a bailable offence

The High Court has, under S. 561-A, CrPC, inherent power to cancel the bail granted to a person accused of a bailable offence under S. 496, IPC. This inherent power conferred on High Courts under S. 561-A has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only where such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself. Procedure whether criminal or civil, must serve the higher purpose of justice, and it is only when the ends of justice are put in jeopardy by the conduct of the accused that the inherent powers are and should be exercised. Talab Haji Hussain v. Madhukar Purshottam Mondkar, AIR 1958 SC 376: 1958 SCR 1226: 1958 Cri LJ 701, 705, 70.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1958]

[9183] — Ss. 496 and 561-A — Cancellation of bail by High Court

The Code makes no express provision for the cancellation of a bail granted under S. 496. Nevertheless, if at any subsequent stage of the proceedings, it is found that any person accused of a bailable offence is intimidating, bribing or tampering with the prosecution witnesses or is attempting to abscond, the High Court has the power to cause him to be arrested and to commit him to custody for such period as it thinks fit. This jurisdiction springs from the overriding inherent powers of the High Court and can be invoked in exceptional cases only when the High Court is satisfied that the ends of justice will be defeated unless the accused is committed to custody.

This inherent power of the High Court exists and is preserved by S. 561-A of the Code. The person committed to custody under the orders of the High Court cannot ask for his release on bail under S. 496, but the High Court may by a subsequent order admit him to bail again. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, AIR 1967 SC 1639, 1640: (1967) 3 SCR 926: 1967 Cri LJ 1576.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, C.J. and R.S. Bachawat, J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1967]

[9184] — Ss. 496 to 502 — Bail — Nature and exercise of judicial discretion in the exercise of — Principles and considerations before the Court — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 436, 437 and 439. Babu Singh v. State of U.P., (1978) 1 SCC 579: 1978 SCC (Cri) 133: AIR 1978 SC 527: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 465: (1978) 2 SCR 777: 1978 Cri LJ 651.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1978]

— S. 497 See Ss. 496 and 497
See also Ss. 496, 497 and 498
See also Ss. 496 to 502

[9185] — Ss. 497 and 498 — Bail — Nature and relative scope of the sections — When may the Sessions Court and when the High Court be approached for cancellation of bail, pointed out —

Matters to be considered before cancelling bail — Effect of S. 397(3), Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 437 and 439(1) & (2). Gurcharan Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1978) 1 SCC 118: 1978 SCC (Cri) 41: AIR 1978 SC 179: 1978 Cri LJ 129.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and V.D. Tulzapurkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-12-1977]

— S. 498 See Ss. 496, 497 and 498

See also Ss. 496 and 502

See also Ss. 497 and 498

See also Ss. 561-A, 498 and 496

[9186] — S. 498 — Bail — Pendency of investigation — Apprehension of accused's tampering with the evidence, and further indulgence in similar activities — Allegation of abscondence — No materials placed to show apprehension — Grant of bail — Justification of

Held, while we are impressed with the extraordinary nature of the facts of this case and that the investigation should proceed fairly and efficiently, it is impossible to say that no bail should be granted to the respondents during the pendency of the whole of the investigation. ... There must be absolute certainty of leaving the country before a court would detain an accused indefinitely during the whole period of investigation. If this consideration is kept aside, the only consideration would be the reasonable apprehension that evidence would be tampered with. No material has been placed before us to show that we should come to a finding different from that of the High Court. State of Maharashtra v. Nainmal Punjaji Shah, (1969) 3 SCC 904: 1970 SCC (Cri) 170.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1969]

[9187] — S. 498 — Court should be satisfied only about a prima facie case and need not go into its merits — Where the accused are policemen, court should keep in mind the possibility of intimidation of witnesses and tampering with the documents by such accused to prove themselves innocent — CrPC, 1973, S. 439. Niranjan Singh v. Prabhakar Rajaram Kharote, (1980) 2 SCC 559: 1980 SCC (Cri) 508: AIR 1980 SC 785: 1980 Cri LJ 426: 1980 MLJ (Cri) 573.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and A.P. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1980]

[9188] — S. 498 — 'Custody' — Meaning of — Held, includes physical surrender by the accused before the court and submission to its directions — CrPC, 1973, S. 439

In the context of S. 439, 'custody' is physical control or at least physical presence of the accused in court coupled with submission to the jurisdiction and orders of the court. A person is in custody within the meaning of S. 439 when he is in duress either because he is held by the investigating agency or other police or allied authority or is under the control of the court having been remanded by judicial order, or having offered himself to the court's jurisdiction and submitted to its orders by physical presence. In the present case the accused, did physically submit before the Sessions Judge and therefore, the jurisdiction to grant bail arose. Niranjan Singh v. Prabhakar Rajaram Kharote, (1980) 2 SCC 559: 1980 SCC (Cri) 508: AIR 1980 SC 785: 1980 Cri LJ 426: 1980 MLJ (Cri) 573.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and A.P. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1980]

Affirmed in State of Haryana v. Dinesh Kumar, (2008) 3 SCC 222

[9189] — S. 498 — Once bail is refused, Magistrate, held, not entitled to stay issuance of non-bailable warrant to enable the accused to move to higher court — CrPC, 1973, S. 439. Niranjan Singh v. Prabhakar Rajaram Kharote, (1980) 2 SCC 559: 1980 SCC (Cri) 508: AIR 1980 SC 785: 1980 Cri LJ 426: 1980 MLJ (Cri) 573.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and A.P. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1980]

[9190] — S. 498 — Bail in a case under S. 120-B IPC and Ss. 3 and 5 Indian Official Secrets Act — Nature of offence must also be taken into account — Case against the accused about military affairs for which maximum punishment was 14 years — Not a fit case in which the High Court should have enlarged the accused on bail

Among other considerations, which a court has to take into account in deciding whether bail should be granted in a non-bailable offence, is the nature of the offence; and if the offence is of a kind in which bail should not be granted considering its seriousness, the Court should refuse bail even though it has very wide powers under S. 498 of the CrPC. Now S. 3 of the Act erects an offence which is prejudicial to the safety or interests of the State and relates to obtaining, collecting, recording or publishing or communicating to any other person any secret official code or password or any sketch, plan, model, article or note or other document or information which is calculated to be or might be or is intended to be, directly or indirectly, useful to an enemy. Obviously, the offence is of a very serious kind affecting the safety or the interests of the State. Further the offence is committed in relation to any work of defence, arsenal, naval, military or air force establishment, or station, mine, minefield, factory, dockyard, camp, ship or aircraft or otherwise in relation to the naval, military or air force affairs of Government or in relation to any secret official code, it is punishable with fourteen years' imprisonment. The case against the respondent is in relation to the military affairs of the Government, and 'prima facie' therefore, the respondent if convicted would be liable up to fourteen years' imprisonment. In these circumstances considering the nature of the offence, it seems to us that this is not a case where discretion, which undoubtedly vests in the Court, under S. 498 of the CrPC, should have been exercised in favour of the respondent. State v. Captain Jagjit Singh, AIR 1962 SC 253: (1962) 3 SCR 622: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 215.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1961]

[9191] — S. 498 — Bail in non-bailable offence — Considerations that a court is to take into account

The Court while considering a bail application under S. 498, CrPC should take into account the various considerations such as, nature and seriousness of the offence, the character of the evidence, circumstances which are peculiar to the accused, a reasonable possibility of the presence of the accused not being secured at the trial, reasonable apprehension of witnesses being tampered with, the larger interests of the public or the State, and similar other considerations which arise when a court is asked for bail in a non-bailable offence. It is true that under S. 498 of the CrPC, the powers of the High Court in the matter of granting bail are very wide; even so where the offence is non-bailable, various considerations such as those indicated above have to be taken into account before bail is granted in a non-bailable offence. State v. Captain Jagjit Singh, AIR 1962 SC 253: (1962) 3 SCR 622: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 215.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1961]

[9192] — S. 498(1) — Bail in a case under S. 120 IPC and Ss. 3 and 5, Official Secrets Act — Court while dealing with a bail application must decide if the offence is bailable or non-bailable — If in doubt, must proceed as if the offence was non-bailable

Whenever an application for bail is made to the Court, the first question that it has to decide is whether the offence for which the accused is being prosecuted is bailable or otherwise. In case the Court thought that it would not be proper to express an opinion at that stage on the question whether the offence in the case fell under S. 5 of the Indian Official Secrets Act which was a bailable offence or under S. 3 which is not bailable, it should have dealt with the application on the assumption that the offence was under S. 3 and therefore non-bailable. State v. Captain Jagjit Singh, AIR 1962 SC 253: (1962) 3 SCR 622: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 215.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1961]

— S. 499 See Ss. 496 and 502

See also Ss. 502 and 499

See also Ss. 561-A and 499

[9193] — S. 499 — Scope — Date of acceptance of bond — Surety bond filed on a particular date with an affidavit about sufficiency of the property mentioned in the bond — Counsel also certifying about it — Court sending the bond to Tahsil for verification — Bond shall be deemed to be accepted on the date it was filed

Where the surety while furnishing the surety bond filed an affidavit stating therein that the property mentioned in the bond was of sufficient valuation and a vakil also certified that the surety possessed sufficient property, and the Magistrate sent the bond to the Tahsil for verification, the bond shall be deemed to be accepted on the date on which it was filed, subject to further orders on the receipt of the Tahsil report.

The provisions of S. 500, CrPC contemplate that the accused is to be released on the execution of the bonds which should be accepted on their face value in the first instance. Section 501, CrPC provides for the issue of a warrant of arrest of the person so released on bail if it is subsequently found that though mistake framed or otherwise insufficient surety had been accepted or if they afterwards became insufficient. Therefore the formal acceptance of the bond on a later date by the Magistrate does not in any way affect surety's liability on that bond from the date it was filed. Bekaru Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 430: (1963) 1 SCR 55: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 335, 38.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.L. Kapur and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1962]

[9194] — Ss. 499 and 514 — A surety bond executed in favour of "King Emperor Qaisar-e-Hind" in the year 1953, held, cannot be read, by virtue of Cl. 4 of the 1947 Order, to mean the Government — Adaptation of Existing Indian Laws Order, 1947, Cl. 4. State of Uttar Pradesh v. Mohammed Sayeed, AIR 1957 SC 587: 1957 SCR 770: 1957 BLJR 569: 1957 ALJ 685: 1957 Cri LJ 888.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, Syed Jafer Imam and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1957]

[9195] — S. 499 and Sch. V, Form 42 — Bond by surety is distinct from that by the accused himself — Hence, even if by mistake no personal bond is executed by the accused, held, the sureties can be made liable to forfeiture on the accused's failure to appear. Ram Lal v. State of U.P., (1979) 2 SCC 192: 1979 SCC (Cri) 418: AIR 1979 SC 1498: 1979 ALJ 899: 1980 Cri LJ 826: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 518: (1979) 16 ACC 145.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1979]

[9196] — S. 499 and Sch. V Form XIII — Form of bond — Surety executing the bond, but no bond executed at the back of this form by the accused — The bond is effective

The mere fact that Form No. XII, Sch. V, CrPC permits the contents of the two bonds one to be executed by the accused and the other by the surety, together, does not mean that both these bonds should be on the same sheet of paper. Where the surety 'B' executes a bond on such a form, and the accused did not execute his bond at its back, but executed it at the back of the form on which another surety executed the bond the surety bond of the 'B' is also effective. Bekaru Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 430: (1963) 1 SCR 55: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 335, 36.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.L. Kapur and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1962]

— Ss. 500 to 502 See Ss. 496 and 502

[9197] — Ss. 502 and 499 — Scope of — Surety applying for cancellation of surety bond — Court accepting a fresh surety without complying with the provisions of S. 502 — Provisions of S. 502 are not conditions precedent to the acceptance of fresh bond — There is no illegality and the bond of previous surety stands cancelled and fresh bond takes its place

These provisions of S. 502 are meant for the continuity of the surety bond on the basis of which an accused has been released on bail till such time that the accused is before the Court and for taking further action in case the accused desires to offer another security in place of the one who is to be discharged. They are not conditions precedent for the acceptance of a fresh surety in place of the earlier one.

Where 'S' the surety of the accused, applied for the discharge of his surety bond, no order was passed on the application on that date and two days after 'B' filed a fresh surety bond which was accepted by the Court, the Court committed no wrong. Bond of 'S' stood cancelled and 'B's took its place. Bekaru Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 430: (1963) 1 SCR 55: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 335, 38.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.L. Kapur and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1962]

[9198] — S. 503 — Issue of commission under — Application, if rightly rejected

Held, the application for the issue of commission under S. 503, CrPC, not being made out and not in good faith was a misconceived one and was rightly rejected. Mohd. Husain Umar Kochra v. K.S. Dalipsinghji, (1969) 3 SCC 429: 1970 SCC (Cri) 99: AIR 1970 SC 45: 1970 Cri LJ 9.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1969]

[9199] — S. 503 — Commission for examination of witness — Essential witnesses examined on commission without proper reasons — Effect — Accused cannot be held to have fair trial. Dharamanand Pant v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 594: 1957 SCR 321: 1957 Cri LJ 894, 898.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1957]

[9200] — Ss. 503 and 506 — Commission to examine witnesses — In what circumstance should be issued — Court should first make some effort to find out whether normal practice would not be followed and it is after the impossibility of such a process is ascertained that a commission should be issued — The mere fact that proceedings have got protracted for an extraordinary length of time probably for the reason that higher officers concerned were not prepared to take the matter seriously can by itself be no ground for issuing a commission. Dharamanand Pant v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 594: 1957 SCR 321: 1957 Cri LJ 894, 898.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1957]

[9201] — Ss. 503 and 506 — Examination of witness on commission — Witnesses in criminal cases should not be examined on commission except in extreme cases of delay, expense or inconvenience and in particular procedure by way of interrogation should be resorted in unavoidable situations

As a general rule it may be said that the important witnesses on whose testimony the case against the accused person has to be established, must be examined in court and usually the issuing of a commission should be restricted to formal witnesses or such witnesses who could not be produced without an amount of delay or inconvenience unreasonable in the circumstances of the case. In short, witnesses in a criminal case should not be examined on commission except in extreme cases of delay, expense or inconvenience and in particular the procedure by way of interrogatories should be resorted in unavoidable situations. The discretion to be used by the Magistrate is a judicial one and should not be lightly or arbitrarily exercised. Dharamanand Pant v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 594: 1957 SCR 321: 1957 Cri LJ 894, 898.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1957]

[9202] — S. 503 (before amendment by Act 26 of 1955) — Issue of commission for examination of witnesses — Procedure detailed — District Magistrate acting as a forwarding authority and not passing a proper order on Magistrate's application for issuing a commission — Effect — Evidence so taken would be improper and cannot be used against the accused — Entire proceedings are vitiated and the evidence of the witnesses taken on commission will have to be excluded

Before the enactment of S. 97 of Act 26 of 1955 no Magistrate other than a District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate could issue a commission and if any such subordinate Magistrate finds it expedient, necessary or essential to have a witness examined on commission, he has to apply to the District Magistrate who will either issue the commission himself or reject the application. The District Magistrate in issuing the commission, or rejecting the request is acting judicially and his orders are subject to supervision and control by the appellate or revisional Court.

Where the District Magistrate has simply acted as a forwarding agency for sending the commission issued by the trying Magistrate and when the essential pre-requisites for the validity of the issuing of a commission has not been complied with, the evidence so taken would be improper and could not be used against the accused. This is a defect which goes to the root of the matter and is vital in content. Thus the entire proceedings are vitiated and the evidence of the witnesses taken on commission will have to be completely eschewed from the record. Dharamanand Pant v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 594: 1957 SCR 321: 1957 Cri LJ 894, 898

Bench Strength 4. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam, P. Govinda Menon and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1957]

[9203] — S. 504(3) — Examination of witness in foreign country — Presence of defence lawyer essential

In every criminal trial the accused is entitled to have the witnesses examined in his presence and if a departure is made and witnesses cannot be brought to Court for one reason or the other whether due to the action of the accused or the inaction or want of diligence on the part of the prosecution, and they have to be examined on commission beyond the frontiers of this country, it is incumbent upon the prosecution and the Court in ensuring a fair and impartial trial to afford to the accused the same facilities for employment of a lawyer, the payment of his to and fro air fare to the place where the Commission will examine witnesses and his daily expenses while he is engaged in the work of the Commission. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 1 SCC 523: 1971 SCC (Cri) 231: AIR 1971 SC 1630: 1971 Cri LJ 1188.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, J. [Date of decision: 4-2-1971]

[9204] — Ss. 504(3) and 508-A — Notifications, dated 9-9-1969, issued under S. 504(3) — Procedure for issuing commissions to the courts of Federal Republic of West Germany notified — Reciprocal arrangements between the Government of India and the Federal Republic of West Germany for examination of witnesses not complete — No notification under S. 508-A specifying the Courts issued — Notification, dated 9-9-1969, is ineffective — No extension of time to be granted

The provisions contained in Ss. 504 and 508-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure contain complementary provisions for reciprocal arrangements between the Government of India and the Government of a foreign country for commission from Courts in India to specified Courts in the foreign country for examination of witnesses residing in that country vice versa.

No notification under S. 508-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure has been published specifying the courts in the Federal Republic of West Germany by whom commissions for examination of witnesses residing in India may be issued. The notification, dated September 9, 1969, in the present case under S. 504 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not based upon any existing complete arrangement between the Government of India and the Government of the Federal Republic of West Germany for examination of witnesses residing in West Germany. The notification, dated September 9, 1969, is ineffective for two reasons. First, there is no reciprocal arrangement between the Government of India and the Government of the Federal Republic of West Germany as contemplated in Ss. 504 and 508-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Secondly, the notification under S. 504 is nullified and repelled by the affidavit evidence adduced on behalf of the State that no arrangement between the two countries has yet been made.

When the court finds that there is no arrangement in existence, no order for extension of time shall be granted. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 3 SCC 793: 1972 SCC (Cri) 861: AIR 1972 SC 1567: 1972 Cri LJ 1055.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and J.M. Shelat, A.N. Ray, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-4-1972]

— S. 506 See Ss. 503 and 506

— S. 508-A See Ss. 504(3) and 508-A

— S. 510 See Ss. 162, 270-A and 510

See also Ss. 257 and 510

[9205] — S. 510 — Scope and application — Proof of person having consumed illicit liquor — Adoption of procedure other than prescribed in S. 129-A, Bombay Act, 1949 — Is permissible — S. 510, CrPC applies to a trial under S. 66, Bombay Act, 1949 — Bombay Prohibition Act, 1949 (25 of 1949), Ss. 66(1)(b) and (2), 129-A and 129-B. Ukha Kolhe v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 1531: (1964) 1 SCR 926: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 418: 1964 Mah LJ 246: 65 Bom LR 793.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1], K.C. Das Gupta[2] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1963]

[9206] — S. 510 — Chemical examiner — Duty regarding details of blood stains found on exhibits — Should if possible indicate the number of blood stains and extent of each stain — Failure may lead to miscarriage of justice

The Chemical Examiner's duty is to indicate the number of blood stains found by him on each exhibit, and the extent of each stain unless they are too minute or too numerous to be described in detail.

Merely to say that blood was detected on an exhibit, as this report states, is not enough. It may well lead to a miscarriage of justice compelling Judges to acquit when they would have convicted had the report been more revealing. Prabhu Babaji Navle v. State of Bombay, AIR 1956 SC 51: 1956 Cri LJ 147.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1955]

[9207] — S. 510 — Expression "duly submitted" — Meaning — Medical Officer collecting blood specimen and handing over to the police officer — Specimen held "duly submitted"

Where the blood specimen was collected by a Medical Officer and handed over to the Police Officer on demand by him and ultimately submitted to the Chemical Examiner for his examination, it would be regarded as "duly submitted" under S. 510, CrPC. Ukha Kolhe v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 1531: (1964) 1 SCR 926: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 418: 1964 Mah LJ 246: 65 Bom LR 793.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J.[1] and P.B. Gajendragadkar[1], K.N. Wanchoo[1], K.C. Das Gupta[2] and J.C. Shah[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-1963]

[9208] — S. 510 — Fingerprint — Report by Director of Finger Print Bureau — Report can be used without examining person giving such report. H.P. Admn. v. Om Prakash, (1972) 1 SCC 249: 1972 SCC (Cri) 88: AIR 1972 SC 975: (1972) 2 MLJ 16 (SC): 1972 Cri LJ 606.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1971]

[9209] — S. 510 — Only a sample to be sent

It was wholly unnecessary to send all the bottles recovered by the police in the presence of panches and which contained the same stuff for purpose of analysis. Vijendrajit Ayodhya Prasad Goel v. State of Bombay, AIR 1953 SC 247, 248: 1953 Cri LJ 1097.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1953]

[9210] — S. 510 — Reports of Chemical Examiner and Imperial Serologist — Major difference of opinion in — Duty of prosecution

In ordinary circumstances there would have been nothing wrong in taking reports of the Imperial Serologist and the Chemical Examiner on record as permitted by the Criminal Procedure Code. When however there is a major difference of opinion in the reports, the duty to explain the difference is on the prosecution and the mere production of the report does not, under the circumstances, prove anything which can weigh against the accused. Tulsiram Kanu v. State, AIR 1954 SC 1: 1954 Cri LJ 225.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Harilal J. Kania, C.J. and Patanjali Sastri and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-1-1951]

[9211] — S. 510-A — Police Officer taking fingerprints of accused not examined — He however submitting an affidavit — Held, to be admissible evidence — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 45 — CrPC, 1973, S. 296. Shankaria v. State of Rajasthan, (1978) 4 SCC 453: 1979 SCC (Cri) 74: AIR 1978 SC 1399: 1978 Cri LJ 1414.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, N.L. Untwalia and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1978]

— S. 514 See also Ss. 499 and 514

[9212] — S. 514 — Applicability of — Action under S. 514 could be taken only when the bond is taken by the Court under the provision of the Code such as S. 91 — Bond by Procurement Inspector ineffective

The language of this section is perfectly clear. The power to forfeit and the imposition of the penalty provided for in the later parts of the section arises only if the preliminary conditions are satisfied. Rameshwar Bhartia v. State of Assam, AIR 1952 SC 405: 1953 SCR 126: 1953 Cri LJ 163, 166.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-10-1952]

[9213] — S. 514 — Forfeiture — In 1953 surety bond executed in favour of "the King Emperor Qaisare-Hind" — Is not bond executed under the CrPC — Bond cannot be forfeited under the section

Since 26-1-1950 no bond executed in favour of the Empress of India could be said to be a bond executed under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The bond which the respondent had executed was to forfeit to the King Emperor a certain sum of money if he made default in procuring the attendance of the accused before the Court. He did not execute a bond by which he bound himself to forfeit the said sum either to the Government of the Union of India or that of the State of Uttar Pradesh. The bond executed by him in 1953 was a bond unknown to the law of the Republic of India under the Code of Criminal Procedure at the time of its execution. Section 514, CrPC, empowers a court to forfeit a bond which has been executed under the provisions of that Code and since the bond executed by the respondent is not one under the Code of Criminal Procedure, resort could not be had to the provisions of S. 514 of the Code to forfeit the same. State of Uttar Pradesh v. Mohammed Sayeed, AIR 1957 SC 587: 1957 SCR 770: 1957 BLJR 569: 1957 ALJ 685: 1957 Cri LJ 888.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, Syed Jafer Imam and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1957]

[9214] — S. 514 — Forfeiture of bond — Show-cause notice is obligatory for proceedings under the section — Absence of such notice vitiates the proceedings

Provisions of S. 514, CrPC show that before a surety becomes liable to pay amount of the bond forfeited it is necessary to give notice why the amount should not be paid and if he fails to show sufficient cause only then the Court can proceed to recover the money. Where show-cause notice is not given the proceedings are not in accordance with law and should therefore be quashed. Ghulam Mehdi v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1960 SC 1185: 1960 Cri LJ 1527.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-4-1959]

[9215] — S. 514 — Forfeiture of surety bond

The terms of the surety bond being penal in nature should be very strictly construed — Forfeiture on breach of the very undertaking specified and not any other. State of Bihar v. M. Homi, AIR 1955 SC 478: (1955) 2 SCR 78: 1955 Cri LJ 1017.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1955]

[9216] — S. 514 — Forfeiture of surety bond — Sureties undertaking to produce an accused whose sentence was suspended pending the disposal of his appeal by the Privy Council in the event of his conviction being maintained — In the meantime the jurisdiction of the Privy Council being transferred to Federal Court — Later Supreme Court maintaining the sentence and the accused migrating to Pakistan — The Court concerned has no jurisdiction to initiate proceedings against the sureties under S. 514

The sureties bound themselves for payment of the amount only in case the accused failed to surrender to the Court concerned within three days of the receipt of the notice of the order or judgment of the Judicial Committee if by the said order or judgment the sentence is upheld either partly or wholly. In view of the clear provision in the bond the terms of which being penal in nature must be very strictly construed, it cannot be said that the contingencies contemplated by the parties has occurred. There was no judgment or order of the Judicial Committee upholding either in part or in whole the sentence against the accused. As the terms of the bond so construed cannot be said to have been fulfilled the penalty stipulated has not been incurred. There is no substance in the contention of the appellant that in the events which had happened there could be no judgment or order of the Judicial Committee and therefore the judgment of the Supreme Court, which by virtue of the constitutional changes had come by the jurisdiction vested in the Privy Council, should be deemed to be the judgment or order contemplated by the parties to the surety bond; firstly, because there is no terms in the bond to the effect that the surety will be bound by any judgment or order given by such other court as may succeed to the jurisdiction then vested in the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to hear the appeal preferred by the accused against his conviction by the courts in India: and, secondly, because there is no room, while construing the penal clause of a surety bond, for the application of a legal fiction as suggested on behalf of the appellant. State of Bihar v. M. Homi, AIR 1955 SC 478: (1955) 2 SCR 78: 1955 Cri LJ 1017.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1955]

[9217] — S. 514 — Forfeiture of surety bonds — Bonds by respondent in favour of accused — Sureties assuring attendance of accused before Magistrate's court on 12-3-1964 — Accused appearing on due date but date extended up to 16-4-1964 — Magistrate issuing circular order directing accused to file applications in miscellaneous court — Accused not appearing on 16-4-1964 — Bond forfeited — Effect of circular order — Terms of bond cannot be varied unilaterally — Accused not bound to appear on 16-4-1964 — Forfeiture not justified — Surety bonds — Explained. State of Maharashtra v. Dadamiya Babumiya Sheikh, (1972) 3 SCC 85: 1972 SCC (Cri) 405: AIR 1971 SC 1722: 1971 Cri LJ 1274.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-1971]

[9218] — S. 514 — Plea against forfeiture — Plea that the court had no jurisdiction to forfeit the bond not taken either in the court of the Magistrate who forfeited the bond or in revision — The plea cannot be taken in revision before the High Court — Validity of the order of forfeiture — To be decided on the construction of the surety bond. Ramesh Chandra v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 689: 1972 SCC (Cri) 30: AIR 1972 SC 16: 1972 Cri LJ 5: 1972 ALJ 971.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1971]

[9219] — Ss. 514 and 523 — Bond given to a police officer — If can be enforced and security forfeited — S. 523 and U.P. Police Regulations, Regulation 165 — Effect of — CrPC, 1973, S. 446

Though S. 523, CrPC, read with Regulation 165 of U.P. Police Regulations authorises the police to seize the property and to make a summary order of the custody of the property, but neither S. 523 nor R. 165(ii) authorises the police officer to take a bond from the person to whom the property is entrusted. The policy of the law appears to be that the execution of the bond involves a civil liability and, therefore, it is in the fitness of things that it should be executed before a court.

Section 514 clearly shows that a bond for the production of the property seized by the police must be executed before the Court, although a bond for the appearance of any person before the Court can be taken by the police under S. 170(2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. This section also clearly enjoins that a bond can be forfeited only if it is executed before a court or before a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class.

Since in the present case the bond was not one as contemplated by S. 514, it could not be forfeited.

Even under the new Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 there is no express provision which empowers the police to get a bond from the person to whom the property seized is entrusted.

No observation is being made regarding any other liability of the appellant under the law. Anwar Ahmad v. State of U.P., (1976) 1 SCC 154: 1975 SCC (Cri) 785: AIR 1976 SC 680: (1976) 1 SCR 779: 1976 Cri LJ 620.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-9-1975]

— S. 516-A See Ss. 523 and 516-A

— S. 517 See also Ss. 10 and 517

[9220] — S. 517 — Bond taken by ADM — Propriety. Debabrata Bandhopadhyaya v. State of W.B., AIR 1969 SC 189: (1969) 1 SCR 304: 1969 Cri LJ 401.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-7-1968]

[9221] — S. 517 — Disposal of property — Property subject-matter of theft case lost while in custody of police — Liability of State to pay compensation to owner — CrPC, 1973, S. 452

In the instant case, it is not the case of the State that the property was lost in spite of due care and caution having been taken by it or due to circumstances beyond its control. The articles were alleged to have been kept in the guardroom of the police station and except the formality of a report that they were lost having been lodged no other action was taken by the State against the concerned police officers who were responsible for the custody. Therefore the State cannot successfully resist the application filed by the appellant and the value of the property must be paid to the appellant by the State.

Only the value of the articles recovered and seized by the police is due. Therefore Court must look for material showing value of the articles seized.

In the present case the appellant is entitled not only to the value of the goods but also the costs throughout. Basavva Kom Dyamangouda Patil v. State of Mysore, (1977) 4 SCC 358: 1977 SCC (Cri) 598: AIR 1977 SC 1749: 1977 Cri LJ 1141: 1977 MLJ (Cri) 486.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, R.S. Sarkaria and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1977]

[9222] — S. 517 — Held, Court's discretion to "make such order as it thinks fit" regarding disposal of the property is judicial and therefore the order must be based on reason and justice — Appellant acquitted of charge under S. 302, Indian Penal Code having caused death by licensed gun in self-defence — He never used or attempted to use the gun for commission of any offence in the past — In absence of any special circumstances, the trial Court, held, not justified in arbitrarily ordering for confiscation of the gun without giving any reason and opportunity of hearing to the appellant — CrPC, 1973, S. 452(1). N. Madhavan v. State of Kerala, (1979) 4 SCC 1: 1979 SCC (Cri) 883: AIR 1979 SC 1829: 1979 Cri LJ 1197.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, P.N. Shinghal and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-8-1979]

[9223] — S. 517 — Indemnity bond — Use of — Taken in the name of the State Government, if proper

There is nothing in the words of S. 517, CrPC which excluded the use of an indemnity bond.

The Sessions Judge did not order that the bond should be taken in the name of any particular court. A bond in the name of the Government of West Bengal substantially (if not wholly) complied with the order of the Sessions Judge. Debabrata Bandhopadhyaya v. State of W.B., AIR 1969 SC 189, 192: (1969) 1 SCR 304: 1969 Cri LJ 401.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and V. Ramaswami and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-7-1968]

[9224] — S. 517 — Money recovered from accused found not belonging to complainant — Not to be returned to complainant

Where in a trial for theft the accused was acquitted on the findings that no offence was committed in respect of the sum recovered from the accused and that it did not belong to the complainant, but the High Court in revision ordered the money to be awarded to the complainant.

Held :

That unless it was found that an offence was committed in respect of the said sum there was no jurisdiction to the High Court to order the payment of the amount to the complainant. Such an order of the High Court cannot be sustained under the clear provisions of S. 517, CrPC unless by due procedure of law the acquittal of the accused is changed into a conviction. Pushkar Singh v. State of M.B., AIR 1953 SC 508: 1954 Cri LJ 153.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-9-1951]

[9225] — S. 517 — Production before Court — Includes Court's order regarding custody of articles

The production before the Court does not mean physical custody or possession by the Court but includes even control exercised by the Court by passing an order regarding the custody of the articles. The object and scheme of the various provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code is that the subject-matter of an offence seized by the police ought not to be retained in the custody of the Court or of the police for any time longer than what is absolutely necessary. A seizure of the property by the police amounts to a clear entrustment of the property to a government servant and should be restored to the original owner after the necessity to retain it ceases. The property which is in the control of the Court either directly or indirectly should be disposed of by the Court and a just and proper order should be passed by the Court regarding its disposal. In a criminal case the police always acts under the control of the Court and has to take orders from it, at every stage of an enquiry or trial. Basavva Kom Dyamangouda Patil v. State of Mysore, (1977) 4 SCC 358: 1977 SCC (Cri) 598: AIR 1977 SC 1749: 1977 Cri LJ 1141: 1977 MLJ (Cri) 486.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, R.S. Sarkaria and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-4-1977]

[9226] — S. 517 — Scope of the power under S. 517 — S. 61-E of the Bombay District Police Act, 1890

Section 517 contains a general provision for disposal of the property in the circumstances mentioned in the latter part of the section.

The power of the Court no doubt extends to confiscation of property in the custody of the Court but it is not every case in which the Court must necessarily pass an order of confiscation irrespective of the circumstances of the case. It is possible to conceive of cases where the subject-matter of the offence may be property which under the law relating to that offence is liable to be confiscated as a punishment on conviction.

Confiscation is not the only mode of disposal under S. 517 and is singularly inappropriate in a case where the accused is prosecuted for an offence and a fine of Rs 100. It was certainly open to the Court to order the property to be delivered to the person claiming to be entitled to its possession. Suleman Issa v. State of Bombay, AIR 1954 SC 312, 314: 1954 SCR 976, 981: 1954 Cri LJ 881.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das, Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1954]

[9227] — Ss. 517 and 520 — Return of seized property — Necessity to hear the parties adversely effected by the order — Parties adversely affected must be heard before the order is passed

Though Ss. 517 and 520, CrPC are silent and do not expressly require issue of any notice to the parties adversely affected by the order, there is in the eye of the law a necessary implication that the parties adversely affected should be heard before the Court makes an order for the return of the seized property. State Bank of India v. Rajendra Kumar Singh, AIR 1969 SC 401: (1969) 2 SCR 216: 1969 Cri LJ 659, 61, 62.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-9-1968]

[9228] — Ss. 517 and 520 — Return of seized property — "Rights to possess" occurring in S. 517 — Meaning of — Bank having received currency notes in ordinary course of business, not knowing that the notes were involved in commission of offence — Police seizing the notes during the investigation of an offence. Held, High Court not justified in ordering the delivery of notes to the person who delivered the same to the Bank — Bank had "the right to possess" within the language of S. 517 — Bank entitled to an order for the return of notes to it

The High Court was in error in directing the return of the currency notes to 'A' and 'B'. The reason is that the property in coins and currency notes passes by mere delivery and it is that clearest exception to the rule nemo dat quod non habet. This exception was engrafted in the interest of commercial necessity. But the exception only applies if the transferee of the coin or currency notes takes in good faith for value and without notice of a defect in the title of the transferor.

The High Court should have directed the return of the said currency notes to the appellant which had the "right to possess" the currency notes within the language of S. 517 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. State Bank of India v. Rajendra Kumar Singh, AIR 1969 SC 401: (1969) 2 SCR 216: 1969 Cri LJ 659, 61, 62.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-9-1968]

— S. 520 See Ss. 517 and 520

[9229] — S. 522 — Appellate Court has power to make order for restoration of possession of immovable property even after disposing of the appeal — Where no time-limit prescribed order must be made within a reasonable time — "While disposing of the appeal, reference or revision" — Meaning of — CrPC, 1973, S. 456(2)

The appellate or revisional court acting under S. 456(2) will have jurisdiction or power to pass the order for restoration of possession at any time. There is no limitation on the power to the effect that such order must be incorporated in the body of the judgment disposing of the appeal, reference or revision; but it has to be exercised with discretion within reasonable time of the disposal of the appeal, reference or revision. H.P. Gupta v. Manohar Lal, (1979) 2 SCC 486: 1979 SCC (Cri) 530: AIR 1979 SC 443: 1979 Cri LJ 199: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 322: (1978) 15 ACC 427.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.D. Tulzapurkar and R.S. Pathak, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1978]

— S. 523 See also Ss. 514 and 523

[9230] — S. 523 — Seizure of goods in possession of petitioner without authority of law — Constitutionality of — Application under S. 523, CrPC — When does not bar remedy under Art. 226 — Constitution of India — Arts. 226, 19 & 31

Where the Indian Police at the instance of the Jammu and Kashmir Police seized the goods in possession of the petitioner in India and the seizure was not under any authority of law as it was not made under the orders of any magistrate, nor did Ss. 51, 95, 98 and 165, CrPC apply to the case and the Indian Police was not authorised to make any investigation for no report of any offence committed by the petitioner had been made to the Indian Police and the whole affair was a hole and corner affair between the Officers of the Kashmir Police and of the Indian Police without any reference to any Magistrate.

Held:

That the seizure of the goods from the possession of the petitioner amounted to an infringement of his fundamental rights both under Arts. 19 and 31 of the Constitution and relief should be granted to him under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Held, further, that the contention that, as the petitioner made an application under S. 523, CrPC to the Magistrate Art. 226 could not be availed of, could not be sustained for S. 523 would not apply to the facts and circumstances of the case, and the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to return the goods to the petitioner. Wazir Chand v. State of H.P., AIR 1954 SC 415: (1955) 1 SCR 408: 1954 Cri LJ 1029.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1954]

[9231] — S. 523 — Application under S. 523, CrPC does not bar the remedy under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Wazir Chand v. State of H.P., AIR 1954 SC 415: (1955) 1 SCR 408: 1954 Cri LJ 1029.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1954]

[9232] — S. 523 — Order of High Court for return of sums of monies and documents becoming final — In the absence of a criminal case or a valid order of assessment by the Income Tax authorities, such property could not be retained and must be returned — There must be an authority of law under which money can be kept — Revenue cannot keep the money on the plea that there will be a demand — CrPC, 1973, S. 457. J.R. Malhotra v. Addl. Sessions Judge, (1976) 1 SCC 430: 1976 SCC (Cri) 48: AIR 1976 SC 219: (1976) 2 SCR 993: 1976 Tax LR 130.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: A.N. Ray, C.J. and M.H. Beg, R.S. Sarkaria and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-1975]

[9233] — Ss. 523 and 516-A — Ss. 6-A and 7, Essential Commodities Act, 1955, Held, do not exclude criminal court's jurisdiction under Ss. 523 and 516-A, CrPC, 1898 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 451 and 457 — Essential Commodities Act, 1955, Ss. 6-A and 7

Having regard to the language used in Ss. 6-A and 7 of the Essential Commodities Act it must be held that the criminal court's jurisdiction to entertain an application under S. 523 read with S. 516-A CrPC, 1898 is not completely ousted. State of M.P. v. Rameshwar Rathod, (1990) 4 SCC 21: 1990 SCC (Cri) 522: AIR 1990 SC 1849: 1990 Cri LJ 1756.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Sabyasachi Mukharji, C.J. and K.N. Saikia, J. [Date of decision: 10-7-1990]

— S. 526 See Ss. 435, 439 and 526
See also Ss. 439, 561-A, 526 & 267

[9234] — S. 526 — Transfer of case under — Scope of powers of Special Judges — Special Judge having no territorial jurisdiction convicting accused after the case being transferred by High Court from another Criminal Court under S. 526 of CrPC, to him — Validity of conviction — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, S. 8

The order of the Special Judge convicting the appellant cannot be quashed merely on the ground that he had no territorial jurisdiction to try this case. In view of S. 531 on the Code of Criminal Procedure, the order of the Special Judge, Patna, is not to be set aside on the ground of his having no territorial jurisdiction to try this case, when no failure of justice has actually taken place. Ram Chandra Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1961 SC 1629, 1631: (1962) 2 SCR 50, 53, 54: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 811.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1961]

[9235] — S. 526 — Applicability to Special Judge — Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1952 — S. 8(3)

By virtue of S. 8(3) the provisions of S. 526 of the Criminal Procedure Code empowering the High Court to transfer any case from a criminal Court subordinate to it to any other Court competent to try it, apply to the case before any Special Judge. Ram Chandra Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1961 SC 1629, 1631: (1962) 2 SCR 50, 53-54: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 811.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1961]

[9236] — S. 526 — Bias or prejudice — Nature of. Manak Lal v. Dr. Prem Chand Singhvi, AIR 1957 SC 425: 1957 SCR 575.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, S.K. Das and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1957]

[9237] — S. 526 — Likelihood of prejudice to accused by reason of transfer. K.V. Krishnamurthy Iyer v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 406: 1954 Cri LJ 1024.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1952]

[9238] — S. 526 — Transfer of a case already going on for two and a half years — Propriety. K.V. Krishnamurthy Iyer v. State of Madras, AIR 1954 SC 406: 1954 Cri LJ 1024.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1952]

[9239] — S. 526 — Transfer of appeal to High Court — Scope — High Court can transfer on its own motion — No prejudice to the appellant in case he had an opportunity of being heard

Sub-section (3) of S. 526 states expressly that the high Court may act on its own initiative in passing such an order. In this particular case the High Court had the further circumstance that it had earlier issued a rule for enhancement of sentence, without knowing perhaps that an appeal had been filed to the Sessions Judge of Delhi a few days earlier. When this latter circumstance was brought to the notice of the High Court, it thought it expedient for the ends of justice to transfer the appeal to the High Court. It was open to the High Court to act on its own initiative and the appellant can make no grievance of the order of transfer on the ground of prejudice, because the appellant was fully heard both as to the correctness of his conviction and the propriety of the sentence originally passed against him by the learned Magistrate. Romesh Chandra Arora v. State, AIR 1960 SC 154: (1960) 1 SCR 924, 934: 1960 Cri LJ 177, 81.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1959]

[9240] — Ss. 526 and 531 — Applicability to offences exclusively triable by Special Judge under this section — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, S. 7

The provisions of S. 526 of the Criminal Procedure Code empowering the High Court to transfer any case from a criminal Court subordinate to it to any other court competent to try it, apply to the case before any Special Judge. In view of S. 531 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the order of the Special Judge, Patna, is not to be set aside on the ground of his having no territorial jurisdiction to try this case, when no failure of justice has actually taken place. Ram Chandra Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1961 SC 1629, 1631: (1962) 2 SCR 50, 53, 54: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 811.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1961]

[9241] — Ss. 526 and 531 — Transfer of certain pending cases — Applicability of S. 10, 1952 Act in view of Ss. 526 and 531 CrPC — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, S. 10

Section 10 simply provides that the cases triable by a Special Judge under S. 7 and pending before a Magistrate immediately before the commencement of the Act shall be forwarded for trial to the Special Judge having jurisdiction over such cases. There is nothing in this section which leads to the non-application of S. 531 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The order of the Special Judge convicting the appellant cannot be quashed merely on the ground that he had no territorial jurisdiction to try this case. Ram Chandra Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1961 SC 1629, 1632: (1962) 2 SCR 50, 54, 55: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 811.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1961]

[9242] — S. 526(1) — Transfer of cases by High Court — High Court is competent to transfer a case from the Court of Magistrate to the Court of Session

Per majority

The language of cl.(ii) of S. 526(1) CrPC is wide enough to provide for an order transferring a case from the Court of a Magistrate to a Court of Session as both the Courts are subordinate to the High Court and the Court of Session is a Court superior in jurisdiction to that of a Magistrate.

The High Court is competent under S. 526(1)(ii) of the Code to transfer a case from the Court of a Magistrate to the Court of the Sessions Judge.

There is no difficulty in the Court of Session trying the case transferred to it in accordance with the provisions of Ch. XXIII which deals with the procedure of trials before High Courts and Courts of Session. The Court of Session has to follow the procedure laid down in this Chapter so far as that be applicable to the cases to be tried by it. This is clear not only from the heading of the Chapter but also from the provisions of S. 268 which require all trials before a Court of Session to be either by jury or by the Judge himself, and of S. 270 which require the public prosecutor to conduct the prosecution in every trial before a Court of Session.

When the Sessions Court receives a case on transfer by the High Court it is not to consider whether it should proceed or not with the case. It has to proceed with the case as it has been transferred to it by the High Court. There is, therefore, no occasion for the Court of Session to take cognizance of the offence in the sense that it has to determine whether the proceeding should be initiated in connection with the offence or not. The proceedings have been already initiated by the Magistrate and have been simply transferred to it. It has simply to proceed with the inquiry or trial as the case may be as the case has been made over to it by the High Court. It is only when the Sessions Court considers the commitment to be good in law that it proceeds with the trial of the case. It is in this context that the Sessions Court has to take cognizance of the offence as a Court of original jurisdiction and it is such a cognizance which is referred to in S. 193. Therefore the further proceedings by the Court of Session in a case transferred to it by the High Court are not barred by S. 193 of the Code.

Per Ramaswami, J.

The High Court is not competent to transfer the Criminal case from the file of the Sub-divisional Magistrate's Court to that of the Additional Sessions Judge, Delhi, under the provisions of S. 526(1)(ii) of the Criminal Procedure Code. P.C. Gulati v. Lajya Ram, AIR 1966 SC 595, 597, 59: (1966) 1 SCR 560, 564: 1966 Cri LJ 465, 68, 69.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar[1], Raghubar Dayal[1] and V. Ramaswami[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1965]

[9243] — S. 527 — Proceedings for contempt before High Court — Whether can be transferred by Supreme Court to other High Court under S. 527, CrPC — Constitution of India, Art. 215

A High Court's power to institute proceedings for contempt and punish where necessary is a special jurisdiction and the Code of Criminal Procedure cannot be called in aid in such cases. Therefore, the Supreme Court is not entitled under S. 527, CrPC to transfer such proceedings from one High Court to another.

If the Code of Criminal Procedure does not apply, then there is no other power which the Supreme Court can exercise in this regard. The Constitution by Art. 215 gives every High Court the right and the power to punish a contempt of itself. The Supreme Court cannot deprive a High Court of the right which is so vested in it. It has no more power to do that than has a legislature. As for transfer of proceedings from one Judge to another, there is no original jurisdiction which the Supreme Court can exercise. It is not a fundamental right and so Art. 32 has no application. Sukhdev Singh v. Teja Singh, AIR 1954 SC 186, 190: 1954 SCR 454, 464: 1954 Cri LJ 460.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1953]

[9244] — S. 527 — Appointment of Special Judge — Transfer of case by Supreme Court — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, S. 7

No doubt sub-section (1) of S. 7, lays down that the trial of an offence specified in sub-section (1) of S. 6 must be by a Special Judge only but that condition can be fully met by transferring the case to another Special Judge. Indeed S. 527, CrPC itself contemplates that the transfer should be to a court of equal or superior jurisdiction and we presume that there are Special Judges in every State of India. The selection of a Special Judge causes no difficulty.

Nor can S. 7(2) be literally understood.

There is no comparison between the first sub-section and the second sub-section of S. 7. The condition in the second sub-section of S. 7 is not of the same character as the condition in the first sub-section. The first sub-section creates a condition which is a sine qua non for the trial of certain offences. That condition is that the trial must be before a Special Judge. The second sub-section distributes the work between Special Judges and lays emphasis on the fact that trial must be before a Special Judge appointed for the area in which the offence is committed. This second condition is on par with the distribution of work territorially between different Sessions Judges and Magistrates. An order of transfer must by the very nature of things sometimes result in taking the case out of the territory and the provisions of the Code which are preserved by the third sub-section of S. 8 must supervene to enable this to be done and the second sub-section of S. 7 must yield.

Supreme Court in exercise of its jurisdiction and power under S. 527 of the Code of Criminal Procedure can transfer a case from a Special Judge sub-ordinate to one High Court to another Special Judge subordinate to another High Court. Gurcharan Das Chadha v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1966 SC 1418, 1422: (1966) 2 SCR 678, 684: 1966 Cri LJ 1071.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1965]

[9245] — S. 527 — Jurisdiction — Question of inherent jurisdiction must be decided before merits are considered

Questions of inherent jurisdiction must always be decided before the merits are considered because to dismiss the petition after consideration of merits itself involves an assumption of jurisdiction. Gurcharan Das Chadha v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1966 SC 1418, 1420: (1966) 2 SCR 678, 681: 1966 Cri LJ 1071, 75.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1965]

[9246] — S. 527 — Petition of transfer of cases from the Court of Magistrate in Punjab to some Magistrate out of the State — Petitioner making serious allegations against the State Government, Chief Minister of Punjab and Superintendent of

Police in an affidavit — Allegations neither admitted nor denied by a counter affidavit — Supreme Court to accept the allegations made in petitioner's affidavit — Enough allegation present to show that certain strong parties were opposed to the petitioner — Cases fit to be transferred to a Court out of Punjab State

In the absence of any specific denial on the part of the State, the Chief Minister and the Superintendent of Police concerned, Supreme Court must reluctantly go by the affidavit filed by the petitioner. In proceedings of this kind, it should be known that the Court does not examine witnesses in support of allegations of fact made by either side. Ordinarily, the Court acts upon the affidavit of one side or that of the other. But if one side omits to make an affidavit in reply the affidavit of the other side remains uncontroverted.

The question really is whether the petitioner can be said to entertain reasonably an apprehension that he would not get justice. One of the highest principles in the administration of law is that justice should not only be done but should be seen to be done. In the present case, there is enough allegation to show that certain strong parties are opposed to the petitioner in various ways. Whether they would exercise any influence upon the magistracy and whether magistracy would be able to withstand such a pressure, if made, is not germane to the present petition. Therefore, the petitioner has, by his affidavit, made out sufficient circumstances from which it can be inferred that he does entertain, and entertain reasonably, an apprehension that he would not get justice in these cases. Therefore the case is one in which the interest of justice demand that the cases should be transferred outside the State of Punjab. Hazara Singh Gill v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 720, 721: (1964) 4 SCR 1, 4: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 639.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-5-1963]

[9247] — S. 527 — Supreme Court Rules, 1966 — Or. 36 — Transfer application — Apprehension of respondent that petitioner-accused being an influential person would tamper prosecution witnesses not supported by evidence — Transfer allowed — Respondent can at any stage complain to appropriate court if and when there are good grounds to support his apprehension. A.K.K. Nambiar v. Desraj, (1973) 3 SCC 873: 1973 SCC (Cri) 555: AIR 1973 SC 203: 1973 Cri LJ 270.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.S. Hegde, A.N. Grover and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1972]

[9248] — S. 527 — Transfer application being moved against the Magistrate — Magistrate himself filing an affidavit on behalf of the Delhi Admn. — Deponent Magistrate adopting, in the affidavit, an argument which might be urged by the complaint at the trial — Delhi Admn.'s act in requesting the Magistrate to file an affidavit and Magistrate's conduct in accepting the request disapproved — Case considered fit to be transferred. Kaushalya Devi v. Mool Raj, (1964) 4 SCR 884, 889-90: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 233, 236.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K. Subba Rao, K.N. Wanchoo, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-9-1963]

[9249] — S. 527 — Transfer of a criminal case by the Supreme Court — Ground for — Bitterness of local communal feelings and tenseness of atmosphere in the area — Is good ground for transfer. G.X. Francis v. Banke Bihari Singh, AIR 1958 SC 309, 310: 1958 Cri LJ 569.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1957]

[9250] — S. 527 — Transfer of case — Desirability of — Supreme Court Rules, 1966 — Or. 36

Held, where the petitioner is not unreasonably afraid to go to a place where trial is proceeding and the complainant has made it clear in no uncertain terms by his writings and conduct that he wants the accused at the place of trial with an ulterior motive, it is a fit case to be transferred to a court in a different place. Sesamma Phillip v. P. Phillip, (1973) 1 SCC 405: 1973 SCC (Cri) 349: AIR 1973 SC 875: 1973 Cri LJ 648.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and A.N. Ray, D.G. Palekar, M.H. Beg and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-1973]

[9251] — S. 527 — Transfer of criminal cases by Supreme Court — Grounds — 'A' earlier acquitted by a magistrate in a criminal case — Is not a good ground to transfer a subsequent criminal case started on the complaint of 'A' from the Court of that magistrate

A was convicted by a magistrate and in appeal was acquitted by an appellate Magistrate. Later A filed a complaint against some persons in the court of the Magistrate who earlier acquitted him in appeal. In a transfer application filed before the Supreme Court this was one of the grounds taken.

Held :

An apprehension based on such a ground is not reasonable. Such accusations should be discouraged and the Supreme Court would be extremely slow to allow a transfer on such a ground. The ground is rejected outright even without calling upon the explanation of the magistrate. G.X. Francis v. Banke Bihari Singh, AIR 1958 SC 309: 1958 Cri LJ 569.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1957]

[9252] — S. 527 — Transfer of Criminal Trial — Principles governing — There should be reasonable apprehension in accused's mind that justice will not be done — Accused not required to prove that justice will inevitably fail — Mere allegation that there is apprehension that justice will not be done not enough — Apprehension to be shown to be reasonable

A case is transferred if there is a reasonable apprehension on the part of a party to a case that justice will not be done. A petitioner is not required to demonstrate that justice will inevitably fail. He is entitled to a transfer if he shows circumstances from which it can be inferred that he entertains an apprehension and that it is reasonable in the circumstances alleged. It is one of the principles of the administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. However, a mere allegation that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. The Court has further to see whether the apprehension is reasonable or not. To judge of the reasonableness of the apprehension the state of the mind of the person who entertains the apprehension is no doubt relevant but that is not all. The apprehension must not only be entertained, but must appear to the Court to be a reasonable apprehension.

Nothing has been said which will show that there is in any manner an interference direct or indirect with the investigation of the offences alleged against him or the trial of the case before the Special Judge, Bharatpur. A general feeling that some persons are hostile to the petitioner is not sufficient. There must be material from which it can be inferred that the persons who are so hostile are interfering or are likely to interfere either directly or indirectly with the course of justice. Of this there is no trace either in his petition or in the arguments which were advanced. Nor does the petitioner allege anything against the Special Judge who is trying the case. Therefore the case is not fit for being transferred. Gurcharan Das Chadha v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1966 SC 1418, 1423: (1966) 2 SCR 678, 686: 1966 Cri LJ 1071, 1075.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1965]

[9253] — S. 527 — Transfer of Criminal trial pending before a Court of Special Judge created by Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952 — Power of Supreme Court to transfer

No doubt sub-section (1) of S. 7, lays down that the trial of an offence specified in sub-section (1) of S. 6 must be by a Special Judge only but that condition can be fully met by transferring the case to another Special Judge. Indeed S. 527 itself contemplates that the transfer should be to a court of equal or superior jurisdiction and it is presumed that there are Special Judges in every State of India.

The condition that an offence specified in S. 6(1) shall be tried by a Special Judge for the area within which it is committed merely specifies which of several Special Judges appointed in the State by the State Government shall try it. The provision is analogous to others under which the jurisdiction of Magistrates and Sessions Judges is determined on a territorial basis. Enactments in the CrPC intended to confer territorial jurisdiction upon Courts and Presiding Officers have never been held to stand in the way of transfer of criminal cases outside those areas of territorial jurisdiction. The order of transfer when it is made under the powers given by the Code invests another officer with jurisdiction although ordinarily he would lack territorial jurisdiction to try the case. The order of Supreme Court, therefore, which transfers a case from one Special Judge subordinate to one High Court to another Special Judge subordinate to another High Court creates jurisdiction in the latter in much the same way as the transfer by the High Court from one Sessions Judge in a Session Division to another Sessions Judge in another Session Division.

The Supreme Court in exercise of its jurisdiction and power under S. 527 of the CrPC can transfer a case from a Special Judge subordinate to one High Court to another Special Judge subordinate to another High Court. Gurcharan Das Chadha v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1966 SC 1418, 1422: (1966) 2 SCR 678, 684: 1966 Cri LJ 1071.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and M. Hidayatullah and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1965]

[9254] — S. 527 (as amended by Act 23 of 1952) — Transfer of a criminal case — Attempted murder of the Chief Justice of Mysore High Court — Appeal in Mysore High Court — Is a fit case when the appeal should be transferred to some other High Court

For any sound and reputable system of administration of justice it is as important that justice should appear to be done as that it is, in fact, done, and it is no reflection on the independence and impartiality of the learned Judges of the Mysore High Court to say that the ends of justice plainly require in the circumstances of this case that this appeal should be transferred to a court outside the State of Mysore. L.S. Raju v. State of Mysore, AIR 1953 SC 435: 1953 Cri LJ 1833.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Patanjali Sastri, C.J. and B.K. Mukherjea and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-5-1952]

[9255] — S. 528 — Scandalising the Court — Applicability of S. 228 of IPC — Exclusion of jurisdiction — Contempt of Courts Act, 1971, S. 2(c)(i)

Is filing a transfer application under S. 528, CrPC before a Magistrate and stating therein allegations attacking and scandalising the Judge and insult and an interruption to judicial proceedings and is S. 228, IPC applicable?

It depends on the circumstances of each case. If the application was filed in the office before the officer in charge of the court office, there can be no offence under S. 228, IPC. But if it was filed in open Court and counsel or party narrated the scurrilous grounds or read it, it can be termed as an insult to Court and an interruption to its proceedings. If S. 228 applied, then the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain contempt proceedings by virtue of S. 3(2) of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1952. State of M.P. v. Revashankar, AIR 1959 SC 102: 1959 SCR 1367: 1959 MPLJ 251: 1959 Cri LJ 251.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, S.K. Das and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1958]

[9256] — S. 528 — Scope of powers of Magistrate

On receiving complaint against the Sub-Divisional Magistrate the Magistrate acting under S. 528 was entitled to use his powers under that section if the allegations contained therein were substantiated. It is usual to send such applications to the court concerned for its remarks and that is precisely what he did, and as soon as the remarks were received and he was satisfied that the allegations were baseless, he declined to withdraw the case.

It is difficult to see how such an action on the part of the District Magistrate, done in the normal course of the discharge of his duties as such Magistrate, could be held to interfere with the course of administration of justice or to create prejudice of any kind against the complainant in the proceedings under S. 145, CrPC. There is nothing in S. 528, CrPC, which disables a Magistrate from taking action unless he is set in motion by the petition of one of the parties and nothing in the Code prevents any person from bringing facts to the notice of the District Magistrate which might suggest to that Magistrate that it was advisable to see whether the Magistrate should remain in charge of a particular case. Rizwan-Ul-Hasan v. State of U.P., AIR 1953 SC 185, 187: 1953 SCR 581, 587: 1953 Cri LJ 911.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-2-1953]

[9257] — S. 528(6) — Extra-judicial confession — When admissible — Recorded by Village Administrative Officer, a Village Headman, held, admissible — R. 72 of Criminal Rules of Practice and Orders, 1931 of Madras High Court, absolutely prohibiting Village Magistrates from recording any confession or statement of an accused after commencement of police investigation, has become redundant since a Village Headman cannot be treated as a Village Magistrate under CrPC, 1973 — Scope of power and function of Village Headman stated — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 40, 162 and 164 — Madras High Court Criminal Rules of Practice and Orders, 1931, R. 72 — Madras Village Police Regulations, 1816 — Regn. 10 — Madras Village Police Regulations, 1821 — Regn. 6 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 24. Sivakumar v. State, (2006) 1 SCC 714: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 2006 SC 653: (2006) 37 AIC 70 (SC): 2006 Cri LJ 536.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-2005]

Raja v. State, (1995) 2 LW (Cri) 513, overruled

Pregada Balanagu v. Krosuru Kotayya, AIR 1937 Mad 578: 38 Cri LJ 950; Lakshmanan, Re, (1971) 1 MLJ 242, approved

— S. 529 See Ss. 190(1)(a) and (b) & 529

See also Ss. 337(1), 10(2), 529 and Sch. III, Part V, Entry 7(a)

[9258] — S. 529 — Pardon granted bona fide

A pardon granted bona fide is fully protected by the provisions of S. 529 of Criminal Procedure Code. State of U.P. v. Kailash Nath Agarwal, (1973) 1 SCC 751: 1973 SCC (Cri) 698: AIR 1973 SC 2210: 1973 Cri LJ 1196.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1973]

[9259] — S. 529(c) — Application to Special Judge

Section 529(c) applies to Magistrates and would not apply to a Special Judge whose jurisdiction arises not on his taking cognizance under S.

190 of the CrPC but on the case for an offence specified in the Schedule being distributed to him by the State Government by notification. The defect of jurisdiction cannot be cured by S. 529(e) of the CrPC. The Special Judge was consequently not a court of competent jurisdiction and the proceedings before him were null and ineffectual. Bhajahari Mondal v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 8, 13: 1959 SCR 1276, 128: 1959 Cri LJ 98.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1958]

[9260] — Ss. 529(g), 337 and 338 — Irregularities which do not vitiate proceedings — Grant of pardon to approver by Chief Judicial Magistrate after committal of proceedings to the Court of Session is without jurisdiction — Such irregularity not a curable irregularity within S. 460(g) — Position under corresponding provision of old Code indicated — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 460(g), 306, and 307. A. Devendran v. State of T.N., (1997) 11 SCC 720: AIR 1998 SC 2821.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.B. Pattanaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-1997]

[9261] — Ss. 530(p) and 29 — Irregularity vitiating proceeding — U.P. Private Forest Act, 1948 (6 of 1949) — S. 15(2)

In view of the clear words of S. 29(1), the trial of these cases ought to have been before a court designated in S. 15(2) and as the trial was before a Magistrate who was not empowered to try the offence the proceedings were rightly declared void under S. 530(p) of the CrPC. State of U.P. v. Sabir Ali, AIR 1964 SC 1673, 1676: (1964) 7 SCR 435, 440: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 606.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1964]

— S. 531 See Ss. 526 and 531

See also Ss. 537 and 531

[9262] — S. 531 — Case of lack of territorial jurisdiction of Special Judge — S. 531 Applicable — Ss. 7 & 10 of Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1952 no bar

In view of S. 531 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the order of the Special Judge, Patna is not to be set aside on the ground of his having no territorial jurisdiction to try this case, when no failure of justice has actually taken place. Ram Chandra Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1961 SC 1629, 1632: (1962) 2 SCR 50, 54: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 811.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1961]

[9263] — S. 531 — Prejudice caused to be shown

The mere fact that proceedings were taken in a wrong place would not vitiate the trial unless it appears that this has occasioned a failure of justice. Mangaldas Raghavji Ruparel v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1966 SC 128, 130: (1965) 2 SCR 894, 897: 1966 Cri LJ 106.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah, J.C. Shah, J.R. Mudholkar and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-1965]

[9264] — S. 531 — Whether prohibits investigation into injustice caused by wrongful assumption of jurisdiction when such question is not pleaded — Not decided

No opinion need be expressed on the question whether by virtue of S. 531 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the High Court was prohibited from investigating the question, in the absence of a plea, that assumption of jurisdiction had occasioned the failure of justice. K.A.A. Brinnand v. Bijoyanand Patnaik, (1971) 3 SCC 943: 1972 SCC (Cri) 191.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-2-1970]

[9265] — Ss. 531 and 488(1) — Scope of S. 531 — Magistrate before whom petition for maintenance was filed and who addressed himself to the question of territorial jurisdiction, recorded and considered the evidence and came to the finding that the petition was maintainable in his Court, held, should be given benefit of S. 531 if that finding is set aside

Section 531 relates to a defect of jurisdiction which may relate (i) to the power of the Court to try such matter or (ii) to its territorial jurisdiction. While the former goes to the root of the matter and any transgression of it makes the entire trial void, the latter is not of a peremptory character and is curable under S. 531 of the Code.

Section 531 does not entitle a magistrate, who is not a magistrate of the class referred to in sub-section (1) of S. 488, to proceed with an application for maintenance. So where a magistrate has the "power" to try a particular application under S. 488, and the controversy relates solely to his territorial jurisdiction, there should, ordinarily, be no reason why S. 531 of the Code should not be applicable to the order made by him.

The true meaning of S. 531 is that while it will not uphold an order passed in proceedings wilfully taken in a wrong place, or enable a magistrate to confer jurisdiction on himself when he knows that he has no such jurisdiction, there is no reason why a magistrate who is otherwise duly empowered to make an order under sub-section (1) of S. 488 of the Code, cannot proceed with an application under that sub-section for the purpose of deciding whether he has the territorial jurisdiction to entertain the application and to decide the application on the merits if he finds that he has the territorial jurisdiction. Section 531 cannot thus be said to be inapplicable to a case where there is a controversy as to the district where the proceeding should be held, the parties lead evidence in support of their respective contentions about the correct place of the proceeding, and the magistrate finds it necessary (after taking note of the entire evidence on the controversy) to arrive at a decision on the basis of the balance of probabilities. In other words, there is no reason why, in such a case, S. 531 should not be applicable merely because the magistrate, while considering the evidence relating to jurisdiction, unwittingly makes a reference to S. 531 in passing and not for the purpose of assuming jurisdiction under it.

The Magistrate in the present case addressed himself to the question of jurisdiction, recorded detailed evidence on it, considered the evidence in his order and reached the conclusion that the application was maintainable in his court. Section 531 cannot, therefore, be rendered inapplicable merely because an objection was raised by the respondent "right at the first instance".

It may be that, in a given case, it may be advisable for a magistrate to confine the evidence of the parties, in the first instance, to any preliminary objection relating to jurisdiction, and to decide the controversy on the merits thereafter.

Where the Magistrate, as in the present case, directed that evidence be given on the whole case including the question of jurisdiction, the defendant cannot unilaterally reserve the right to file a written reply on the merits later on. And since no defence on merits was at all entered into the defendant cannot now plead inapplicability of S. 531.

By refraining to produce his evidence on merits the defendant has no justification to raise the question of prejudice or failure of justice.

The respondent cannot in fact be heard to raise the question of prejudice when on the uncontroverted and well-established facts the Magistrate found that the respondent was a person who had sufficient means and had neglected to maintain his wife. Raj Kumari Vijh v. Dev Raj Vijh, (1977) 2 SCC 190: 1977 SCC (Cri) 294: AIR 1977 SC 1101: (1977) 2 SCR 997: 1977 Cri LJ 940.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1977]

— S. 533 See Ss. 164 and 533

See also Ss. 364(3) and 533

[9266] — S. 533 — Magistrate recording the confession not examined by the prosecution — Criticism of defence against this conduct of prosecution is not proper — Magistrate rightly not called and it would have been undesirable for the prosecution to have produced him. Kashmira Singh v. State of M.P., AIR 1952 SC 159: 1952 SCR 526: 1952 Cri LJ 839, 840.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, B.K. Mukherjea and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-3-1952]

[9267] — Ss. 533 and 164 — Relative scope

A statement would not have been "duly made" unless the procedure for making it laid down in S. 164 had been followed. What S. 533 therefore, does is to permit oral evidence to be given to prove that the procedure laid down in S. 164 had in fact been followed when the Court finds that the record produced before it does not show that that was so. If the oral evidence establishes that the procedure had been followed, then only can the record be admitted. Therefore, far from showing that the procedure laid down in S. 164 is not intended to be obligatory, S. 533 really emphasises that that procedure has to be followed. The section only permits oral evidence to prove that the procedure had actually been followed in certain cases where the record which ought to show that does not on the face of it do so. State of U.P. v. Singhara Singh, AIR 1964 SC 358, 362: (1964) 4 SCR 485, 492: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 263 (2).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, M. Hidayatullah and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-8-1963]

See also (1963) 3 SCR 749: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 566

— S. 533(1) See Ss. 164(2), 364(3) and 533(1)

— S. 535 See Ss. 223, 535 and 537

See also Ss. 225, 221, 537 and 535

See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537

[9268] — S. 535 — Absence of prejudice — Conviction upheld. Mobarik Ali Ahmed v. State of Bombay, AIR 1957 SC 857: 1958 SCR 328: 1957 Cri LJ 1346.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1957]

[9269] — S. 535 — Oral statement of Magistrate as to confession

Once the investigation had started any non-confessional statement made by the accused also required to be recorded in the manner indicated in that section and if no such record had been made by the Magistrate, the Magistrate would not be competent to give oral evidence of such statement having been made by the accused. Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of V.P., AIR 1954 SC 322, 333: 1954 SCR 1098, 110: 1954 Cri LJ 910.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1954]

[9270] — Ss. 535, 537 and S. 149, IPC — Charge for offence under S. 149, IPC — Failure to mention knowledge or likelihood of commission of offence — Whether caused failure of justice

In the case under appeal the charge did not refer to any knowledge or likelihood of the offence of murder. It would no doubt have been better if in the charge knowledge of likelihood of the offence of murder in prosecution of the common object had been specifically mentioned. Such a course would have given proper notice and opportunity to the accused persons to meet the specific charge. But failure to do so does not, in our view, by itself necessarily and automatically render illegal the conviction based on the conclusion that the members of the unlawful assembly must have known that the offence of murder was likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. Mention of S. 149 in the charge might generally be considered to be wide enough to include the charge based on the second part of this section. The matter would, however, have to be considered on the facts and circumstances of each case for determining as to whether the general nature of the charge has prejudiced the accused and, therefore, occasioned failure of justice. State of Assam v. Barga Dewani, (1970) 3 SCC 236: 1971 SCC (Cri) 54.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, K.S. Hegde and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-1970]

[9271] — Ss. 535 and 537 — Accused charged with Ss. 302/149, IPC convicted under S. 302 — Whether curable

In the present case there was an illegality and not an irregularity curable by the provisions of Ss. 535 and 537, CrPC. Nanak Chand v. State of Punjab, AIR 1955 SC 274, 279, 28: (1955) 1 SCR 1201, 121: 1955 Cri LJ 721.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-1955]

See also AIR 1955 SC 419: 1955 Cri LJ 1004

[9272] — Ss. 535 and 537 — Failure of justice — Is a question of fact and benefit of doubt will go to the accused. Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116, 128-29: (1955) 2 SCR 1140: 1956 Cri LJ 291.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.R. Das[1], Vivian Bose[1], B. Jagannadhadas[2], Syed Jafer Imam[3] and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1955]

[9273] — Ss. 535 and 537 — Nature and scope — Defect in following procedure curable if no prejudice caused. Chittaranjan Das v. State of W.B., AIR 1963 SC 1696, 1699: (1964) 3 SCR 237, 246: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 534.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1963]

[9274] — S. 536 — Cannot cure violation of Art. 14 — Constitution of India — Art. 14. Dhirendra Kumar v. Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Govt. of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 424, 428: (1955) 1 SCR 224, 234: (1954) 2 MLJ 128: 1954 Cri LJ 1036.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1954]

[9275] — S. 536 — Scope of — Notification withdrawing jury trial revoking previous notification granting the same — It being bad under S. 269 & Art. 14 — Whether S. 536 applies

Section 536 postulates irregularities at the trial after the commencement of the proceedings but it does not concern itself with a notification made under S. 269(1) which travels beyond the limits of that section or which contravenes Art. 14 of the Constitution. The chapter of the CrPC in which this section is included, deals with mere procedural irregularities in the procedure committed by a court and envisages that when an objection is taken, the Court is then enabled to cure the irregularity. Dhirendra Kumar v. Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Govt. of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 424, 428: (1955) 1 SCR 224, 234: (1954) 2 MLJ 128: 1954 Cri LJ 1036.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1954]

[9276] — S. 536 — Trial without jury of offence triable by jury — Objection not taken in the trial Court — Is not open in the Appellate Court. Chandi Prasad Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1956 SC 149: (1955) 2 SCR 1035: 1956 Cri LJ 322, 325: (1956) 1 MLJ (SC) 88: 1956 ALJ 153.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Vivian Bose and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1955]

— S. 537 See Ss. 161, 207-A and 537
See also Ss. 203 and 537
See also Ss. 222(2), 235(1) and 537
See also Ss. 222(2) proviso, 225 and 537
See also Ss. 223, 535 and 537
See also Ss. 225, 221, 537 and 535
See also Ss. 225 and 537

See also Ss. 232, 233 to 250, 535 and 537
See also Ss. 233 to 239 and 537
See also Ss. 233, 239 and 537
See also Ss. 233 and 537
See also Ss. 234, 235 and 537
See also Ss. 237 and 537
See also Ss. 241 and 537
See also Ss. 251-A, 252, 253 and 537
See also Ss. 271 and 537
See also Ss. 297, 423 and 537
See also Ss. 297 and 537
See also Ss. 342 and 537
See also Ss. 347(1), 208 and 537
See also Ss. 356(1) and 537
See also Ss. 360 and 537
See also Ss. 361 and 537
See also Ss. 367(1) and 537
See also Ss. 423(1)(a) and 537
See also Ss. 535 and 537
See also Ss. 535, 537 and 149
See also Ss. 540 and 537

[9277] — S. 537 — Error or irregularity in a sanction for prosecution — Held, prosecution not vitiated unless a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby — Merely because the defence raised this objection at the earliest opportunity not sufficient to vitiate the trial — Position under old Code compared — CrPC, 1973, S. 465

In the corresponding provision under the old Code of 1898 the words "or any error or irregularity in any sanction for the prosecution" were absent. Legal position under the old Code, as settled by the decisions of various courts, was that any defect in sanction was not curable and hence the prosecution itself would have been void.

Parliament advisedly incorporated the words "any error or irregularity in any sanction for the prosecution" in Section 465 of the present Code as they wanted to prevent failure of prosecution on the mere ground of any error or irregularity in the sanction for prosecutions. An error or irregularity in a sanction may, nevertheless, vitiate the prosecution only if such error or irregularity has occasioned failure of justice.

Sub-section (2) of Section 465 of the Code is not a carte blanche for rendering all trials vitiated on the ground of the irregularity of sanction if objection thereto was raised at the first instance itself. The sub-section only says that "the court shall have regard to the fact" that objection has been raised at the earlier stage in the proceedings. It is only one of the considerations to be weighed but it does not mean that if objection was raised at the earlier stage, for that very reason the irregularity in the sanction would spoil the prosecution and transmute the proceedings into a void trial. Kalpnath Rai v. State, (1997) 8 SCC 732: AIR 1998 SC 201.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-1997]

[9278] — S. 537 — Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956, S. 15(2) — Non-compliance with S. 15(2) — Result of Sub-section 15(2) enjoins on the Special Public Officer to call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality (one of whom shall be a woman) to attend and witness the search. The word used "shall call upon" is mandatory. The Panch witnesses not being of the locality is clear contravention of the sub-section. The court held that though investigating agencies should not disregard this provision, yet the defect or illegality has no direct bearing upon the competency or the procedure relating to cognizance or trial of an offence unless as laid down in S. 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the irregularity or illegality has resulted in miscarriage of justice. As no prejudice has been shown to have been caused to the accused in the trial on this account, the conviction was confirmed. The principles that govern searches under S. 165, CrPC, were held to be applicable to searches under this Act also. Bai Radha v. State of Gujarat, (1969) 1 SCC 43: AIR 1970 SC 1396: 1970 Cri LJ 1279.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1968]

[9279] — S. 537 — Accused charged under S. 5(2), Prevention of Corruption Act read with S. 34, IPC — Convicted by High Court under S. 5(2), Prevention of Corruption Act — S. 537 applies — Conviction is not bad in the absence of prejudice and failure of justice

Where the accused was charged under S. 5(2), Prevention of Corruption Act read with S. 34, IPC and was convicted under S. 5(2) of the Act there was no prejudice to the accused or failure of justice where the accused had clear knowledge from the inception that the prosecution case against him was that he committed an offence under S. 5(2) of the Act and he had every opportunity and indeed he made a sustained effort throughout the trial to defend himself against the said accusation. Major E.G. Barsay v. State of Bombay, AIR 1961 SC 1762: (1962) 2 SCR 195: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1961]

Willie Slaney, AIR 1956 SC 116: 1956 Cri LJ 291, followed

[9280] — S. 537 — Accused charged under Ss. 307/149, IPC — Ingredients of — S. 149, IPC, not specified in the charge — No failure of justice — Defect is curable under S. 537. Teeka v. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 803: (1962) 1 SCR 75: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 859, 862: 1961 All Cri R 198: 1961 MPC 441.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1961]

[9281] — S. 537 — Amendment of — Scope of S. 537, CrPC, made wider, covering cases of misjoinder of charges. Banwari v. State of U.P., AIR 1962 SC 1198: 1962 Supp (3) SCR 180: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 278, 283.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1962]

[9282] — S. 537 — Appeal to Supreme Court — Constitution of India, Art. 134(1)(c) — Complaint describing K as an accused — Not clear in complaint as to who was really meant to be prosecuted — No failure of justice shown — Plea that K cannot be treated as an accused — Not taken in High Court — Cannot be permitted to be raised in Supreme Court

The complaint no doubt was not clear as to who was really meant to be prosecuted but it described K as an accused. Under the Explanation to S. 537 of the CrPC no error, omission or irregularity in the complaint should have led to a reversal of the finding that K was guilty unless there was a failure of justice. The objection that he was not named as an accused throughout the complaint and that he was thus not an accused could have been raised at the trial but it was not. On the contrary, K entered a plea of not guilty on his own behalf and also stood examination as an accused. It is obvious that he was regarded as the accused and he understood his own position. The objection could not be entertained in revision in the High Court as it was belated and the defect, if any, had not occasioned a failure of justice. State of W.B. v. Motilal Kanoria, AIR 1966 SC 1586, 1593: (1966) 3 SCR 933, 946: 1966 Cri LJ 1210, 1214.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah, J.C. Shah and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1966]

[9283] — S. 537 — Breach of every provision of Criminal Procedure Code does not invalidate the trial — Irregularities occurring in the course of trial can be cured by S. 537

It would be relevant to state that the breach of every provision of the Code does not necessarily make trial invalid. If the criminal trial is conducted substantially in the manner prescribed by the Code but some irregularity occurs in the course of such conduct, the irregularity can be cured under S. 537, and nonetheless so because the irregularity involves, as must nearly always be the case, a breach of one or more of the very comprehensive provisions of the Code. Kadiri Kunhahammad v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 661: 1960 Cri LJ 1013.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1959]

[9284] — S. 537 — Charge for offence read with S. 34, IPC — Conviction for the substantive offence only replaced. Jaikrishnadas Manohardas Desai v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 889: (1960) 3 SCR 319: 1960 Cri LJ 1250.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K.N. Wanchoo and J.C. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1960]

[9285] — S. 537 — Charge under S. 302 r/w S. 149, IPC — Conviction under S. 302 r/w S. 34 upheld. Jagir Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1968 SC 43: (1967) 3 SCR 256: 1968 Cri LJ 89.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Bachawat and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1967]

[9286] — S. 537 — Commission of an offence under S. 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 disclosed during the course of investigation — Investigation continued after taking permission under S. 5-A of Corruption Act, 1947 — Defect is cured by S. 537 and no interference in appeal is called for. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196: (1955) 1 SCR 1150: 1955 Cri LJ 526, 533, 53.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

See also AIR 1964 SC 33: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 16

[9287] — S. 537 — Defect in investigation — Burden to show prejudice — Relevance of early objection

If cognizance is in fact taken, on a police report vitiated by the breach of a mandatory provision relating to investigation, there can be no doubt that the result of the trial which follows it cannot be set aside unless the illegality in the investigation can be shown to have brought about a miscarriage of justice. That an illegality committed in the course of investigation does not affect the competence and the jurisdiction of the Court for trial.

When the breach of a mandatory provision is brought to the knowledge of the Court at a sufficiently early stage, the Court, while not declining cognizance, will have to take the necessary steps to get the illegality cured and the defect rectified, by ordering such reinvestigation as the circumstances of an individual case may call for.

Even if the trial had proceeded to conclusion and the accused had to make out that there was in fact a failure of justice as the result of such an error, explanation to S. 537, CrPC indicates that the fact of the objection having been raised at early stage of the proceedings is a pertinent factor. To ignore the breach in such a situation when brought to the notice of the Court would be virtually to make a dead letter of the peremptory provision which has been enacted on grounds of public policy for the benefit of such an accused. H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196, 204: (1955) 1 SCR 1150, 116: 1955 Cri LJ 526.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1954]

[9288] — S. 537 — Disobedience to an express provision as to a mode of trial not to be regarded as a mere irregularity. Magga v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1953 SC 174: 1953 SCR 973: 1953 Cri LJ 892.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.C. Mahajan and S.R. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1953]

[9289] — S. 537 — Effect of amendment by Act 26 of 1955 — Saves misjoinder of charges if no failure of justice is occasioned — Misjoinder of charges — No failure of justice — Defect curable by S. 537

After the amendment there is no scope for contending that misjoinder of charges is not saved by S. 537 of the Criminal Procedure Code if it has not occasioned a failure of justice.

Section 537, CrPC, prohibits the revisional or the Appellate Court from setting aside a finding, sentence, or order passed by a court of competent jurisdiction on the ground of misjoinder of charges unless it has occasioned a failure of justice. Birichh Bhujan v. State of Bihar, AIR 1963 SC 1120, 1128: 1963 Supp (2) SCR 328: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 190, 192.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, K. Subba Rao, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1962]

[9290] — S. 537 — Explanation — Scope

Explanation to S. 537 requires a court to take into consideration the fact whether any objection on the score of irregularity could have been raised at an earlier stage. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 214, 216: 1952 SCR 812, 818: 1952 Cri LJ 1131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1952]

[9291] — S. 537 — Failure of justice — Prejudice — Objection not taken in lower Courts and in grounds of appeal — Is not fatal, but weighs against the accused. K.C. Mathew v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1956 SC 241, 243, 24: (1955) 2 SCR 1057, 106: 1956 Cri LJ 444.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-12-1955]

[9292] — S. 537 — Fairness or unfairness of trial owing to irregularities in investigation — Question of — Not affecting merits — Supreme Court's inability to examine

Supreme Court was unable to enter into the question of the fairness or unfairness of the trial due to certain irregularities in investigation because it did not affect the merits of the matter. Gajanand v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 695: 1954 Cri LJ 1746.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, C.J. and Vivian Bose and Ghulam Hasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-1954]

[9293] — S. 537 — Illegal investigation — Question whether illegal investigation resulted in prejudice to the accused not decided by High Court — Criminal proceedings not liable to be quashed — Case remanded to High Court

An illegal investigation does not vitiate the trial. The High Court erred in quashing the proceedings against the respondent solely on the ground of illegal investigation. In order to set aside the conviction it must be shown that there has been miscarriage of justice as a result of bad and irregular investigation. State of A.P. v. P.V. Narayana, (1971) 1 SCC 483: 1971 SCC (Cri) 186: AIR 1971 SC 811: 1971 Cri LJ 676.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, J. [Date of decision: 9-2-1971]

[9294] — S. 537 — Inadequate compliance with S. 342. Bimbadhar Pradhan v. State of Orissa, AIR 1956 SC 469: 1956 SCR 206: 1956 Cri LJ 831: (1956) 2 MLJ (SC) 13.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1956]

See also AIR 1956 SC 536: 1956 Cri LJ 940

[9295] — S. 537 — Irregularity in investigation — Irregularity in not following mandatory provision not material unless results in miscarriage of justice

Where cognizance of the case has in fact been taken and the case has proceeded to termination, the invalidity of the preceding investigation will not vitiate the result unless miscarriage of justice has been caused thereby and the accused has been prejudiced. Assuming in favour of the appellant, that there was an irregularity in the investigation and that S. 5-A of the Act, was not complied with in substance, the trial by the Special Judge cannot be held to be illegal unless it is shown that miscarriage of justice has been caused on account of illegal investigation.

If objection as to irregularity is not taken at trial stage the case is governed by H. N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, (1955) 1 SCR 1150 and not by State of M.P. v. Mubarak Ali, (1959) Supp 2 SCR 201. Muni Lal v. Delhi Admn., (1971) 2 SCC 48: 1971 SCC (Cri) 407: AIR 1971 SC 1525: 1971 Cri LJ 1153.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1971]

[9296] — S. 537 — Irregularity in the trial — Where trial conducted substantially in the manner prescribed by the Code of CrPC but some irregularity occurred in the course of such conduct the irregularity can be cured under the section. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, 1012.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

[9297] — S. 537 — Irregularity not affecting course of justice

The investigation in the present case by the Deputy Superintendent of Police cannot be considered to be in any way unauthorised or contrary to law. In this connection it may not be out of place also to point out that the function of investigation is merely to collect evidence and any irregularity or even illegality in the course of collection of evidence can scarcely be considered by itself to affect the legality of the trial by an otherwise competent court of the offence so investigated. A.C. Sharma v. Delhi Admn., (1973) 1 SCC 726: 1973 SCC (Cri) 608: AIR 1973 SC 913: (1973) 3 SCR 477: 1973 Cri LJ 902.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-2-1973]

[9298] — S. 537 — Judgment not signed

As soon as the judgment is delivered, that becomes the operative pronouncement of the Court. The law then provides for the manner in which it is to be authenticated and made certain. The rules regarding this differ but they do not form the essence of the matter and if there is irregularity in carrying them out it is curable. Thus, if a judgment happens not to be signed and is inadvertently acted on and executed, the proceedings consequent on it would be valid because the judgment, if it can be shown to have been validly delivered, would stand good despite defects in the mode of its subsequent authentication. Surendra Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 194, 197: 1954 SCR 330, 337: 1954 Cri LJ 475.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, Vivian Bose and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1953]

[9299] — S. 537 — Misjoinder of charges — Plea taken before High Court — Court to consider whether prejudice has in fact been caused to the accused. State of A.P. v. Cheemalapati Ganeswara Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1850: (1964) 3 SCR 297: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-1963]

[9300] — S. 537 — Mistake by police officer during investigation — If covered — Failure to submit police case diary — U.P. Police Regulation — R. 109

The CrPC in laying down the omissions or irregularities which either vitiate the proceedings or not does not anywhere specifically say that a mistake committed by a police officer during the course of the investigation can be said to be an illegality or irregularity. Investigation is certainly not an inquiry or trial before the Court and the fact that there is no specific provision either way in Chapter XLV with respect to omissions or mistakes committed during the course of investigation except with regard to the holding of an inquest is a sufficient indication that the legislature did not contemplate any irregularity in investigation as of sufficient importance to vitiate or otherwise form any infirmity in the inquiry or trial. Niranjan Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 142, 148: 1956 SCR 734, 744: 1957 Cri LJ 294.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, Syed Jafer Imam, S.K. Das and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-1956]

[9301] — S. 537 — Non-compliance with S. 342 — Effect

Every error or omission in compliance with S. 342 does not necessarily vitiate the trial. Errors of that type fall within the category of curable irregularity and the question whether the trial has been vitiated depends in each case upon the degree of error and upon whether prejudice has been or is likely to have been caused to the accused. Makan Jivan v. State of Gujarat, (1971) 3 SCC 297: 1971 SCC (Cri) 587: AIR 1971 SC 1797: 1971 Cri LJ 1310.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1971]

[9302] — S. 537 — Omission to mention S. 34, IPC, in charge — Held, no prejudice caused as accused knew they were being tried in pursuance of common intention to commit the murder. Rawalpenta Venkalu v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1956 SC 171: 1956 Cri LJ 338.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1955]

[9303] — S. 537 — Prejudice to the accused — How to judge — Courts should look to the substance and not to the technicalities — The main concern of the Court should be to see if the accused had a fair trial, whether he knew what he was being tried for, whether main facts sought to be established against him were explained to him fairly and clearly and whether he was given a full and fair chance to defend himself. Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, 1012.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1957]

[9304] — S. 537 — Separate charge not framed — No prejudice caused — Irregularity cured by S. 537. Kanta Prashad v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1958 SC 350: 1958 SCR 1218: 1958 Cri LJ 698.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and Syed Jafer Imam, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1958]

[9305] — Ss. 537, 156 and 157 — Irregularities in investigation when detrimental

The question is not whether in investigating an offence the police have disregarded the provisions of the Act, but whether the accused has been prejudiced by such disregard in the matter of his defence at the trial. It is, therefore, necessary for the accused to throw a reasonable doubt that the prosecution evidence is such that it must have been manipulated or shaped by reason of the irregularity in the matter of investigation, or that he was prevented by reason of such irregularity from putting forward his defence or adducing evidence in support thereof. But where the prosecution evidence in support thereof. But where the prosecution evidence has been held to be true and where the accused had full say in the matter, the conviction cannot obviously be set aside on the ground of some irregularity or illegality in the matter of investigation: there must be a sufficient nexus, either established or probabilized, between the conviction and the irregularity in the investigation. State of U.P. v. Bhagwant Kishore Joshi, AIR 1964 SC 221, 226: (1964) 3 SCR 71, 83: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 140: (1964) 1 LLJ 60.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao[1], Raghubar Dayal[1] and J.R. Mudholkar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-1963]

[9306] — Ss. 537, 236 and 237 — Conviction under S. 420, IPC instead of S. 409, IPC upheld. Sunil Kumar Paul v. State of W.B., AIR 1965 SC 706: (1964) 7 SCR 70: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 630.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-1964]

[9307] — Ss. 537, 236 and 337 — High Court altering conviction under S. 299, Calcutta Municipal Act to S. 300 of the Act — There is no prejudice or failure of justice

It has not been shown that the appellant had, in any way, been prejudiced in the trial of the case as a result of the alteration in the section, that is to say, that he was deprived of some opportunity to make a proper defence to the prosecution if the right section had been named in the notice or in the charge, if any. Nor has he been able to show that he was misled as a result of any such technical error. Nani Gopal Biswas v. Municipality of Howrah, AIR 1958 SC 141, 143: 1958 SCR 774, 780: 1958 Cri LJ 271, 272.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Sinha and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-10-1957]

[9308] — Ss. 537 and 197 — Defect of not obtaining sanction not curable. Shreekantiah Ramayya Munipalli v. State of Bombay, AIR 1955 SC 287: (1955) 1 SCR 1177: 1955 Cri LJ 857.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea and S.R. Das, Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1954]

[9309] — Ss. 537 and 208 — Denial of opportunity to accused to lead evidence in defence under S. 208 — Held, cannot be cured

Breach of S. 208 is of such a character that the Court will presume that there has been prejudice to the accused by the mere fact of the breach.

If the accused is denied the opportunity of leading that evidence which he has a right to do under S. 208, that the denial of such right is sufficient to cause prejudice to the accused and S. 537 would have no application to a case of this kind. The possibility that the accused may not have produced defence if asked by the magistrate whether he would do so, is of no consequence. Chhadamilal Jain v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 41, 46: (1960) 1 SCR 736, 747, 74: 1960 Cri LJ 145.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and K.N. Wanchoo, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1959]

[9310] — Ss. 537 and 222(2) — Charge contravening proviso to S. 222(2) — Charge, held, curable. State of Bombay v. Umarsaheb Buransaheb Inamdar, AIR 1962 SC 1153: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 711: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 259.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1962]

[9311] — Ss. 537 and 225 — Alternation of charge from S. 165-A, IPC, to Ss. 161/109, IPC, no illegality. Om Prakash v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 SC 409: 1960 Cri LJ 544.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1959]

[9312] — Ss. 537 and 342 — Non-examination or defective examination no ground for interference unless prejudice caused

Mere non-examination or defective examination under S. 342 is not a ground for interference unless prejudice is established. Bibhuti Bhusan Das Gupta v. State of W.B., AIR 1969 SC 381, 385: (1969) 2 SCR 104, 111: 1969 Cri LJ 654.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1968]

[9313] — Ss. 537 and 350 — Trial before a Special Judge appointed under the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952 — Conviction by a successor Judge upon the evidence recorded by his predecessor — S. 350 not applicable to the trial — Trial is illegal — Defect cannot be cured under S. 537

Where the Special Judge proceeds with the trial of a case from the stage at which his predecessor left it and convicted the accused, it was not a case of irregularity but want of competency. The trial offends the cardinal principles of law. Therefore S. 537 of the Code has no application. It cannot be called in aid to make what was incompetent competent. Pyare Lal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 690, 694: (1962) 3 SCR 328, 336: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 688, 690: (1962) 1 LLJ 637.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and A.K. Sarkar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1961]

[9314] — Ss. 537 and 361 — Breach of S. 361 curable if no prejudice caused. Shivanarayan Kabra v. State of Madras, AIR 1967 SC 986: (1967) 1 SCR 138: (1967) 1 MLJ (SC) 159: 1967 Cri LJ 946.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V. Ramaswami, V. Bhargava and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-8-1966]

[9315] — Ss. 537 and 531 — Mode of committing crime not stated — Charge not vague — S. 409, IPC

The charge is with respect to one offence, though the mode of committing it is not stated precisely. If it be complained that the charge framed under S. 409, IPC, is vague because it does not specifically state one particular mode in which the offence was committed, the vagueness of the charge will not make the trial illegal, especially when no prejudice is caused to the accused. R.K. Dalmia v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1962 SC 1821, 1832: (1963) 1 SCR 253, 274: (1962) 2 Cri LJ 805: (1962) 32 Comp Cas 699.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.K. Das, K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1962]

— S. 537(b) See Ss. 225, 233, 337 and 537(b)

See also Ss. 297 and 537(b)

[9316] — S. 537(b) — Misdirection in charge to Jury — Verdict of jury not to be set aside unless it is established that there has been a serious misdirection occasioning in failure of justice. Mushtak Hussein v. State of Bombay, AIR 1953 SC 282, 284: 1953 SCR 809, 815: 1953 Cri LJ 1127, 1129.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1953]

[9317] — S. 537(b) — Misjoinder of parties — Plea not raised in trial Court — Leads to the presumption that no prejudice caused — Trial not vitiated even if there is misjoinder. Mangaldas Raghavji Ruparel v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1966 SC 128, 130: (1965) 2 SCR 894, 897: 1966 Cri LJ 106.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, M. Hidayatullah, J.C. Shah, J.R. Mudholkar and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-1965]

— S. 537(d) See Ss. 297 and 537(d)

— S. 537(2) See Ss. 297 and 537(2)

[9318] — S. 539-B — Judge's view or observations not evidence. Pritam Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 415, 424: 1956 Cri LJ 805.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1955]

[9319] — S. 539-B — Local inspection by the presiding officer — Held, the actual place of occurrence must be examined — Such examination must be for the purpose of properly appreciating the evidence on record. State of U.P. v. Het Ram, (1976) 3 SCC 672: 1976 SCC (Cri) 502: AIR 1976 SC 2124: 1976 Cri LJ 1644.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-2-1976]

— S. 540 See also Ss. 432 and 540

[9320] — S. 540 — Witnesses can be recalled or resummoned for re-examination though power under this section cannot be exercised to fill up lacuna in prosecution case — Bar against filling "lacuna in prosecution case" as laid down in 1991 Supp (1) SCC 271 — Meaning of — Oversight or mistakes during conducting of case cannot be understood as lacuna and so can be corrected — Lacuna is the inherent weakness or a latent wedge in the matrix of prosecution case — CrPC, 1973, S. 311. Rajendra Prasad v. Narcotic Cell, (1999) 6 SCC 110: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1062: AIR 1999 SC 2292: 1999 Cri LJ 3529.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and M.B. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-7-1999]

Mohanlal Shamji Soni v. Union of India, 1991 Supp (1) SCC 271: 1991 SCC (Cri) 595, explained and followed

Jamatraj Kewalji Govani v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 178: (1967) 3 SCR 415; Ram Chander v. State of Haryana, (1981) 3 SCC 191: 1981 SCC (Cri) 683, followed [9321] — S. 540 — Duty of prosecution to produce eyewitnesses — Prosecution has to decide which witness he should examine to unfold his story — If eyewitnesses are deliberately withheld inference against the prosecution can be drawn — Court not to draw a list of eyewitnesses not examined and examine them under S. 540, CrPC — However eyewitnesses can be examined under S. 540, CrPC in the interest of justice — Penal Code, S. 302. Darya Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328: (1964) 3 SCR 397: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 350.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1963]

[9322] — S. 540 — Applicability — Applies to proceedings under S. 207-A, CrPC. State of W.B. v. Tulsidas Mundhra, 1963 Supp (1) SCR 1, 8-9: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 443, 446.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.C. Das Gupta and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1962]

[9323] — S. 540 — Court's discretion under

In addition to S. 73, there are two other provisions resting on the same principle, namely, S. 165, Evidence Act and S. 540, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, which between them invest the court with a wide discretion to call and examine anyone as a witness, if it is bona fide of the opinion that his examination is necessary for a just decision of the case. State (Delhi Admn.) v. Pali Ram, (1979) 2 SCC 158: 1979 SCC (Cri) 389: AIR 1979 SC 14: 1979 Cri LJ 17: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 250.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-1978]

[9324] — S. 540 — Power of court to summon, examine, recall and re-examine any witness or person present — Nature, scope and applicability of — Provision in two parts, first part being discretionary and the second one being obligatory — Power is in the widest terms exercisable at any stage so long as court is in seisin of the proceeding — But accused entitled to fair and reasonable opportunity to rebut the evidence brought on record against him pursuant to exercise of such power — Power not unguided but has to be exercised fairly, bona fide, non-arbitrarily, with circumspection and in the exigency of the situation when it appears, in the facts and circumstances, to be essential for a just decision of the case — On facts High Court's order recalling a witness for examination and issuing summons to two more witnesses for examination caused no prejudice to the accused and hence the order valid — CrPC, 1973 — S. 311. Mohanlal Shamji Soni v. Union of India, 1991 Supp (1) SCC 271: 1991 SCC (Cri) 595: AIR 1991 SC 1346: (1991) 2 GLH 11.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-2-1991]

Mir Mohd. Omar v. State of W.B., (1989) 4 SCC 436: 1989 SCC (Cri) 750, distinguished

Channu Lal v. Rex, AIR 1949 All 692: 51 Cri LJ 199: 1950 AWR 147; Rengaswami Naicker v. Muruga Naicker, AIR 1954 Mad 169: 1954 Cri LJ 123: (1952) 2 MLJ 497; Shugan Chand v. Emperor, AIR 1925 Lah 531: 26 Cri LJ 1035: 26 PLR 312; Queen v. Assanoollah, 13 SWR (Cri) 15, approved

[9325] — S. 540 — Discretion of trial Court to exercise the power in the interests of justice

The powers of the Court under S. 540 can and ought to be exercised in the interests of justice whenever the Court feels that the interests of justice so require, but that does not justify the contention that the failure of the Court to have exercised its powers under S. 540 has introduced a serious infirmity in the trial itself. Darya Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328, 333: (1964) 3 SCR 397, 408: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 350.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1963]

[9326] — S. 540 — Objection by a party to recording fresh evidence — Duty of Court

If a criminal court feels that the evidence of a particular witness is necessary in the interest of justice, then a witness should be examined as court witness, defence objection notwithstanding. Parties cannot control the Court's discretion to have before it further evidence if it is considered necessary for finding the truth for promoting the cause of justice. Justice would fail not only by unjust conviction of the innocent but also by acquittal of the guilty for unjustified failure to produce available evidence. Nageshwar Shri Krishna Ghobe v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 4 SCC 23: 1973 SCC (Cri) 664: AIR 1973 SC 165: 1973 Cri LJ 235: 1973 Bom LR 483: (1973) 2 SCR 377.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1972]

[9327] — S. 540 — Power of Court under — No limitation as to stage to which trial may have reached. Amar Chand Agarwalla v. Shanti Bose, (1973) 4 SCC 10: 1973 SCC (Cri) 651: AIR 1973 SC 799: 1973 Cri LJ 577.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1972]

[9328] — S. 540 — Power to summon witnesses — Judicial Officers should not ordinarily be called as witnesses

The power under S. 540 has to be exercised sparingly and only when the ends of justice so demand. The higher the power the more careful should be its exercise. There may be proper and suitable cases where the examination of the Sessions Judge or the trial court may be very necessary but this must be indeed a very rare occasion where all other remedies are exhausted. Rameshwar Dayal v. State of U.P., (1978) 2 SCC 518: 1978 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1978 SC 1558: 1978 ALJ 1011: (1978) 15 ACC 276.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1978]

[9329] — S. 540 — Scope — Accused must be afforded the opportunity to rebut the evidence taken under

The right to adduce evidence in rebuttal is one of the inevitable steps in the defence of a case by the accused and a refusal of the same amounts not only to an infraction of the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code but also of the principles of natural justice and offends the famous maxim audi alteram partem. The words "just decision of the case" in S. 540 would become meaningless and without any significance if a decision is to be arrived at without a sense of justice and fairplay. Rameshwar Dayal v. State of U.P., (1978) 2 SCC 518: 1978 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1978 SC 1558: 1978 ALJ 1011: (1978) 15 ACC 276.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1978]

[9330] — S. 540 — Scope and applicability — Evidence Act, 1872 — S. 165 — Scope and applicability — Ss. 540 and 165 between them confer a wide discretion on the Court to act in the interest of justice — Powers under S. 540 are without limitation, the only limitation being that the Court is bona fide of the opinion that the step must be taken for the just decision of the case — Powers of court under S. 540 detailed

Section 540 CrPC and S. 165, Evidence Act, between them confer jurisdiction on the Judge to act in aid of justice. Section 540, CrPC, gives a power to the court to summon a material witness or to examine a person present in Court or to recall a witness already examined. It confers a wide discretion on the Court to act as the exigencies of justice require. Another aspect of this power and complementary to it is to be found in S. 165 of the Indian Evidence Act.

Section 540 is intended to be wide as the repealed use of the word 'any' throughout its length clearly indicates. The section is in two parts. The first part gives a discretionary power but the latter part is mandatory. The use of the word 'may' in the first part and of the word 'shall' in the second firmly establishes this difference. Under the first part which is permissive, the Court may act in one of three ways: (a) summon any person as a witness, (b) examine any person present in Court although not summoned, and (c) recall or re-examine a witness already examined. The second part is obligatory and compels the Court to act in these three ways or any one of them, if the just decision of the case demands it. As the section stands there is no limitation on the power of the Court arising from the stage to which the trial may have reached, provided the Court is bona fide of the opinion that for the just decision of the case, the step must be taken. It is clear that the requirement of just decision of the case does not limit the action to something in the interest of the accused only. The action may equally benefit the prosecution. There are, however, two aspects of the matter which must be distinctly kept apart. The first is that the prosecution cannot be allowed to rebut the defence evidence unless the prisoner brings forward something suddenly and unexpectedly.

In our criminal jurisdiction, statutory law confers a power in absolute terms to be exercised at any stage of the trial to summon a witness or examine one present in Court or to recall a witness already examined, and makes this the duty and obligation of the Court provided the just decision of the case demands it. In other words, where the Court exercises the power under the second part, the inquiry cannot be whether the accused has brought anything suddenly or unexpectedly but whether the Court is right in thinking that the new evidence is needed by it for a just decision of the case. If the Court has acted without the requirements of a just decision, the action is open to criticism but if the Court's action is supportable as being in aid of a just decision the action cannot be regarded as exceeding the jurisdiction. Jamatraj Kewalji Govani v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 178, 181: (1967) 3 SCR 415: 1968 Cri LJ 231, 234.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, S.M. Sikri and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-4-1967]

[9331] — S. 540 — Trial Court not exercising its power where witnesses won over. Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202: (1964) 8 SCR 133: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1964]

[9332] — S. 540 — Where the whole truth was not brought out by the prosecution witnesses the Court could on its own call those eyewitnesses not called by the prosecution but named in the FIR. Partap v. State of U.P., (1976) 2 SCC 798: 1976 SCC (Cri) 303: AIR 1976 SC 966: 1976 Cri LJ 697.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg[2], P.N. Bhagwati[1] and R.S. Sarkaria[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 10-9-1975]

[9333] — Ss. 540, 337 and 338 — Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1962, S. 8(2) — S. 540 does not govern Ss. 337, CrPC or S. 8(2) of Act 1952

Section 540, CrPC, only confers powers on the Court to summon material witnesses at any stage of any inquiry or trial or other proceeding under the Code. That power is not to be confused with the power to tender pardon to an accused. The consideration for summoning witnesses as court witnesses are somewhat different from the considerations on which a tender of pardon should be made. It is no doubt necessary to bear in mind the interest of justice in either case but there the common factor ceases and other considerations arise. It is not, therefore, possible to read S. 540 with Ss. 337 and 338 of the Code or with S. 8(2) of the Criminal Law Amendment Act. Lt. Commander Pascal Fernandes v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 594, 598-99: (1968) 1 SCR 695, 703: 1968 Cri LJ 550, 554.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1967]

[9334] — Ss. 540 and 428 — Only such witnesses to be called by the High Court who are necessary for a just decision of the case — Rejection of oral request by accused for examination of two witnesses not bad where those witnesses had in their statements to the police supported the prosecution case and having turned hostile were unhelpful to the case — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 311 and 391. Abdul Latif v. State of U.P., (1978) 1 SCC 466: 1978 SCC (Cri) 123: AIR 1978 SC 472: 1978 Cri LJ 639: 1978 ALJ 362: 1978 MLJ (Cri) 472: (1978) 2 SCR 611.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-1-1978]

[9335] — Ss. 540 and 537 — Examination of witness by prosecution instead of Court — Irregularity curable under S. 537

The Sessions Court has power to examine witnesses who were not examined before the Committing Magistrate because of S. 540 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and if the witness is treated as a prosecution witness and examined by the prosecuting Counsel instead of by the Court itself that at best would be an irregularity curable by S. 537. The proper time to object to such a procedure would be at the trial itself and as the appellant was represented in the Sessions Court by two counsel it is too late to object to such a venial irregularity in this Court. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1952 SC 214, 215: 1952 SCR 812, 815: 1952 Cri LJ 1131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1952]

[9336] — Ss. 540-A and 205 — Examination of Pleader

Sections 205 and 540-A do not expressly mention that the pleader cannot be examined under S. 342, but this does not lead to the inference that the pleader can be so examined. On the other hand, Ss. 353, 360, 361 and 366 expressly provide that the pleader may represent the accused for certain purposes, but from this fact alone no inference can be drawn that the pleader cannot represent the accused for purposes of S. 342 or other sections. It is from the scheme, purpose and language of S. 342 that we are driven to the conclusions that the examination under the section must be of the accused person and not his pleader. Bibhuti Bhusan Das Gupta v. State of W.B., AIR 1969 SC 381, 385: (1969) 2 SCR 104, 110: 1969 Cri LJ 654.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1968]

[9337] — S. 545(1)(bb) — High Court imposing fine in addition to sentence imposed by Sessions Judge — Propriety

The High Court has relied upon the language of the amended S. 545(1)(bb) in order to impose the sentence of fine suo motu on the two appellants in addition to the sentences imposed by the Sessions Judge.

Having regard to the circumstances in the present case, the High Court had no legal justification for enhancing the sentences imposed by the Sessions Judge on the respective appellants. The question of sentence is a matter of discretion for the trial Court and it is well settled that when the discretion has been properly exercised on accepted legal principles an appellate Court should not interfere to the detriment of an accused person except for very strong reasons which must be disclosed on the face of the judgment.

In a matter of enhancement there should not be interference when the sentence of the trial Court imposes substantial punishment. Interference is only called for when it is manifestly inadequate. Shivajirao v. State of Maharashtra, Cr. A. No. 173 of 1968

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Shah, Ramaswami and Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1968]

[9338] — S. 545(1)(bb) [as amended by Act 26 of 1955] — Power of Court to award compensation to victim or dependants of victim of crime — Only in cases where fine could be imposed on accused — Position compared with that under Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, S. 357(3) where the Court may award compensation even in cases where court imposes a sentence of which fine does not form part — Matters to be considered in awarding compensation pointed out — CrPC, 1973, S. 357(3). Sarwan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1978) 4 SCC 111: 1978 SCC (Cri) 549: AIR 1978 SC 1525: 1978 Cri LJ 1598.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1978]

[9339] — Ss. 548 and 251-A — Nature and scope of S. 14, OSA, 1923 — Held, neither contains any non-obstante clause, nor affects the inherent power of holding proceedings in camera, nor takes away accused's right to get copies under S. 548, Criminal Procedure Code or copies of statements recorded by magistrate or statement of witnesses recorded by police or documents obtained by police during investigation envisaged under Criminal Rr. 308 and 310 framed under Criminal Procedure Code — Accused's lawyer also entitled to take notes of such statements in extenso and cannot be compelled to show his register containing the notes by virtue of privilege under S. 126, Evidence Act, 1872 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 363(5) and 207 — Official Secrets Act, 1923, S. 14. Supdt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Satyen Bhowmick, (1981) 2 SCC 109: 1981 SCC (Cri) 342: AIR 1981 SC 917: (1981) 2 SCR 661: 1981 Cri LJ 341.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-1-1981]

[9340] — S. 549 — Court-Martial and ordinary court — Trial and conviction of military personnel under S. 376, IPC, by ordinary court — No strict compliance with procedure under S. 126 of Army Act, 1950 (46 of 1950), and Criminal Courts and Court-Martial Rules, 1952 — Validity of trial. Joginder Singh v. State of H.P., (1971) 3 SCC 86: 1971 SCC (Cri) 269: AIR 1971 SC 500: 1971 Cri LJ 511.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-1970]

[9341] — S. 549 — Rules framed by Central Government under — Rules 3, 4, 5 and 8 — Rules apply when proceedings already instituted in an ordinary criminal Court — Rule 3 applies where investigation completed by Civil Police and charge-sheet submitted before a Magistrate — Rule 5 not applicable when case not brought before the Magistrate

The rules framed by the Central Government under S. 549 of the Criminal Procedure Code apply to a case where the proceedings against the petitioner have already been instituted in an ordinary criminal Court having jurisdiction to try the matter and not at a stage where such proceedings have not been instituted. The petitioner was not brought before the Magistrate and charged with the offences for which he was liable to be tried by the Court martial within the meaning of R. 3 and so the situation contemplated by R. 5 has not arisen and the requirements of that rule are therefore not attracted. It is manifest that R. 3 only applies to a case where the police had completed investigation and the accused is brought before the Magistrate after submission of a charge-sheet. The provisions of this rule cannot be invoked in a case where the police had merely started investigation against a person subject to military, naval or air force law. Som Datt Datta v. Union of India, AIR 1969 SC 414, 419-20: (1969) 2 SCR 177, 187: 1969 Cri LJ 663.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami, G.K. Mitter and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-9-1968]

[9342] — S. 549 — Scope — Conflict with Court-Martial in matter of jurisdiction — Army Act, 1950, Ss. 125, 126

Section 549 of the Code of Criminal Procedure empowers the Central Government to make rules as to the case in which persons subject to military, naval or air force law be tried by a Court to which the Code of Criminal Procedure applies or by Court-Martial. When any such person is brought before the Magistrate and charged with an offence for which he is liable to be tried either by a Court or by Court-Martial, the Magistrate shall have regard to such rules and shall in appropriate cases deliver him together with the statement of the offence of which he is accused to the Commanding Officer for the purpose of being tried by Court-Martial.

There are nine rules under S. 549 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. These rules are called Criminal Courts and Court-Martial (Adjustment of Jurisdiction) Rules, 1952. Lt. Col. S.K. Kashyap v. State of Rajasthan, (1971) 2 SCC 126: 1971 SCC (Cri) 452: AIR 1971 SC 1120: 1971 Cri LJ 832.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-1971]

[9343] — S. 549 — R. 3 of the Rules framed under S. 549 — Scope and application — Special Judge not a Magistrate under R. 3 — R. 3 does not apply to the trial of an army personnel by a Special Judge. Major E.G. Barsay v. State of Bombay, AIR 1961 SC 1762, 1773-7: (1962) 2 SCR 195, 217: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1961]

[9344] — S. 549(1) — Army Act, 1950, S. 125

Section 549(1) should be construed in the light of S. 125 of the Army Act. Both the provisions have in mind the object of avoiding a collision between the ordinary criminal court and court-martial. So both of them should receive a similar construction. Delhi Special Police Establishment v. Lt. Col. S.K. Loraiya, (1972) 2 SCC 692: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1101: AIR 1972 SC 2548: 1973 Cri LJ 33: (1973) 1 SCR 1010.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-8-1972]

[9345] — S. 549(1) — Criminal Courts and Courts Martial (Adjustment of Jurisdiction) Rules, 1952 — R. 3 and Criminal Procedure Code, S. 549(1) — Mandatory nature

In this case the procedure specified in R. 3 was not followed by the Special Judge, Gauhati before framing charges against the respondent. Section 549(1), Criminal Procedure Code, and R. 3 are mandatory. Accordingly the charges framed by the Special Judge against the respondent cannot survive. Delhi Special Police Establishment v. Lt. Col. S.K. Loraiya, (1972) 2 SCC 692: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1101: AIR 1972 SC 2548: 1973 Cri LJ 33: (1973) 1 SCR 1010.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-8-1972]

[9346] — S. 549(1) — Scope — Accused is liable to be tried either by a court to which the Code applies or by a Court-Martial

Section 549(1), Criminal Procedure Code, is designed to avoid the conflict of jurisdiction in respect of the offence triable both by the ordinary criminal court and the court-martial. The clause "for which he is liable to be tried either by the court to which this code applies or by a court-martial" qualifies the preceding clause "when any person is charged with an offence" in S. 549(1). Accordingly, the phrase "is liable to be tried either by a court to which this Code applies or a court-martial" imports that the offence for which the accused is to be tried should be an offence of which cognizance can be taken by an ordinary criminal court as well as a court-martial, the phrase is intended to refer to the initial jurisdiction of the two courts to take cognizance of the case and not to their jurisdiction to decide it on merits. It is admitted that both the ordinary criminal court and the court-martial have concurrent jurisdiction with respect to the offences for which the respondent has been charged by the Special Judge. Delhi Special Police Establishment v. Lt. Col. S.K. Loraiya, (1972) 2 SCC 692: 1973 SCC (Cri) 1101: AIR 1972 SC 2548: 1973 Cri LJ 33: (1973) 1 SCR 1010.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-8-1972]

[9347] — S. 549(1) — Criminal Courts and Court-martial (Adjustment of Jurisdiction) Rules, 1952 — Rr. 3 and 4 — Applicable to a proceeding before Special Court in State of W.B. also — Ss. 8(3-A) and 11 of Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952 would operate in that State by virtue of S. 13 of W.B. Criminal Law Amendment (Special Courts) Act, 1949 and there is no conflict between the two Acts — Constitution of India, Art. 245. Supdt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Usha Ranjan Roy Choudhury, 1986 Supp SCC 190: 1986 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1986 SC 1655: 1986 Cri LJ 1248.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Balakrishna Eradi and M.P. Thakkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-5-1986]

[9348] — S. 549(1) — "Special Judge" if a magistrate under — Criminal courts and Court-martial (Adjustment of Jurisdiction) Rules, 1952, Rr. 3 and 4 — Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1952, Ss. 8(3-A) and 11

Having regard to the provision contained in S. 8(3-A) of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act of 1952 as it now stands it is clear that a Special Judge is deemed to be a magistrate for the purpose of the Rules framed under S. 549(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure with the end in view to eschew the conflict between court-martial on the one hand and the ordinary criminal courts on the other. Therefore, the procedure embodied in S. 549(1), CrPC and rules framed thereunder are applicable not only to the court presided over by a magistrate but also to a judge presiding over a Special Court also known as Special Judge in W.B. Supdt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Usha Ranjan Roy Choudhury, 1986 Supp SCC 190: 1986 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1986 SC 1655: 1986 Cri LJ 1248.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Balakrishna Eradi and M.P. Thakkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-5-1986]

[9349] — S. 551 — Additional Inspector General of Police ordering investigation and registration of a case and Dy. Superintendent of Police,

C.I.D. preparing First Information Report and investigating the case — Procedure not illegal

It is true that the investigation has been entrusted to certain officers of Criminal Investigation Department. The Additional Inspector General of Police, CID and Deputy Superintendent of Police CID could, however exercise powers of investigation under S. 551, CrPC, because they were officers superior in rank to an officer in charge of a police station. R.P. Kapur v. Pratap Singh Kairon, AIR 1961 SC 1117, 1121: (1961) 2 SCR 143, 154: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 161.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S.K. Das, M. Hidayatullah, K.C. Das Gupta, J.C. Shah and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-1960]

[9350] — S. 556 — Scope

Every member of a tribunal that is called upon to try issues in judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings must be able to act judicially; and it is of the essence of judicial decisions and judicial administration that judges should be able to act impartially, objectively and without any bias. In such cases the test is not whether in fact a bias has affected the judgment; the test always is and must be whether a litigant could reasonably apprehend that a bias attributable to a member of the tribunal might have operated against him in the final decision of the tribunal. It is in this sense that it is often said that justice must not only be done but must also appear to be done.

In dealing with cases of bias attributed to members constituting tribunals, it is necessary to make a distinction between pecuniary interest and prejudice so attributed. It is obvious that pecuniary interest, however small it may be in a subject-matter of the proceedings, would wholly disqualify a member from acting as a judge. But where pecuniary interest is not attributed but instead a bias is suggested, it often becomes necessary to consider whether there is a reasonable ground for assuming the possibility of a bias and whether it is likely to produce in the minds of the litigant or the public at large a reasonable doubt about the fairness of the administration of justice. It would always be a question of fact to be decided in each case. "The principle", says Halsbury, "nemo debet esse judex in causa propria sua precludes a justice, who is interested in the subject-matter of a dispute, from acting as a justice therein". Manak Lal v. Dr. Prem Chand Singhvi, AIR 1957 SC 425, 429: 1957 SCR 575, 580.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, S.K. Das and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1957]

[9351] — S. 556 — "Personal interest" — Meaning of — Magistrate sanctioning prosecution — Later the same person trying the case as Additional District Magistrate — Trial is not vitiated

The question whether a Magistrate is personally interested or not has essentially to be decided on the facts in each case. Pecuniary interest, however small, will be a disqualification, but as regards other kinds of interest, there is no measure or standard except that it should be a substantial one, giving rise to a real bias, or a reasonable apprehension on the part of the accused of such bias.

Where a prosecution is directed, it means that the authority who gives the direction is satisfied in his own mind that the case must be initiated. Sanction is in the nature of a permission, while a direction is in the nature of a command.

The question whether the bar under S. 556 comes into play depends upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case, the dividing line being a thin one somewhat but still sufficiently definite and tangible, namely, the removal of a legal impediment by the grant of sanction and the initiation of criminal proceedings as the result of a direction. Where the Additional Deputy Commissioner who decided the case earlier sanctioned the prosecution as a District Magistrate the trial is not vitiated by reason of the provisions of S. 556, CrPC. Rameshwar Bhartia v. State of Assam, AIR 1952 SC 405, 407: 1953 SCR 126, 131: 1953 Cri LJ 163, 165.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-10-1952]

— S. 559 See also Ss. 476 and 559

[9352] — S. 559 — Scope

Since substitution of this section by CrPC (Amendment) Act, 1923, a successor in office of a Magistrate can file a complaint under S. 476, CrPC, in respect of an offence under S. 195, IPC, committed before his predecessor.

Section 559 applies to all Magistrates and there is no reason why the plain terms of the section should be cut down to limit it, as suggested by the learned Counsel for the appellant, to Magistrates whose Courts are permanent. It seems to us further clear that sub-section (2) has not the effect of limiting S. 559(1). Section 559(2) applies when there is a doubt as to who the successor is, and that doubt can be resolved in the manner laid down in sub-section (2). The sub-section does not mean, as contended by the learned Counsel, that until a successor is determined under sub-section (2) there is no successor for the purposes of sub-section (1). If there is no doubt about who the successor is, then that person can exercise the powers under sub-section (1). Ajaib Singh v. Joginder Singh, AIR 1968 SC 1422, 1424: (1969) 1 SCR 145, 148: 1969 Cri LJ 4.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and V. Ramaswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1968]

— S. 561-A See Ss. 154, 156, 439 and 561-A

See also Ss. 156, 439 and 561-A
See also Ss. 215, 561-A and 207
See also Ss. 369, 424, 430 and 561-A
See also Ss. 435 and 561-A
See also Ss. 439 and 561-A
See also Ss. 439, 561-A, 526 & 267
See also Ss. 496 and 561-A

[9353] — S. 561-A — Preservation of power under — Constitution of India — Art. 21

When the Constitution or any enacted law has embraced and confirmed the inherent powers and jurisdiction of the High Court which previously existed, that power and jurisdiction has the sanction of an enacted "law" within the meaning of Art. 21. The inherent powers of the High Court preserved by S. 561-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure are thus vested in it by "law" within the meaning of Art. 21. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, AIR 1967 SC 1639, 1642: (1967) 3 SCR 926, 931: 1967 Cri LJ 1576.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, C.J. and R.S. Bachawat, J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1967]

[9354] — S. 561-A — Scope of High Court's power under — High Court can, under its inherent power, quash proceedings pending before the Sessions Judge on ground of insufficiency of evidence — CrPC, 1973, S. 482. State of Karnataka v. L. Muniswamy, (1977) 2 SCC 699: 1977 SCC (Cri) 404: AIR 1977 SC 1489: (1977) 3 SCR 113: 1977 Cri LJ 1125.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.K. Goswami and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1977]

Distinguished in Divine Retreat Centre v. State of Kerala, (2008) 3 SCC 542

[9355] — S. 561-A — Inherent power of court to recall a witness. Mohd. Husain Umar Kochra v. K.S. Dalipsinghji, (1969) 3 SCC 429: 1970 SCC (Cri) 99: AIR 1970 SC 45: 1970 Cri LJ 9.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, R.S. Bachawat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1969]

[9356] — S. 561-A — Inherent power to postpone hearing of appeal

The court has inherent powers to postpone the hearing of the appeal until such time as the appellant should be found to be of sound mind. Vivian Rodrick v. State of W.B., (1969) 3 SCC 176: 1970 SCC (Cri) 33.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-4-1969]

[9357] — S. 561-A — Power of High Court to quash proceedings — Whether exercise of such power barred by S. 164 of U.P. Municipalities Act

Section 164 of the U.P. Municipalities Act cannot operate to deprive the High Court of its jurisdiction under S. 561-A, CrPC to quash proceedings relating to a levy which is ultra vires the taxing power of the Municipal Board under the Municipalities Act. Municipal Board v. Brij Mohan Chandra, (1970) 2 SCC 901: 1970 SCC (Cri) 580: AIR 1971 SC 439: 1971 Cri LJ 415.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-1970]

[9358] — S. 561-A — "State Government" — Meaning of — State Government can petition the High Court under S. 561-A, CrPC, 1898 — General Clauses Act, 1897, S. 3(60). State of U.P. v. Mohd. Naim, AIR 1964 SC 703: (1964) 2 SCR 363: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 549.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1963]

[9359] — S. 561-A — Order of the High Court quashing the proceedings on the basis of facts contained in the respondent's application but without giving any reasons — Propriety of. State of U.P. v. K.K. Gupta, (1970) 3 SCC 4: 1970 SCC (Cri) 354: AIR 1970 SC 1279: 1970 Cri LJ 1142.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1970]

[9360] — S. 561-A — An accused while undergoing sentence of imprisonment cannot send a petition under S. 561-A to Registrar of the High Court by post but through Jail Superintendent — Bombay Jail Manual (1955 Edition), Ch. XXXIX, R. 1416 — Bombay High Court Appellate Side Rules, 1960, Ch. XXVI — R. 25. Iqbal Ismail Sodawala v. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 3 SCC 140: 1974 SCC (Cri) 764: AIR 1974 SC 1880: (1975) 1 SCR 710: 1974 Cri LJ 1291: (1975) 12 ACC 27.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1974]

[9361] — S. 561-A — Appellant cannot challenge orders to which he agreed and later complied. Hazari Lal Gupta v. Rameshwar Prasad, (1972) 1 SCC 452: 1972 SCC (Cri) 208: AIR 1972 SC 484: (1972) 2 SCR 666: 1972 Cri LJ 298.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1971]

[9362] — S. 561-A — Application for expunction of certain remarks made against a Distt. Magistrate (appellant) in High Court's order — Held, following tests, laid down in Mohd. Naim's case [(1964) 2 SCR 367] satisfied in the present case

(i) Whether the party whose conduct is in question is before the court or has an opportunity of explaining or defending himself;

(ii) Whether there is evidence on record bearing on that conduct justifying the remarks; and

(iii) Whether it is necessary for the decision of the case, as an integral part thereof, to animadvert on that conduct. It has also been recognised that judicial pronouncements must be judicial in nature, and should not normally depart from sobriety, moderation and reserve. R.K. Lakshmanan v. A.K. Srinivasan, (1975) 2 SCC 466: 1975 SCC (Cri) 654: AIR 1975 SC 1741: 1975 Cri LJ1545.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-8-1975]

[9363] — S. 561-A — Application to High Court for recording additional evidence dismissed without hearing the applicant — Practice held wrong and unjust by Supreme Court. Ram Narain v. State of Rajasthan, (1973) 3 SCC 805: 1973 SCC (Cri) 545: AIR 1973 SC 1188: (1973) 3 SCR 463: 1973 Cri LJ 914.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1973]

[9364] — S. 561-A — Delay as a ground for quashing the prosecution — Case registered for cheating on 30-12-1958 and charge-sheet filed in court on 20-11-1959 — But for separate offences single charge framed by Magistrate — High Court accepting revision on July 27, 1977 and remanding for separate charges — Appeal by State to Supreme Court — Held, in view of the inordinate delay in commencing the trial it would be a travesty of justice to permit the prosecution to continue — Hence prosecution quashed — Penal Code, 1860, S. 420 — CrPC, 1973, S. 482. State of U.P. v. Parshottam, 1991 Supp (2) SCC 124: 1991 SCC (Cri) 1016: AIR 1991 SC 1015: 1991 Cri LJ 741.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and K. Ramaswamy, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1990]

[9365] — S. 561-A — High Court — Inherent power — Extent of — Proceedings based on First Information Report by complainants — Bail — Release of accused after furnishing security and surrendering passport — Application by accused under S. 561-A to quash proceedings and modify restrictions on him — Power of High Court

In exercising jurisdiction under S. 561-A of the Criminal Procedure Code the High Court can quash proceedings if there is no legal evidence or if there is no impediment to the institution or continuance of proceedings but the High Court does not ordinarily enquire as to whether the evidence is 'reliable or not'. Where again, investigation into the circumstances of an alleged cognizable offence is carried on under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code the High Court does not interfere with such investigation because it would then be the impeding investigation and jurisdiction of statutory authorities to exercise power in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code. Hazari Lal Gupta v. Rameshwar Prasad, (1972) 1 SCC 452: 1972 SCC (Cri) 208: AIR 1972 SC 484: (1972) 2 SCR 666: 1972 Cri LJ 298.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1971]

[9366] — S. 561-A — High Court not justified in going into the merits of the case when exercising inherent jurisdiction — CrPC, 1973, S. 482. Supdt. and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Ashutosh Ghosh, (1979) 4 SCC 381: 1979 SCC (Cri) 991: AIR 1979 SC 1195.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-1-1979]

[9367] — S. 561-A — High Court's power to expunge remarks — Is competent in exceptional cases to expunge remarks made by it or lower Court

The High Court can in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction expunge remarks made by it or by a lower Court if it be necessary to do so to prevent abuse of the process of the Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice; the jurisdiction is however of an exceptional nature and has to be exercised in exceptional cases only. State of U.P. v. Mohd. Naim, AIR 1964 SC 703, 707: (1964) 2 SCR 363, 373: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 549, 553.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1963]

See also AIR 1967 SC 903: (1967) 1 SCR 454

[9368] — S. 561-A — Inherent power of High Court — Can be exercised only for either of the three purposes specifically mentioned in the section

It is obvious that this inherent power can be exercised only for either of the three purposes specifically mentioned in the section. This inherent power cannot naturally be invoked in respect of any matter covered by the specific provisions of the Code. It cannot also be invoked if its exercise would be inconsistent with any of the specific provisions of the Code. It is only if the matter in question is not covered by any specific provisions of the Code that S. 561-A can come into operation, subject further to the requirement that the exercise of such power must serve either of the three purposes mentioned in the said section. Talab Haji Hussain v. Madhukar Purshottam Mondkar, AIR 1958 SC 376, 381: 1958 SCR 1226, 123: 1958 Cri LJ 701, 705, 70.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1958]

[9369] — S. 561-A — Inherent power of High Court — Scope and nature — Power to quash proceedings — Ordinarily High Court would be reluctant to quash criminal proceedings at an interlocutory stage — The rule is not inflexible and the power can be exercised in some categories of cases. R.P. Kapur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 866, 869: (1960) 3 SCR 388, 392, 39: 1960 Cri LJ 1239, 1242.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1960]

Followed in Sunita Jain v. Pawan Kumar Jain, (2008) 2 SCC 705*

Applied in Baijnath Jha v. Sita Ram, (2008) 8 SCC 77*

[9370] — S. 561-A — Inherent powers of High Court — Includes the expunging of adverse remarks made in a judgment against a person, neither a party nor a witness, even after the judgment becomes final. Raghubir Saran v. State of Bihar, AIR 1964 SC 1, 5, 9-10: (1964) 2 SCR 336, 344, 35: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 1, 3, 4: (1964) 2 MLJ (SC) 21.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao[1], Raghubar Dayal[2] and J.R. Mudholkar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 14-3-1963]

[9371] — S. 561-A — Inherent powers of High Court — No new powers conferred by insertion of this section by 1923 amendment — Inherent powers explained

This provision was introduced in the Code when it was extensively amended in the year 1923. But it does not confer and was not intended to confer any new powers on the High Courts. The Courts exist not only for securing obedience to the law of the land but also for securing the ends of justice in its widest sense. All Courts, including the High Courts, can exercise such powers as the laws of the land confer upon them as well as such inherent powers to do justice as are reserved expressly or are not taken away by a statute.

Inherent powers of the High Court of a State are the powers which must, by reason of its being the highest Court in the State having general jurisdiction over civil and criminal Courts in the State, inhere in that Court. The powers in a sense are an inalienable attribute of the position it holds with respect to the Courts subordinate to it. These powers are partly administrative and partly judicial. They are necessarily judicial when they are exercisable with respect to a judicial order and for securing the ends of justice. Raghubir Saran v. State of Bihar, AIR 1964 SC 1: (1964) 2 SCR 336: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 1, 3, 4: (1964) 2 MLJ (SC) 21.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao[1], Raghubar Dayal[2] and J.R. Mudholkar[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 14-3-1963]

[9372] — S. 561-A — Inherent powers of High Court — Scope and applicability — Cannot be invoked in regard to matters directly covered by specific provisions of the Code. Khushi Ram v. Hashim, AIR 1959 SC 542: 1959 Cri LJ 658.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1958]

[9373] — S. 561-A — New plea — Held, contention of law not urged in application under S. 561-A to the High Court can be allowed to be taken at the stage of arguments — CrPC, 1973, S. 482. Deepak Sarkar v. State of Bihar, (1977) 1 SCC 494: 1977 SCC (Cri) 128: AIR 1977 SC 1665: 1977 Cri LJ 1437.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-12-1976]

[9374] — S. 561-A — Petition under — Competency of — Matter still at investigation stage — Merit of allegations in the FIR — Wrongful removal of bus in spite of resistance offered by driver, conductor etc. — Police starting investigation on the basis of FIR and arresting appellant and one 'P' but later releasing them on bail — While no charge-sheet or complaint laid in Court and matter still pending at the stage of police verification, both the accused filing two separate petitions under S. 561-A challenging the police proceedings — Court dismissing appellant's petition but allowing that of 'P' and quashing proceedings against him — Held — High Court in its inherent jurisdiction could not at that stage appraise evidence in the case and enquire as to whether jurisdiction set out in the FIR was reliable or not — Petition under S. 561-A was liable to be dismissed as premature and incompe- tent — FIR prima facie did disclose the commission of a cognizable offence by the appellant and his companions. Jehan Singh v. Delhi Admn., (1974) 4 SCC 522: 1974 SCC (Cri) 558: AIR 1974 SC 1146: (1974) 3 SCR 794.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-1974]

[9375] — S. 561-A — Powers of the High Court to quash proceedings to prevent abuse of the process of any court or to secure ends of justice — Application by accused very delayed and towards end of trial — Propriety of quashing such proceedings

Inherent jurisdiction can be exercised to quash proceedings in a proper case, either to prevent the abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Where the case of the complainant has almost come to an end and a couple of prosecution witnesses remain to be examined and one witness under S. 540, CrPC and the accused did not challenge the order of the Magistrate allowing the prosecution to examine the two prosecution witnesses nor did he challenge the order of the Magistrate to examine one more witness under S. 540, the power of the High Court to exercise its inherent jurisdiction to quash the proceedings does not come within the ambit of the principles laid down by the Supreme Court. Amar Chand Agarwalla v. Shanti Bose, (1973) 4 SCC 10: 1973 SCC (Cri) 651: AIR 1973 SC 799: 1973 Cri LJ 577.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-12-1972]

[9376] — S. 561-A — Scope — Not applicable where specific provisions provided by the Code, such as S. 369 — CrPC, 1973, S. 482

Inherent power, which S. 561-A purports to save, cannot relate to any of the matters specifically dealt by the Code and as such cannot be invoked to exercise powers which would be inconsistent with any of the specific provisions of the Code. The saving of inherent power is only for giving effect to orders passed under the Code, to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice.

So if S. 369 is understood as applying to judgments on appeal by the High Court, S. 561-A cannot be invoked for enabling the court to review its own order which is specifically prohibited by S. 369. State of Orissa v. Ram Chander Agarwala, (1979) 2 SCC 305: 1979 SCC (Cri) 462: AIR 1979 SC 87: 1979 Cri LJ 33.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Jaswant Singh and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1978]

[9377] — S. 561-A — Scope — High Court's power to deal with matters not dealt in the Code

The inherent power of the High Court mentioned in S. 561-A, Criminal Procedure Code, can be exercised only for either of the three purposes specifically mentioned in the section. The inherent power cannot be invoked in respect of any matter covered by the specific provisions of the Code. It cannot also be invoked if its exercise would be inconsistent with any of the specific provisions of the Code. It is only if the matter in question is not covered by any specific provisions of the Code that S. 561-A can come into operation. No legislative enactment dealing with procedure can provide for all cases that can possibly arise and it is an established principle that the Courts should have inherent powers, apart from the express provision of law, which are necessary to their existence and for the proper discharge of the duties imposed upon them by law. This doctrine finds expression in S. 561-A which does not confer any new powers on the High Court but merely recognises and preserves the inherent powers previously possessed by it. Pampapathy v. State of Mysore, AIR 1967 SC 286, 289: 1966 Supp SCR 477, 482: 1967 Cri LJ 287.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Ramaswami and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-1966]

[9378] — S. 561-A — Scope — High Court's power to entertain the application again in a changed set of circumstances — CrPC 1973, S. 482

Section 561-A preserves the inherent power of the High Court to make such orders as it deems fit to prevent abuse of the process of the Court or to secure the ends of justice and the High Court must therefore exercise its inherent powers having regard to the situation prevailing at the particular point of time when its inherent jurisdiction is sought to be invoked.

The High Court was, in the circumstances, entitled to entertain the subsequent application of Respondents 1 and 2 and consider whether on the facts and circumstances then obtaining the continuance of the proceeding against the respondents constituted an abuse of the process of the Court or its quashing was necessary to secure the ends of justice.

The facts and circumstances obtaining at the time of the subsequent application of Respondents 1 and 2 were clearly different from what they were at the time of the earlier application of the first respondent because, despite the rejection of the earlier application of the first respondent, the prosecution had failed to make any progress in the criminal case even though it was filed as far back as 1965 and the criminal case rested where it was for a period of over one and a half years. It was for this reason that, despite the earlier order, the High Court proceeded to consider the subsequent application of Respondents 1 and 2 for the purpose of deciding whether it should exercise its inherent jurisdiction under S. 561-A. This the High Court was perfectly entitled to do and there is no jurisdictional infirmity in the order of the High Court. Even on the merits, the order of the High Court was justified as no prima facie case appeared to have been made out against Respondents 1 and 2. Supdt. and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Mohan Singh, (1975) 3 SCC 706: 1975 SCC (Cri) 156: AIR 1975 SC 1002: 1975 Cri LJ 812.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1974]

[9379] — S. 561-A — Scope — Judge making remarks against Police Department of the State — State Government is aggrieved party and is competent to invoke inherent powers of the High Court under the section. State of U.P. v. Mohd. Naim, AIR 1964 SC 703: (1964) 2 SCR 363: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 549, 553.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1963]

[9380] — S. 561-A — Scope — Judge making sweeping and general observations against the entire police force of State — Considerations to weigh with a Judge making disparaging remarks explained — Held, High Court should have exercised its inherent powers and expunged the remarks. State of U.P. v. Mohd. Naim, AIR 1964 SC 703, 707: (1964) 2 SCR 363, 374, 37: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 549, 553.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1963]

[9381] — S. 561-A — Scope — Merely safeguards the existing powers of the High Court — No new powers conferred by the section

Section 561-A confers no new powers on a High Court. It merely safeguards all existing inherent powers possessed by a High Court necessary (among other purposes) to secure the ends of justice. The section provides that those powers which the Court inherently possesses shall be preserved lest it be considered that the only powers possessed by the Court are those expressly conferred by the Code and that no inherent powers had survived the passing of the Code. State of U.P. v. Mohd. Naim, AIR 1964 SC 703, 705: (1964) 2 SCR 363, 370: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 549, 55.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: S.K. Das, A.K. Sarkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1963]

[9382] — Ss. 561-A, 498 and 496 — Bail — Cancellation of — There is no distinction between bailable and non-bailable offences in regard to the effect of prejudicial conduct of an accused subsequent to his release on bail

If a fair trial is the main objective of the criminal procedure, any threat to the continuance of a fair trial must be immediately arrested and the smooth progress of a fair trial must be ensured, and this can be done, if necessary, by the exercise of inherent power. The classification of offences into bailable and non-bailable on which are based the different provisions as to the grant of bail would not, in our opinion, have any material bearing in dealing with the effect of subsequent conduct of accused persons on the continuance of a fair trial itself. If an accused person, by his conduct, puts the fair trial into jeopardy, it would be the primary and paramount duty of criminal Courts to ensure that the risk to the fair trial is removed and criminal Courts are allowed to proceed with the trial smoothly and without any interruption or obstruction; and this would be equally true in cases of both bailable as well as non-bailable offences. We, therefore, feel no difficulty in holding that, if, by his subsequent conduct, a person accused of a bailable offence forfeits his right to be released on bail, that forfeiture must be made effective by invoking the inherent power of the High Court under S. 561-A. Omission of legislature to make a specific provision in that behalf is clearly due to oversight or inadvertence and cannot be regarded as deliberate. Talab Haji Hussain v. Madhukar Purshottam Mondkar, AIR 1958 SC 376, 380: 1958 SCR 1226, 123: 1958 Cri LJ 701, 705, 70.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, J.L. Kapur and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1958]

[9383] — Ss. 561-A and 426 — Power of High Court to cancel bail

In a proper case the High Court has inherent power under S. 561-A, Criminal Procedure Code, to cancel the order of suspension of sentence and grant of bail to the appellant made under S. 426, Criminal Procedure Code, and to order that the appellant be re-arrested and committed to jail-custody. Pampapathy v. State of Mysore, AIR 1967 SC 286, 289: 1966 Supp SCR 477, 482: 1967 Cri LJ 287.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Ramaswami and J.M. Shelat, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-1966]

[9384] — Ss. 561-A and 496 — High Court's power to cancel bail granted under S. 496 — High Court competent to cancel bail under its inherent powers under S. 561-A

The Code makes no express provision for the cancellation of a bail granted under S. 496. Nevertheless, if at any subsequent stage of the proceedings, it is found that any person accused of a bailable offence is intimidating, bribing or tampering with the prosecution witnesses or is attempting to abscond, the High Court has the power to cause him to be arrested and to commit him to custody for such period as it thinks fit. This jurisdiction springs from the overriding inherent powers of the High Court and can be invoked in exceptional cases only when the High Court is satisfied that the ends of justice will be defeated unless the accused is committed to custody. This inherent power of the High Court exists and is preserved by S. 561-A of the Code. The person committed to custody under the orders of the High Court cannot ask for his release on bail under S. 496, but the High Court may by a subsequent order admit him to bail again. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, AIR 1967 SC 1639, 1640: (1967) 3 SCR 926, 927: 1967 Cri LJ 1576.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, C.J. and R.S. Bachawat, J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1967]

[9385] — Ss. 561-A and 496 — Scope — High Court cancelling bail of the accused on the ground that he was intimidating and tampering with some German witnesses — High Court also ordering that the accused could apply for bail after 26-6-1967 under the contemplation that by then the witnesses would have been examined — Witnesses not examined till then by laches of the prosecution — Supreme Court while deciding the appeal on 4-5-1967 directed the accused to be released on bail. Ratilal Bhanji Mithani v. Asstt. Collector of Customs, AIR 1967 SC 1639: (1967) 3 SCR 926: 1967 Cri LJ 1576.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo, C.J. and R.S. Bachawat, J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1967]

[9386] — Ss. 561-A and 499 — Revisional jurisdiction of High Court — Power to act suo motu where punishment inadequate — Effect of S. 377, CrPC, 1973 — Supreme Court would not interfere with such exercise of power — Constitution of India — Article 136 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 482 & 401. Nadir Khan v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1975) 2 SCC 406: 1975 SCC (Cri) 622: AIR 1976 SC 2205: 1976 Cri LJ 1721.

Bench Strength 1. Coram: P.K. Goswami, J. [Date of decision: 3-6-1975]

— S. 562 See also Ss. 380 and 562 to 564

[9387] — S. 562 — Interpretation of reference to, in subsequent Central statutes after repeal of the 1898 Code and enactment of CrPC, 1973 — Reference in S. 19 and S. 18, Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 to S. 562 CrPC, 1898 and S. 5(2), Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 respectively — Must be read such as to refer to the corresponding sections in the respective new Acts in view of S. 8, General Clauses Act, 1897 — Hence, held, benefit under provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act and S. 360 inapplicable to a conviction under S. 13(2), Prevention of Corruption Act — General Clauses Act, 1897, S. 8 — Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, S. 5(2) — CrPC, 1973, S. 360 — Inapplicability of provisions of, in case of conviction under Ss. 7 and 13(2), Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 — Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, S. 13(2)

In view of the provisions of Section 8 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, the references to Section 562 CrPC, 1898 and Section 5(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 in Sections 19 and 18 of the Probation Act respectively have to be inevitably read as references to their corresponding provisions in CrPC, 1973 and the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988. Consequently, for the conviction under Section 13(2) of the Act the principles enunciated under the Probation Act cannot be extended at all in view of the mandate contained in Section 18 of the said Act. So far as Section 360 of the Code is concerned, on and from the date of extension and enforcement of the provisions of the Probation Act to Delhi, powers under Section 562 CrPC, 1898 and after its repeal and replacement powers under Section 360 CrPC, 1973, cannot be invoked or applied at all, as has been done in the present case. (Para 11). State v. Ratan Lal Arora, (2004) 4 SCC 590: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1353: AIR 2004 SC 2364: (2004) 111 DLT 250: 2004 Cri LJ 2105.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2004]

[9388] — S. 562(1-A) — Interpretation of — "Or any offences under the Indian Penal Code" occurring in the section — Meaning of — Offences referred not confined to those sections of the IPC where property is directly or indirectly involved — Section capable of dealing with all offences punishable with not more than two years' imprisonment. Akarapu Katta Mallu v. Purna Chandra Rao, AIR 1967 SC 1363: (1967) 2 SCR 309: (1967) 2 MLJ (SC) 65: 1967 Cri LJ 1212.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Bhargava and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1966]

— S. 563 See Ss. 380 and 562 to 564

— S. 564 See Ss. 380 and 562 to 564

[9389] — Sch. II — Offence under S. 336, IPC

Even on the basis that the inquiry has to proceed for an offence under S. 336, IPC, the position will be that the summons case procedure will have to be followed. Cricket Assn. of Bengal v. State of W.B., (1971) 3 SCC 239: 1971 SCC (Cri) 446: AIR 1971 SC 1925: 1971 Cri LJ 1432.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-3-1971]

[9390] — Sch. III — First Class Magistrate can also gain experience in trial of criminal cases triable by Second Class Magistrate for more than 3 years

As per Sch. III of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 a Magistrate of the First Class is also entitled to exercise all the powers of a Magistrate of the Second Class. It would, therefore, follow that a First Class Magistrate can also gain experience by the trial of cases triable by a Second Class Magistrate. What is of relevance is the gaining of experience in trial of criminal cases for a period of three years and more and at the same time having the powers of a First Class Magistrate and not necessarily the experience of trying cases triable by a First Class Magistrate alone. Beopar Sahayak (P) Ltd. v. Vishwa Nath, (1987) 3 SCC 693: 1987 SCC (Cri) 641: AIR 1987 SC 2111: 1987 ALJ 1434.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and S. Natarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-7-1987]

— Sch. III Part V Entry 7(a) See Ss. 337(1), 10(2), 529 and Sch. III, Part V, Entry 7(a)

— Sch. V Form VIII See Ss. 96, 98 and Sch. V Form VIII

— Sch. V Form XIII See S. 499 and Sch. V Form XIII

— Sch. V Form XVLL See S. 499 and Sch. V Form XVLL

[9391] — Sch. V, Form XXVIII — Form of charge — "On or before" used in the charge — Whether words are vague — Whether words "on or about" should instead be used

The words "on or before" used in the charge might cause embarrassment and prejudice to the defence of the accused because he will not be in a position to know what the prosecution actually intends to allege. From a reference of Form XXVIII of Schedule V of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the mode of charging a person is that he 'on or about'... did the act complained of. In view of the forms of the charge given in the Schedule to the Code, it would, therefore, be fair to the appellant if the charge is amended to read 'on or about' instead of 'on or before'. Gunwantlal v. State of M.P., (1972) 2 SCC 194: 1972 SCC (Cri) 678: AIR 1972 SC 1756: 1972 Cri LJ 1187.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, K.K. Mathew and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1972]

[9392] — Sch. V, Form XLII — Bond of surety and accused not necessarily to be on the same paper

It is not required by any provision of the Code of Criminal Procedure that all the sureties should execute the bond printed at the back of the form on which the accused executes the personal bond or that the accused must execute as many bonds in identical terms as there are surety bonds by individual sureties. The mere fact that Form XLII, Schedule V, Criminal Procedure Code, prints the contents of the two bonds, one to be executed by the accused and the other by the surety, together, does not mean that both these bonds should be on the same sheet of paper. Bekaru Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 430, 433: (1963) 1 SCR 55, 62: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 335.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.L. Kapur and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1962]

End of Volume 2

Purchased:
Approval:
Gratis: 027192
Acc No.:
Price:
"Narayan Rao Melgiri"
National Law Library
Bangalore

UIB Checked

NATIONAL LAW SCHOOL OF INDIA
UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
NAGARABHAVI, BANGALORE - 560 072.
This book must be returned by the date stamped below

P.T.O.

Subscribe today!

Supreme Court Cases™
(Criminal)

Supreme Court Cases™ (Cri) provides extensive coverage of all reportable and non-reportable cases of the Supreme Court of India on criminal matters, including many cases not reported elsewhere. Supreme Court Cases™ (Cri) is widely regarded by both practitioners and academics as the most reliable source of reference for Supreme Court criminal cases.

Chief Editor:

Surendra Malik

B.Sc. (Hons.), LL.M. (Columbia), Gold Medallist,
Advocate, Supreme Court

Annual Subscription for 2011

Book Post†	..	₹ 1625
Regd. Post	..	₹ 1829

ly by Book-Post is at subscriber's risk

Back Volumes Available

Full set from 1970 to 2010 and
1 volume of 2011 (in 63 volumes)
Price on request

All prices quoted are subject to change without prior notice.

345.05
MAL-II
Cl. No.
Author MALIK
345.05
MAL-II
027192

Just Released!

SUPREME COURT CRIMINAL DIGEST 2010

Surendra Malik
Sumeet Malik • Sudeep Malik

A handy practitioner's guide to the entire criminal case law laid down by the Supreme Court in the year 2010.

2011 Edition Price: ₹ 880

Also Available

Supreme Court Criminal Digest, 2009	₹ 550
Supreme Court Criminal Digest, 2008	₹ 450
Supreme Court Criminal Digest, 2007	₹ 395
Supreme Court Criminal Digest, 2006	₹ 375
Supreme Court Criminal Digest, 2005	₹ 375

COAT POCKET SERIES

Each book in the series is beautifully bound in imported leatherite with superior print on bible paper. The special flexi-bound cover in international finish can withstand every day usage while lending the books a rich look.

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973
—
Evidence Act, 1872

2011 Edition | Price: ₹ 550
(Flexi-bound)

Indian Penal Code, 1860

2011 Edition | Price: ₹ 250
(Flexi-bound)

The Constitution of India

3rd Edition, 2011 | Price: ₹ 495
(Flexi-bound)

Civil Procedure Code, 1908

2011 Edition | In Press
(Flexi-bound)

Eastern Book Company
India's leading law information provider

ebcwebstore.com
The largest number of legal titles online!

ISBN: 93-5028-169-4
EAN
AB/169
9 789350 281697